SOLON, OH (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Keithley Instruments, Inc. (AMEX: KEI), a leader in test and measurement instrumentation, today announced financial results for its fiscal year and fourth quarter which ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Net sales for 1990 reached a record $100,593,000, up 13 percent over last year. "This is the first time in Keithley's history that sales were above one hundred million dollars," stated Thomas G. Brick, Keithley's president and chief executive officer. "Having MetraByte for a full year and increased sales in Europe and the Pacific Basin more than offset decreased sales in a soft domestic market."

Net income of $3,378,000 in fiscal 1990 decreased 18 percent from $4,131,000 in 1989. Net income per share was $0.96 compared to $1.18 last year. The decline in net income was attributed primarily to increased marketing and unusual net charges of approximately $0.13 per share, including the benefit of a lower effective tax rate. The net charges included costs to write down intangible assets and settle employment contracts at Kethley's Asyst Software subsidiary, which were offset by the favorable effect of a new benefit policy.

For the fourth quarter, which includes MetraByte in both 1990 and 1989, net sales increased 8 percent to $25,816,000. Net income for the fourth quarter was $1,117,000, down 10 percent from $1,248,000 in the comparable period last year. Net income per share for the quarter declined to $0.31 from $0.36 a year ago. The quarter includes approximately $0.05 per share of the aforementioned unusual net charges.

Brick stated, "Earnings in 1990 were good considering the difficult conditions in the test and measurement industry. In positioning the company for long-term growth, we absorbed some significant charges at Asyst, which will reduce their future cost of operations, and we continued our product development and new product marketing programs. In addition, MetraByte became a positive contributor to earnings during 1990 and helped the company pay down $5,857,000 of debt.

"The outlook for 1991 is, however, very uncertain," added Brick. "Weak market conditions coupled with the apparent economic recession, could further impact our business. We will continue to focus on managing our assets and controlling costs."

DETROIT (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - General Motors announced today it will voluntarily conduct a safety recall of approximately 520,000 model year 1989-90 passenger cars for potential problems with the brake stoplamps. Affected owners are being notified directly by mail. GM dealers will perform all necessary inspections and repairs at no charge to owners.

Vehicles involved in the recall include certain 1989-90 Pontiac Grand Prix, Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme and Buick Regal models, as well as certain 1990 Chevrolet Lumina cars.

The subject vehicles may have a faulty electrical switch which could result in the stoplamps not illuminating upon application of the brakes, or conversely, staying on all the time. This condition could make it difficult for the driver of a trailing vehicle to recognize braking action of the vehicle ahead.

Additionally, if the cruise control function is engaged, the cruise may go to the "resume" mode upon release of the brakes. If this occurs, the cruise control feature can be disengaged by moving the cruise switch to the "off" position or by reapplying the brakes. Normal braking capability is not impaired by any of the above conditions. GM dealers will replace the stoplamp switch to correct the potential problem.

Customers who have questions on the recall should contact their local GM dealer or call their respective divisional customer assistance center at the following toll-free numbers: Pontiac, 1-800-762-2737; Oldsmobile, 1-800-442-OLDS; Buick, 1-800-521-7300; or Chevrolet, 1-800-222-1020.

FAIRFIELD, N.J. (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Unigene Laboratories, Inc. (NASDAQ: UGNE) announced today that it has finalized an agreement with the Pennsylvania State University to collaborate on a research program involving its proprietary amidating enzyme. The company also announced that its parent amidation patent, covering both its amidating enzyme and hormone production technology, has issued in Australia.

The purpose of the Penn State collaboration will be to clarify the complex chemical mechanism by which the enzyme functions. The enzyme is currently used to fully activate peptide hormones in the second stage of the company's patented hormone production process. A greater understanding of the enzyme's behavior may enable the development of further efficiencies in the hormone production process or suggest ways in which the body's natural amidating enzyme might be manipulated to regulate important physiological functions. The University research effort will be directed by Professor Joseph J. Villafranca, one of the country's leading scientists in the field of enzyme structure/function analysis.

Australia is the third country to allow Unigene's initial amidation patent to issue. The company has previously received issuance notices from the United States and Hungary, while similar claims are currently pending in 17 countries. Unigene's Vice President, Dr. Ronald S. Levy, commented "We have devoted much time and effort to the establishment of a strong international patent umbrella to ensure the exclusivity of our amidation technology. We currently have several patent applications pending in the major industrialized countries of the world, and as each patent issues we move closer to realizing that goal."

Unigene Laboratories is a biotechnology company that develops technology and products with applications in the health care field. The company's proprietary amidation process is capable of producing peptide hormones for the treatment of a variety of diseases and disorders including osteoporosis, dwarfism and hypertension.

PARIS (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Rhone-Poulenc (NYSE: RPU) has decided to double the production of its hydrochlorofluorocarbon (HCFC-22) unit at Avonmouth in England, bringing it to about 8,000 tons per year by the end of the year.

Some FF25 million ($2.5 million) is being invested to this end. The chemical and physical properties of HCFCs allow them to be used as substitutes for chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) without damaging the ozone layer. There is significant potential for development in this area. This increase in capacity is part of Rhone-Poulenc's policy of expanding its Avonmouth plant, which also houses a pilot plant for HFA 134.

Rhone-Poulenc, a world leader in specialty fluorine products, manufactures fluorine derivatives both at Salindres in France and at Avonmouth in the United Kingdom. The latter, formerly part of RTZ Chemicals' ISC Division, was acquired by Rhone-Poulenc in 1989.

The acquisition of the Avonmouth business has brought Rhone-Poulenc a unique product range and increased its know-how in fluorine chemistry. Some of the products are used within the Rhone-Poulenc Group in crop protection and pharmaceutical applications.

OIL CITY, PA. (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Quaker State Corporation (NYSE: KSF) has introduced a family of new synthetic products called Synquest.

The new line includes Synquest 5W-50 synthetic motor oil, Synquest 5W-40 synthetic blend motor oil, Synquest 75W-90 synthetic gear lubricant, and Synquest NLGI No. 2 synthetic grease.

"Synquest motor oils are state of the art products that will appeal particularly to drivers of luxury and performance cars that operate under extreme conditions," says Homer M. Ellenburg, president and chief operating officer of Quaker State Oil Refining Corporation, a subsidiary of Quaker State Corporation.

"Synthetic and synthetic blend motor oils have captured a significant share of the European market," says Mr. Ellenburg, "and now, U.S. motorists are beginning to seek the benefits that synthetics or synthetic blends can offer. No other motor oil on the market today provides a wider range of protection at extreme temperature conditions than Synquest."

Synquest motor oils flow at temperatures below minus 40 degrees Fahrenheit for good cold weather starting and wear protection. At the other extreme, engine temperatures as high as 450 degrees Fahrenheit are easily handled by Synquest motor oils.

Synquest motor oils have passed the highest standards for passenger cars and light trucks set by the American Petroleum Institute (API)), European (CCMC) and Japanese (JASO) performance tests. The tests demonstrate that Synquest -- like all Quaker State motor oils -- offers motorists some exceptional qualities:

-- Synquest significantly reduces engine deposits because of its thermal stability and resistance to high temperature oxidation.

-- Synquest's exceptional low temperature characteristics result in faster lubrication and quicker starts during extreme cold weather.

-- Synquest has low volatility, so it does not easily evaporate or boil away. This can reduce oil consumption.

-- Synquest provides outstanding wear protection because of its excellent viscosity properties and shear stability.

-- Synquest's low friction properties provide improved fuel economy. Even though synthetic lubricants do not break down from normal heat and heavy use, Synquest motor oils should be changed at car manufacturers' recommended intervals because they collect engine dirt and combustion by-products as they lubricate and cool.

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - On Monday, Nov. 19, 1990, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) assigned to New York State Electric & Gas Corporation's (NYSE: NGE) February 1990 electric and natural gas rate filing issued his recommended decision.

The ALJ's recommended decision provides for an electric rate increase of $69.4 million, or 5.9 percent, to become effective Feb. 1, 1991, and also provides that unbilled revenues will be used to offset a natural gas rate increase which would otherwise have been required. The recommended decision assumes a return on equity of 12.2 percent and an overall rate of return of 10.53 percent.

Differences between the ALJ's recommended decision and the company's request for a $79.4 million (6.65 percent) increase in electric rates and a $6.5 million (4 percent) increase in natural gas rates reflect primarily a lower allowed return on equity provided by the ALJ (12.2 percent versus 13 percent requested by the company).

The ALJ's recommended decision now goes to the full Public Service Commission for its consideration. A final decision is expected by Jan. 26, 1991.

Results in the third quarter of 1989 included miscellaneous income of $117,000 relating to the reimbursement of litigation defense costs and expenditures from certain of its insurance carriers incurred previously by the company.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 the company incurred a loss from continuing operations of $167,000, or $.08 per share, on sales of $5,920,000, compared to income from continuing operations of $400,000, or $.03 per share, on sales of $5,621,000, for the comparable period last year. Such results for the nine month period ended Sept. 30, 1990 also included a gain of $638,000 realized from the sale of surplus real property, compared to a gain of $121,000 realized in the 1990 period.

In addition, in the first nine months of 1989, the company terminated operations of Adobe Home Centers, Inc. and disposed of substantially all of the assets relating to their operations. As a result, the company recognized a gain from discontinued operations of $706,000, due principally to a realized gain of $906,000 derived from the sale of real property in the second quarter of 1989.

The company recognized an extraordinary gain of $327,000 in the second quarter of 1989 as a result of the settlement of an accrued liability for an amount less than the carrying value of the obligation shown on the company's accounting records.

As a result, the company had a loss of $415,000, or $.08 per share, for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared to net income of $1,175,000, or $.23 per share, for 1990.

Cansorb Industries underwent major restructuring and management changes in December of 1989 and has been rebuilding its market share regionally during 1990. PHOENIX, AZ (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Syntellect Inc. (NASDAQ: SYNL) announced today that it has received a 1991 order forecast from IBM (NYSE: IBM) which indicates substantially reduced order demand compared to 1990 levels. IBM markets two private-label versions of Syntellect's interactive voice response (IVR) equipment and is Syntellect's largest single customer. IBM accounted for 25 percent of Syntellect's total revenues in 1989 and 30 percent for the three quarters ended Sept. 30, 1990. The dollar value to Syntellect of the new 1991 IBM forecast is approximately $2.3 million, or about 40 percent of the level forecasted by IBM last year for the 1990 calendar year.

IBM representatives have officially provided no explanation for the projected decline in orders. Syntellect management has recently become aware of IBM development efforts directed at an internally-designed interactive voice response product and believes that the order decline is tied to a planned introduction of the IBM product. IBM has been a long-term participant in the interactive voice response industry, having offered various products to the marketplace on and off since 1968.

Syntellect Executive Vice President of Marketing and Sales Bill Sparks states that, "It has always been a possibility that IBM might decide to re-enter this market directly with their own product. It appears that IBM's marketplace success with the Syntellect product may have expedited their decision." He points out that, "With IBM's current momentum and existing installed base of 9270 and 9274 product, we anticipate continued ordering from IBM at a reduced rate well into 1992."

According to S. Thomas Emerson, Syntellect's president and CEO, "Although IBM's reduced order level will affect Syntellect in the short- term, we believe that a decision by IBM to enter the IVR market directly would be positive for the industry. If our assessment of IBM's actions is correct, it will amount to a very strong endorsement of the long-term market opportunities for IVR technology." Emerson adds that, "Although IBM has accounted for 20-30 percent of Syntellect's revenues during the past two years, significant OEM discounts have made IBM a much smaller contributor to Syntellect's product gross margins."

Syntellect Inc. develops and markets a family of IVR systems, and is the leading supplier of these systems worldwide. Interactive voice response technology links touchtone telephones with computer-processed vocabulary to help revolutionize the way organizations provide information, deliver services and control the flow of products. Syntellect is headquartered in Phoenix.

PHOENIX, AZ (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Syntellect Inc. (NASDAQ: SYNL) announced today it has signed an agreement with GPT, headquartered in Coventry, United Kingdom, to market its INFOBOT(R) line of interactive voice response systems.

GPT is the largest telecommunications manufacturer in the United Kingdom and one of the largest in Europe. The company is in the forefront of technology, with marketing and manufacturing facilities throughout the world, and has proven resources and ability to use them.

"This agreement establishes Syntellect as a major player in the European market, and it positions GPT as having the most advanced voice response systems available," said Harwood Shepard, vice president of Syntellect. Shepard said the initial contract is worth more than $1 million.

Director of GPT Telephone Systems, Bob Skinner, said the agreement links two companies with world class pedigrees. "This deal shows GPT's firm commitment to interactive voice response products as a way ahead for the future," he said.

GPT will market Syntellect's family of INFOBOT systems, which include a new speaker-independent voice recognition feature, along with Syntellect's expert system software. According to Shepard, the combination will allow UK customers to upgrade from earlier generation voice response systems and to broaden their applications for voice response.

Shepard added that with the extensive resources of Syntellect and GPT throughout Europe, manufacturing in the European community is a consideration.

"As volume grows in Europe, Syntellect will consider European manufacturing of its products," said Shepard. "Syntellect has a strong commitment to the UK and European markets."

Interactive voice response systems allow customers to use a telephone to access routine information and to request service related to financial and credit accounts, insurance programs, order status and many other applications. Assistance for using the system and responses to inquiries are given in a human voice.

NEWPORT BEACH, CALIF. (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Pacific Scientific Co. (NYSE: PSX) said it now expects to report unanticipated costs and expenses of approximately $4 million for its fourth quarter ending Dec. 28, 1990, reflecting inventory start-up and other problems within its Fisher Pierce Division, as well as certain environmental clean-up cost. Edgar Brower, the company's chairman, president and chief executive officer, said that, as a result, analyst expectations for 1990 net income should be adjusted downward significantly to reflect a potential fourth-quarter loss of as much as $1.5 million.

Brower said that upon performing physical inventory compilation procedures at Fisher Pierce during late November, approximately $1 million of inventory problems were noted after operations from its former Puerto Rican facility were consolidated in Massachusetts. In addition, he said that the company now projects additional Fisher Pierce losses during the fourth quarter up to $1.5 million from a slower-than-expected start-up of the moved operation, loss of certain operating efficiencies, sales below expectations and other unanticipated expenses.

Approximately $1.5 million in environmental clean-up expense will be charged to earnings in the fourth quarter of 1990, Brower said. Late in 1989 the company sold real property in Anaheim, Calif., and agreed to clean, up to governmental requirements, any contaminants found in the soil. The estimated expense of this clean-up has now been determined based on an extensive environmental investigation of the property. The clean-up reserve established when the property was sold, has been expended in this nine-month investigation. An additional environmental clean-up expense is being recognized for the company's former Puerto Rican facility and involves the disposal of an electrical power transformer containing toxic oil.

The principal industrial products include electric motors and controls, and measurement and control instrumentation. DALLAS, (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Metro Airlines Inc. (NASDAQ: MAIRC) today announced that The Supreme Court of Georgia has reversed the judgment of the lower courts which had found in favor of Metro Airlines and one of its subsidiaries against another commuter airline and certain of its key shareholders and executives. The court determined a new trial is required.

The appeals court and the trial court had found Michael J. Brady, John E. Molis and Charles A. Miller had conspired to establish Phoenix Airline Services Inc. and its affiliate, Express Airlines I Inc., while they were employed by Metro Express Inc., Metro Airlines' subsidiary in Atlanta. The courts had found that these activities of the defendants deprived Metro Airlines and Metro Express of a corporate opportunity and violated fiduciary duties of loyalty to both Metro Airlines and Metro Express.

In its opinion, the Supreme Court held that, under the facts presented, Metro Airlines was not entitled to its own individual direct action, and, therefore, only Metro Express should have been able to bring the suit. The court further found that one of the jury charges should have been stated differently. The court concluded that a new trial is required since it is impossible to determine what percentage of the lump sum award from the trial court was for Metro Airlines and what percentage of the award was for Metro Express.

J.L. Seaborn, president of Metro Airlines, stated, "Metro Airlines and Metro Express intend to aggressively pursue the reconsideration and, if necessary, the retrial of this suit. Although if retrial is necessary there is no assurance that Metro will again obtain a favorable verdict from the trial court, we believe we would clearly be able to again show the wrong dealings of the defendants and hopefully either obtain the stock of Phoenix and Express Airlines or increase the monetary award payable by the defendants to more accurately reflect the damages sustained by Metro."

WASHINGTON (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The AFL-CIO announced today that it is responding to federal Judge Jack B. Weinstein's request that the federation assume an advisory role in the settlement of the asbestos claims against the Johns Manville Corp.

Judge Weinstein made the request in a letter to AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland by saying that "it would be useful to have the plan independently reviewed by an individual who understands the plight of the American worker" regarding asbestos but who is "uninfluenced by the hope of high legal fees."

Weinstein, in his Nov. 19 letter to Kirkland, added: "The goal is to assure that the final version of the plan and its administration is equitable from the perspective of the workers and families who claim injury. It is highly desirable that labor have direct input into the process."

In response, Kirkland said: "I agree that recent events demonstrate that the current system for compensating the working people who have been injured by exposure to asbestos is seriously flawed and that there is an urgent need for a concerted effort at establishing a just, equitable, prompt and efficient national compensation system. You have my pledge of full labor ...

Kirkland recommended AFL-CIO General Counsel Laurence Gold for the role of special adviser. Gold, 53, who has been general counsel since 1984 and has represented the AFL-CIO since 1965, is a graduate of Princeton University and Harvard Law School.

The appointment of Gold coincides with a settlement agreement submitted to Weinstein by the Manville trust Tuesday that would combine 130,000 asbestos lawsuits.

DALLAS (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - BANK ONE, TEXAS, NA has filed suit against Ameritrust Texas Corp., Ameritrust Corp. and Ameritrust Texas, National Association in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division. BANK ONE's suit, filed Nov. 9, 1990, disputes Ameritrust's claims that it is the proper fiduciary under the Texas Substitute Fiduciary Act with respect to unmatured wills, trust instruments and similar documents which appoint a failed MBank or its predecessors in a fiduciary capacity.

According to Richard M. Hart, chairman of the Trust Committee for BANK ONE, TEXAS, the purpose of the suit is "to carry out the intent of thousands of bank customers who have previously named one of the former MBanks, such as Mercantile National Bank at Dallas, as executor and trustee under their wills.

"It is our strong feeling and position that customers of the former MBanks and their predecessors expect BANK ONE, as successor to the MBanks, to serve as fiduciary under their wills, and, we believe, under the law BANK ONE is entitled to serve under those wills," said Hart. "In most cases, these individuals have continued to be customers of BANK ONE with the same officers serving their accounts.

BANK ONE's suit seeks declaratory relief prohibiting Ameritrust from interfering with BANK ONE's existing and perspective business and fiduciary relationships as well as an accounting with respect to certain trust accounts. BANK ONE also seeks actual and punitive damages for the wrongful actions of the defendants with respect to BANK ONE's efforts to conduct its trust business.

TALLAHASSEE, FL (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - In an effort to decrease the costs for Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company customers' intrastate toll calls, Florida's Public Service Commission today ordered Southern Bell to reduce its toll rates, amounting to a revenue reduction of $25.6 million. This revenue reduction, along with two others ordered today by the PSC for Southern Bell, amounts to $26,808,500.

In addition to reducing toll rates, the PSC ordered Southern Bell to eliminate Extended Area Service (EAS) additives for several routes, amounting to a revenue reduction of $763,500. The commission also directed Southern Bell to eliminate toll charges on three intraLATA toll routes. This rate change will result in a net annual toll reduction of $445,000.

With the adjustment to the toll rates, customers should see a reduction in the cost of most toll calls within Southern Bell's territory. These rates will become effective Dec. 1, 1990. For example, a customer in Key West, making a 3-minute daytime call to West Palm Beach will now pay 60 cents instead of the previous $1.20.

"With this reduction in toll rates, the commission was able to bring intrastate rates below interstate rates without increasing any local charges," said Chairman Michael Wilson. "The new rates proposed by the PSC are below AT&T's interstate rates for every mileage band."

He added, "The commission's action today ensures that Florida has among the lowest intrastate rates in the United States and also shows our concern for ratepayers as we continue our close review of Southern Bell's incentive regulation plan approved two years ago."

In 1988, the PSC reserved about $147,743,082 of Southern Bell's 1990 earnings for later disposition. The disposition was to be decided after Southern Bell's depreciation rates were set. This past June, the commission's vote resulted in additional net depreciation expense for 1990 of $98,344,915. After Southern Bell was ordered subsequently to reduce its Busy Hour Minutes of Capacity revenue annually by $18,620,000, which resulted in lower long distance rates for AT&T customers, a net of $30,778,167 was available for further disposition by the commission.

Today's PSC action leaves about $3,969,667 left to be disposed of by the commission after Southern Bell implements the other reductions.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Giant Food Inc. (AMEX: GFS.A), a Washington-based food-drug chain of 151 units, today announced unaudited sales and earnings for the 12- and 36-week periods ended Nov. 3, 1990, compared with the same periods ended Nov. 4, 1989.

Sales at Giant's 151 supermarkets continued to reflect the general slowdown in the regional economy. As reported in the Washington Post on Nov. 15, Commerce Department statistics reveal there is a national flattening of retail growth, with food store sales declining 0.5 percent nationally in October. At Giant, sales have continued to increase, although at a slower pace than previously with sales for the 12 weeks increasing 3.1 percent over the same period a year ago. Thirty-six week sales increased 4.5 percent. For stores in operation both years, sales increased 0.2 percent for the 12 weeks and 1.5 percent for the 36 weeks. These same store sales continue to be impacted by stores the company opened over the past year which have taken some of their sales from nearby Giant stores, primarily in Dale City and Springfield, Va., and Columbia and Hunt Valley, Md.

During the period, Giant began the second year of a September 1989 union labor contract with its store personnel. As a result, a 45 cent per hour wage increase took effect Sept. 16. On Sept. 2, the company launched its second year of the Apples for the Students program which awards free computers, peripheral equipment, and software to schools in exchange for Giant receipt tapes. The cost for this program during the 12 weeks was $2.3 million.

Of Giant's 36-week earnings of 3.46 percent approximately 1 percent is derived from manufacturing, wholesaling, distributing, processing and non-retail operations.

On Nov. 7, 1990, after the close of the period, Giant opened its 152nd store, a 58,000 square foot food-drug store in the Village Center at Sully Station in Centreville.

At the close of the period, the company operated 151 supermarkets, of which 101 are food-drug stores. Giant also operates two free-standing drug stores. This compares with 147 supermarkets, 97 food-drug stores and two free-standing drug stores in the prior year.

OAK BROOK, IL (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Envirodyne Industries, Inc. today announced that it has reached an agreement in principle with a domestic financial institution to enter into a sale and leaseback of the cellulosic casing production and finishing equipment at Viskase Corp.'s four domestic casing plants.

The approximate $170 million of sale proceeds will be used to repay term and revolving loans under the senior secured bank facility. The sale and leaseback transaction, which has been approved by the board of directors of Envirodyne and the financial institution, requires the unanimous consent of the bank syndicate (in order to release collateral and to modify the term loan amortization schedule). There can be no assurances that necessary bank syndicate consents for the sale and leaseback transaction can be obtained.

The principal terms of the agreement include (a) a 15-year basic lease term (plus selected renewals at Viskase's option); (b) annual rent payments in advance beginning January 1991; and (c) a fixed price purchase option at the end of the basic 15-year term. Further, the agreement contains covenants requiring maintenance of certain financial ratios and restrictions on dividends, payments to affiliates, limitations on investments and incurrence of indebtedness.

Annual rental payments under the lease will be approximately $19 million through 1997, $21 million in 1998 and $23 million through the end of the basic term. Envirodyne is required to provide credit support, which will consist of a standby letter of credit, in the amount of one year's rent through at least 1997. Thereafter, this credit support can be reduced or eliminated if Envirodyne achieves and maintains certain financial ratios.

MIAMI (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Rudy's Restaurant Group (NASDAQ: RUDY) (the "company") announced today that it has sold one restaurant, settled litigation on another, and restructured its loan agreement with its principal lender.

One of Rudy's Restaurant Group's subsidiaries, Rudy's Sirloin SteakBurgers, Inc. ("RSB"), sold its Kendall Drive restaurant lease rights and equipment Rudy's did not own the land or building for approximately $300,000. The restaurant will no longer be operated as a Rudy's restaurant, and RSB was released from any further liability under the lease. RSB decided this was the appropriate decision due to cross-competition for some of the same customers with its Rudy's restaurant on South Dixie Highway, the two-year Florida Department of Transportation road work now starting on Kendall Drive, and disappointment with recent results of the unit.

The Samurai, Inc., another of the company's subsidiaries, reached a complete settlement of its claims against a New York law firm related to services performed in the acquisition of its Orlando-based Samurai Japanese Steak and Seafood restaurant.

Rudy's Restaurant Group has also agreed to relinquish its rights to certain future expansion line funds under its agreement with Heller Financial, Inc. in return for a full waiver of related holding fees that would have been owed by the company to Heller under the agreement. All other terms and conditions remain unchanged.

A loss of $133,600 was recognized from discontinued operations during the third quarter. A net profit in the amount of $230,100 was posted for the nine months ended Sept. 30

MINNEAPOLIS (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Norstan, Inc. (NASDAQ: NRRD) today announced the results for its second quarter ended Oct. 27, 1990 and fiscal year-to-date.

Operating income for the second quarter ended Oct. 27, 1990 increased 4.6 percent to $1,582,000 as compared to $1,512,000 last year. Revenues for the second quarter increased 18.9 percent to $33,172,000 compared to $27,899,000 the previous year. Net income for the second quarter decreased 14.6 percent to $688,000 or $.20 per share, as compared to $806,000 or $.26 per share for the same period a year ago.

Operating income for the six months ended Oct. 27, 1990 increased 10.2 percent to $2,782,000 as compared to $2,525,000 last year. Revenues increased 13.8 percent to $61,738,000 as compared to $54,248,000 the previous year. For the first six months of fiscal 1991, net income increased to $1,243,000 as compared to $1,238,000 for the similar period one year ago. Earnings per share decreased to $.36 per share, as compared to $.40 last year, as a result of a larger number of common and common stock equivalent shares outstanding.

Net income for the first six months of the 1990 fiscal year included $133,000 or $.04 per share of dividend and interest income from the company's investment in New Summit, Inc. No such interest or dividend income has been recorded in fiscal year 1991. As recently disclosed, Norstan's settlement with New Summit, Inc. will be recorded in the company's third quarter.

Net income for the first six months of fiscal year 1991 was lower than planned due to decreased gross margins on selected low margin contracts, competitive pressures in the marketplace, a slower than anticipated start-up of the POE/ROLM secondary market equipment alliance and a short fall in profits from the Eastern Region.

Norstan's third and fourth quarters are historically its strongest and management is optimistic that the company will meet expectations for the remainder of the fiscal year. This is due to strong order flow, particularly in the Eastern Region, growing volumes in complementary, higher-margin products and improvement in the performance of the POE/ROLM secondary market equipment alliance.

Norstan, Inc., based in Maple Grove, Minn., is a multi-product telecommunications services company that designs, sells, installs, services and supports business telephone systems and related products. The company has 1,200 employees in 21 cities and 10 states and serves over 8,000 customers.

DALLAS (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - National Heritage Inc. (NYSE: NHR) today reported a net loss of $57,000 for the first fiscal quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, versus a loss of $336,000 or 2 cents per share a year earlier.

First quarter revenues fell to $14,086,000 from $22,724,000 in the same period a year ago. The decrease in revenues was primarily due to the loss of operating leases and management contracts related to the change in control of several syndicated partnerships that own facilities previously managed or leased by the company.

Lower revenues were partially offset by a comparable decrease in operating expenses related to the loss of the leased facilities. General and administrative expenses fell significantly as a result of substantial overhead reductions in response to the declining revenue base and also due to non-recurring expenses in the year-ago period that were related to the contest for control of the company.

Robert M. Galecke, president, noted that the company's efforts to reduce overhead and bring costs in line with the smaller number of homes under management directly affected the improved results for the quarter. The company is also in a much stronger liquidity position than it was a year ago. He emphasized that the benefits of consolidating operations to the corporate headquarters and adjusting staffing levels would not be fully realized until the second quarter of fiscal 1991.

Galecke added that the company's economic resources will be directed toward opportunities in its core business of nursing home management. With this objective in mind, National Heritage is currently developing an aggressive marketing program to actively pursue new third party management opportunities.

National Heritage Inc. is one of the nation's leading managers of nursing homes and assisted living facilities for the elderly.

NEW YORK (NOV. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Allegheny & Western Energy Corporation (NASDAQ: ALGH) reported a pre-tax loss of $2,305,000 and a net loss of $1,614,000 or a net loss per share of $.20 for the three months ended Sept. 30 1990. This compares to the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1989, in which a pre-tax loss of $2,386,000 and a net loss of $1,669,000 or a net loss per share of $.21 was reported. The seasonality of the earnings contribution from the weather sensitive utility, Mountaineer Gas Company, as expected negatively impacted the first quarter earnings.

Mountaineer has historically contributed to profits during the second and third quarters of the company's fiscal year. Start up costs and a one time charge for a non producing horizontal well at the company's new TEX-HEX Corporation subsidiary also contributed to the loss. The utility's earnings should improve in the second and third quarters due to Mountaineer's recent rate case order which became effective July 13, 1990.

The company's three recently completed horizontal wells, the Dickson No. 5, Brown "A" No. 5R, and the Lane No. 4 are producing approximately 650 gross barrels of oil a day. The company's working interest in these wells ranges from approximately 25-50 percent. Three other horizontal wells are currently being drilled or completed. All of the company's horizontal wells are located in Texas in the Austin Chalk and are operated by the company's TEX-HEX subsidiary.

MANILA (NOV. 20) UPI - Police uncovered dynamite bombs and grenade booby traps at a riverside facility of Shell Oil Tuesday, one day after President Corazon Aquino's justice secretary escaped unhurt from four powerful blasts that ripped through his home.

Shell spokesman Facundo Roco said workers assigned to paint a major pipeline at the Shell facility at the edge of the Pasig River near Aquino's palace discovered a plastic bag containing 43 sticks of dynamite at 8:30 a.m..

Police bomb disposal teams and sniffer dogs later found two more bags of dynamite, one containing 45 sticks and another 40, Roco said. He said a rifle grenade also was found attached to the pipeline, where petroleum products are loaded onto barges in the murky river.

Roco said the bomb squads defused the explosives, which were believed planted overnight by unidentified men who came the river. He said the devices were ''not time bombs but booby traps'' which would have exploded when their fuses were touched.

The Shell facility in Manila's Pandacan District serves as a storage area for gasoline, chemicals, pesticides and kerosene.

On Monday, four powerful bombs rocked the house of Justice Secretary Franklin Drilon in suburban San Juan Town, but caused no injuries. Drilon, 44, his wife and two children were unhurt.

Drilon, whose office is prosecuting extremists from both the left and right, could not say who was trying to kill him because no one has claimed responsibility for the attack.

The bombing came amid news reports that rebel soldiers who have tried seven times to oust Aquino were planning to stage pocket rebellions north and south of the capital in an attempt to mount another coup attempt.

Aquino said Monday the nation's armed forces were taking precautions, but she did not think military dissidents have the capability to launch another uprising similar to the Dec. 1-9, 1989 rebellion in which 99 people were killed and 570 wounded.

On Oct. 23, a bomb exploded at Shell's headquarters in the capital's financial district and the Caltex office in Manila but caused no damage. The attacks were made on the eve of a violent four-day general strike by the leftist May 1st Movement, or KMU, to press demands for a wage increase.

KMU began a new round of protest marches Friday, which police dispersed with tear gas and truncheons.

The 19,000-member communist New People's Army announced it was supporting the KMU demands and would retaliate if police used force.

The NPA has been trying to set up a Marxist state for 21 years.

PARIS (NOV. 20) UPI - British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher will keep a stiff upper lip and travel to Versailles for a dazzling ballet performance and banquet even if Conservative members of Parliament vote to oust her from the party leadership, the British Embassy said Tuesday.

The Iron Lady will await the outcome of the vote in London at the sumptuous embassy on the chic Rue de Faubourg St. Honore, the Parisian embassy row, after returning from a closed session of leaders attending the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, an embassy spokeswoman said.

She will then travel to Versailles for congratulations or commiseration from her counterparts from around Europe at a ballet in the Royal Palace performed by the Opera di Paris followed by a banquet hosted by French President Francois Mitterrand.

''She is definitely going to Versailles,'' the spokeswoman said. ''She will come back (to the embassy), presumably wait for the result then change and go (to Versailles).''

Hordes of British journalists besieged the British Embassy to try to catch a glimpse of the beleaguered prime minister. But only a small pool was authorized to enter the courtyard of the mission lest she speak before heading to Versailles.

Thatcher looked relaxed and smiled broadly during a morning meeting with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev at the Soviet Embassy. She also met with Mitterrand.

Elysee spokesman Hubert Vedrine said Thatcher and Mitterrand focused on the Gulf crisis during their talks.

''France has given its agreement for launching discussion between U.N. Security Council members for the elaboration of a new resolution foreseeing the use of force,'' Vedrine said.

French television and radio reports gave full coverage to Thatcher's plight.

Le Figaro newspaper described Thatcher as ''phlegmatic'' and ''haughty.''

''She has, for example, proudly ignored her foreign minister, Douglas Hurd, during all the ceremonies.''

Le Figaro also remarked on Thatcher's ''sense of humour,'' noting that she told a news conference Monday it was not yet time to write her memoirs.

(NOV. 20) UPI - President Bush Monday joined other world leaders meeting in Paris in signing an arms-reduction pact that formally signified the end of the Cold War, and a new era of co-operation. Bush also met over dinner with Soviet leader Gorbachev. The two discussed the Persian Gulf crisis.

Iraq is matching the United States in moving more troops in the Middle East. Iraq Monday announced that it is sending 250-thousand more soldiers into Kuwait in anticipation of a possible attack by U-S led forces. American estimates say there are already about 400-thousand Iraqi troops in Kuwait.

In Paris Monday, foreign ministers from Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia were denied admission to the Conference on Security and Co- operation in Europe. One of the officials accused France of bowing to pressure from the Soviet Union. The three men represent republics seeking independence from the Soviet Union.

The astronauts aboard the shuttle Atlantis will have three more opportunities for landing Tuesday at Edwards Air Force Base in California. NASA called off a scheduled landing Monday when winds at the landing site changed direction. Officials have NOT ruled out a landing at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Arizona Democrat Dennis DeConcini says influence-peddling accusations against him and four other senators are based on- what he called ''lies and allegations and hearsay.'' DeConcini delivered a two-hour personal defense of his actions relating to indicted savings and loan owner Charles Keating before a Senate panel Monday.

Prosectors in Valparaiso, Indiana, say they'll seek the death penalty for an ex-convict, his 19-year-old stepson and another youth in the rape and killing of a convenience store clerk. The three defendants in the case are being held without bond. Christel Helmchen was was slain last week.

The head of the government's AIDS research effort says the AIDS epidemic is- in his words- ''out of control.'' But Dr. Anthony Fauci does NOT want federal spending on AIDS to get out of hand as well. Fauci says the National Institutes of Health should NOT spend more than 10 percent of its budget on AIDS.

A government report warns that the arms race is moving into the Third World.

The U-S Arms Control and Disarmanent Agency says world military spending on arms declined for the first time in a decade in 1988. But the financial crunch that caused the cutback also led to increased arms exports to the Third World.

(NOV. 20) UPI - After meeting with Soviet President Gorbachev in Paris Monday President Bush decided to put off a decision on whether to ask for a U-N resolution that would authorize a possible military attack against Iraq. White House news secretary Marlin Fitzwater said more discussions with various parties are needed before Bush puts the question before the U-N. Gorbachev is seeking a peaceful solution to the crisis.

Both sides were expressing optimism in advance of a secret ballot Tuesday in London that may decide Margaret Thatcher's political future. Britain's prime minister is facing the first serious threat to her hold on government, with the challenge coming from her former defense minister, Michael Heseltine. 372 Conservative members of parliament will chose which one will lead the party.

A member of the Christian Lebanese Forces militia command says it will NOT complete a withdrawal from east Beirut- in his words- ''until a number of issues are settled.'' The militia Monday stopped its pullout, defying a government warning. The Lebanese government had set Monday as the last day for all militias to evacuate Beirut, creating a unified city. All other militias pulled out last week.

The South African Institute of Race Relations describes a wave of violence as the ''grimiest ever.'' The respected independent institute says three-thousand-38 people have died in political violence this year. Police say the latest bloodshed came in a squatter camp east of Johannesburg, where at least 19 people found early Monday either shot, hacked or burned to death.

One witness describes it as ''like the Fourth of July in November.'' Sparks and smoke shot into the air as a building in the early stages of construction collapsed Monday night in Washington, D-C. There was NO immediate word of any injuries... but officials are searching for a worker who may have been at the site when the building gave way, leaving a heap of steel and concrete.

The Food and Drug Administration came under fire during a congressional hearing Monday on the F-D-A's ban on a French abortion pill in the United States. Doctors and lawmakers say promising medical research into diseases ranging from breast cancer to AIDS is suffering because of the F-D-A ban. The drug- R-U 486- is used to induce abortion early in a pregnancy.

A Pennsylvania soldier is suing the Army because he does NOT want to be sent to the Middle East as part of Operation Desert Shield. Private Sandy Mysnyk says when he enlisted in 1988, recruiters promised him that he would NOT be

(NOV. 20) UPI - The space shuttle Atlantis is scheduled to touch down at Cape Canaveral this afternoon. High winds forced NASA to divert the space plane away from its original planned landing yesterday at Edwards Air Force base in California. Clear skies and light winds are reported at the Florida shuttleport.

President Bush is urging patience regarding the Persian Gulf crisis. He told reporters during a photo session in Paris today that ''all will be well.'' Questions are being raised, however, because Bush and Soviet President Gorbachev apparently still are divided on how to force Iraq to leave Kuwait. Bush and Gorbachev are now scheduled to meet in Moscow in January to sign the START ballistic missile treaty.

Bell Atlantic says it is turning over an eight-story former retirement home in Philadelphia so that about 40 homeless men will have shelter this winter. Bell Atlantic Properties, a subsidiary of the telephone company, is loaning the building to an agency called Project HOME so it can operate this winter while the agency searches for a permanent shelter. Bell Atlantic says it also will pay for heat and other utilities.

C-B-C says it will reduce the compensation it pays to its affiliate stations by 20 percent beginning January 1st. The network says it announced the plan at a meeting with the C-B-S Affiliate Advisory Board today. To lessen the economic impact of the action, the network says it will provide affiliates with additional commercial inventory for local sale. C-B-S is projecting a loss in the fourth quarter of 1990 and 1991 earnings are expected to be even lower.

So much for the legendary clout of Chicago politics. Police say they arrested a man found sleeping in a 1990 Cadillac reported stolen from Dollar Rent-A-Car. The auto carried a city sticker improperly marking it an a municipal vehicle. The suspect told police his alderman had helped him get a job with the rent-a-car firm. But the rental company says the suspect was NOT an employee. The kicker is that the alderman in question was indicted last week on federal charges of influence peddling.

LONDON (NOV. 20) UPI - Stock prices staged a dramatic surge on the London International Stock Exchange Tuesday before receding from the day's best levels in late trading.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which catapulted 27.9 points Monday, closed up another 19.3 points to 2,115.2. The narrower top 30 industrial average added 19.1 points to 1,667.1.

Volume was estimated at around 519 million shares.

The 100 index was up about 30 points at one point, but some late profit taking cut into the gain as traders awaited voting in the Conservative Party's leadership election, pitting Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher vs. challenger Michael Heseltine, a former defense secretary under her.

Analysts, noting the light volume, said many professional investors were awaiting the outcome of voting by Conservative members of Parliament to decide if Thatcher remains prime minister.

Market watchers said investors were encouraged by hopes the election by the 372 Conservative members of Parliament would produce a decisive turnout rather than forcing a second ballot next week.

Hopes for a cut in British interest rates before the end of year also boosted prices, analysts said.

On the economic front, the Bank of England reported M-0, Britain's narrow money supply measure, rose a provisionally estimated 4 percent in October from a year earlier on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Market forecasters were expecting M-0 to rise 3.9 percent.

Among the most widely traded stocks, recently hard-hit properties and materials groups ended higher.

WPP Group, following Monday's profits warning and worries about the international advertising firm's debt, tumbled $2.18 to $3.11.

Imperial Chemical Industries jumped 36 cents to $16.82 following a ''buy'' recommendation made by brokerage James Capel. British Gas added 12 cents to $4.35 on another brokerage house's ''buy'' recommendation.

Rickitt & Coleman fell 44 cents to $23.85 after the health and household products company was downgraded by UBS-Phillips & Drew.

Thorn EMI gained 14 cents to $12.23.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices eased slightly on thin pre-holiday volume on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange. The closely watched German stock index, which surged 41.78 points Monday, slipped 0.17 points to 1, 467.30.

In Paris, stocks also closed slightly lower in thin trading. The CAC- 40 Index slipped 0.50 point to 1,633.15.

LONDON (NOV. 20) UPI - Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's political future was in doubt Tuesday after Michael Heseltine mustered enough votes to force a second ballot on whether she should be ousted as Conservative Party leader.

The second ballot was scheduled for Nov. 27. Thatcher, in Paris for a meeting of European leaders, said she would stand.

''I am naturally very pleased that I got more than half of the parliamentary party votes and disappointed it was not quite enough. I am confirming that I will let my name go forward for the second ballot,'' she told reporters gathered outside the British Embassy.

It is the first threat to unseat Thatcher in her 11 years as prime minister, and the first possible ouster of a standing British leader since Neville Chamberlain stepped aside in 1940 in favor of Winston Churchill.

The leadership contest has brought to the surface a rift in the Conservative Party, particularly over unification with Europe and an unpopular poll tax instituted last year.

''It's a bit like going to the dentist. We're already in the seat and now we just have to grin and bear it while we get our teeth pulled,'' said one representative as he filed into Parliament for the vote.

One MP was willing to admit support for Heseltine. ''I, of course, am hoping to see a change in premiership and good things for Mrs. Thatcher as well. Perhaps an international role ... but it's time for a new leader,'' the MP said.

But many MPs refused to say how they would vote, fearing the wrath of their constituents.

''It's a choice between the leader that has won three consecutive elections and still commands an international reputation, or a charismatic, decisive new face that could perhaps improve our standing in the next election,'' said one MP, refusing to reveal which way he was voting.

Thatcher was the first to take advantage of a change in parliamentary procedure allowing for a leadership challenge by putting a ballot directly to party MPs.

Despite being seen as an outsider by most party members, she ousted Heath in 1975, claiming his 11-year tenure as party leader had been long enough.

Before the rule change demanded by MPs in 1964, changes in party leaders and in the premiership were decided by an inner circle of Conservative heavyweights, so that leaders appeared to emerge mysteriously.

Regardless of the outcome of the contest, Tory MPs said damage has already been done to the party's chances in the next general election, which must be called by the ruling party by mid-1992.

''It's doing us no good at all. Our opponents can't believe their luck,'' Transportation Secretary Cecil Parkinson said.

BOSTON (NOV. 20) UPI - People who suffer from mental disorders ranging from anxiety to depression are far more likely than others to abuse alcohol or other drugs, scientists said Wednesday.

Interviews conducted with 20,291 people in the general community and in institutions found those with disorders such as phobias and panic attacks were more than twice as likely as those without such disorders to abuse alcohol or other drugs, said Dr. Darrel Regier of the National Institute of Mental Health in Bethesda, Md.

The finding provides ''clear and persuasive evidence that mental disorders must be addressed as a central part of substance abuse prevention efforts'' in the United States, Regier and co-researchers said in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The reasons for the high rates of co-existing mental problems and substance abuse are unclear, Regier said. Although some studies have suggested that mental disorders precede drug and alcohol dependency, he said there is ''increasing argument'' that certain disorders are the result - not the cause - of substance abuse.

Researchers conducted interviews during a four-year period with adults aged 18 and older in communities in five geographical areas and with occupants of mental institutions, prisons and nursing homes. The scientists recorded the percentage who experienced either mental disorders or substance abuse or both.

Mental disorders were classified into four primary categories: schizophrenia; ''affective'' disorders such as major depression; antisocial personality disorder; and anxiety including phobias and panic disorder.

The study found that among those with any lifetime diagnosis of a mental disorder, 22.3 percent had a history of alcohol abuse, compared with 11 percent of those with no such diagnosis.

For drugs other than alcohol, the comparative risk of addiction among those with mental problems was even greater. Among those with disorder diagnoses, 14.7 percent were classified as ''drug abuse dependent'' compared to only 3.7 percent of those with no mental disorders.

In addition, Rieger said people with a lifetime history of alcoholism were twice as likely as others to suffer from mental disorders and six times more likely to suffer from forms of drug dependency.

Among those with a history of drug abuse, 53 percent had a mental disorder - the highest rate of combined disorders among those studied.

Researchers also found that people in institutions, who make up about 1.3 percent of the population in the United States, were more than twice as likely to suffer some form of mental disorder as others. Altogether, 32.7 percent of the community population studied experienced such a disorder compared to 71.9 percent of those in institutions.

Rieger said knowing that mental disorders and substance abuse frequently go together may help doctors come up with better treatment strategies. Special programs for cocaine abusers who also suffer from mental problems ''have shown substantial promise,'' he said.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 20) UPI - The Soviet Union and the United States are cleaning out their attics.

The Soviets returned 6,000 pages of records left behind when the United States closed its embassy at Leningrad during the Russian Revolution, the National Archives said.

Yurly Khomenko, deputy chief of mission of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, presented the records Oct. 31 to William Slany, State Department historian and Trudy Huskamp Peterson, assistant archivist for the National Archives.

The majority of the records are general correspondence files of the consulate for the year 1917.

Particularly noteworthy is a series of March 1917 dispatches titled ''Revolutionary Movement in Petrograd.'' Petrograd was renamed Leningrad after the revolution.

The United States has returned the favor.

In April 1989, U.S. officials turned over the first two boxes of original files of the Imperial Russian Consulates in Chicago, San Francisco, Honolulu, Philadelphia, Portland, Ore. and Seattle.

The archives were created from about 1862 to 1922 and had been in U.S. custody for 55 years.

BERLIN (NOV. 20) UPI - Former East German Stalinist leader Erich Honecker said in interviews published Tuesday he knew nothing of electoral fraud, was not responsible for the activities of the hated state security police and always opposed persecution of political opponents.

In the interviews, Honecker - who ruled the country along Stalinist lines for 18 years - gave his own version of the events that forced him to resign, Oct. 18, 1989.

He said unnamed ''Soviet authors'' as well as the East German Communist Party's Politburo and central committee were responsible for his fall.

''The path was cleared for total chaos and for all elements ... which were fundamentally not for but against socialism,'' Honecker said.

The remarks, published by the weekly Wochenpost newspaper, are contained in a forthcoming book written by Reinhold Andert and Wolfgangt Herzberg who interviewed Honecker at his new home on a Soviet army base south of Berlin.

Honecker claimed he was unaware of any fraud in East German elections that his Socialist Unity Party won regularly with well over 95 percent of the vote.

''I must openly say that this is a riddle to me,'' he said about the accusations of electoral fraud.

Honecker said he supported political reform but that behind his back a disgraceful game had taken place.

Honecker resigned Oct. 18, 1989, from the Politburo, the highest political body of the Communist Party and the de facto decision-making organ in the country.

The moment he announced his resignation ''to my surprise everybody applauded '' Honecker said.

He denied responsibility for the activities of the hated East German secret police, known as Stasi.

''To develop such a comprehensive system - which evidently appears to have existed - went against all resolutions,'' Honecker said.

The Stasi, which has often been described as a state within a state, had 85000 full-time employees and about 500,000 informers, which would mean that nearly one in every 30 East Germans worked for the organization.

Honecker said he opposed the persecution and imprisonment of young protesters who took to the streets and demonstrated against the authorities.

After his fall from power, Honecker sought refuge in the home of a protestant pastor. But a later attempt to move to a larger house failed because of protests by local citizens.

After he underwent surgery for cancer in December, Honecker was unable to find accommodation and now lives with his wife, Margot, in a bungalow on the Soviet military base in Beelitz.

MIAMI (NOV. 20) UPI - The Los Angeles Raiders stopped the Miami Dolphins' six-game winning streak by sticking with their game plan.

''We were just going to give it to Marcus (Allen) and Bo (Jackson) and let them run,'' said Raiders quarterback Jay Schroeder, after Jackson rushed for 99 yards and Allen 79 in a 13-10 Los Angeles' victory.

''We knew all week that our offensive line was going to have to play well,'' Schroeder said. ''We just let them come off the ball and play some smash-mouth football. They did a great job.''

The Raiders rushed for 177 yards and controlled the ball for 35:24 to 24:36 for the Dolphins, 8-2. Los Angeles held the Miami running game to 14 yards on

Raiders Coach Art Shell said he did a little exhorting before the game.

''I kind of challenged them a little bit,'' he said. ''I said it was about time for us to take it to the next level as far as intensity is concerned and to play playoff and championship-type football.

''We came out and played the kind of football we're capable of playing: good hard-nosed physical football. And we beat a pretty good football team tonight.''

Allen scored the Raiders' only touchdown by banging up the middle from 2 yards out in the second quarter. Jeff Jaeger kicked a 23-yard field goal in the first quarter, and his 43-yard field goal in the third quarter proved to be the difference.

The Raiders broke a two-game losing streak and improved to 7-3, one game ahead of the Kansas City Chiefs in the AFC West.

''The difference was the Raider running game,'' Dolphins Coach Don Shula said. ''Both backs have great speed, and we also got knocked off the ball.''

The Raiders took a 10-7 halftime lead on Jaeger's first field goal and Marcus Allen's 2-yard run. Miami scored with 31 seconds to go in the half on a 14-yard pass from Dan Marino to Scott Schwedes, a fourth-year wide receiver who was re-signed last week after being cut earlier in the season.

The Dolphins were playing without receivers Mark Clayton and Freddie Banks.

The Raiders made it 13-7 on Jaeger's 43-yard field goal in the third quarter, coming after a drive from the Raiders 28 to the Miami 25.

The Dolphins closed to 13-10 when Pete Stoyanovich booted a 26-yarder with 10:30 left in the game. Stoyanovich's field goal was set up by a 40-yard completion down the right sidelines from Marino to Mark Duper, who caught the ball over cornerback Lionel Washington.

The Raiders looked like they were going to roll over the Dolphins on the ground during their first possession. With Allen carrying the ball on all eight downs, Los Angeles went from its own 48 to the Miami 10. But on fourth-and-1, Allen was stopped by safety Louis Oliver and the Dolphins took over.

On their next possession, the Raiders rolled again with the help of a 25-yard completion from Schroeder to Willie Gault. But again, the Dolphins held, this time on the 6, and Jaeger kicked his 23-yarder.

For the second straight time, the Dolphins went three and out and the Raiders put together a 79-yard, 18-play, nine-minute drive that resulted in Allen's 2-yard touchdown. The Raiders appeared to be stopped on third-and-goal at the 9, but a holding call on Tim McKyer gave the Raiders an automatic first down at the 5.

That's when Marino took over with a seven-play drive from the Dolphin 23 that took only 1:35. Marino opened by hitting Jim Jensen for 18 and 15 yards on consecutive passes up the middle. Then he hit Tony Martin for 14 and Troy Stradford for 11. A holding penalty on Lionel Washington put the ball on the 14 where Marino powered a pass to Schwedes, who made a leaping catch on the 2 and galloped into the end zone.

BEIJING (NOV. 20) UPI - The government is adopting a basic reforms to streamline balky socialist industries, including allowing agencies to reject state-produced goods they deem unpopular or shoddy, it was reported Tuesday.

The reform would be a sharp departure from the government's near- sacred socialist policy of guaranteeing purchase of virtually all industrial goods and materials coming off state-run production lines, the official China Daily reported.

It clearly aims to squeeze higher quality from stodgy state-run enterprises that for decades have striven to fill official quotas rather than to meet commercial demand for quality products.

''The central government has decided to lose no time to force producers of industrial materials to upgrade technology and train factory executives to follow the market,'' the report said.

China's current economic slowdown offers a good opportunity for phasing in such a quality-control program, the report said, noting that slack demand for industrial output gives government agencies a chance to be ''choosier'' about what they buy.

For example, demand for steel and cement fell sharply during the first nine months of 1990 even as production increased, putting the government in a position to select better-quality commodities.

The report did not raise the idea of scrapping the socialist quota system under which the central government dictates target production levels for large state-owned industries.

The new policy is due to be implemented next year by the Ministry of Materials and Equipment, China's biggest buyer and provider of industrial goods and supplies.

Under the scheme, government wholesale and distributing agencies would be authorized to ''reject any unpopular or substandard products turned over to them by state-owned enterprises,'' the report said.

BANGKOK (NOV. 20) UPI - A British company has struck oil in off the coast of Vietnam - the first such discovery announced since Vietnam allowed Western oil companies to return to Vietnam, official Hanoi radio reported.

The radio, in a broadcast Monday, said an oil rig working for Enterprise Oil struck the oil about 80 miles south of the southern coastal town of Vung Tau in 130 feet of water.

''It is estimated that 300 barrels can be obtained per day from this newly discovered well during the trial pumping,'' the report said.

It said the oil was similar in quality to oil from the nearby ''White Tiger'' field discovered by American oil companies during the Vietnam War and now exploited by Vietsov Petro, a Vietnamese-Soviet joint venture.

The radio said Enterprise was studying how best to exploit the deposit and continuing to explore in the area.

Enterprise is one of nine non-Communist oil companies which have signed exploration agreements with Vietnam since May, 1988.

Vietnam, apparently dissatisfied with the quality of Soviet technology and expertise, opened its doors again to foreign oil companies on favorable terms.

U.S. companies, however, have been barred from bidding for exploration rights by the U.S. economic embargo against Vietnam, which began during the Vietnam War.

On Tuesday morning Hanoi radio reported that Vietsov Petro was improving its technology.

It said that during the past 10 months the joint venture has produced 2.2 million tons of crude oil - about 44,220 barrels per day, exceeding plans by about 7 percent.

(NOV. 20) UPI - John Druce scored his second goal of the game at 2:31 of overtime Monday night, helping the Washington Capitals break a five-game losing streak with a 3-2 victory over the Detroit Red Wings.

''John has developed into a scorer and now we can count on him when we need to '' said Washington Coach Terry Murray, who was facing his brother, Detroit Coach Bryan Murray, for the second time this season.

Druce won the game for the Capitals when he fired a rising shot while falling to the ice, beating goalie Tim Cheveldae to his right.

''It was through a screen and all you have to do then is get it to the net and hope something happens,'' Bryan Murray said.

Washington goalie Jim Hrivnak was peppered with 43 shots, the most faced by the Capitals this season.

''He was outstanding,'' Bryan Murray said. ''Some nights goaltenders win a game for you. He played on his head.''

Hrivnak's performance was especially pleasing to Terry Murray.

''He really came up big,'' the Capitals' coach said. ''He was coming back from not playing a solid game against Toronto.

''We can't afford soft goaltending. It's his second year of professional hockey and he's really starting to establish himself.''

Detroit, which lost for the sixth time in seven games, rallied from a 2-0 deficit to tie the score with third-period goals from Richard Zombo and Jimmy Carson.

Zombo took Sergei Fedorov's rebound off the boards and blasted a 40- foot slapshot past Hrivnak. Carson picked up his first goal since Oct. 27 when he flicked a 25-foot wrist shot that beat Hrivnak to the right.

Druce gave the Capitals a 2-0 edge at 4:22 of the second period when he deflected in Chris Felix's shot from just inside the blue line.

Hrivnak faced 24 shots in the second. He repeatedly came up with big saves, including stops on Bob Probert and Shawn Burr while he was on his back in the goalcrease.

In other games, Boston trounced Toronto 5-2, the New York Rangers tied Minnesota 2-2 and Calgary clipped Vancouver 6-4.

-- AROUND THE NHL --

Bruins 5, Maple Leafs 2

At Toronto, Dave Christian scored a pair of goals, leading Boston. Christian's ninth and 10th goals of the season gave Boston a 12-6-4 record, tops in the Adams Division. The struggling Maple Leafs slipped to 4-18-1, tied for last in the NHL with the Quebec Nordiques.

Canadiens 5, Nordiques 2

At Quebec, Guy Carbonneau scored two goals to help Montreal extend the Nordiques' club-record losing streak to 14 games. Quebec has not won since Oct. 20, a 5-3 victory over the Detroit Red Wings. The Nordiques took a 1-0 lead in the first period on a goal by Tony Hrkac at 1:03. The Canadiens tied the score just over a minute later on a goal by Stephane Lebeau.

Flames 6, Canucks 4

At Vancouver, British Columbia, Sergei Makarov scored two power-play goals and Tim Sweeney scored the go-ahead goal in the third period to lift Calgary.Joe Nieuwendyk also scored for the Flames on the power play, his 14th goal of the year. Calgary is second in the NHL in scoring with the man-advantage.

(NOV. 20) UPI - With the Milwaukee Bucks losing by 17 points in the second quarter of Monday night's game with the Utah Jazz, it appeared the Bucks were headed for a repeat of last year, when they lost to the Jazz by a combined total of 56 points in the teams' two meetings.

But Bucks' forward Fred Roberts came to the rescue, determined to not let what happened last season occur again.

Roberts scored for 17 of his 19 points in Milwaukee's 48-19 run in a 15:50 stretch in the second and third quarters to lift the Bucks to a 114-104 victoryover the Jazz.

''That's exactly what happened last year - they had the momentum going their way like they did tonight,'' Roberts said. ''Fortunately, we were able to break it up this time.''

Ricky Pierce scored 22 points and Alvin Robertson added 16 along with 10 steals and nine assists to rally the Bucks. Jack Sikma chipped in 20.

Karl Malone paced the Jazz with 24 points and Jeff Malone added 22.

''Freddie came in and all of the sudden the pace picked up,'' said Milwaukee Coach Del Harris, whose team is 5-0 at home.

Roberts credited teammate Robertson's defense with initiating the comeback.

''Alvin created a lot of turnovers and I happened to be at the front end of them,'' said Roberts, who hit 6 of 7 field goals and 7 of 9 free throws. ''It gave us some momentum going into the lockerroom.''

The Bucks took their first lead since the opening minute at 64-63 on Sikma's baseline jumper with 7:13 remaining in the third quarter. Sikma's free throw with 3:51 left put Milwaukee ahead 73-63 and capped a 13-0 run.

Milwaukee, which fell behind by as many as 17, trailed 54-40 with 2:28 left in the half. Roberts then scored the next nine points, helping the Bucks close within 55-51 at halftime.

Said Jazz Coach Jerry Sloan, ''We got into a situation where we lost our energy. Then they pushed their energy level up three or four notches.''

In other games, Philadelphia defeated Charlotte 109-101 and the Los Angeles Lakers defeated Denver 122-105.

-- AROUND THE NBA --

76ers 109, Hornets 101

At Philadelphia, Charles Barkley and Hersey Hawkins scored 31 points each to lead the 76ers. Barkley scored seven points in a 14-0 Philadelphia run that gave the 76ers a 75-58 lead with 6:48 to play in the third quarter and that proved to be the difference in the contest. Charlotte got 22 points from Johnny Newman and 13 each from Dell Curry, Randolph Keys and J.R. Reid.

Lakers 122, Nuggets 105

At Denver, James Worthy scored 25 points and Magic Johnson recorded his third triple-double of the season to lead the Los Angeles Lakers. Johnson, in collecting the 126th triple-double of his career, had 21 points, 10 rebounds and 11 assists. Denver's Orlando Woolridge scored a game-high 30 points.

BERLIN (NOV. 20) UPI - The number of Soviet citizens and army defectors seeking asylum in Germany has doubled in the past four months, a Berlin newspaper reported Tuesday amid reports of growing discontent in the barracks and increasing assaults against Soviet soldiers.

In July there were 219 Soviet applications for political asylum lodged with German authorities, rising to about 400 in September and October, the Berlin Morgenpost said.

Of the 1,791 Soviet citizens who have applied for political asylum in Germany this year, 59 are soldiers who deserted from Soviet forces stationed in former East Germany.

There are about 380,000 Soviet troops still stationed in eastern Germany but under a German-Soviet agreement they will be withdrawn by 1994.

According to experts cited in the report, the increase is due to the Oct. 3 unification of both Germanys that has provided new incentives for Soviet soldiers and civilian employees to seek asylum in the five new eastern German states.

A further increase in the number of Soviet applicants for asylum in Germany is expected when new Soviet travel regulations give Soviet citizens freedom to travel to the west.

Many Soviet soldiers have complained of conditions in the barracks in eastern Germany and say they are regularly insulted and even assaulted by Germans when they walk the streets in uniform.

A poison gas grenade was recently thrown at a Soviet military housing compound in the eastern German town of Leipzig; in Weimar a group of right-wing extremists beat up Soviet soldiers and in Cottbus an unknown sniper shot at a Soviet guard.

Soviet Military Prosecutor Oleg Filipenko admitted Monday that the mood in the barracks is glum. He apologized for an incident in which an apparently love-sick Soviet soldier charged down West Berlin's famous Kurfuestendamm boulevard in an armored personnel carrier.

The soldier was arrested by German police after smashing several automobiles with the heavy military vehicle.

The Express daily claimed Tuesday that ''terror is mounting within the troops. Simple soldiers are scared. They are kicked, beaten up, blackmailed ...'' by their superiors.

DALLAS (NOV. 20) UPI - A California leasing agent testified Tuesday that thrift king Don Dixon paid five times too much for a posh corporate beachfront home which prosecutors say was devoted largely to ''sex parties.''

''There is no way you can justify what was paid, even under the most optimistic circumstances,'' said Lori Goetz, a leasing agent testifying as a prosecution witness.

The home, located in Solana Beach, Calif., should have leased for $3, 000 to $3,500 a month during the mid-1980s when Dixon arranged payments, she testified.

Instead, Dixon paid between $13,000 to $15,000 a month in a complicated arrangement in which tax benefits were swapped with the home's owner and the entire package was subsidized through loans furnished by Dixon's thrift, Vernon Savings and Loan.

In a 38-count indictment, Dixon is accused of illegally filtering expenses used for prostitutes, politicians and high living through Vernon corporate accounts. When Vernon failed in 1987, taxpayers were socked with $1.3 billion in losses.

Goetz said she examined dozens of properties in the area and multiple listings going back to 1986.

Her initial estimate on the home was for $3,000 a month, but ''because there were two executive suites which technically could be shared by two families I added an extra four or five hundred dollars,'' she said. ''But I couldn't go any higher.''

Under cross-examination, Goetz admitted that the home deal was not a conventional leasing arrangment, but involved tax and business considerations.

''Whatever you want to call it,'' she noted in response, ''that home should never have cost anybody $15,000 a month. That's outrageous.''

In testimony Monday, the home's owner, Rose Van Boxtel, said she was convinced of the legality of the Vernon contract.

''(Dixon) seemed to have all these credible people around him,'' she said. ''He even knew the bishop of San Diego and (Dixon) wasn't even Catholic.''

Dixon contributed heavily to local Roman Catholic charities and as a result was granted an audience with the pope, during which he presented a thrift-owned oil painting valued at $40,000. The government has not sought to reclaim the art now hanging in the Vatican.

Van Boxtel said she made the deal in 1981. Vernon promised to make lease payments for a period of at least seven years and eventually buy the home for $1 million. Dixon also promised Van Boxtel discount rates on 13 condominiums he owned in the Dallas area.

She testified that Dixon persuaded her to sign three, increasingly large loans on the house from banks and companies owned by associates.

''We liked and trusted Don,'' she said. ''We had no idea that he would try to defraud us.''

(NOV. 20) UPI - President Bush's failure to gain Soviet support for a U.N. resolution authorizing the use of force in the Persian Gulf crisis drove oil prices down more than $1 a barrel in early afternoon trading Tuesday.

Bush's failure to gain support from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in their Paris meeting "was acting as a damper on prices," said Ann-Louise Hittle senior oil analyst with Shearson Lehman Brothers in New York.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the U.S. benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for January delivery was down $1.57 in early afternoon trading Tuesday to $29.15 a barrel after breaking through the psychologicaly important $30-a-barrel level.

It was the first day of trading the January delivery contract as the exchange's spot-month contract. The December contract expired Monday. December WTI had been expected to fall to about $27 a barrel because of ample world crude supplies. Instead, it shot up $1.72 from Friday to $31.50 a barrel on Iraq's decision to increase its force in occupied Kuwait by 250,000 troops.

Nauman Barakat, vice president of New York's Merrill Lynch Futures Inc., said the market over-reacted to "relatively insignificant news" and was compensating to some extent Tuesday. Barakat also said a source trading with Iran had told him the Iranians were "sitting on" 35 million barrels of excess crude and starting to reduce their prices to more competitive levels.

The $30 a-barrel support level was "reasonably important," said Peter Beutel of the Pegasus Econometrics Group in Hoboken, N.J. Beutel said Merc volume was "pre-Thanksgiving light trading." He looked for some support from the weekly report of the American Petroleum Institute later Tuesday, which he believed would show U.S. crude supplies last week fell 2.5 million to four million barrels.

On the Merc, unleaded gasoline for December delivery was down in early afternoon trading 1.61 cents at 78.75 cents a gallon, while December home heating oil had lost 1.96 cents from Monday to 84.80 cents a gallon.

On the European spot market, where crude is bought and sold for cash, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent was down 76 cents at midday to $30.07 a barrel.

United Arab Emirates' Dubai Light for January delivery - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - had fallen 60 cents from Monday to $25.35 a barrel.

IVREA, ITALY (NOV. 20) UPI - Olivetti workers staged strikes across the nation Tuesday to protest the company's plans to trim 7,000 employees, including 4,000 in Italy, from its global work force.

The multinational headed by Italian industrialist Carlo De Benedetti annnounced the layoffs Nov. 14 as part of a "strategic reconstruction" forced by a worldwide downturn of computer sales. The layoffs were to take effect starting next January.

To soften the blow, Olivetti management said it was asking the government to pass a law permitting the company to grant employees early retirement, under which men could take pensions at the age of 50 and women at 47. But Labor Minister Carlo Donat Cattin has said the cost of the early retirement plan was more than Italy's state insurance system could afford.

Strikes lasting three to four hours took place at various Olivetti facilities in Italy, where nearly half the electronic giant's work force of roughly 57,000 are employed.

Officials of three metalworkers unions said a three-hour work stoppage staged at Olivetti's main plants in Ivrea, near Turin, was supported by 90 percent of 12,000 local employees. But Olivetti management said only 40 percent obeyed the strike call.

Some 9,000 protesters, including many students and some mayors of small towns in the Ivrea area, took part in a street demonstration in Ivrea. Union leaders said the strike action would be repeated Wednesday. De Benedetti said recently there would be "no margin for negotiation" in the company's plan to reduce the size of the work force by 7,000.

Union leader Giorgio Cremaschi accused Olivetti's management Tuesday of "having remained asleep in research for new forms of productivity, instead favoring short-term profits." He said a showdown with the company could not take place until planned negotiations with Labor Minister Donat Cattin have been held.

DETROIT (NOV. 20) UPI - Honda of America Mfg. Inc. said Tuesday employees at its assembly and engine plants in Ohio received an average $1,712 per worker in profit sharing checks, up slightly from year-ago payouts.

The payments last week to Honda's 9,400 "associates" - which include non-union workers as well as management - is expected to be the highest in the industry, given the dismal financial performance posted so far this year by the nation's Big Three automakers.

Those results - which include a $2.1 billion loss for the third quarter alone - will mostly likely result in no profit sharing this year for unionized workers at General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., and Chrysler Corp.

Honda's latest profit sharing, based on fiscal 1990 earnings, is based on three numbers: worldwide net income before taxes, the number of employees worldwide, and the number of employees at Honda of America Mfg., said Jeff Leestma, a spokesman for Honda North America in Detroit. "That formula is the same for everyone," he said.

Payouts by GM, Ford and Chrysler are done under a complicated formula negotiated by the United Auto Workers union for its members, and are based on U.S. automotive profits alone.

Among traditional U.S. carmakers, Ford workers have reaped the most in profit sharing checks, with the typical payout averaging a record $3,700 per worker for 1987. But that figure slipped to $2,800 for 1988, and to $1,025 for 1989. GM workers received no profit sharing checks in 1987, with minimal payouts for 1988 and 1989.

While there is little probability Big Three workers will stand to get any profit sharing for 1990, the UAW renegotiated in its latest contracts a new formula that could increase any potential payout.

A UAW spokesman defended the union's payouts, telling Ward's Automotive Reports, a weekly industry newsletter, that Honda workers still earn less than their counterparts at the Big Three.

"They're still behind economically," he said. "That $14.75 wage rate (at Honda) is what (UAW members) were making at the end of our agreement. In the new agreement, the average base wage is $16.11 for an assember at GM. "Most importantly, we have a contract, which guarantees workers certain rights on the job," the union spokesman said.

However, Honda has never laid off workers at its Ohio plants since it began making motorcycles in 1979 and cars in 1982, Leestma said. Honda's Ohio operations include car and motorcycle plants in Marysville, a car plant in East Liberty, and an engine plant in Anna.

The UAW attempted to unionize Honda's U.S. operations in 1985. In 1989, workers at Nissan's Smyrna, Tenn., plant voted to remain non- unionized, dealing the UAW a major blow in its efforts to organize "transplant" automakers, or Asian carmakers with U.S. operations.

SAN SALVADOR, EL SALVADOR (NOV. 20) UPI - A judge formally charged a Salvadoran colonel and eight other members of the Salvadoran military Tuesday with committing acts of terrorism in connection with last year's slaying of six Jesuit priests, a court spokesman said.

''The judge has added new charges in addition to murder,'' Supreme Court spokesman Mario Gonzalez said. ''The judge decreed the soldiers' detention in the Jesuit case on charges of acts of terrorism and conspiracy to commit acts of terrorism.''

Col. Guillermo Benavides and seven others have been in jail since January on provisional murder charges. The ninth soldier is a fugitive.

Gonzalez said the new charges would ''make it easier to establish the responsibility of all those involved'' in the killings.

Court sources have said much of the evidence against Benavides is inadmissible in court. Three lieutenants who participated in the killing told police investigators they acted under orders from Benavides, but according to Salvadoran law co-defendents cannot testify.

Gonzalez said the judge based the terrorism charges on testimony from top military commanders who said Benavides was in charge of the troops who carried out the killings.

The slain Jesuits were among El Salvador's most respected leftist intellectuals and their murder by members of the Salvadoran army prompted a vote in the U.S. Congress to withhold military aid to the Central American country.

Only half of the $85 million requested for El Salvador by the Bush administration will be sent in 1991 unless rebels carry out military action that threatens the government.

CHICAGO (NOV. 20) UPI - It was a lower day across the board for grains and beans at the Chicago Board of Trade, and a sharply lower day for beans.

The entire soy complex was at session lows with selling continuing because of disappointment that there's been no U.S. offer of food aid or a credit package to the USSR. Hope of such an offer dimmed further when Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev said he would not support a U.S. plan in favor of a UN resolution to authorize using military might to drive Iraq out of Kuwait.

The November contract was especially weak before it expired at noon. The November through August contracts suffered at least 11-cent losses.

Active local, professional and commercial selling took corn to session lows. Spillover pressure from the losses suffered by beans and wheat played a part in the losses for corn.

Wheat set contract lows, with professional selling a feature in thin volume.

Exporters said Morocco and Jordan would seek offers for a total of 300,000 tons of U.S. wheat and Norway overnight had bought 50,000 tons of soybeans.

The USDA reported heavy rain had caused planting delays in Argentina and Brazil.

(NOV. 20) UPI - The White House says President Bush and Soviet President Gorbachev have reached a ''conceptual agreement'' on the possible use of force in the Persian Gulf. It appears Gorbachev is NOT embracing the option as strongly as Bush would like.

The two leaders met yesterday in Paris at a multi-nation arms conference. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says Bush didN'T specifically ask Gorbachev about supporting a U-N resolution for military force, but that the two discussed under what circumstances one might be sought.

Authorities in Washington, D-C, have called off the search for possible victims in the collapse of a giant excavation pit four blocks from the White House. Authorities say that after a six-hour search they're reasonably certain NO one was trapped in the rubble.

The walls of the 50-foot-deep construction pit gave way last night... swallowing three construction trailers, a large crane and part of an alley. Firefighters probed the heaps of dirt and steel with special heat-seeking equipment, but turned up no sign of anyone.

A government report warns the arms race is speeding up in the Third World at a time when the superpowers are disarming and cutting back their conventional and strategic forces. The U-S Arms Control and Disarmament Agency says Iraq and Iran were the largest purchasers of arms in 1988.

The forecast calls for more high winds today at the shuttle Atlantis's primary landing site in California's Mojave Desert. High winds yesterday forced the astronauts to abort landing and they're hoping to make another attempt this afternoon.

The pop-singing duo Milli Vanilli say they'll announce their future plans today at a news conference. The dreadlocked performers yesterday was stripped of the Grammy they won for Best New Artist of 1989 after admitting they lip-synched on their debut album, in music videos and during live concerts.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 20) UPI - Late in the first day of the Keating Five influence-peddling hearings before the Senate ethics committee, panel special counsel Robert Bennett, the target of sniping from lawyers representing the accused senators, turned in frustration to the committee chairman.

''Mr. Bennett, you're not on trial here,'' Sen. Howell Heflin, D- Ala., assured the stocky, bulldog of a lawyer.

''I'm glad you said that,'' Bennett responded with a laugh.

Heflin was wrong.

The three senators painted as most deeply involved with indicted savings and loan kingpin Charles Keating Jr. - Sens. Alan Cranston, D- Calif., Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Donald Riegle, D-Mich. - are seeking to put Bennett on trial, hoping to convince the six members of the ethics committee that Bennett has trumped up claims against them in an effort to enhance his own reputation as senator-killer. And the threesome has sought to shift attention from themselves and onto Bennett with a vengeance.

''He wants a victory,'' DeConcini said. ''He wants another trophy on the wall as someone who has represented the committee and been able to nail up another senator for ethical misconduct.''

The three senators believe Bennett is overstepping his authority as the committee's special counsel - a sort of fact-finding lawyer - and has become the equivalent of a criminal prosecutor. Bennett's adversarial style and painfully direct approach in laying out his case rubbed the senators and their lawyers all wrong.

Bennett, a partner in a prestigious Washington law firm, is well- experienced in Senate ethics probes. He led the Senate's ethics investigation of Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., which resulted in the Senate denouncing the senator in July. He also spearheaded the panel's investigation into Sen. Harrison Williams' activities in the Abscam scandal, which led to the senator's resignation.

The fact that his opponents find him abrasive, perhaps, should be no surprise considering his family ties. The same has been said of his brother, William Bennett, who recently resigned as President Bush's drug policy chief and is in line to become the new chairman of the Republican National Committee.

DeConcini cautioned, ''I don't raise Mr. Bennett and his conduct as any defense or smokescreen.'' But Bennett said that's exactly what the three senators are seeking to do.

''I have swum in Senate legal waters for a long time, like a fat old brown trout in Yellowstone River,'' Bennett told the committee. ''I'm not going to rise to that artificial fly (of shifting the attention in the case to a lawyer rather than the issue at hand).''

''The issue in this case is not me,'' he said. ''It is not Common Cause (the citizens lobbying group that brought the complaint against the five senators). The issue in this case is the conduct of the senators. That is what brought them here.''

Riegle said Bennett had concocted a case against the Keating Five by selectively arranging the evidence. The senators are accused of improperly exerting pressure on banking regulations on behalf of Keating, who gave some $1.3 million to the five senators' re-election campaigns and other favorite causes.

Cranston pointed out that Bennett's yearlong inquiry has ''cost millions of dollars of your tax money - and mine - and they have found no violations of any laws or rules.''

Addressing the three Democrats and three Republicans sitting on the committee, Cranston said Bennett ''would like you to judge me and four other United States senators on the basis of rules that have never been written and standards that have never been applied.''

Bennett has asked the committee to decide whether the five senators broke Senate rules on conflict of interest and brought discredit upon the institution.

NEW YORK (NOV. 20) UPI - All the major players acted in character Tuesday when the Evander Holyfield-George Foreman April 19 heavyweight championship bout was officially announced.

Foreman, a former champion, boasted he would stop Holyfield in two rounds to become the oldest and one of the heaviest heavyweight champions in history.

Champion Holyfield spoke matter-of-factly of how he had nothing to gain from the bout but a $20 million payday and already looked ahead to a fight with Mike Tyson.

Promoters Dan Duva and Bob Arum and casino owner Donald Trump, who will host the fight at his Atlantic City, N.J., Trump Plaza, gushed about how great an event they will put on.

''Folks are going to see the oldest heavyweight champion of the world,'' said Foreman, who turns 43 in January. ''It's my destiny to be the oldest heavyweight champion of the world.''

And one of the fattest. Foreman, who has weighed over 250 for nearly all of his 24 comeback fights, was interrupted during the news conference at a Manhattan hotel by a room service order of hamburgers and a whole turkey.

''The title belt ain't going to fit me, but I'll tape it around my waist,'' Foreman said.

''I'll win in two rounds - one for the show, and two he must go. Then I'm going to stand by my mail box and wait for my social security check. I want to be the first heavyweight champion on social security.''

Foreman entered the room to the tune of ''Happy Days Are Hear Again'' with an entourage of senior citizens carrying signs saying ''Life Begins at 40,'' ''Respect Your Elders,'' ''Over The Hill'' and ''Eat Em Up George.''

''I don't think this is a circus,'' Foreman said later. ''I don't think I'm playing.''

Holyfield, 28, entered the room surrounded by children. Holyfield, who took the title with a third-round knockout of Buster Douglas Oct. 25, was all business as usual but admitted he finds Foreman funny.

''It's amusing,'' Holyfield said. ''He's a man with a lot of confidence. You use what you have, and George is a heavy man.''

Holyfield, a 4-1 favorite, has a lot of confidence as well. He knows Foreman's $12.5 million payday will be earned more for his personality than fighting ability.

''I'm in almost a no-win situation,'' Holyfield said. ''If I win, they'll say he's too old and too heavy. But it's something the public wants to see.

''Mike Tyson will be my next opponent,'' he said of another fight the public wants. ''I know he deserves it. I respect Mike Tyson as a past heavyweight champion and for what he means to the sport.''

Foreman means ticket sales, and Trump Plaza officials project a sellout of the 20,000-plus seat Convention Center with tickets ranging from $100 to $1,000. The fight will be televised on pay-per-view and closed circuit.

''This is the most exciting promotion, the most exciting event, in the history of sports,'' gushed Duva, saying nothing about an exciting fight.

Foreman adds the excitement. Arum, brought into the promotion at Foreman's insistence, says the former champion learned about hyping a fight from the man who took the title from him 16 years ago.

''His name is George Foreman, he looks like George Foreman, but he talks like Muhammad Ali,'' Arum said. ''Evander's a nice guy, he's good for boxing, but this is Foreman's fight.''

Foreman, acting like a promoter, offered a name for the fight. He thought he could do better than Duva's ''Battle of the Ages.'' Foreman came up with ''The Big Bump Put On By Donald Trump.''

Lou Duva, father of the promoter and trainer of the champion, offered his own tag. He called it, ''The Real Deal (Holfyield's nickname) Against The Big Meal.''

Holyfield, of Atlanta, is 25-0 with 21 knockouts. Foreman, of Houston, is 69-2 with 65 knockouts. He won the heavyweight title with aknockout of Joe Frazier in 1973, and lost it to Ali in Zaire the following year.

(NOV. 20) UPI - Heavy snow fell throughout the Rockies and the peaks of the Northwest Tuesday and motorists traversing mountain passes were warned of dangerous driving conditions with icy and snow-packed roads.

Snow fell from the plateau of Arizona, across Nevada, Colorado and Wyoming into Montana, the National Weather Service said. Another cold front frosted the mountains of Washington, Oregon and Idaho with a layer of heavy snow.

From 8 to 12 inches of snow were expected by daybreak above 3,000 feet in the Cascade Mountains of Washington and Oregon, the NWS said. Advisories were posted for up to a foot of snow by Wednesday morning in the Colorado Rockies.

Similar snow advisories were issued for Nevada, Wyoming, Idaho and Montana.

Rainshowers lingered over eastern New England with snow and sleet and freezing rain over northern Maine.

Dry weather prevailed across the rest of the nation with fair skies in the south central and southeast.

Early morning temperatures were in the 30s and 40s across much of the northern half of the nation; the 50s in the central Plains, Middle Atlantic region, and Southern California; and the 60s along the Gulf coast and Florida.

NEW YORK (NOV. 20) UPI - Roger Clemens was suspended for the first five games of the 1991 season and fined $10,000 by American League President Bobby Brown Tuesday for the Boston pitcher's behavior during Game 4 of the league playoffs.

With Oakland leading the Red Sox 3-0 in games, Clemens was Boston's Game 4 starter but was ejected by home plate umpire Terry Cooney after arguing a call. Clemens charged Cooney after the ejection and was restrained by teammates. The Oakland Athletics won the game to complete a sweep of the series.

According to a statement released by the league office, Clemens was disciplined ''for making significant physical contact with an umpire (Jim Evans), for threatening umpire Cooney, for verbally abusing umpire Cooney with personal obscenities and for not leaving the dugout immediately after the ejection.''

Clemens can appeal the fine and suspension.

(NOV. 20) UPI - Soviet President Gorbachev apparently isn't embracing the option of military force in the Persian Gulf as strongly as President Bush would like. The White House announced after the two leaders met yesterday in Paris amid mounting signs of disagreement that they have reached a ''conceptual agreement'' on the possible use of force to solve the Gulf crisis. Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said- quoting- ''There are still people we need to talk to they want to talk to ... so we simply have NOT reached the point of decision yet.''

The collapse of a giant excavation pit four blocks from the White House last night disrupted downtown subway service and forced the evacuation of several buildings. The cave-in of the 50-foot-deep pit swallowed trees, the sidewalk, three construction trailers, a large crane and part of an alley. No injuries were reported. Authorities conducted a six-hour search for possible victims, but found no one.

The Soviet news agency Tass reports that President Bush and Soviet President Gorbachev will hold their fourth superpower summit early next year in Moscow. Tass gave NO date for the summit, but says it was agreed that Bush will pay an official visit to the Soviet Union at the beginning of the year. Tass issued the dispatch from Paris, where Bush and Gorbachev held talks last night at the 34-nation European summit.

Police in Athens, Greece, say a Greek oil businessman escaped assassination early today when a parked car loaded with explosives blew up as his vehicle drove past. Police say the owner of the Corinth Refineries, the largest in Greece, was being driven to work in a suburb about 12 miles north of Athens when the carbomb was detonated by remorte control. NO one was injured in the blast and NO one has immediately claimed responsibility for the attack.

An Israeli army spokesman says one Israeli soldier and at least four guerrillas were killed in southern Lebanon late yesterday in a clash north of Israel's self-declared ''security zone.'' WASHINGTON (NOV. 20) UPI - About 100 feet of sidewalk collapsed Tuesday into a site four blocks from the White House where a building foundation at a construction site caved in Monday night.

Concrete and pavement along the western side of the construction site adjacent to the United Press International building toppled into the pit about midafternoon as workers moved a construction trailer and part of a wood-covered sidewalk from the scene of Monday's collapse.

''It was going to go anyway,'' said assistant fire chief Thomas McCaffrey.

McCaffrey said construction and fire crews were especially concerned about the danger of failure along the southeast corner of the UPI building, where a 90-foot pylon supporting the building was exposed in the initial collapse.

''We've got structural engineers in there now, assessing the situation,'' he said.

Janet McCormick, a spokeswoman with the District of Columbia Department of Consumer and Regulatory Affairs, said officials have no idea when workers can return to the 12-story UPI building. She said recovery workers are in a ''holding pattern,'' awaiting a complete assessment of the situation.

The second collapse occurred on the H street side of the site at the corner of 14th and H streets.

Crews worked Tuesday to fill in the giant hole left by the collapse Monday night four blocks from the White House in the city's business district. No one was injured in the collapse, and no one appeared to have been trapped in the rubble.

The walls of the 50-foot-deep construction pit, which occupied one- quarter of a city block, gave way, swallowing three construction trailers, a large crane and much of the alley separating the excavation site from the UPI building.

Police closed one entrance to a subway station under the UPI building, blocked off surrounding streets and evacuated nearby office building, includingthe one where the wire service's world headquarters is located.

''If I'd been there, I'd be dead,'' said a street person named Ray, who frequents the street corner at the site.

''It was like an earthquake! It was unbelievable!'' said Arnel Morris, a pedestrian who was crossing the street when the collapse occurred. ''Everything - the sidewalk, the trees - fell into the hole.''

The building was in the early stages of construction, with only its concrete foundation and some girders in place. Trucks poured dirt into the crater to ensure the safety of nearby streets and other buildings.

''They're filling the hole to provide support to the surrounding structure,'' said Charles Culver, director of construction and engineering for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

The cause of the collapse had not been determined, Culver said, adding he ''wouldn't want even to speculate at this time as to the cause,'' Culver said.

Culver said once the hole is filled with dirt, crews would check the nearby UPI building and other structures would be shored up before a re- excavation could begin.

Culver said investigators would test materials used on the construction site and study written and photographic records of the construction.

Bystanders said the collapse was accompanied by an explosive roar, a hail of sparks and billowing smoke that shot out of the pit for several minutes. Fire officials said the fireworks apparently were caused by a short-circuiting electrical transformer at the site.

''It was real scary because it looked like something could blow up any second

'' one passerby said.

Because of the evacuation, UPI was forced to move operations to its business office in suburban Vienna, Va., while its Los Angeles bureau temporarily took over the task for running the wire service.

A construction worker died in the collapse of an abandoned parking garage under demolition at the same site on Dec. 31, 1989.

(NOV. 20) UPI - George Bush on Thanksgiving Day will become the first American president to set foot in a potential war zone since Richard Nixon ventured into Vietnam in the summer of 1969.

Accompanied by Barbara Bush and an army of Secret Service agents, Bush will make three visits within seven hours with U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, many stationed near the border of Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

''I honestly wouldn't go if I thought it wasn't safe,'' said Mrs. Bush, who will have turkey dinner with the president and soldiers while seated on sandbags.

''We'd rather be home for Thanksgiving, but then so would 200,000 other people '' the first lady said. ''We want them to know we care about them.''

Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon were the last presidents to enter a combat area, both daring to do so for a few hours in Southeast Asia during the height of the Vietnam War.

A fiery Johnson went there on Oct. 26, 1966, and again on Dec. 23, 1967. He exhorted the troops to fight on in the highly unpopular war that eventually drove him from office.

David Rosso, 47, remembers LBJ's first visit. He was there at Cam Ranh Bay Air Base as a 23-year-old Air Force sergeant.

''Johnson was dressed in khakis. He rode standing up in an open jeep. I was able to grab his hand as he passed by,'' said Rosso, now of Manassas, Va. ''I don't remember what he said. But he had a smile on his face. We all cheered.''

Compared to Johnson, Nixon was almost shy on his visit to with the troops.

''He didn't even ask how the war was going,'' recalls UPI White House correspondent Helen Thomas, who accompanied Nixon. ''He asked them where they were from - and if they liked baseball. He appeared uncomfortable, awkward.''

Bush plans to use his visit to celebrate Thanksgiving with the troops and to try to rally public and congressional support for his policies in the Persian Gulf.

The visit will be televised back to the United States and cap a week- long presidential trip to Europe and the Middle East. Johnson and Nixon made their visits to South Vietnam during around-the-world trips.

Unlike Bush, who announced his plans weeks ago, the public didn't learn that Johnson and Nixon were headed to the jungles of Southeast Asia until just hours before they arrived.

The two former presidents kept their plans under wraps for security reasons. The current White House has also cited security in keeping secret some of the details of Bush's trip.

A Secret Service spokesman would only say, ''We will take whatever steps are necessary to ensure the safety of the president, and we will do so with whoever is necessary.''

''I don't think it'll be dangerous,'' said Hamilton Brown, a retired Secret Service agent who was assigned to the White House in the Johnson and early Nixon years.

''The president will be surrounded by 200,00 American troops,'' said Brown. ''If they can't protect him, no one can.''

Brown said Bush's trip last winter to cocaine-ravaged Colombia for a four-nation drug summit likely carried more risks. There had been reports that drug lords would seek to assassinate him, but nothing came of it.

The former Secret Service agent noted that although Saddam Hussein has increased troop levels in Kuwait, the Iraqi leader has appeared in recent weeks to push for a negotiated settlement.

''He doesn't want to pick a fight with George Bush,'' Brown said. ''Heck, if they fired the first shot, they'd glow in the dark for the next 100 years.''

BEIJING (NOV. 20) UPI - Volkswagen AG and China's First Automobile Works signed a $807 million joint venture agreement Tuesday, pledging to produce 150,000 locally manufactured Golf cars by 1996.

China welcomed the deal as a ''major project'' in its new economic blueprint.

Work on the new venture between the giant German automaker and China's oldest auto company is slated to begin next year in the city of Changchun in northeast Jilin province.

In addition to automobile production, the newly created FAW- Volkswagen Automobile Company is planning an engine plant with an annual capacity of 270,000 engines, Volkswagen AG representatives said at a news briefing.

China described the agreement in a press release as the largest in the country and a ''major project'' in its new five-year state economic plan, which is expected to be announced by the end of the year.

A final draft of the plan was originally expected earlier this fall, but the blueprint has been held up by bickering among leadership over the nature and pace of China's economic reforms.

Official statements Tuesday praised Sino-German auto production as ''the first step towards the target of stopping importation,'' a key goal in China's continuing economic austerity program.

Volkswagen AG Chairman Carl Hahn and Chinese counterpart Geng Zhaojie, president of the First Automobile Works, were optimistic but vague about the venture's ambitious goals.

Neither side would give the estimated price of the Chinese-made Golfs, of which 90 percent of the parts are to be of local manufacture. Hahn said only that the cars would cost less than VW Santanas currently produced in Shanghai.

The locally produced Santanas currently sell for $27,000 in China.

Volkswagen produced the Santana, its first car in China, in 1983. In 1988 VW began production of the Audi 100 with the First Automobile Works in Changchun, built with Soviet assistance in 1956 as China's first large-scale auto plant.

The Golfs will roll out of a U.S.-built factory that has already been purchased and partially shipped to Changchun, FAW representatives said.

OTTAWA (NOV. 20) UPI - The Canadian government said Tuesday it wants to phase in a proposed open-skies agreement with the United States that will create a single North American market for air travel.

Transportation Minister Doug Lewis, who angered Canadian airlines for agreeing to negotiate the pact, told a Parliamentary committee he would not jeopardize Canadian airlines by changing the marketplace overnight.

Instead, Lewis said the proposed agreement, which will be negotiated starting early next year, would be introduced in stages. Lewis also promised to negotiate safeguards to lessen the initial impact on the industry, but refused to give details.

The Canada and U.S. governments announced last month they intend to create a single North American market for air travel by removing government restrictions on all airlines.

At the center of the agreement would be a "cabotage" provision allowing any North American carrier to pick up and drop customers at any two points on the continent. Currently, neither U.S. or Canadian airlines can fly between two points in each other's country. Lewis admitted the government has not assessed how the agreement would affect Canadian airlines.

The country's two top carriers, Canadian Airlines International Ltd. of Calgary and federally-owned Air Canada, have warned they may be forced to merge, leaving Canada with one national carrier, if the open-skies regime is implemented. However, Lewis said Canadian firms could compete "if the rules are fair."

Committee member Sergio Marchi, a Liberal politician, said Canada faced a virtual monopoly in its airline industry under such a regime. He said the agreement could "deliver a crippling, even fatal blow" to Canadian carriers.

Also Tuesday, the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers told the committee deregulation of the Canadian airline industry has resulted in Air Canada eliminating service to 11 cities. The airline also shut down its overnight cargo service and recently announced the layoff of 2,900 employees.

The union said relatively small domestic carriers would "fall prey" to competition from the United States, where the seventh largest airline is already larger than the top two Canadian airlines combined.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 20) UPI - Saturn has apparently ''burped'' a gigantic storm that spewed a huge cloud of ammonia gas crystals that has encircled nearly the entire mammoth planet, scientists said Wednesday.

The unusual storm was first spotted in September by amateur astronomers, prompting excited scientists to convince NASA to allow them to use the Hubble Space Telescope to photograph the area in detail earlier this month.

''It turned out it became something very special,'' said James Westphal of the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, Calif., at a news conference at NASA headquarters where the images were released.

The storm, which is about 150 miles above Saturn's normal upper atmosphere, was about triple the diameter of Earth when it was first detected on the ringed planet's equator in September.

The new images show the storm is spreading eastward at about 1,000 mph and has stretched nearly completely around the planet's equator to a size of about 200,000 miles - or about 10 times the size of Earth, the scientists said.

The size of the storm makes it the ''largest atmospheric structure right now in the solar system outside the sun,'' said Andrew Ingersoll, a professor of planetary science at Caltech.

Ingersoll said he was uncertain how or why the storm formed but that ''it really has to become sort of internal, intermittent thing on Saturn.'' In other words, ''Saturn burped,'' he said.

''Why it should wait so long to burp, I don't know,'' he said, noting that the last time anything similar was spotted on Saturn was in 1933.

''It's sort of hard to see why things should build up and then burp so magnificently,'' he said. ''But that's what it did.''

Because it is summer in that part of Saturn, Ingersoll speculated heat from the sun may have helped trigger the storm's formation from hydrogen and helium gas and liquid from the deep ''primordial'' interior of Saturn, he said.

''In some mysterious way, which I do not have a clue as to, Saturn burps ... perhaps in the summertime,'' he said. ''Just the changing heating of the atmosphere changes the stability of the different layers'' of the planet.

The scientists hope to continue to study the storm to learn more about it and Saturn itself, which apparently is more turbulent than previously thought, the scientists said.

The storm, which resembles Jupiter's 300-year-old Great Red Spot in some ways, may eventually evolve into an ancient giant storm like that, Ingersoll said. ''I have my fingers crossed,'' Ingersoll said.

Charles Pellerin, director of NASA's astrophysics division, said the 64 images of the storm taken Nov. 9 and Nov. 11 and about 250 more pictures captured by the telescope's wide field/planetary camera last weekend demonstrate the value of the $1.5 billion instrument despite its flaws.

''Hubble is becoming a mature explorer,'' he said.

About a month after the telescope was placed into orbit above Earth last April NASA discovered one of the telescope's mirrors was apparently misshapen, blurring its view of the heavens.

NASA plans to correct the problem when one of the telescope's cameras is replaced in 1993, and has said the machine can still do valuable research in the interim.

(NOV. 20) UPI - President Bush, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and European leaders who were gathered for a huge Paris summit turned their attention to the Middle East after formally burying the Cold War, and held behind-the-scenes talks on how to oust Saddam Hussein from Kuwait, reports said Tuesday.

Arab radio stations said the talks were held amid indications that while Gorbachev was pressing for a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf standoff, Bush was seeking a mandate for military action against Baghdad.

One report from Paris said Bush failed at dinner Monday to persuade Gorbachev to sanction the use of military force against Iraq. The Soviet leader is worried about the effect a war might have on his country's volatile southern border.

The talks in Paris, held on the fringe of the 34-nation European Security and Cooperation Conference, came as Iraq on Monday surprised observers by announcing it would send an additional 250,000 troops to Kuwait in anticipation of a possible attack from the U.S.-led force in the region.

One West European military attache in Cairo said Saddam would have to pull troops away from his border with Iran to reinforce Kuwait, and that only certain units such as the elite Presidential Guards could be relied upon to function efficiently.

As world leaders put heads together in Paris, Soviet and Arab envoys continued their diplomatic shuttles around the Middle East.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Petrovisky continued his North African tour with talks Tuesday in Tripoli with Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi, Libyan Radio said, and handed Gadhafi a message from Gorbachev, ''dealing with ways to avoid a military confrontation in the gulf.''

A second Soviet envoy, Alexander Belonogov, met in Doha Tuesday with Qatar's ruler Sheikh Khalifa bin Hammad al Thani and handed him a similar message from the Soviet leader.

In Cairo, Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk Sharaa met late Monday with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak. Sharaa's surprise visit to Cairo came hours after Iraq's announcement it would send the additional troops to Kuwait, a decision that will increase Baghdad's military presence in Kuwait to nearly a half-million soldiers.

Bush's visit to Egypt and Saudi Arabia later this week prompted exiled Kuwaiti Minister of State for Cabinet Affairs Abdulrahman al Awadi to hold talks with Mubarak in Cairo on Tuesday.

Kuwait's Emir Sheikh Jaber al Ahmad al Sabah has called for an immediate military strike against Iraq but Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Syria said they wanted the United States to impose a three-month moratorium on any outbreak of hostilities, to give Saddam time to change his mind and withdraw from the emirate.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar appealed in Paris for the international community to offer financial assistance to Jordan immediately, saying that the Hashemite kingdom was facing a serious economic crisis because of the gulf standoff.

In Baghdad, some 135 Bulgarian hostages were expected to leave the Iraqi capital Tuesday aboard a Bulgarian jetliner after Iraqi authorities decided to release them, Baghdad Radio reported.

Saddam on Sunday announced that all foreign nationals, including U.S. and British citizens, would be allowed to start leaving the country starting on Christmas Day over a period of three months.

But Bush called the surprise Iraqi announcement a ''cynical ploy,'' and joined British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in demanding the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of Iraq's invasion forces from Kuwait.

Thatcher said after a breakfast meeting with Bush at the U.S. Embassy in Paris Monday that Saddam's ''evil has to be be stopped,'' and vowed ''either he withdraws or the military option has to be used.''

Iraq's information minister condemned the two leaders Monday for the statements, counter-charging the military buildup in the gulf was a Western ploy to dominate oil resources in the region.

BOSTON (NOV. 20) UPI - Eight teenagers are being held for allegedly slaying a 26-year-old mother who was beaten with a tree limb, raped repeatedly and stabbed dozens of times in a park on Halloween night in what one police detective called an apparent case of ''wilding.''

Police rounded up and arrested the eight alleged gang members at about 6 a.m. Monday in Boston's Dorchester neighborhood after a two-week investigation into the death of Kimberly Harbour, 26, of Milton.

Harbour's beaten and stabbed body was found in Franklin Field, a park in Dorchester, in the early morning hours of Nov. 1. She was the mother of a 7-year-old girl.

''They beat her with a stick, stabbed her repeatedly,'' Boston Police Lt. Peter O'Malley said during one arraignment in Dorchester District Court. ''More than one person stabbed her. More than one person raped her ... One person jumped up and down on top of her.''

Media reports quoted police sources as saying she had been stabbed about 100 times.

The eight, all alleged members of the Franklin Field Pistons gang, pleaded innocent during two separate arraignments to charges of murder, rape and robbery and were ordered held without bail.

Carlos Garcia, 18; Corey James, 19, and Che Barnes, 17, all of Dorchester, were scheduled to return to court for hearings Nov. 29.

The juveniles, including four from Dorchester and one from Malden, were scheduled to return to court Dec. 5.

Boston Police head homicide Detective Edward McNelley said it was one of the most heinous crimes he'd ever seen, reminiscent of the ''wilding'' gang-rape and beating of a Central Park jogger in New York in April 1989, a crime that shocked the nation because of its brutality and random nature.

''I don't know what 'wilding' is, but if you say, 'Is it the same as what happened in New York?', I'd say there were a lot of similarities,'' McNelley said.

O'Malley said the suspects set out as a group late Oct. 31 ''with the idea to rob females'' and came upon Harbour and a companion, Laura Peterson. O'Malley said the suspects first took a set of keys from Peterson, but ''threw'' them at her and turned their attention to Harbour.

McNelley said police ''believe there are numerous people out there who know certain things that can help us process things we need for this crime.''

One law enforcement official said the arrests came about because several of the suspects ''were bragging about it. That's how it got out.''

The victim's father, Russell Harbour, has said his daughter was an A student who liked to write poetry, but was troubled by drug use and often left home. She had been living with friends in Dorchester and Boston's Mattapan neighborhood for the last several years, he said.

''I have no trouble dealing with death,'' the father said. ''But here was a child who wanted to bother no one. To end up the way they killed her - why would eight people do this to one female?''

His son, Kurry Harbour, 20, was charged in January with the New Year's Day slaying of a reclusive neighbor in Milton and is now serving a life prison term.

''Murder is murder no matter which way you look at it,'' Russell Harbour said. ''But this is a vicious murder of my daughter. I want all of them to get the maximum. I'm not a vengeful person, but I would like to push the button, pull the rope, cut them up myself.''

DHAHRAN, SAUDI ARABIA (NOV. 20) UPI - Fatma, the wife of a Kuwaiti air force major, packed her bags and fled her homeland last week after Iraqi security forces tried to pressure her 15-year-old son into service as a collaborator.

She had resisted the urge to flee when soldiers confiscated her car. She suppressed her fear when security men discovered her identity and started calling her at home. But when an Iraqi agent picked up her son and began acting like the two were best pals, she knew it was time to leave.

''I am still scared they will follow me here because they have my name,'' said Fatma, who declined to give her full identity. ''I am scared to this point, that maybe they are here and following us.''

Between 300,000 and 400,000 Kuwaitis like Fatma have fled their homeland since the forces of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein occupied the tiny oil-rich country Aug. 2. Most of them have sought sanctuary in Saudi Arabia, and each day about 120 new refugees cross the border into the kingdom.

New refugees are temporarily housed in three hotels rented by the Kuwaiti government in exile. After 10 days in the hotels, they must move into apartments. The families are given a monthly stipend of the equivalent of $1,333 by the Kuwaiti government plus a one-time payment of the equivalent of $1,333 for furniture.

Many of the Kuwaitis arrive at the five-star refugee hotels in expensive automobiles. But the Jaguars and Mercedes arrive without Kuwaiti license plates. Like their owners, they have been stripped of their identity, their nationality and their link to Kuwait by Iraqi border guards.

''We are a new kind of refugee,'' said Nawal, a Kuwaiti woman who also declined to give her last name. ''Without the land you are a refugee, even if you have money.

''If you have a palace in the States or ranches in the States, you are a refugee because you don't have your own land, which is Kuwait,'' she added. ''Even if you are staying one month in Kuwait and 11 months in the States, the land is the most important thing.''

Some of those leaving Kuwait initially tried to live with Saddam's regime and found it unbearable, while others resisted Iraqi forces but found defiance too dangerous. Most tell stories of threats, harassment and unimaginable cruelty. And many of them have performed acts of simple heroism.

A woman named Aljazi tried to carry a letter from Kuwaiti resistance members past the scrutiny of Iraqi border guards but got caught. By playing the simpleton, telling lies and giving contradictory information, she was able to confuse the security men and avoid giving away her friends.

''First I was not afraid, but I felt like somebody was looking at me, '' Aljazi said. ''But the way he began search made me feel suspicious ... and when he found this letter and started questioning me, my legs were shaking, trembling with fear. At the end, I could not believe I made it.''

Fatma, the air force major's wife, found herself left alone to care for her children Aug. 2 because her husband, a flight engineer, participated in the operation that kept 70 percent of the Kuwaiti warplanes from falling into Iraqi hands. By the end of invasion day, he was in Saudi Arabia.

Fatma knew little of her husband's business, but she found 100 American identity cards - all friends of the family - in his papers. Apparently he had been their sponsor in the country.

''I didn't know that because he doesn't tell me about the things that are secret, you know,'' she said. ''I took them, piled them with a rubbish bag and threw it in the fire. I was scared that (the Iraqis) would recognize (the people) and find them.''

Nawal lived in a big house with eight servants who immediately left the country. For her, the test was being able to run a household, cooking three meals a day, queueing in line at the supermarket for milk and bread, doing laundry and comforting neighbors with family members who disappeared.

''We are wealthy people,'' she said. ''Our social life suddenly changed.''

"We're ready to cook, to clean, to do everything," added Eman, who recently left Kuwait with her husband.We're ready to work hard, but we want our country to come back. We don't want servants, we don't want anything, we only want our government to come back, our houses, our relatives. We want our freedom.''

Eman's turn to leave Kuwait came when a relative died in a hospital after delivering a child by Caesarean section. The woman had rare 0- negative blood which was unavailable. Although the woman's husband collected 2 pints from family members, an Iraqi soldier barred them from using it.

''The Iraqi soldier told him, 'No. These two bags are for the hospital, now bring two more bags for your wife,''' Eman said. By the time an Iraqi doctor intervened, the two bags of blood had spoiled because they were not kept refrigerated. The woman died.

Eman's husband decided the couple had to leave Kuwait. She, too, is pregnant and has O-negative blood.

''My relatives, before I left, they asked me to send this message to anyone who asks you about Kuwait,'' Eman said. ''They will stay there. They won't leave Kuwait, but they don't know how long. Maybe they will die before they leave. This is their message.''

She said life under Iraqi occupation was becoming too oppressive for many to stay.

''Day after day they are suffering,'' Eman said, ''hour after hour, minute after minute.''

PARIS (NOV. 20) UPI - British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Tuesday she was disappointed the contest for Conservative Party leadership was going into a second ballot but cooly announced she would fight the final round of the political battle.

''I am disappointed that it was not quite enough to get the thing through,'' Thatcher told reporters in the courtyard of the British Embassy.

''But I am very pleased that half the parliamentary group voted on my behalf and I will put my name forward for the second ballot.''

Presidential press secretary Marlin Fitzwater, in Paris with President Bush, said of the vote, ''We would not take any position on the internal affairs of Britain. The prime minister has been a personal friend of President Reagan and President Bush. She has been our strongest ally but we have no further response.'' whatever the outcome of the vote in London.

It was not immediately clear if Thatcher would attend a ballet and banquet at Versailles as scheduled. ''Now I must go and make some telephone calls,'' said the Iron Lady, looking icily cool in a black evening suit with a fur collar.

Earlier a British Embassy spokeswoman said Thatcher would go to Versailles.

She will then travel to Versailles for congratulations or commiseration from her counterparts from around Europe at a ballet in the Royal Palace performed by the Opera di Paris followed by a banquet hosted by French President Francois Mitterrand.

''She is definitely going to Versailles,'' the spokeswoman said. ''She will come back (to the embassy), presumably wait for the result then change and go (to Versailles).''

Hordes of British journalists besieged the British Embassy to try to catch a glimpse of the beleaguered prime minister. But only a small pool was authorized to enter the courtyard of the mission lest she speak before heading to Versailles.

Thatcher looked relaxed and smiled broadly during a morning meeting with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev at the Soviet Embassy. She also met with Mitterrand.

Elysee spokesman Hubert Vedrine said Thatcher and Mitterrand focused on the Gulf crisis during their talks.

''France has given its agreement for launching discussion between U.N. Security Council members for the elaboration of a new resolution foreseeing the use of force,'' Vedrine said.

French television and radio reports gave full coverage to Thatcher's plight.

Le Figaro newspaper described Thatcher as ''phlegmatic'' and ''haughty.''

''She has, for example, proudly ignored her foreign minister, Douglas Hurd, during all the ceremonies.''

Le Figaro also remarked on Thatcher's ''sense of humor,'' noting that she told a news conference Monday it was not yet time to write her memoirs.

ROCKLIN, CA (NOV. 20) UPI - Wells Fargo Bank said Friday it has bought 127 acres of land in California's Central Valley for a future business campus that could house up to 3,000 employees by the end of the century.

The bank said it planned to move many of its 24-hour operations to the site, starting in 1994, to augment operations centers in northern and southern California.

The site, part of a development called Stanford Ranch, could accommodate up to two million square feet of building space, the bank said. Wells Fargo plans to develop the site in stages over ten years, with the first phase totalling about half a million square feet to be completed in 1994, housing 300 employees.

Stanford Ranch, a 3,500-acre master-planned community in Placer County, also is the site of facilities for Ace Hardware and Herman Miller, a furniture company.

BONN, GERMANY (NOV. 20) UPI - A majority of German voters favor retaining Helmut Kohl as chancellor after the Dec. 2 national election because they believe he stands for unity, freedom and justice, a survey published Tuesday said.

The survey by the Allensbach Institute said that 70 percent of voters in eastern Germany and 62 percent in western Germany think that Kohl and his conservative Christian Democratic Union ''convincingly stand for German unity.

Only 19 percent of those surveyed in the west and 24 in the east believe Kohl's challengers - Oskar Lafontaine and his Social Democratic Party (SPD) - see German unification as their priority.

The institute surveyed 1,000 voters in western Germany and 1,000 in eastern Germany, and said its margin of error was about 1.5 percent.

Kohl, who is widely regarded as the architect of German unification Oct. 3, has been ahead of Lafontaine in the polls for the past six months.

Tuesday's poll, published in the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung daily, showed that 49 percent in those surveyed in former West Germany and 48 percent in eastern Germany feel that Kohl ''radiates optimism and confidence.''

Only 21 percent of western Germans and 18 percent in the eastern part of the nation found the same true for Lafontaine.

Most voters also believe that Kohl is a stronger advocate than Lafontaine for a just state and as much freedom for the individual as possible, the survey said.

Another survey by the weekly news magazine Der Spiegel showed that 54 percent of those surveyed in all of Germany would vote for Kohl and 38 percent for Lafontaine, if they were voting directly for a candidate.

Under German electoral law, voters cast their vote for the party and not for one particular candidate.

CLEMSON, SC (NOV. 20) UPI - Virginia quarterback Shawn Moore Tuesday was named the Atlantic Coast Conference football Player-of-the-Year by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

Moore, a fifth-year senior from Martinsville, Va., has led the No. 14 Cavaliers to an 8-2 overall record, 5-2 in the ACC, and has been touted as a leading Heisman Trophy candidate.

Moore and Virginia wide receiver Herman Moore, no relation, were the only unanimous selections for the All-ACC team dominated by No. 13 Clemson with nine selections.

So far this season, Shawn Moore has completed 144 of 241 passes for 2,232 yards and 21 touchdowns. He also has carried the ball 94 times for 357 yards and eight rushing touchdowns.

Herman Moore, a junior, has caught 47 passes for 1,010 yards and 12 touchdowns this year. The Cavs end their season Saturday at Virginia Tech.

Besides Shawn Moore and Herman Moore, Virginia had four players and No. 3 Georgia Tech had five players on the teams. Maryland, North Carolina, North Carolina State and Wake Forest each had one player honored. Duke did not have a first-team player.

Gardocki booted 19 field goals for the Tigers, 9-2 and 5-2, and added 23 point-after conversions. The junior from Stone Mountain, Ga., is 65- 65 in point-after conversions in his career.

Joining Shawn Moore and Herman Moore from the Virginia team were junior offensive tackle Ray Roberts, senior center Trevor Ryals, sophomore tailback Terry Kirby and sophomore defensive end Chris Slade.

The Yellow Jackets, 9-0-1 and 6-0-1, claimed the ACC title Saturday with a win over Wake Forest. Tech players honored were senior guard Joe Siffri, senior linebacker Calvin Tiggle, sophomore linebacker Marco Coleman, junior free safety Ken Swilling and junior cornerback Willie Clay.

The rest of the players named to the All-ACC teams were Maryland's senior wide receiver Barry Johnson, Wake Forest's sophomore tight end John Henry Mills, North Carolina's junior linebacker Dwight Hollier and North Carolina State's junior strong safety Jesse Campbell.

BY LEE STOKES - UPI

(NOV. 20) UPI - Recent charges that Iraq has executed more than 250 people in Kuwait reinforce claims that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein habitually uses violence as his main instrument of control in the occupied emirate.

The U.S. human rights group Middle East Watch charged Saddam's armies with executing 250 people, arbitrarily detaining thousands more and systematically obliterating all signs of Kuwaiti culture.

Iraqi dissidents say Saddam's propensity for violence is nothing new, that at an early age he became involved in violent student politics when he failed to make a good grade at school.

Even a copy of his official biography tells how he became familiar with guns at the age of 10 and that his first act of violence on behalf of the Arab Baath Socialist party was in his home town of Takrit: the murder of a prominent supporter of the communist-backed military dictator, Abdel Karim Qassim.

Saddam then tried to assassinate President Qassim himself but failed and went into hiding in Egypt.

After two years in prison, Saddam rose to power in 1979 and immediately began purging the Baath leadership, executing several former Cabinet colleagues.

The Iraqi dissidents, who asked that their names not be used for their own safety, said Saddam has personally killed many people and surrounds himself with an aura of terror, getting rid of opponents under the guise of ''Revolutionary Justice.''

On Nov. 21, 1986, for example, when the Revolutionary Command Council ordered the death penalty for anyone publicly insulting the president, the RCC, the Baath Party and the rubber-stamp National Assembly.

Iraqi exiles say thousands of opposition figures have been executed and Saddam has even had his opponents abroad tracked down and murdered.

Saddam's first foreign minister, Nasir al Hani, was found shot to death in 1968 in a ditch outside Baghdad. Hardan Takriti, a former Baathist defense minister, was machine-gunned in Kuwait by Iraqi security forces in 1971. Security Director Nazim Kassar was executed and a large number of Iraqi officers killed after an attempted coup July 1, 1973.

Abdul Razzak al Naif, a former Iraqi premier, was assassinated in London on July 9, 1978. His killer, Salim Hassan, was convicted and is serving a life sentence in a British prison.

Exiles say that when Saddam took over the presidency of Iraq in 1979, about 500 senior Baathists were executed in the first two weeks of his rule.

The exiles say the purge was not only directed against dissidents such as Kurds, communists and disafefcted Shiite Moslems, but also against Baathists and old associates who might have been a threat to him. At least five members of the RCC were killed, with Saddam insisting that his colleagues on the RCC personally do the killing.

Iraqi exiles said Saddam is extending his normal methods of political control to Kuwait. They point out that Saddam's victims include the 1980 death of Shiite religious leader Mohammed Baqir Sadr and 20 army officers. Iraqi security forces in 1982 caused 150 families in the village of Al Dujayl, 40 miles northeast of Baghdad, to disappear after an assassination attempt against Saddam. The village was then bulldozed to the ground.

Two years ago, Iraqi authorities executed 22 members of the family of Iraqi Shiite Sayed Mahdi al Hakim when he fled to the Sudanese capital Khartoum.

Saddam also used chemical weapons to attack the Kurdish village of Halabja on March 16, 1988, killing up to 5,000 Kurdish civilians.

Saddam's family shares his propensity. The exiles point out that on Oct. 19, 1988, Saddam's son, Udai Saddam Hussein, killed a presidential palace employee but was released without charge three months later and sent to the Iraqi Embassy in Geneva. The Swiss expelled him and he returned to Iraq.

The dissidents point out that even members of Saddam's Takriti clan have not been immune from the Iraqi leader's violence. Saddam's cousin, Fadhil Barrak, a former head of the Iraqi Mukhabarat or secret police, was arrested in May 1990 and accused of plotting to overthrow the regime.

They said the arrests also included Mahdi Hanoush, the Iraqi secretary general of the Bureau of Standards and Measures of the Arab League, who was called to the Iraqi Embassy in Amman, Jordan, last May 31 and then bundled off to Baghdad by the secret police.

Three of his relatives were also arrested, including a German citizen of Iraqi origin lured to Baghdad with a promise of a lucrative contract. Dissidents said that among those arrested was Khalil Shakir, Barrak's assistant who is well-known for his use of thalium, a popular poison used in assassinating Saddam's political opponents residing outside Iraq.

Dissidents also report a growing rift between Saddam and members of his Takriti clan who have grown rich and powerful thanks to his patronage. Several of them have been arrested and their fate unknown.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Forty-five members of Congress filed suit Tuesday seeking to prevent President Bush from committing U.S. troops to a Persian Gulf war without congressional approval.

''This is a historic opportunity for the federal courts to decide who has the right to declare war,'' said Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., who initiated the lawsuit.

''We believe the president has a responsibility in this situation to send a declaration of war to the Congress of the United States.''

In Paris with President Bush, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the administration would not comment on the legal aspects of the congressmen seeking suit, but added, ''We believe this lawsuit is unnecessary in light of the commitment of the president to working with the Congress to keep them completely informed.''

The lawsuit was filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court, and lawyers asked that a hearing be held within 10 days on their request for a preliminary injunction.

The lawsuit centers around the war powers clause of the Constitution, which grants Congress the authority to declare war.

The suit does not address the 1973 War Powers Act passed by Congress that prevents the president from keeping U.S. forces in an area of imminent danger without seeking approval from Congress.

Dellums called the War Powers Act a ''worthless piece of legislation'' that he voted against in 1973. He said basing the suit on a provison in the Constitution would remove the political arguments that courts have traditionally avoided.

''We went straight to the Constitution,'' Dellums said.

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh declined to comment on the suit.

''The suit involves very complicated questions involving the standing to sue executive powers and we will respond completely in those and other areas,'' Thornburgh said.

At a news conference to announce the suit, Dellums was joined by Reps. Don Edwards, D-Calif., and Marcy Kaptur, D-Ohio. They urged the president not to repeat mistakes made during the Vietnam War.

Raising the specter of 58,000 Americans who died in Vietnam, Kaptur said ''they fought an undeclared war that split this nation in two.

''We must meet our constitutional responsibility to deliberate and vote on any act of war,'' she said. ''I promised myself I would never be a part of an undeclared war.''

''There is no necessity for quick action,'' Edwards said, saying the president has time to put his Persian Gulf policy before a vote of the Congress. ''We are not being invaded.''

Dellums said Bush has been reluctant to let Congress have a significant role in the U.S. Persian Gulf policy.

''I think the president has a very real objection to come to Congress,'' Dellums said. ''There has been no real dialogue. He has no business avoiding the Congress.''

Michael Ratner, a lawyer for the Center for Constitutional Rights, said the Constitution is clear on the issue of who has the ultimate authority to declare war, the Congress or the president.

''This is not a power for the president of the United States,'' Ratner said. ''Hopefully this court will tell him to go to Congress.''

CARSON CITY, NV (NOV. 20) UPI - Nevada casinos, paced by a flurry of new clubs in Clark County, won $1.3 billion during the summer tourism season - an increase of 12.9 percent.

The state Gaming Control Board reported Monday that the casino win in Clark County, which includes Las Vegas, rose 18.1 percent to $979.4 million during the July through September quarter.

Board spokesman Harlen Elges said the strong showing in Southern Nevada was due to the opening of the Excalibur hotel-casino on the Las Vegas Strip; the Flamingo Hilton in Laughlin, Nev., and the Nevada Landing and Primadonna Resort, both in Jean, Nev., near the southern Nevada-southern California border. The quarter included revenues from The Mirage, a 3,000-room hotel-casino opened by Golden Nugget Inc., in November, 1989.

Elges expressed doubt that the gaming industry in Clark County would be able to match the 18 percent increase in the future because of the newly created large base of comparison.

Casinos in the border town of Laughlin on the Colorado River reported a 19.4 percent increase in gross revenues which reached $98.9 million during the quarter.

The new report showed that 71 percent of Nevada's gaming business is now in Clark County, compared to 68 percent of a year ago. While the south was reporting booming business numbers, Northern Nevada gaming appeared sluggish.

Only Washoe County - which includes Reno, Sparks and North Lake Tahoe - showed any solid increase. Gaming revenues there rose by 4.5 percent to $226.2 million.

Gross revenue dropped in Douglas county by three percent to $107.9 million and declined in Elko County by 1.6 percent to $29.9 million. Carson City casinos had an increase of 2.3 percent.

Gross revenue is computed before business expenses and taxes. The board said the casinos paid $82.8 million in taxes, up 12.6 percent for the quarter.

JERUSALEM (NOV. 20) UPI - One Israeli soldier and at least four guerrillas were killed in a clash north of Israel's self-declared ''security zone'' in southern Lebanon, the army spokesman said Tuesday.

The forces clashed late Monday when the Israeli troops encountered the guerrillas ''while carrying out an initiated activity on the eastern front,'' about 4 miles north of the security zone, the spokesman said.

The Israeli troops opened fire, killing four gunmen and possibly a fifth. Israeli officer Yaron Yogev also was killed, the spokesman said.

The clash occurred in a mountainous area controlled by guerrilla organizations that have operated against Israeli forces and the Israel- backed South Lebanon Army.

The Israeli operation was an additional step against ''terrorist organizations and their establishment on the eastern front of the security zone,'' the spokesman said.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 20) UPI - Housing starts fell 6 percent in October for the ninth consecutive monthly decline to the lowest level since June 1982 in the last recession, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

Permits for new construction were down 6.8 percent for the month, also to the lowest level since June 1982.

Compared with October 1989, housing starts have fallen 26.8 percent.

The annual rate of new housing construction stood at slightly above 1 million, adjusted for seasonal factors. The annual rate for building permits was 925,000, also adjusted for seasonal factors.

October's decline in starts follows a drop of 2.1 percent in September, while last month's decrease in building permits follows a fall of 5.5 percent in September, the department's Census Bureau said.

A government spokesman said the nine consecutive monthly declines in housing starts is the worst string of losses since the Commerce Department started tracking the data in 1959.

Martin Regalia, chief economist at the National Council of Savings Institutions, said, ''If things hold true to course, the November numbers will be worse.''

He said consumers are holding back.

''The (consumers') money isn't there and the will and desire to extend yourself isn't there,'' said Regalia.

''The mortgage money is there, but nobody wants it because they're afraid theywon't be able to make the payments,'' he added.

Construction of new single-family homes was off 1 percent in October, while construction of apartment buildings with two, three or four units dropped 8.8 percent, the report said.

Robert Villanueva, an economist at the National Association of Home Builders, said, ''There's one little positive sign. The single-family sector seems to have stabilized. If we begin to get some relief from the interest rate side, we can probably keep the single-family side from dropping (further).''

Construction of larger apartment buildings, meanwhile, plunged 25.7 percent last month - to the lowest levels since August 1963, when the government started tracking apartment data, the spokesman said.

Thomas Holloway, an economist with the Mortgage Bankers Association, attributed the weak showing in the apartment sector to builders' inability to get loans.

''It's a dismal report,'' Holloway said.

By region, October housing starts jumped 38.5 percent in the Northeast, dipped 2.5 percent in the Midwest, dropped 10.4 percent in the South and fell 16.9 percent in the West.

JASPER, GA (NOV. 20) UPI - Former Rep. Phil Landrum, who served as Georgia's 9th District congressman for 24 years, died Monday night of complications from a stroke. He was 83.

Landrum died about 10:15 p.m. EST at Pickens General Hospital, where he had been undergoing treatment for several days after suffering multiple strokes in the last two weeks.

''He was a great state and national leader, and I shall certainly miss him,'' said Rep. Ed Jenkins, D-Ga., who succeeded Landrum in 1977. ''I first went to work with Phil Landrum almost 32 years ago right out of law school and was closely affiliated with him throughout the rest of his life. He was my mentor and friend, and I shall miss his counsel.''

Elected to Congress in 1952, Landrum was the principle sponsor of the Landrum-Griffin Labor Reform Bill of 1959. Designed as a bill of rights for union employees, the law was considered essential to weeding out corruption from the union hierarchy and came about as a result of the Jimmy Hoffa hearings.

Landrum also was instrumental in the passage of several key education bills, including the Library Services Act and the Vocational Educational Act.

He also was closely allied with Presidents Johnson and Ford.

Prior to running for Congress, Landrum served as executive secretary to former Gov. M.E. Thompson and was an assistant attorney general.

A native of Martin, Ga., in the northeast mountain county of Stephens, Landrum graduated from Piedmont College and the Atlanta Law School, earning his attorney's degree while teaching school and coaching in Nelson, Ga.

He is survived by his wife, Laura Brown Landrum, two children, Phil Landrum Jr. and Susan Landrum, both attorneys, and two grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (NOV. 20) UPI - A U.S. military team flew to Hanoi Tuesday and picked up 11 sets of remains believed to be of U.S. soldiers missing in Vietnam, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said.

James Williams, the embassy spokesman in Bangkok, said a U.S. team picked up the remains in Hanoi and left for the Central Identification Laboratory in Hanoi, where they will be examined in an attempt to make identifications.

''The United States recognizes and appreciates Vietnam's unilateral efforts which have brought increased accounting for the Americans missing in Southeast Asia,'' he said.

''We hope to see similar concrete results from joint efforts,'' Williams said.

The repatriation of remains was the second in the past two months amid warming relations between Hanoi and Washington.

A U.S. team of experts visited Hanoi earlier this month to discuss expansion of joint searches for evidence of the fates of some of the 1, 676 U.S. military personnel missing in action in Vietnam.

Williams said he had no information on the outcome of those discussions.

In mid-October Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach visited Washington for the first time for talks with senior U.S. officials.

Thach later told reporters he had agreed to a U.S. proposal to station MIA experts permanently in Hanoi. The U.S. State Department said any long-term stationing of representatives would depend on further improvements in cooperation on the sensitive MIA issue.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 20) UPI - The Iraqi announcement that another 250,000 troops will be sent to Kuwait does not automatically mean the United States will rush more troops to the region, a Pentagon official said Tuesday.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said there has been no evidence yet that Saddam Hussein has started moving forces foward into Iraq. There are more than 430,000 Iraqi soldiers with 3,500 tanks located in and around Kuwait.

''If they are going to do it, it could well take a long time. It could take over a month to do it,'' said Williams.

''As Gen. (Colin) Powell pointed out this morning, the additional troops they are talking about would probably be less capable than the troops that are deployed there now. It is not clear that if this announcement were followed through that it would add to the combat power.''

''These forces probably wouldn't be as well trained or well equipped as the forces that are there now,'' added Williams.

Should Iraq follow through, he said, ''It would be a further tightening of its grip on occupied Kuwait and just the opposite of what the world community has asked Iraq to do, which is to withdraw form Kuwait.''

Some military authorities have suggested that extra Iraqi troops could increase the vulnerability of the Iraqi army, particularly because of the strain it would put on supply lines.

Williams, asked if it might require additional U.S. forces to counter and maintain a creditable option to go on the offense, said:

''That's an impossible calculation to make now. It may well be that we don't need to send any more. it depends on who they send. Just the addition of sheer numbers in itself doesn't necessarily ... give Iraq an addition to its combat power. So we'll have to wait and see whether this is something they intend to do and how they do it before we can make any kind of decision like that.''

Williams also said that Operation Imminent Thunder had some successes, even though an amphibious landing had to be called off because of safety considerations.

Hovercraft were to have been used to ferry Marines ashore from ships held over the horizon but those plans were junked when seas rose to 10 feet to 12 feet. About 400 Marines were airlifted to the shore in helicopters.

The operation also included multi-service airpower over the beach, aviation operations elsewhere in the country and an exercise to let U.S. forces pass through Saudi lines headed toward Kuwait.

The opertion winds up Wednesday, the day President Bush arrives in the country to start a whirlwind Thanksgiving Day visit.

''The majority of what we had hoped to achieve in this exercise was achieved '' said Williams.

On a related matter, Williams noted that the deadline is rapidly approaching for Christmas cards and letters going to soldiers in Operation Desert Shield. The deadline is next Monday, Nov. 26. The deadline for air parcel and priority parcels was Nov. 16.

PHILADELPHIA (NOV. 20) UPI - Laventhol & Horwath, the nation's seventh-largest accounting firm, said Tuesday it is unable to repay its bank loans and will file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

The filing, which will give the firm court protection from its creditors during a period of reorganization, is expected to be made Wednesday.

Robert Levine, chief executive officer, said in a press statement the firm found itself in a ''severe cash squeeze'' resulting from high litigation defense costs, a dramatic downturn in the real estate and hospitality markets - two industries in which the firm specializes - and the general weakening of the economy.

''A series of tragic circumstances brought this proud firm to this sad day,'' Levine said.

Among its troubles: Laventhol is defending itself in a multimillion- dollar lawsuit over its audit of the PTL ministry of Jim Bakker.

Laventhol said its liabilities, including contingent liabilities for litigation and other matters, far exceed its assets - although no specific figures were released.

Laventhol's bank debt stands at approximately $85 million.

Some 350 Laventhol partners met last weekend hoping to come up with a plan of reorganization that would keep the firm out of bankruptcy proceedings, but the effort proved unsuccessful.

''We were left with little choice but to seek protection in the courts,'' said Levine, who took over as executive partner of the troubled firm in June.

Levine said the partners in Laventhol, which counts among its clients such prestigious companies as Trans World Airlines Inc. and Hyatt Corp., ''have every intention of continuing to serve our clients.''

The firm, which began a major acquisition progam in 1984, currently has 50 U.S. offices and posted fiscal 1990 revenues of $345 million, more than double the pre-expansion revenues of six years ago.

''The petition we will file is unique in that service companes have little to offer creditors in the way of 'hard' assets,'' Levine said. ''Instead, its clients and people are the assets. We hope to create an orderly way to pay creditors without disrupting the on-going business of the partners.''

Laventhol earlier this month cut its employees' pay by 10 percent and has seen partners leave the firm in droves in recent weeks.

WASHINGTON UPI - Human tests are starting on a possible AIDS vaccine that appears to be better designed and more promising in chimpanzees than other vaccines being tested in people, researchers said Tuesday.

Government-affiliated AIDS researchers and officials from Immuno-U.S. Inc. of Rochester, Mich., announced the Food and Drug Administration has approved tests of their jointly developed AIDS vaccine in about 60 healthy people.

The genetically engineered vaccine, called IMMUNO-Ag, is the sixth AIDS vaccine authorized by the FDA for human testing but is the first to be developed in conjunction with the government. Tests of the other AIDS vaccines have not yet produced any conclusive results.

If the new vaccine encounters no roadblocks along the testing pathway, Belshe estimated it would still be at least five to 10 years before it could be generally available to the American public.

The laboratory-made protein the vaccine uses to spur an immune system response more closely mimics the natural AIDS protein, called gp160, than previous candidate vaccines, researchers said.

''In many cases, retaining the native shape of the viral molecule is crucial to a vaccine's ability to stimulate a strong immune response. We don't know if this is true for HIV (AIDS virus) molecules used in vaccines, but these clinical trials will help answer this very important question,'' Dr. Anthony Fauci, head of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, said in a statement.

Dani Bolognesi, an AIDS vaccine expert at Duke University School of Medicine in Durham, N.C., agreed that the new vaccine's gp160 protein is ''without a doubt much more natural'' than those used in other potential AIDS vaccines being tested in humans.

Another encouraging sign for the new vaccine is that it has protected one chimpanzee from infection by the AIDS virus for nearly three years, Bolognesi said, noting other vaccines being tested under the supervision of the National Institutes of Health did not show similar promise in animal tests.

However, Bolognesi emphasized it is impossible to tell how well the vaccine will work in humans until it is given to patients. In addition, he repeated past predictions that the best AIDS vaccine to protect the general public over a long time period will probably be a ''cocktail'' of viral components, not just one protein unit.

''This is probably not the ultimate vaccine,'' said Bolognesi, a member of NIH's AIDS Vaccine Selection Committee.

Dr. Martha Eibl of the Immuno Group's branch in Austria emphasized the vaccine's performance in animal tests, saying it triggered ''the longest known period of protection of any candidate AIDS vaccine studied in chimps.''

Based on work in mice, guinea pigs, goats, monkeys and chimps, Eibl said the current vaccine formulation ''can be considered safe for clinical use'' in people.

Dr. Robert Belshe, a medical professor at St. Louis University School of Medicien and head of the vaccine study, said: ''We are delighted to have the opportunity to evaluate this exciting candidate vaccine in clinical trials.''

In the first phase of testing, 20 volunteers will receive low doses of the vaccine and 10 will receive a phony injection. In a second phase, scheduled to start a month later, 20 other volunteers will receive a higher dose of the vaccine and 10 will get dummy shots.

Belshe emphasized that volunteers face no risk of getting AIDS from the test. ''It (the vaccine) is synthetic. You cannot get AIDS from it - it is not made from the AIDS virus,'' he said.

After their intial vaccination, the subjects will receive boosters at one, six months and 18 months, Belshe said. Although the focus of the study is to determine the safety of the vaccine, he said researchers should be able to get some idea of the vaccines effectiveness in ''one to three months'' by looking at how well the patient's blood samples fend off the AIDS virus in the test tube.

(NOV. 20) UPI - In Paris, President Bush, Soviet President Gorbachev and other European leaders reportedly are holding behind the scenes talks today on how to oust Saddam Hussein from Kuwait. Arab radio stations say the talks come amid indications of a disagreement between the superpower leaders on the use of military force.

Gorbachev, apparently worried about the effect a war might have on his country's volatile southern border, is pushing for a peaceful solution to the Gulf standoff. One report says Bush failed at dinner last night to persuade Gorbachev to sanction a mandate for the use of military force against Iraq.

Britain's Conservative Party in Parliament holds a critical vote today to decide Prime Minister Thatcher's fate. Thatcher faces a serious challenge from her former defense minister, Michael Heseltine. The contest is the first serious challenge to Thatcher since she unseated Edward Heath in 1975. She became prime minister four years later.

MOSCOW (NOV. 20) UPI - The Soviet army, its fall conscription drive crippled in at least five republics, will take ''every necessary measure'' to defend itself against anti-military attacks, the Defense Ministry said Tuesday.

The hard-hitting statement was published in official newspapers after recent violent protests against the presence of Soviet troops in Latvia, Lithuania, Moldavia and Georgia.

The anti-army demonstrations are fueled by secessionist forces that have swept the northern Baltic and southern Transcaucasian region, the Defense Ministry said.

''Protesters are backed by those thwarted by the Soviet armed forces in the realization of their political ambitions and separatist intentions,'' the statement said.

''Every necessary measure will be taken to prevent such actions,'' it said.

In demonstrations Sunday, on the anniversary of Latvia's brief independence in 1918, 5,000 people picketed a Soviet air force training center in the Latvian city of Saldus, cutting telephone wires and damaging a road leading into the base.

The protest occurred after the Latvian Parliament voted to shut off electricity at all Soviet military bases in the Baltic republic.

About 300 people clashed with troops Saturday outside the army garrison in the Lithuanian capital of Vilnius, prompting soldiers to fire warning shots, use water cannons and beat some of the demonstrators in violence that left eight injured.

In the Moldavian capital of Kishinev, 30 people broke into a garrison officers' club Friday, rampaging through the building, trying to set it on fire and threatening employees, according to several news accounts.

A smaller group in the Georgian capital of Tbilisi tried to break into an officers' club Saturday, the accounts said.

While some nationalists have taken to the streets to express their hostility toward the Soviet military, scores of others have simply ignored summons to serve in the army.

Col. Gen. Grigory Krivosheev said that the army's annual autumn call- up has been hampered in the Baltics and the Caucasus.

After 50 days of the draft, only 13 percent of eligible conscripts had reported for service in Armenia along with 5 percent in Armenia and a ''meager'' 2.2 percent in Georgia, Krivosheev said.

The general did not provide figures for the Baltic region, but there have been widespread anti-draft demonstrations at conscription centers in the republics, all three of which declared independence earlier this year.

The independent Interfax news service cited figures of 20 percent in Latvia, 16.8 percent in Estonia and 10 percent in Lithuania.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 20) UPI - U.S. officials apparently were so eager to cement strategic and trade ties with Iraq they overlooked human rights abuses and doubts that Iraq would repay loans, auditors said Tuesday.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., in releasing the General Accounting Office report, said Iraqi access to U.S. credit loan programs could have allowed Iraq to devote its finances to weaponry. However, he acknowledged, ''You can't trace the green dollars.''

Iraq received $5 billion in export credit guarantees to aid its purchase of U.S. agricultural products between fiscal 1983 and its August invasion of Kuwait. At that time, it had $2 billion in outstanding credit guarantees.

''Even though Agriculture's risk analysis documents for fiscal years 1989 and 1990 rated Iraq as a high-risk market for granting substantial credit guarantees, Agriculture continued to grant credit guarantees throught fiscal year 1990,'' the report said.

''It seems that the U.S. desire to build a strategic and agricultural trade relationship with Iraq outweighed the apparent financial risks involved and discounted evidence of Iraq's human rights violations.''

Agriculture Department officials have said Iraq had an excellent payment record until an international trade embargo was enacted in the wake of the invasion of Kuwait.

Since then, the government has paid out $1 billion to cover short- term guarantees that came due.

Congress has refused to cut off ties with Iraq in recent years despite concern about its treatment of its citizens. Only three weeks before the invasion of Kuwait, the House rejected a provision that would have immediately cut off aid. The Senate gave its support to language to cut off Iraqi access to export credits and military sales programs.

''It failed,'' Schumer said when asked about congressional oversight.

The Reagan and Bush administrations opposed congressional attempts to cut off trade relations on grounds they would eliminate U.S. leverage with an important country in a sensitive part of the world.

In a 1988 letter, for instance, a State Department officer described Iraq as ''emerging from the Iran-Iraq war as a major regional power aligned with many of our friends in the region.''

The letter cited U.S. abhorrence of Iraq's use of chemical weapons but said, ''We should focus our efforts on persuading the Iraqis to abandon tactics they adopted in the struggle against Iran.''

NEW YORK (NOV. 20) UPI - An expert on the Soviet oil industry said Tuesday he is advising U.S. oil companies to go slow on making any deals with Moscow because of the "unsettled" political and economic situation gripping the Soviet Union.

"Things are a little dicey over there. They're going to get worse before they get better," said Robert Ebel, international vice president of Enserch Corp. in Washington.

A former CIA Soviet analyst, Ebel said several oil companies studying the feasibility of joint ventures with the Soviets have called him for advice. He declined to name the companies.

"I'm advising them that if you have a feasibility study going on, stretch it out; don't do a deal until the political and economic situation has settled. I would move slowly. I would stretch the negotiations out," he said in a telephone interview.

Texaco Inc. and Chevron Corp. are among the large oil companies studying the feasibility of drilling for oil in the Soviet Union. Two months ago, Chevron spokesman Mike Libbey said the San Francisco-based company hoped to complete a deal "by the end of the year."

On Tuesday, Libbey said: "It looks like that will slip until early next year. There's a little bit of uncertainty over the political situation. We're still optimistic, but there's a number of details to be worked out."

Ebel said there was a recent article in Pravda in which "locals" involved in Chevron's study of the Tengiz oil field near the Caspian Sea were complaining about "what's in it for us."

He said Chevron may be faced with a problem common to all dealing with the vast, fragmenting Soviet bureauracy: identifying and getting agreement from all interested parties.

It appears from the deteriorating Soviet economy that President Mikhail Gorbachev "has no plan. Everything is in reaction to circumstances," Ebel said.

Gorbachev has been in power for more than five years, but not much has happened to improve the economy, the analyst said. And, oil production of the world's largest producer has begun to decline.

If this winter is exceptionally cold, "no lights and no food on the table ... could result in the populace finding a way of stimulating things," Ebel said. During the 1970s and 1980s, the Soviet economy's poor performance "was masked by the exports of oil and gas," the analyst said.

Partly because the Soviets lack advanced technology available in the West, he said, daily crude oil output is declining sharply - from 12.1 million barrels a day in 1989 to 11.5 million projected for 1990.

Joint ventures with American and other western oil companies are very important to the Soviet Union because they have the technology needed to fully exploit the potential of its oil fields, he said.

Cheap Soviet oil was the glue that held together the bloc of Eastern European nations that the Soviets formerly led. But Moscow has said they will now have to start paying world prices for oil come January.

Phibro Energy Inc. said Monday it secured Soviet approval along with a Swiss company to drill for oil in three Siberian fields. The joint venture, with the U.S. division of Anglo-Suisse LP located in Houston, "will be the first of its kind to explore for and develop oil fields in the Soviet Union," said Phibro, a Greenwich, Conn., unit of New York-based Salomon Inc.

Ebel said, however, this deal is relatively small compared to the agreements being explored by Chevron and Texaco. Phibro's so-called "White Knights" venture, a 50-50 cooperative effort with the Varyegannefstegaz of the Soviet Union, will drill about 550 new horizontal wells in the project area and will attempt to complete 100 "shut-in" wells.

Phibro and Anglo-Suisse will be allowed to export their shares of the output under terms of the agreement, according to Phibro.

PARIS (NOV. 20) UPI - (NOV. 20) UPI - Iraq promised Tuesday to release all Germans held hostage in Iraq and Kuwait, while President Bush answered questions on the Persian Gulf crisis by counseling, ''just be patient and all will be well.''

U.S. Gen. Colin Powell, meanwhile, said there is no evidence Iraq is really deploying a quarter of a million more troops in Kuwait as it announced Monday.

Bush, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and other European leaders in Paris for the European Security and Cooperation Conference held behind the scenes talks on how to oust Iraqi President Saddam Hussein from Kuwait, reports said Tuesday.

Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait triggered deployment of about a half-million U.S.-dominated troops in the gulf area, most of them in Saudi Arabia, to discourage further Iraqi adventurism.

In surprise announcements in the past two days, Saddam has said he will release all foreigners in stages beginning at Christmas and that he would send 250,000 more troops into the occupied emirate in what many observers called a carrot and stick tactic.

Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said in television interviews Tuesday he did not think Iraq was really sending more troops into the emirate it invaded Aug. 2.

''We have seen no evidence of these additional troops moving into the theatre '' he said in an interview with the CBS network.

Powell, who is in Saudi Arabia, said Iraq already had 430,000 troops in the tiny oil-rich emirate and that to move in more soldiers ''might present him with new vulnerabilities rather than added strength.''

He said the United States has about 230,000 troops in the region and is plananing to deploy another 100,000 in the coming months.

The German government welcomed an announcement by Baghdad radio that all German hostages in Iraq and Kuwait would be released, although it was not clear if the 280 nationals would be freed immediately.

The announcement came only days after German Chancellor Helmut Kohl warned against a military option in the Persian Gulf in an interview broadcast during Bush's visit to Germany.

''The federal government has done everything it could since the beginning of the Kuwait crisis to obtain the release of all foreigners held in Iraq and Kuwait,'' government spokesman Hans Klein said in a statement.

Saddam was quoted Tuesday as saying Kohl's remarks on the Gulf were ''encouraging.''

Iraq on Sunday promised to release all 3,000 foreigners trapped in Iraq and Kuwait in batches beginning Christmas Day and ending March 25.

Bush, whose statements against Saddam in recent weeks has raised concerns he was planning a military strike against Iraq, called Tuesday for patience.

Asked at a photo session with Turkish leaders in Paris if he was disappointed that Gorbachev appeared to favor U.N.-imposed sanctions against Iraq rather than a military strike, Bush replied: ''Just be patient and all will be well.''

Gorbachev reportedly told Bush during a meeting in Paris Monday that he favored waiting for the economic sanctions to take affect and was not supportive of a U.N. resolution authorizing force against Iraq.

Bush's remark Tuesday recalled another by Gorbachev, who said Monday that ''we are prepared to show patience in the quest for a political solution. But we will remain strong and determined in implementing the rules of the United Nations.''

Bush met Tuesday with Turkish President Turgut Ozal, who has been strongly supportive of U.S. policies in the gulf but has advised giving the U.N. embargo more time to work.

''Turkey and the United States are side by side in this and nobody has been more steadfast than the Turks or Ozal, so I have no complaints, only gratitude '' Bush said during the photo session with the Turkish president.

In the meantime, Secretary of State James Baker held a second intensive meeting with Eduard Shevardnadze in further efforts to persuade the Soviet foreign minister on the value of the possible use of force against Iraq.

Saudi Arabia said Tuesday it would provide 3 million tons of crude oil worth $1.1 billion to Turkey, which has been hit hard by the oil and trade embargo against Iraq, Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency said.

In another development Tuesday, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said in an interview that Iraq invaded Kuwait because it needed money.

And Saudi diplomats in Tunis, Tunisia, denied reports their government was paying Egyptians and British mercenaries to defend the kingdom, MENA said.

PARIS (NOV. 20) UPI - A landmark 34-nation European summit turned its sights Tuesday to the poverty, ethnic strife and pollution that survived the Cold War's dramatic burial.

''Following the opening of national borders, there must now be no borders that perpetuate the prosperity divide,'' said German Chancellor Helmut Kohl. ''The ideological gulfs that have been overcome must not be torn open again by social gaps.''

The euphoria of Monday's signing of a massive conventional arms treaty was tempered on the summit's second day by nagging reminders of Europe's many lingering problems.

Struggling Eastern European countries pleaded for membership in the wealthy European Community. Cyprus called for an ouster of Turkish troops. Spain said continued British rule of Gibraltar is ''anachronistic.'' The Soviet Baltic states protested their exclusion from the summit. Iceland said ''time is running out'' for an environmental solution.

The Persian Gulf crisis, while not on the formal summit agenda, was the main topic in private meetings away from the main conference setting, including a session between President Bush and Turkish President Turgut Ozal.

''Turkey and the United States are side by side in this and nobody has been more steadfast than the Turks,'' said Bush, who will visit U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia later this week.

Many heads of state at the 34-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe stressed the deep division of wealth between high- flying Western Europe and the emerging democracies of the crumbling Warsaw Pact.

''Our common future may be darkened by the sinister clouds of the resurging conflicts of bygone days, unless the split into a rich and a poor Europe, an 'A' and a 'B' class, is overcome,'' said Polish Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki.

Bulgarian President Zhelyu Zhelev cautioned against a rise in ''pathetic chauvinism,'' warning that ''the real danger is nationalist sentiments being held up as state policy.''

Regional conflicts also peppered the discussion.

Spanish Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez said the British colony of Gibraltar is ''incompatible with the new Europe we want to build.'' Spain has long claimed the peninsula controlling access to the Mediterranean from the Atlantic Ocean, which has been a British possession since 1704.

The president of Cyprus, George Vassilou, said the presence since 1974 of Turkish troops in the northern 40 percent of the island nation ''is a European problem the solution of which is long overdue.''

A controversy involving the three Soviet Baltic republics also soured the summit's civility. The foreign ministers of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia were asked to the CSCE summit as ''special guests'' of the French government but the invitation was withdrawn when the Soviet Union objected.

''We hope that through friendly discussions with its mighty neighbor, the three Baltic countries will win their rightful independence and take their place alongside us,'' Icelandic Prime Minister Steingrimur Hermannsson said in his speech to the summit.

The Greek prime minister, Constantin Mitsotakis, said Europe should also allow Albania fully ''into the fold,'' providing the Albanian government continues its democratization process.

Albania is not a member of the CSCE, which includes the rest of Europe plus the United States and Canada. Even tiny San Marino and Malta are members.

Iceland's prime minister was joined by his Norwegian counterpart, Gro Harlem Brundtland, in urging immediate action on global warming, ozone depletion and ocean pollution. Kohl also called for CSCE leadership on the environment, which suffered from four decades of lax standards in the collapsed communist bloc.

The summit's second day was devoted to some 20 speeches, followed by a closed-door meeting of the 34 heads of state. French President Francois Mitterrand later hosted a ballet and formal dinner at the opulent Palace of Versailles.

On Monday, leaders of 22 NATO and Warsaw Pact countries signed the 110-page Conventional Forces in Europe treaty, which reduces the risk of surprise attack by setting sharp ceilings on tanks, artillery, combat vehicles and aircraft.

The three-day summit concludes around noon Wednesday with approval of the Charter of Paris for a New Europe, which institutionalizes the now- homeless CSCE as a sturdy model of East-West harmony.

CSCE will have a secretariat in Prague, an election-monitoring agency in Warsaw and a conflict-resolution center in Vienna. Summits will be held every two years, beginning in Helsinki in 1992, and foreign ministers will meet yearly.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FLA. (NOV. 20) UPI - The Atlantis astronauts, diverted by high winds in California, glided to a pinpoint touchdown Tuesday at the Kennedy Space Center, capping a successful military flight with the first Florida landing in 5 1/2 years.

Heralded by two shotgun-like sonic booms, Atlantis streaked just north of Disney World and Orlando at twice the speed of sound before gliding to a flawless touchdown at 4:43 p.m. EST on runway 33 at the Florida spaceport, one day late because of persistent crosswinds at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Barreling down the 3-mile-long runway at more than 200 mph, commander Richard Covey gently brought Atlantis's nose down and pumped the shuttle's beryllium brakes to bring the ship to a stop after a 2- million-mile flight, presumably leaving a secret Pentagon spy satellite behind in orbit.

''Welcome home, that sure was a beautiful sight,'' astronaut Kenneth Bowersox radioed the crew from mission control in Houston as Atlantis came to a halt just a few miles from the launch pad where the flight began last Thursday.

Joining Air Force Col. Covey, 44, for the 79-orbit five-day mission were Navy Cmdr. Frank Culbertson, 41, the co-pilot, Army Maj. Charles Gemar, 35, Marine Corps Col. Robert Springer, 48, and Air Force Lt. Col. Carl Meade, who turned

Wearing colorful orange, red and blue shirts, the astronauts climbed out of the orbiter about 45 minutes after landing, smiling and shaking hands with technicians and NASA officials as they conducted a brief inspection of their ship. The shuttle appeared to come through re-entry in excellent condition.

It was the sixth Florida shuttle landing in the 37 flights in the program's history and the first since April 19, 1985, when one of the shuttle Discovery's brakes locked up and a tire exploded after touchdown in a stiff crosswind.

''It was wonderful,'' said John Connelly, who watched the shuttle fly over Merritt Island along with hundreds of other spectators. ''I was at the last landing when they blew the tire. This was so unexpected and I'm happy to see them come back here.''

Added Catherine Smith of Cape Canaveral, Fla.: ''It was gorgeous! It's great to see the shuttle back home in Florida. I wish they'd land here all the time.''

The primary goal of the year's fifth shuttle mission - the seventh and last flight to be conducted in total secrecy - was accomplished Friday when the astronauts are believed to have deployed a classified Pentagon satellite that may ultimately be used to support U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf crisis.

With Atlantis back on the ground, NASA engineers plan to close out the year by launching the shuttle Columbia in just 12 days, on Dec. 2, to kick off a 10-day astronomy flight originally scheduled for May 30 but delayed by a series of hydrogen fuel leaks.

NASA managers would have preferred for Atlantis to land at Edwards, which has broad, lakebed runways that provide plenty of margin for error. But the forecast for Tuesday and Wednesday called for dangerously high crosswinds.

The last shuttle landing in Florida came April 19, 1985, when Discovery touched down in a stiff crosswind, forcing commander Karol ''Bo'' Bobko to use his landing gear brakes to steer the orbiter back to the center of the runway. One brake locked up as the ship rolled to a stop, causing a tire to explode.

As a result of the blowout and previous brake problems, NASA managers banned Florida landings until installation of more heat-resistant carbon-carbon brakes, nose-wheel steering and other safety features.

In its report to President Reagan, the Rogers Commission that investigated the Challenger disaster told NASA the shuttle's ''tire, brake and nosewheel steering systems must be improved.''

''Criteria must be established for tires, brakes and nosewheel steering,'' the panel wrote. ''Until the systems meet those criteria in high fidelity testing that is verified at Edwards, landing at Kennedy should not be planned.''

New heavy-duty carbon brakes were successfully tested in two post- Challenger shuttle landings at Edwards as was the ship's nosewheel steering system. In addition, grooves carved into the spaceport landing strip to improve traction were ground away after the Challenger accident to minimize tire damage.

Atlantis was not equipped with the newer carbon-carbon brakes. But even the shuttle's old-style beryllium brakes and landing gear were improved after the Challenger disaster with the addition of thicker axles and other changes to make them less susceptible to damage.

Under a cloak of secrecy, Atlantis blasted off from launch pad 39A at 6:48 p.m. Thursday to kick off the last fully classified shuttle flight. While two more military shuttle missions are planned for next year, the payloads of both have been declassified.

MOSCOW (NOV. 20) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev's top military adviser went to a breakaway Russian-speaking region of Moldavia Tuesday to work for cancellation of weekend elections that could spark serious ethnic clashes.

Marshal Sergei Akhromeyev, a Gorbachev aide who also represents Moldavia in the national legislature, was apparently pushing for a deal in which Moldavian officials would renounce efforts to break from the Soviet Union to join Romania and Russians and Ukrainians in the republic would drop efforts to separate from Moldavia.

Akhromeyev, acting as Gorbachev's personal representative, met with Moldavian officials in Kishinev, the republic's capital, Monday night and then rushed to Tiraspol, main city of the Dniester region of Russian speakers who have scheduled elections Sunday for a separate Parliament to wrest control of their area from Moldavia.

The military adviser, highly respected both in Moscow and his home republic, urged Moldavian leaders to denounce rumors they want to join Romania and instead agree to sign a new union treaty to remain part of the Soviet Union, the official news agency Tass said.

Akhromeyev then urged the representatives of the Dniester area to cancel or at least freeze for a short time elections for a Dniester legislature.

There was no indication either side had agreed to the deal, although an unidentified leader of one of the self-defense militias in the Dniester region was quoted on Soviet television Tuesday saying there would be no need for a separate Parliament if Russian speakers had assurances their rights would be protected and Moldavia would remain in the Soviet Union.

Moldavia's declaration of sovereignty, which came earlier this year in the wave of independence efforts by Soviet republics, alarmed the Gagauz, Ukrainian and Russian ethnic minorities in the republic who in turn declared their own autonomous regions.

Elections for a separate Parliament last month by the Turkic-speaking Gagauzis in southern Moldavia nearly resulted in major bloodshed when Moldavian vigilantes besieged the Gagauz region and Soviet Interior troops had to be called in to protect the Gagauzis.

Authorities fear more serious trouble if the Russians and Ukrainians in the 2niester region go ahead with their elections Sunday.

Two weeks ago there were confrontations between Moldavians and Russian speakers in the region because of rumors the elections were to be held early, and in the past week there have been reports of ethnic violence in Moldavia.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said witnesses reported Moldavian youths beat and robbed Russian speakers, including two members of the Moldavian Parliament, in Kishinev cafes late last week.

''A tense socio-political situation persists in the Moldavian capital, where inter-ethnic riots broke out at the end of last week,'' Moldavian Interior Minister Ion Kostash told the republic's Parliament Tuesday, adding that 61 people had been arrested.

City authorities in Tiraspol on Monday ordered the introduction of a state of emergency until Dec. 1 to ''prevent provocations'' during the weekend elections by Moldavians who live on the west bank of the Dniester, the Interfax independent news service said. The Russians live to the east of the river in the explosive area.

Interfax also said Moldavian militia members were being harrassed and in some cases kicked out of the Russian-speaking cities of the Dniester region, and workers' self-defense groups sealed off the city of Bendery, where telephone communications had been disrupted earlier in the week by explosions.

Soviet television showed women and children in the region sheltered together at a barracks because of fears of ethnic violence, and Interfax said some schools had been closed for several days.

In addition to the ethnic violence, anti-military disorders erupted in Kishinev Sunday, when 30 people broke into an officers' club, harangued the officers and threatened to set the building on fire, the Sovetsky Rossyia newspaper said. An army patrol managed to stop the rally by the Moldovians.

Others picketed army headquarters in Kishinev on Sunday, shouting, ''Occupiers

- go back to Russia,'' the Krasnaya Zvezda army newspaper said. ''The situation remains complicated and unpredictable,'' the newspaper said.

A republic of 4.3 million people, Moldavia is largely an artificial creation that was formed by joining a former Moldavian autonomous area with large areas of Romania that Josef Stalin seized in 1940 as part of a secret pact with Nazi Fuhrer Adolf Hitler.

Moldavians, whose language is Romanian, make up 63.98 percent of the population of the republic, Ukrainians 14.2 percent, Russians 12.8 percent, Gagauzis 3.5 percent and Jews 2 percent in the tiny republic, covering 13,000 square miles.

Like 14 of the 15 Soviet republics, Moldavia has declared its sovereignty and in the upsurge of nationalism sweeping the country it has changed the name of the republic from Moldavia to the Romanian name Moldova.

But Moldavia, just as other republics, has been hit with a boomeranging nationalism by smaller nationalities worried that their status will be infringed by the republican leaders carried away by narrow nationalism.

HOUSTON (NOV. 20) UPI - Los Angeles Lakers All-Star forward James Worthy pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges he solicited sex from two female undercover police officers.

Worthy, 29, was arraigned Tuesday before Harris County Court-at-Law Judge Jimmy Duncan on two counts of solicitation of prostitution, a Class B misdemeanor. Duncan set a Jan. 28 trial date.

Worthy was arrested last Thursday at a Houston hotel after he allegedly called an escort service and requested two women. Police said phone calls to the escort service were being monitored by the vice squad.

Two female undercover officers went to the hotel where Worthy, who was in Houston with his teammates to play the Rockets, allegedly offered to pay both women for sex.

If convicted, Worthy would face fines up to $1,000 and/or six months in jail on each count.

Worthy declined comment Tuesday as he and his attorney, Cornel Williams, led reporters down a stairway and halfway around the courthouse and back. Worthy then got into a car and left, and Williams made a short statement recanting what had occurred in court.

''We are currently in the process of accumulating all particular facts related to the case,'' Williams said. ''At this point, we have no further comment.''

The charges state that Worthy did ''in a public place knowingly solicit (the undercover officers) to engage with the defendant in sexual conduct, namely, deviant sexual intercourse, for hire.''

Last weekend in Los Angeles, Worthy told reporters the incident is ''a tough problem, but it's not going to go away. I know I've hurt some people badly, and I've got to address that. I'm just going to go out and play. I'm not looking for sympathy.''

Worthy, a seven-time All-Star, has been instrumental in the Lakers winning three league championships since he was the first pick in the 1982 draft. He was the Most Valuable Player of the 1988 NBA Finals.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (NOV. 20) UPI - The shuttle Atlantis glided to the sixth Florida shuttle landing in 37 missions Tuesday after high winds blocked a landing in California. Here is a list of all shuttle landings at the Kennedy Space Center:

-Feb. 11, 1984: The shuttle Challenger, carrying a crew of five, glided to the first touchdown on the Kennedy Space Center's 3-mile-long shuttle runway at 7:16 a.m. EST to close out an eight-day mission highlighted by the unsuccessful launches of two communications satellites.

-Oct. 13, 1984: Challenger landed at 12:27 p.m. EDT after an eight- day flight that included the first spacewalk by an American woman and the launch of an environmental satellite.

-Nov. 16, 1984: The shuttle Discovery landed at 7 a.m. EST to close out an eight-day mission highlighted by the launches of two communications satellites and the retrieval of the two relay stations that were stranded in a useless orbit February 1984.

-Jan. 27, 1985: Discovery landed at 4:23 p.m. EST to bring the first military shuttle flight to a successful conclusion.

-April 19, 1985: Discovery landed at 8:54 a.m. EST in a stiff crosswind. Commander Karol ''Bo'' Bobko used the shuttle's brakes to bring the ship back to the center of the runway and just before Discovery rollwed to a stop, a brake locked up and a landing gear tire blew out. NASA managers then banned Florida landings until new safety systems could be developed and tested.

-Nov. 20, 1985: Atlantis glides to a touchdown at 4:43 p.m. EST to wind up the 12th post-Challenger mission, the fifth so far this year and the first in more than five years to end with a landing in Florida.

(NOV. 20) UPI - The Commerce Department reports a six-percent drop in housing starts for the month of October. It was the ninth straight monthly decline and the lowest level since June 1982 in the last recession. According to the department, permits for new construction were down six percent for the month. Compared with October 1989, housing starts have fallen 26-point- eight percent.

Arab radio reports say President Bush has failed to persuade Soviet President Gorbachev to sanction the use of military force against Iraq. The reports say the Soviet leader continues to press for a peaceful solution to the standoff in the Persian Gulf. The superpower leaders and their European counterparts reportedly held behind-the-scenes talks today in Paris on how to oust Saddam Hussein from Kuwait.

The talks come as Iraq, in a surprise move, announced it will send 250-thousand more troops to Kuwait in anticipation of a possible attack from the U-S-led force in the region. One West European military attache in Cairo says Saddam will have to pull troops away from his border with Iran to reinforce Kuwait. But the official says that only certain units such as the elite Presidential Guards could be relied upon to function efficiently.

There are more high winds in the forecast today for California's Mojave Desert where the shuttle Atlantis is tentatively scheduled to land this afternoon to wrap up its military mission. The Atlantis astronauts enjoyed an extra day in space today after high winds forced the crew to abort yesterday's landing attempt minutes before a critical rocket firing to drop the ship out of orbit.

Medical researchers are sharply critical of the federal Food and Drug Administration over the controversial drug R-U-486. The researchers charge a government ban on the French abortion pill in the United States is derailing promising medical research into diseases ranging from breast cancer to AIDS. F-D-A officials defend their decision, saying the drug can cause serious side effects like bleeding and may be used without a doctor's supervision.

RIO DE JANEIRO, BRAZIL (NOV. 20) UPI - In an attempt to brake business bankruptcies and requests for receivership, the government Tuesday adopted rigorous new bankruptcy regulations. A wave of bankruptcies and requests for receivership has shakens Brazil's financial markets.

The measures seek to avoid fraudulent bankruptcies and requests for receivership and to protect creditors from businesses with financial problems, said Antonio Kandir, the Brazilian secretary of national economic policy.

Receivership is a step taken by companies as a means to avoid bankruptcy. A company in receivership is operated by a court-appointed trustee who tries to solve the company's financial problems while it is being protected from creditors.

Under the new regulations, financially troubled businesses can seek receivership status from a judge, but they will have to pay their accumulated debts, incorporating current inflation and bank interest rates - rates currently ranging from 25 percent to 30 percent. Also, businesses seeking receivership will be required to open their books to independent auditors to prove that they are on the verge of bankruptcy.

Previously, troubled businesses seeking receivership had only to pay 40 percent of their debts within a year and the rest during the following year. The annual interest rate was 12 percent, regardless of the inflation rate and the balance.

The changes enacted covering bankruptcy and receivership are expected toincreases the possibility of reducing Brazil's inflation in the next months, Kandir said.

Financial sources estimate that banks are currently incorporating into their interest rates possible losses they might suffer from the increasing number of businesses bankruptcies and requests for receivership.

The recession that has spread through the Brazilian economy since President Fernando Collor de Mello announced a far-ranging economic austerity plan eight months ago has led to at least 70 large or medium-sized businesses filing bankruptcy or seeking receivership, principally as a result of decreased sales and higher interest rates.

In the business community, "the situation is far from peaceful," said Gil Deschatre, director of the Sao Paulo-based financial consulting firm Deschatre & Almeida.

Corporate financial problems have sparked debate between government officials and business owners, largely reflecting the increase in interest rates and the fact that Collor's economic plan has not been able to eliminate inflation.

Government sources said that Collor was to defend his economic plan Wednesday in a speech set for broadcast over national radio and television networks.

Since the March 16 announcement of Collor's economic plan, considered the most drastic in Brazilian history, the government has strongly raised interest rates in an effort to inhibit consumption and combat inflation. The plan froze approximately $80 million in bank accounts, decreased government spending, restricted the money supply and tightened bank credit.

LIMA, PERU (NOV. 20) UPI - Police, using tear gas and water cannons, broke up a march by thousands of striking government workers Tuesday and Prime Minister Juan Hurtado Miller threatened to fire workers who do not return to their posts.

Groups of demonstrators blocked off roads at midday in the capital, causing dozens of shopowners to close down for fear of looting, witnesses said. A union leader representing the striking workers said police arrested 19 demonstrators. "In the face of the hunger of our children and the misery that our families are living, we have no option but to protest," he said.

He said state workers were demanding an increase in monthly wages, now the equivalent of $20. In July 1985, workers earned the equivalent of $100, he said, pointing out inflation and a fluctuating exchange rate have meant a sharp fall in earnings. Inflation rose 397 percent in August but eased off to increase by 13.8 percent in September.

Prime Minister Hurtado Miller, who also serves as Peru's minister of economy and finances, said Tuesday afternoon the government plans to use a recent presidential decree regulating strikes to justify firing Wednesday those state workers who refuse to return to their posts.

Starting Wednesday, Hurtado Miller said, police and military forces would guard hospitals and social security posts to ward off possible attacks by demonstrators.

LONDON (NOV. 20) UPI - Michael Heseltine, the man they call Tarzan, battled Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher to a draw Tuesday, and the two former allies who are now bitter enemies are set for a rematch next week.

For Heseltine, 57, rallying enough votes to force a second ballot on whether Thatcher should be swept from the Conservative Party leadership and power kept alive a lifelong dream of holding Britain's top elective office.

While a student at Oxford University, he once wrote his goals in life on the back of an envelop. The last item on his list was to be prime minister.

Heseltine, who is mildly dyslexic, started as a clerk and ended up as owner of the Haymarket Publishing Group, a private company estimated worth nearly dlrs 100 million, according to The Guardian newspaper, making him one of the wealthiest men in Parliament.

While in his 20s, he turned a $2,000 inheritance into a property fortune but nearly went bankrupt in the 1960s.

After two failures, he won election to Parliament in 1966 and served in the Ted Heath administration.

Heseltine was the pinup of the Conservative government. The popular press dubbed him ''Tarzan'' for his tall, lean figure and mane of thick blond hair. He also demonstrated some of his namesake's boldness and love of battle.

''Mr. Heseltine nowadays gives the impression he wrestles with a python or two before breakfast, to get in the mood for the day,'' a newspaper columnist once said.

An outburst during a House of Commons debate in 1976 etched the Tarzan label in the public consciousness and in the pages of the tabloid press.

The Conservatives were in opposition, and some members of the ruling Labor Party began singing the socialist hymn, ''The Red Flag,'' in the chamber.

''He was infuriated,'' said Philip Norton, a political scientist at Hull University. ''He was so infuriated that he rushed forward and picked up the mace, which is the symbol of the authority of the Parliament, and waved the mace.''

Heseltine became defense secretary in January 1983 under Thatcher, using his considerable oratory style to fight off Britain's voluble antinuclear campaigners. He ended up fighting with Thatcher and resigned in January 1986 in an audacious challenge to her style of government.

Heseltine wanted the government to intervene and save Britain's only helicopter manufacturer against Thatcher's wishes. He quit the Cabinet when he refused to be muzzled over the affair by her autocratic leadership.

He has spent the past five years, speaking at local party events, writing books and articles, often critical of Thatcher's policies on European unity.

NEW YORK (NOV. 20) UPI - A Bronx bodega was firebombed early Tuesday, injuring two employees slightly, in what police said was the 196th strike-related incident reported since nine unions struck the Daily News four weeks ago.

The latest violence was reported on the 27th day of the strike of 2, 500 News employees that has not stopped the newspaper's publication but has forced management to cancel a visit by Santa Claus to its Manhattan headquarters.

A man tossed a Molotov cocktail fashioned from a bottle into the store at 190 West Tremont Ave. at 3:30 a.m., igniting a fire that almost totally destroyed the bodega, said Officer Janice Swinney, a police spokeswoman.

Two people working at the all-night grocery were slightly injured but refused medical aid, the officer said.

The owner of the store, who was not identified, told police that a man came into the store five hours before the firebombing and warned him to stop selling the News, Swinney said, adding that no arrests have been made in the incident.

She said it was the 196th incident believed to be connected to the strike that has been reported to police. Some 89 arrests have been made in connection with the violence that has included attacks on News delivery trucks, intimidation of vendors, and fights between strikers and News-hired security guards.

Fearing harassment of school children and other members of the public, the News - owned by the Tribune Co., of Chicago - announced that it will not have its usual Santa Claus in the lobby of the Daily News Building on East 42nd Street or concerts by school choirs.

''But we are putting up decorations and it looks lovely,'' said Lisa Robinson, Daily News spokeswoman.

The Newspaper Guild, which represents striking editorial workers, said Santa and his assistant, Twinkle-Toes, have traditionally been members of the Guild.

Norman Siegal, head of the New York chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said he planned to file a lawsuit in federal court in Brooklyn Tuesday challenging the police department's refusal to allow strikers to picket a second entrance at the newspaper's downtown Brooklyn plant.

On Nov. 7, the ACLU won an agreement that allowed strikers to picket the plant's main entrance, but shortly afterwards, the News began bringing in replacement workers through a second entrance, Siegal said.

Last week, police rejected a request by strikers to set up pickets outside the second entrance. ''For strikers to have meaningful First Amendment rights, they need to target that entrance,'' Siegal said.

A police spokesman said the department would have no comment until the suit is filed and can be reviewed.

Police officials on Monday told George McDonald, head of the coalition of striking unions, that the security firm working for News management, identified as Special Response Corp. of Towson, Md., had been fired. At least six guards from Special Response have been arrested in fights with strikers and union sympathizers, police said.

McDonald, president of the Allied Printing Trades Council, met Monday with Police Commissioner Lee Brown to investigate allegations that police have become increasingly hostile to strikers.

The charge was made Sunday by the American Civil Liberties Union in a letter addressed to Brown.

Brown insisted Monday that his department was impartial. ''The Police Department will not change,'' the commissioner told reporters after the closed-door meeting. ''Neutrality will be the basis by which we carry out our business. Our basic objective is to maintain the peace.''

TEMPE, AZ (NOV. 20) UPI - Chase Manhattan Bank, which has been expanding its credit card operations, said Tuesday it plans to open a new Western credit card operations center in Arizona that will employ 2,000 people by 1995.

The bank, which has increased the number of credit card accounts from six million to nine million during the past two years, said the 300,000 square-foot center would begin operations in early 1992 and employ 500 people. By the end of 1993, the employment figure should expand to 1,100, the bank said. Construction is slated to begin in January, with completion targeted for a year later.

Chase, which trails only Citibank in the U.S. credit card business, currently operates three processing centers in Wilmington, Del., Garden City, N.Y. and Tampa, Fla., with more than 2,500 employees. Chase said it has agreed in principle to lease with an option to buy the new center at the Centerpoint Development Project in Tempe, a suburb of Phoenix.

Since the start of 1989, Chase has acquired two million new accounts through the acquisition of credit card portfolios from five banks and thrifts, said spokesman Ken Mills. It has also expanded its own credit card business by one million acocunts during that time, Mills said. Chase said the portfolio includes personal unsecured revolving outstanding credit in excess of $10 billion.

NEW YORK (NOV. 20) UPI - Oakland outfielder Rickey Henderson, who used power and speed to lead the Athletics to their third straight pennant, Tuesday won the American League Most Valuable Player Award over Detroit home run king Cecil Fielder.

Henderson earned 14 of the 28 first-place votes from a committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America. He totalled 317 points. Fielder, the first major-leaguer to hit 50 home runs since 1977, collected 10 first-place votes and 286 points. Henderson and Fielder were the only players to be named on all ballots.

Boston pitching ace Roger Clemens garnered three-first place votes and finished third. Oakland reliever Dennis Eckersley received the other first-place vote.

Two writers from each American League city were asked to name 10 players on their ballots. The point system was 14 for first, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc.

Henderson is the fourth Oakland player to win the MVP and second in three years. Jose Canseco claimed the honor in 1988, Reggie Jackson in 1973 and Vida Blue in 1971. The A's also provided this year's AL Cy Young recipient in Bob Welch.

Henderson led the majors with 119 runs scored and hit .325 to finish second in the AL batting race to Kansas City's George Brett. He also hit a career-high 28 home runs, knocked in 61 runs and stole 65 bases. He'll enter next season two steals short of Lou Brock's career record of 938.

His season ended when Oakland was swept by Cincinnati in the World Series. Henderson lifted the A's to the World Series title in 1989 after Oakland acquired him from the Yankees in midseason.

Fielder became the 11th player in major-league history to hit 50 homers in a season. His 51 home runs were the most hit by a player since George Foster belted 52 for Cincinnati in 1977.

Fielder accomplished all this after a one-year hiatus in Japan. He had been a part-time player in four seasons with the Toronto Blue Jays before being sold to the Hanshin Tigers.

This season he helped transform the Detroit Tigers from a last-place team into a third-place club. Fielder also led the majors with 132 RBI.

His most impressive home run, other than his 50th on the final day of the season, was a blast he hit over the left-field roof at Tiger Stadium against Oakland's Dave Stewart. Harmon Killebrew and Frank Howard are the only other players to hit homers over the left-field roof in Detroit.

(NOV. 20) UPI - Authorities in Bonn, Germany, say they are trying to confirm today's Radio Baghdad report that Saddam Hussein will free 180 Germans held in Iraq. The radio says the gesture is designed to show respect for Chancellor Helmut Kohl's attitude toward the gulf crisis. Kohl has warned against what he termed any hasty military action... and said he's convinced the conflict will be resolved peacefully.

President Bush took a relatively laid-back approach today when answering reporters questions about moves to end the Persian Gulf crisis with diplomacy. He told a group during a photo opportunity in Paris to- in his words- ''Just be patient and all will be well.'' Bush was asked if he's irritated at the stand of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev who appears to be holding back on support of any U-N resolution to unleash military forces now drawn up against Iraq's Saddam Hussein. The Bush comment came as he met with Turkey's President Turgut Ozal who, in recent days, has advised that the U-N embargo against Iraq should be given more time to work.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl says the end of the Cold War means that a newly united Germany can become a ''cornerstone'' for a peaceful Europe. Kohl's speech to other world leaders drawn together in Paris comes one year after the once-hated Berlin Wall came down, leading to the eventual unification of both Germanys. National elections are now set for Germany on December 2nd and the latest survey indicates a majority of the voters want to keep Kohl as chancellor.

The October housing figures are out and the pace of construction is down for a record ninth straight month. The Commerce Department reports a six-percent drop in housing starts last month while the issuance of permits needed for future construction was down six-point-eight percent. Both figures are now at their lowest since June 1982, when the nation was locked into its last recession. And October housing starts are 26- point-eight percent below where they were in October of last year.

Police in Boston are holding eight alleged gang members without bail on charges they killed a 26-year-old mother in a park on Halloween night. Police say the woman was beaten with a tree limb, gang-raped and stabbed dozens of times. The arrests in the Dorchester neighborhood follow a two-week-long probe into what one officer calls an apparent case of ''wilding.'' The suspects have pleaded innocent to charges of murder, rape and robbery.

Lawyers for deposed Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega are asking a judge to fine the Cable News Network 600-thousand dollars for broadcasting jailhouse recordings of Noriega's phone calls to his lawyers. C-N-N broadcast part of those tapes after a judge ordered it NOT to. The lawyers want the fine money to go toward Noriega's legal defense. Attorney John May says the lawyers will make the request before a U-S District in Miami today. C-N-N has agreed to turn over the tapes so a federal magistrate can determine if they contain information that would compromise the trial.

We've all heard that Montreal, Canada, and Seattle, Washington, are very livable cities. But what about the dogs... those places you'd think people were itching to leave? According to the latest study by a group called the Population Crisis Committee, the five largest cities with the worst living conditions are Lagos, Nigeria... Kinshasa, Zaire... Kanpur, India... Dhaka, Bangladesh... and Recife , Brazil. The lowest-ranking U-S cities scored high enough to make a rating of ''good.'' Those include San Diego, Boston, New York and Los Angeles.

NEW YORK (NOV. 20) UPI - The nation's supplies of crude oil last week dipped sharply below the same week a year earlier, when stocks were rising, the American Petroleum Institute reported Tuesday.

For the week ended Nov. 16, the weekly oil industry survey found crude oil inventories slipped by 4.2 million barrels to 341.2 million from 345.4 million the prior week - 7.7 million barrels below year-ago levels of 348.9 million.

U.S. crude supplies fell below year-ago levels in late October for the first time this year as Middle East imports dropped after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and the U.N. embargo subsequently placed on Iraqi and Kuwaiti exports.

Prior to the invasion, crude supplies were 55 million barrels higher than year-ago levels as refiners bought up crude at the lower prices existing at the time.

On a daily basis, imports of crude last week gained 400,000 barrels to 5.2 million from 4.8 million in the previous week but were less than year-ago imports of 6.0 million barrels, the API said.

Inventories of distillate - used for home-heating oil and diesel fuel - slipped to 134.5 million barrels from 135.8 million a week earlier but remained well above year-ago levels of 119.3 million barrels.

Daily distillate production fell off to 2.8 million barrels from 2.9 million in the preceding week and was less than year-ago output of 3.0 million barrels.

Distillate imports plummeted to 98,000 barrels a day from 400,000 a day in the previous week. Year-ago imports were 296,000 barrels a day.

Daily imports of all refined products fell sharply to 1.3 million barrels from 2.2 million in the preceding week and from year-earlier imports of 2.6 million barrels.

Gasoline imports also plunged, to 140,000 barrels daily from 376,000 in the previous week, and were well below daily year-ago imports of 296, 000 barrels.

Gasoline supplies slipped to 217.3 million barrels from 218.6 million in the prior week and were less than year-ago levels of 223.5 million.

Stocks of unleaded gasoline, which accounts for 90 percent of the domestic market, also declined, to 168.4 million barrels from 169.1 million barrels a week earlier, but remained higher than year-ago levels of 165.7 million barrels.

Daily gasoline production skidded to 6.7 million barrels from 6.9 million the previous week and less than the year-ago output of 7.0 million barrels daily.

U.S. refineries operated at 83.2 percent of capacity last week, compared with 82.0 percent a week earlier and 86.0 percent a year ago.

The nation's refineries consumed 12.7 million barrels a day last week,compared to daily crude runs of 12.5 million barrels in the previous week and 13.3 million a year ago.

(NOV. 20) UPI - The Atlantis astronauts this afternoon glided their spaceplane to a smooth touchdown on runway 33 at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida. The landing capped a successful military mission and was the first Florida shuttle landing in more than five years. Heralded by two shotgun-like sonic booms, Atlantis streaked just north of Disney World and Orlando at twice the speed of sound before gliding to a flawless touchdown. It ends a two-Million-mile trip one day late because of crosswinds at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

The duo known as Milli Vanilli broke into a few bars of the song ''Girl You Know It's True'' before reporters in Los Angeles today to prove they really can sing. But the two also admitted they succumbed to the lure of fame and money by allowing their names and faces to be associated with an album on which they did NOT sing. The 1989 Best New Artist Grammy has been revoked because of the scandal. Rob Pilatus and Fab Morvan say executives at Arista Records knew of the scam before the album was submitted for a Grammy. A man named Charles Shaw says he is the Milli Vanilli ''ghost'' singer.

Baghdad is saying it will free all the Germans being held hostage in Iraq. But the White House is responding cautiously. Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater reacted to the Iraqi offer by saying that Saddam Hussein is building ''a cottage industry of political ploys,'' coming up with a cynical new approach each day. Fitzwater says Saddam is trying to split the allegiance bonding the countries who oppose him, but that ''It's NOT going to work.''

Another 100 feet of sidewalk collapsed today at a Washington, D-C, construction site four blocks from the White House. A building foundation caved in last night. This afternoon, a mound of concrete and pavement next door to the United Press International building toppled into the pit as workers moved a construction trailer and part of a wood- covered sidewalk. The assistant fire chief says construction and fire crews are especially concerned about the danger of failure along one corner of the U-P-I building. It's NOT known when... or if... workers can return to the 12-story structure.

Holidays can be tough when you're miles from home and family. That's why the Pentagon is scrambling to bring a little touch of home to the troops in Saudi Arabia this Thanksgiving week. Spokesman Pete Williams says the Pentagon is getting ready to send 105-thousand pounds of turkey and a variety of trimmings to serve to the troops... including as many of the front-line forces as possible. And the Saudi Arabian government is kicking in another 60-thousand pounds of roast beef to add an extra main course to the dinner plate.

For troops who do NOT get to a field kitchen for the fancy meal, the military is putting together a ''T-Ration'' trays of turkey, mashed potatoes, gravy, dressing and cranberry sauce. Armed Forces Radio and Television Service will be broadcasting two pro football games- to the troops on Thursday.

NEW YORK (NOV. 20) UPI - Washington quarterback Mark Rypien and Chicago middle linebacker Mike Singletary Tuesday were named the NFC's offensive and defensive players of the week.

Rypien, returning from missing seven weeks with a knee injury, completed 26 of 38 passes for 311 yards and four touchdowns in a 31-17 victory over New Orleans.

Singletary, a 10-year veteran out of Baylor, had 10 solo tackles, 10 assists and recovered a fumble in a 16-13 overtime victory over Denver. He leads the Bears with 92 tackles, including 44 solos. Singletary's selection marks the third straight week a Chicago player was named the NFC defensive player, and the fourth time this season. Defensive Richard Dent won the honors in the third and 10th week and rookie safety Mark Carrier was named in the ninth week.

Other NFC offensive player candidates were quarterbacks Randall Cunningham of Philadelphia, Rich Gannon of Minnesota and Phil Simms of the New York Giants, and Green Bay wide receiver Sterling Sharpe.

Other defensive nominees were Redskins cornerback Darrell Green and San Francisco linebacker Charles Haley.

OSHAWA, Ontario (NOV. 20) UPI - General Motors of Canada Ltd. will extend the Christmas shutdown of its car and van assembly plants for up to two additional weeks due to market conditions, the company said Tuesday.

A GM Canada spokesman said in addition to the normal holiday shutdown period the company's Oshawa Number One plant will be closed the weeks of Dec. 10 and Dec. 17.

Oshawa car plant Number Two will be down the week of Dec. 17.

The Oshawa car plants assemble the Chevrolet Lumina and Buick Regal models.

The exact number of people affected by the shutdowns wasn't immediately known. The Oshawa assembly plants are part of a complex that also includes truck assembly and parts manufacturing facilities. More than 15,000 people work at the Oshawa location.

The St. Therese, Quebec, plant will be shut down the weeks of Dec. 10 and Dec. 17. The plant's 3,300 employees assemble Chevrolet Celebrity and Oldsmobile Ciera models.

The automaker's Scarborough van plant will be down the weeks of Dec. 31 and Jan. 7. The plant's 2,500 workers build full-size Chevrolet and GMC vans.

The spokesman said a soft marketplace and a desire to balance inventories was behind the extended shutdowns.

LOS ANGELES (NOV. 20) UPI - First Executive Corp. said Tuesday it rejected a proposal that would have given the troubled life insurance holding company $75 million to start a new insurance subsidiary.

Under the offer, Consolidated National Corp. would have provided the troubled First Executive, parent of Executive Life insurance companies in California and New York, with the cash in exchange for a half- interest in the new company. Executive Life of California would have contributed the other $75 million.

First Executive - hit hard by steep declines in its large junk-bond portfolio and by a flurry of policy surrenders earlier this year - said in a statement that the proposal was not ''practicable under the circumstances existing in the marketplace and among the relevant regulatory agencies.''

First Executive, which earned $99.9 million on revenues of $1.31 billion for the first nine months of this year, has been under investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission and state insurance regulators in California.

First Executive also said that Consolidated National, a Dallas-based insurance holding company, would have to provide ''some evidence of genuineness'' in its proposal.

Consolidated National controls ICH Corp., another insurance holding company that owns 22.5 percent of First Executive stock, making it First Executive's largest shareholder.

Consolidated National also has called for the resignation of Fred Carr, First Executive's chairman and chief executive officer, but Tuesday's statement did not address that issue.

TORONTO (NOV. 20) UPI - Canadian businesses must push for a North American free-trade deal because of the opportunities it will create and not be diverted by any perceived threats, Mexico's Ambassador to Canada said Tuesday.

Ambassador H.E. Alfredo Phillips told a business luncheon that a free-trade agreement between Canada, the United States and Mexico would benefit each country.

The nations are currently holding exploratory discussions to set a framework for negotiating a trade deal. The Canadian government asked to join the preliminary talks in late September.

Phillips said that it was too early to tell what the end result of the talks would be but that they will build on principles of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade governing global trade.

According to a Tuesday report in Canada's Financial Post, Mexico's trade secretary told a group of business people in Hong Kong Monday that a first draft of a Mexico-Canada-U.S. pact could be completed by the end of 1991.

The Mexican official also said the chances of reaching a free-trade pact with Canada and the United States are ''close to 100 percent.''

A number of Canadian banks and private policy groups have said Canada must be at the negotiating table primarily to prevent any damage to the trade agreement signed with the United States in January 1989.

Under the Canada-U.S. free-trade agreement, trading barriers and tariffs on goods and services are to be phased out over a 10-year period.

LOS ANGELES (NOV. 20) UPI - Universal Studios officials said Tuesday that the spectacular Nov. 6 back lot fire that threatened to burn down the entire complex caused less than the widely reported $25 million in damage to sets.

''We don't have a final figure yet, but the $25 million appears to be on the high side,'' said Jim Yeager, director of the public relations for the studio tour. ''What was destroyed was largely wood and paint.''

Universal also announced Tuesday that it plans to re-build the back lot sets that were destroyed in the fire, using input from its most successful producer-director, Steven Spielberg.

The sets that were destroyed - New York Street, Sting Street and New England Street - may be rebuilt as soon as early next year, Yeager said. They will closely resemble the original sets, built in 1958, but may be altered slightly he said.

Spielberg's credits include some of Universal's most succesful movies, including ''E.T. - The Extraterrestrial''; ''Close Encounters of the Third Kind,'' ''Jaws'' and the three ''Back to the Future'' movies.

''Spielberg has been a long-term friend to the studio,'' said David Weitzner, president of worldwide marketing for recreation services of the studio's parent, MCA Inc.

The studio also held ceremonies Tuesday for the re-opening of the three-story King Kong attraction on its studio tour. The seven-ton mechanical ape had suffered some water damage during the fire.

Attendance on the tour, which drew 5.1 million visitors last year to rank third after Disney World and Disneyland as the nation's most popular theme park, has been at normal levels since the fire, Yeager said.

As part of the ceremonies in front of King Kong, the studio honored the 400 firefighters from Los Angeles County and the cities of Burbank and Los Angeles who battled the blaze. The studio awarded the firefighters ''Top Banana'' silver film reels for keeping the blaze contained to four of the 420 acres of property.

The firefighters were given 400 tour passes to the tour, which they in turn donated to the Alisa Ann Ruch California Burn Institute.

''Because of your Herculean efforts, you saved hundreds of acres of movie-making history,'' said actor Ernest Borgnine, who serves as mayor of Universal City.

The sets that were saved included those from movies ''All Quiet on the Western Front,'' the courthouse from ''Back to the Future,'' ''Spartacus'' and television shows such as ''Wagon Train,'' ''The Virginian'' and ''McHale's Navy,'' which starred Borgnine.

STAMFORD, Conn. (NOV. 20) UPI - Consumers who were swindled out of about $4 million while ordering gold coins through the mail will receive about $800,000 in partial refunds, federal prosecutors said Tuesday.

A federal judge has signed an order freeing $800,000 that was seized from Monarch Group Ltd. of Stamford in May 1989 when the government shut down the operation, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Peter A. Clark.

The company sold U.S. Gold Eagle coins through the mail, but customers around the country were defrauded of about $3 million to $4 million when the coins were not delivered, Clark said.

Ulrich Wilbert and James Tucker, the two princials of Monarch, were indicted on criminal charges, but fled the United States and remained at large. Prosecutors said it was ''remarkable'' any money was left to refund.

''With the numbers we are looking at right now, victims should be seeing an eventual recovery of about 20 cents on the dollar,'' said U.S. Attorney

Stanley A. Twardy Jr.

''When we took a close look at Monarch, it turned out to be no more than a classic boiler-room operation,'' Twardy said.

Chief U.S. District Judge Ellen Bree Burns signed an order Nov. 12 in New Haven that authorized a plan to distribute the $800,000 frozen by a court order in 1989.

Gilardi & Co., a trustee appointed by the court, will contact victims who already have complained and advertise to locate others who were duped by Monarch's gold coin scheme.

Initial complaints led to an investigation by several federal agencies, which found scores of customers had paid for, but not received coins they had ordered through the mail.

(NOV. 20) UPI - Kennedy Space Center director Forrest McCartney says the space shuttle Atlantis came through its extended military flight in excellent condition. High winds in the California desert forced the spaceplane to land on the three-mile runway at the Florida spaceport today instead of in the Mojave Desert. It was the first Florida shuttle landing in five and one-half years. NASA officials say it may be another year and one-half before shuttles are routinely cleared to make Florida touchdowns.

KOUROU, FRENCH GUIANA (NOV. 20) UPI - An Ariane 4 rocket successfully boosted a pair of American communications satellites into orbit Tuesday in the 40th flight of the French-built rocket system.

Equipped with two strap-on solid-fuel boosters for extra power, the 192-foot three-stage rocket flashed to life on time at 6:11 p.m. EST and smoothly climbed away from its firing stand at the European Space Agency's jungle launch complex on the northern coast of South America.

Perched atop Europe's premier rocket were two communications satellites: Satcom C1, owned by GE American Communications of Princeton, N.J., and GSTAR 4 owned by GTE Spacenet of McLean, Va. Both satellites were built by GE Astro Space Division.

About 19 minutes after liftoff, Satcom C1 was ejected into its planned preliminary orbit with GSTAR 4 following suit about four minutes later.

''It was a success,'' said Michelle Lyle, a spokeswoman for the European consortium that markets Ariane boosters. ''We went on time.''

Small on-board rockets were scheduled to fire later to propel the satellites toward their final altitude of 22,300 miles over the equator. At that altitude objects take 24 hours to complete one orbit and thus appear stationary in the sky, eliminating the need for steerable ground antennas.

Ariane missions are conducted by the European Space Agency and Arianespace, the 11-nation European consortium that markets Ariane rockets and controls more than 50 percent of the world's commercial launch market.

It was the fourth mission for Arianespace since an Ariane 4 launched Feb. 22 veered out of control and exploded 101 seconds after liftoff. Lost along with the rocket were two Japanese communications satellites insured for $189.4 million.

The Ariane record now stands at five failures in 40 launches dating back to 1979.

The Ariane 4 is the most powerful rocket in the Ariane family of rockets, capable of boosting 10,000-pound satellites into geosynchronous orbit and comparable to the American Titan-class rockets used to launch heavy military spy satellites.

GSTAR 4 is a 2,000-pound solar-powered satellite equipped with 16 K- band radio transponders that ultimately will be stationed over the Pacific Ocean to provide telecommunications service to the continental United States.

Satcom C1 is a 1,800-pound solar powered relay station equipped with 24 C-band radio transponders. Both satellites will be used for commercial telecommunications.

FREMONT, OHIO (NOV. 20) UPI - A man who recently resigned from the CIA was jailed Tuesday on charges of fleeing state troopers and carrying concealed weapons while driving on the Ohio Turnpike.

Brian Stockslager, 27, of Ludlow Falls, Ohio, was stopped in a pickup truck after police set up a moving roadblock, said highway patrol trooper Raymond Durant.

Durant said Stockslager, whose truck was weaving and speeding, was driving as fast as 80 mph.

Stockslager was stopped at Gate 5 on the turnpike after his truck struck two squad cars, which were damaged by the collision. Durant said one trooper complained of back pain, but no other injuries were reported.

Durant said troopers found a .357 Magnum on the front seat, a .32- caliber pistol under the seat and a .45-caliber handgun in a box in the truck cab.

Two other handguns, three rifles and ''a phenomenal amount of ammunition'' were in the bed of the truck, Durant said.

The state trooper estimated at least 2,000 rounds of ammunition for the guns was in the truck, along with several cases of liquor.

Stockslager appeared in court on charges of carrying a concealed weapon and felony fleeing. He was ordered held overnight while authorities tried to determine whether the guns were stolen from the government.

Bond was set at $3,000. Stockslager was fined $36 dollars on the speeding charge.

Mark Mansfield, a spokesman for the CIA, said Stockslager submitted his resignation to the CIA on Nov. 14. The resignation, which becomes effective Nov. 26, cited personal reasons.

Mansfield said Stockslager joined the CIA in 1986 and was a junior level technician.

''We are concerned about his welfare and we are cooperating fully with the Ohio State Patrol and their investigation,'' said Mansfield, adding that the former agent told his superiors he intended to go home to his parents.

Both the highway patrol and the CIA said they were investigating whether the weapons were government property or were purchased by Stockslager.

(NOV. 20) UPI - Congressman sue over war powers... the space shuttle makes a Florida landing... British Prime Minister Thatcher barely survives a leadership challenge. The top world and national news, next, from the wires of U-P- I:

The Bush administration feels that a lawsuit filed by 45 members of Congress today is UNnecessary.

The legislators filed the federal suit in an effort to force President Bush to come to Congress before committing U-S troops to war in the Persian Gulf.

White House news secretary Marlin Fitzwater said in Paris that the administration would NOT comment on the legal aspects of the suit. But he added, ''We believe this lawsuit is unnecessary in light of the commitment of the president to working with the Congress to keep them completely informed.''

California Democratic Representative Ron Dellums said at a news conference today that Bush has been reluctant to let Congress have a significant role in the U-S Persian Gulf policy.

He said the lawsuit is ''a historic opportunity for the federal courts to decide who has the right to declare war.''

Michael Ratner, a lawyer for the Center for Constitutional Rights, said the Constitution is clear on the issue of who has the ultimate authority to declare war. He says- ''This is not a power for the president of the United States.'' Ratner said, ''Hopefully this court will tell him to go to Congress.'' .

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev said today in Paris that there is NO disagreement between himself and President Bush over Persian Gulf policy.

MAYNARD, Mass. (NOV. 21) UPI - Digital Equipment Corp. said Tuesday it would close its Phoenix plant and might have to conduct its first layoffs ever if not all the 476 employees can be transferred or induced to accept voluntary severance.

No timetable or other specifics have yet been set for the changes which the computer giant disclosed to Phoenix employees earlier in the day, said Jeffry Gibson, a Digital spokesman.

''We're shifting all the work to other sites,'' Gibson said. ''There probably will be a net reduction (in jobs) but it's not clear what it'll be. We'll be better able to answer that at the time the plant closes,'' he added.

Digital has a facility in nearby Tempe, which is unaffected by the closing, but it is unclear yet whether any of the jobs from Phoenix will be transferred there, Gibson said.

''We'll be trying to do this without a layoff and to preserve choice, '' Gibson added. ''But we may not be able to do it.'' He said layoffs are possible.

The Phoenix plant does some low-volume manufacturing of printers, Gibson said. Also, it has systems integration work, a distribution center, property disposal, financial management, a purchasing group and a variety of regional groups, Gibson said.

Digital, the nation's No. 2 manufacturer of computers after International Business Machines Corp., has been slashing employment levels for months through a voluntary severance program designed to bring it to a total of 118,000 by next June from about 123,500 as of last month.

The company has been hurt by the worldwide slump in the computer business and in the second quarter ended Sept. 29 reported a sharp decline in earnings on declining earnings from the same period a year earlier.

(NOV. 20) UPI - The space shuttle Atlantis landed today, but it came down far from where officials had planned.

Due to another day of high winds at Edwards Air Force Base in California, the shuttle came back to Earth on the runway at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

It was the first Florida landing for a shuttle in five years.

As the shuttle roared over the Sunshine State, it triggered two sonic booms. Atlantis streaked just north of Disney World and Orlando at twice the speed of sound before gliding to a smooth landing. The landing was one day late because of persistant crosswinds in California.

Forrest McCartney, director of the Kennedy Space Center, said Atlantis appeared to come through its launch and re-entry in excellent condition.

With Atlantis back on the ground, NASA engineers plan to close out the year by launching the shuttle Columbia in just 12 days. The December 2nd flight will be a 10-day astronomy mission that was originally scheduled for May 30th, but was delayed by a series of hydrogen fuel leaks.

Former defense secretary Michael Heseltine failed to oust British Prime Minister Thatcher as head of the Conservsative Party today, but he hopes to do better in next week's rematch.

Thatcher fell four votes short of an outright victory and will face a second ballot that could still end her 15 years as Tory leader.

Haseltine received 152 votes to 204 for Thatcher. But because 16 members abstained, he needed fewer votes to force another ballot on November 27th.

International reaction to Heseltine's political challenge to Thatcher pushed the British pound sharply lower in currency market trading in New York.

Thatcher told reporters in Paris, where she's attending the 34-nation European Security Conference, ''I am naturally very pleased that I got more than half of the parliamentary party votes and disappointed it was not quite enough.''

To win in the second round, a candidate must have a simple majority- 187 votes.

LOS ANGELES (NOV. 20) UPI - MGM-Pathe Communications said Tuesday it has signed a licensing agreement worth an estimated $58.8 million with Super Channel, a European satellite-to-cable programming network.

As part of a deal signed last week, the newly formed MGM-Pathe will also receive advertising time to promote current releases, home videos and other merchandise, the company said.

Super Channel, which is controlled by the Italian Marcucci family, is currently available to about 23 million European households. The deal will allow for films from the MGM-Pathe library to begin airing next March.

MGM-Pathe, headed by Italian financier Giancarlo Parretti, was formed as a result of the recent $1.36 billion buyout of MGM/UA Communications.

Securities and Exchange Commission filings disclosed earlier this week that unidentified European affiliates of Parretti and Florio Fiorino, the company's president and chief executive officer, bought $570 million of MGM-Pathe stock at a price of $10 a share.

The company also said that it had raised $625 million through the sale of rights to the MGM film library and the sale of Pathe stock.

PORTLAND, Ore. (NOV. 20) UPI - Nike, the world's largest athletic shoe company, Tuesday unveiled its new ''Nike Town'' store, a glittering combination of high tech sales gadgets and sports memorabilia.

The store, designed to promote the Oregon company as much as sell shoes, includes a miniature tennis court with fiber optic lines and acrylic tubes that transport merchandise from a basement storeroom to the main floors.

Reporters were given a preview tour of the store, which was scheduled to open for the public Wednesday when famed marathoner Alberto Salazar and two Nike employees ran 11 miles from the company's suburban headquarters to the downtown store.

Centered around a ''town square'' that includes athletic statues and information on famous athletes who wear Nikes, the store has 14 ''pavilions,'' each devoted to shoes and clothing for a particular kind of sport.

Each pavilion includes high-tech gadgets or memorabilia of the sport, and tapes with the sound of the sport are played in each area.

In the pavilion selling water gear, Nike's ''aqua socks'' are displayed in front of large aquariums holding 85 fish that are color- coordinated with the shoes.

The only visible shoes are for display, so if a customer decides to buy something, the salesman contacts the storeroom via computer, and the shoes are shipped up through a clear tube that works something like a dumbwaiter.

Architect Gordon Thompson said the delivery system allows the salesmen to stay with customers all the time, and also helps with security by reducing the amount of merchandise in public.

The store, which looks like a combination of Disneyland and a Miami Vice set, is designed to show off Nike and boost the company's sales, according to Nick Kartalis, vice president of sales.

Kartalis said he did not know how long it would take Nike to recoup the cost of building the store, which he refused to disclose.

Nike Town includes 20,000 square feet, making it easily the largest of the 28 company-owned stores.

The store is the second major building project for Nike recently. The company also constructed a multimillion-dollar world headquarters in suburban Beaverton. The headquarters includes a man-made lake.

(NOV. 20) UPI - The Atlantis astronauts flew back to Houston tonight after making a flawless landing this afternoon on the runway at the Kennedy Space Center. High crosswinds in the Mojave desert extended the flight by one day and forced officials to change the landing site from California to Florida.

DALLAS (NOV. 20) UPI - Forrest Gregg announced Tuesday night he would retire from coaching after his SMU Mustangs meet Arkansas Saturday, but that he would stay on as the school's athletic director.

Gregg's announcement simply backed up an earlier agreement he had made with SMU president Kenneth Pye last spring. But during the season there were indications Gregg was beginning to have second thoughts about leaving the coaching ranks.

''My one regret is that I won't be able to coach these young men we have brought in for their entire college careers,'' Gregg said. ''But, when I accepted the position of athletic director, it was with the stipulation that I would give up coaching. I am fulfilling that commitment. I feel my decision is what's best for the university.''

Gregg came to his alma mater from the Green Bay Packers to build a football team from scratch. He took over a program that had been suspended for two years because of repeated NCAA rules violations.

In their first year back, with a team made up almost entirely of freshmen, the Mustangs won two games. Both of those victories were over Division 1-AA teams. This year SMU opened its campaign with a shocking victory over Vanderbilt, but has lost nine games since then.

SMU closes out its season Saturday at home against Arkansas, which also has yet to win a Southwest Conference game this year.

At a news conference last April, Pye announced Gregg would succeed Doug Single as the school's athletic director. In so doing, however, Pye said Gregg had agreed to give up coaching at the end of the 1990 season.

''In this day,'' Pye said, ''I don't think it is good for a school to have the same man serving as football coach and athletic director.''

Gregg reluctantly agreed to Pye's demand, but as the season progressed he dropped hints he might want to stay on as football coach and give up the athletic director job.

''This was a difficult decision for me,'' said Gregg, a Texas native who coached the Cincinnati Bengals to the Super Bowl before his tenure with the Packers.

''My family and I came back to SMU because we care deeply about the university and I feel that I can have a greater impact on the overall future of the SMU athletic program as the director of athletics.''

Gregg said a search would begin immediately for his successor. The new coach will take over a team that has been drilled in the run-and- shoot offense with sophomore quarterback Mike Romo among the conference's leading passers.

NEW YORK (NOV. 20) UPI - Citing a need for strict cost controls, CBS said Tuesday it would reduce the compensation it pays to the network's affiliate stations by 20 percent from Jan. 1, 1991.

The network said it announced the plan at a meeting Monday with the CBS Affiliate Advisory Board. To lessen the economic impact of the action on affiliates, the CBS plan provides them with additional commercial inventory for local sale.

Reasons for the cut include ''the economic environment for broadcasting and the outlook for future financial performance,'' CBS said.

CBS said Monday that it anticipated a fourth-quarter loss and that 1991 earnings are expected to be lower than those for 1990. Analysts said the loss is expected to be about $35 million.

After looking at cost controls in all areas of the company, CBS explained it ''felt compelled'' to review the compensation payments, which it said are higher than those for other networks.

''We have a mutual stake in each other's financial health and viability,'' said Tony Malara, president of CBS Affiliate Relations.

''The network depends on strong stations, just as our stations need a strong network. Given our improved programming performance, we need to insure that our financial picture will be sufficient to continue to support it,'' he said.

CBS President Laurence A. Tisch said in a statement: ''It is now apparent that increased competition for both viewers and advertising dollars, combined with rapidly escalating programming costs, are changing the fundamental economics of network television.''

The network's poor performance is attributed to losses from its contract with major league baseball and a general drop in TV advertising this fall. World Series revenues did not meet expectations, since only four of a possible seven games were played in the baseball championship series.

In 1991, CBS will be without pro football's Super Bowl and the National Basketball Association playoffs, both big revenue-generating events.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) _ The two members of the pop group Milli Vanilli apologized Tuesday for duping their fans and the public by having other performers do all the singing on their Grammy-winning debut album, saying they were ''seduced'' by promises of wealth and fame.

''We lived in the (housing) projects. We had no money. We wanted to be stars, that was our main reasons,'' Robert Pilatus told a packed news conference.

Pilatus and his partner, Fab Morvan, were stripped Monday of their 1990 Grammy for best new artists by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences after admitting they did not sing a note on their best-selling album ''Girl You Know It's True.''

The duo has agreed to give up their statuettes without protest.

Pilatus said when he and Morvan insisted they perform on their second album, their producer, Frank Farian, refused, then fired them and went public with the secret.

The hip, dreadlocked pair were unknown musicians living in Germany when Farian found them three years ago and began marketing them as Milli Vanilli.

Their album sold more than 7 million copies and made the pair a hot act on the concert circuit. Even during their live performances, however, Pilatus and Morvan were made to lip-sync the words to all the songs, they said.

To prove they have singing abilities of their own, the duo broke into a few a cappella bars of the title song in front of more than 200 media and international paparazzi packed into a Hollywood recording studio.

''We were seduced, abused and we felt very guilty but we are here because we stopped it,'' Pilatus said. ''We said to Frank 'We don't want to do this anymore and if you don't let us sing we won't do it anymore.'''

They also claim that executives at Arista Records _ the company that distributed their album _ knew about their scheme before the album was submitted to the recording academy for Grammy consideration. Arista President Clive Davis has denied that allegation.

KANSAS CITY, MO (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - US Sprint Wednesday announced that it will ''Give the U.S. Ski Team A Lift,'' with a new program offered in conjunction with the United States Ski Association (USSA).

For USSA members who are new or existing Sprint subscribers, Sprint will contribute 5 percent of their monthly long distance phone bills to the U.S. Ski Team. The USSA, headquartered in Park City, Utah, has 75,000 members nationwide who are either competitors, recreational skiers or people interested in supporting skiers.

''This is an excellent opportunity for U.S. Ski Team supporters to contribute to the sport and save money on long distance,'' said Howard Peterson, chief executive officer of the U.S. Ski Team.

U.S. skiers who sign up for Dial 1 or Sprint Plus service through the U.S. Ski Team program will receive 60 minutes of free long distance calling, plus free switchover to US Sprint for new customers. The 60 minutes of free long distance will be credited on the third month's invoice. The switchover fee credit accommodates up to 10 telephone lines.

Dial 1 and Sprint Plus are US Sprint's long distance services for residential and small businesses carried on US Sprint's all-digital, fiber-optic network.

The new donation-linked program began in October 1990 with ads that headline ''Give Our Ski Team A Lift'' in the October edition of Ski Utah and the December edition of Ski West. Ads supporting this program will appear in various ski event programs this winter.

Craig Sanders, vice president and general manager of US Sprint's Intermediaries Marketing Group, said, ''Now ski enthusiasts across the country can receive the benefits of US Sprint's all-digital, fiber-optic network, while they support their favorite sport.''

US Sprint's Intermediaries Marketing Group encourages and supports distribution of US Sprint's products and services through third parties including independent contractors authorized to act as sales agents, long distance resellers, and the growing area of affinity marketing.

Selling through intermediaries is becoming a more important method of distribution in the fast-growing telecommunications industry.

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, CA (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Ventura Entertainment Group Ltd., (NASDAQ:VEGG) announced record revenues of $7,161,503 for the quarter ended Sept. 30.

For the quarter, the company reported a net loss of $909,510, or 12 cents per share, compared with revenues of $3,146,500 and net income of $304,956, or 5 cents per share, in the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1989.

Losses for the quarter were largely a result of overhead costs related to the June 1, 1990, commencement of operations of the Ventura Music Group Ltd. division and expansion of operations for other subsidiaries of the company including Ventura Live Productions Ltd., Ventura Media Center Ltd., and Ventura Motion Picture Group Ltd. which were not in full operation during the previous year's comparable quarter.

Harvey Bibicoff, chairman of the board, stated, ''approximately one-half of our losses for the current quarter are attributable to the start-up of the Ventura Music Group division for which we anticipate significant revenues will be realized in the latter half of this fiscal year when we begin releasing albums for artists currently under contract.''

Bibicoff continued that, ''We are pleased that the significant revenues we anticipated from our various start-up operations are beginning to be realized and we view those increased revenues to be evidence of the fact that we continue to hold true to our business plan to achieve profitability by the end of this fiscal year.''

During the first quarter, Ventura completed production on 16 hours of television music specials and is currently in production on 13 episodes of a one-hour dramatic series for the Arts and Entertainment Network for which the company will realize significant revenues in the second and third quarter of this fiscal year.

Ventura Entertainment Group Ltd., is a fully-integrated entertainment production company, which directly and through its subsidiaries, produces television commercials, develops and produces network, cable and syndicated tv series, mini-series, MOW's, theatrical motion pictures, music/variety specials and live events for the domestic and international marketplace. LOS ANGELES (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Rudolph Nisi, M.D., chairman of the board of directors of Medco Research Inc. (NASDAQ:MEDR; BSE:MRE.B) Wednesday announced that the board accepted with regret the decision by Manfred Mosk, Ph.D., to retire from the company.

Mosk will be leaving the positions of president and member of the board of directors on Dec. 20, 1990. His intention to substantially diminish his involvement in the company was described in the company's Sept. 21, 1990, shareholder letter.

Dr. Mosk, who is the founder of the company, established the vision and direction and provided the dynamic leadership that moved Medco from a development-stage company to a revenue-producing company. During his tenure with Medco, he was instrumental in bringing to market in the United States the first cardiovascular drug containing adenosine -- a substance produced naturally by the human body.

In addition, Medco's marketing application for a second adenosine new drug developed by Medco as an important adjunct to thallium cardiac imaging is undergoing the FDA review process. Adenosine has recently gained substantial interest in medical research circles and Medco's adenosine products may be the precursors of an important new class of drugs for the diagnosis and treatment of diseases.

The substantial achievements during his term of office have poised the company for further progress and have created a significant base in preparation for the opportunities and challenges that lie ahead.

We would like to thank Manfred for his dedication and the substantial contributions he made to Medco and we wish him every success in his future endeavors.

Manfred has indicated his willingness, if requested by Medco at some future date, to serve as a consultant to the company on a part-time basis for special projects only subject to a mutually agreeable consulting agreement.

The board of directors has appointed Archie Prestayko, Ph.D., the company's executive vice president, as acting president of Medco.

ONTARIO, CA (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Ground was broken recently (Nov. 15) on a 200,000-square-foot facility that will become the West Coast regional distribution center for GTE's Sylvania Lighting Division, announced Trammell Crow Co., developers of the build-to-suit project.

Being built on an 11-acre site at the southeast corner of Archibald Avenue and Mission Boulevard, the new Sylvania distribution center will consolidate operations from Hayward and City of Commerce, GTE company officials said.

The new center, according to a GTE spokesperson, will provide improved and more efficient services to customers with the aid of a modern computer system. Estimated value of the project is $8 million.

The Irvine office of Oltmans Construction Co. is the general contractor and Nippon Credit Bank is providing the construction financing.

Kenneth C. Loeber, project manager for Trammell Crow, said GTE's Sylvania Lighting Division selected Ontario for its excellent transportation network, pro-business attitude and the opportunity to occupy a building that meets their specific requirements.

Trammell Crow, which owns the property, was selected as the developer after GTE considered several proposals from competing developers. Upon completion of construction in April 1991, GTE will acquire the building from Trammell Crow.

''The GTE transaction represents the latest in a string of recent successes resulting from Trammell Crow Co.'s efforts to aggressively pursue build-to-suit business in the Inland Empire,'' declared Lee H. Carson, marketing principal in the company's San Gabriel Valley/San Bernardino Division.

The new Sylvania Center will be used for the storage of lighting products for use in residential, commercial, industrial and specialty applications.

Designed by Lee & Sakahara Associates, AIA, of Costa Mesa, the new Sylvania distribution center will be a concrete tilt-up building distinguished by a strong ''corporate image'' accented by glass along the entire Mission Boulevard facade.

The site will also be enhanced with extensive landscaping featuring rolling berms and tree clusters. Generous on-site parking is planned. The building will also be accented by extensive score lines in the concrete and multiple colors, including GTE Sylvania's distinctive corporate blue.

Other building features include 3,500 square feet of office space, 24 dock high doors and 30-foot interior warehouse clearance. Approximately 65 people will be employed at the site.

CHICAGO (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - System Software Associates Inc. (NASDAQ:SSAX) Wednesday reported record earnings and revenues for the fourth quarter and full year ended Oct. 31, 1990.

Net income was $5,108,000, or 43 cents per share, up 39 percent from 31 cents per share in the fourth quarter of the prior year. Revenues increased to $42,097,000, as compared to $28,842,000 in the like period of the prior year.

For fiscal 1990 in total, net income increased to $16,370,000, or $1.38 per share from $11,140,000, or 94 cents per share in fiscal 1989. Revenues for the full year increased to $124,153,000 from $94,952,000.

Roger Covey, president of SSA, noted that software revenue increased by 65 percent over the like period of the prior year, but that hardware revenue, in line with the company's strategy, decreased by 64 percent. Covey explained that, in preparation for fiscal 1991, the company made substantial investments in increasing its sales force and affiliates during the fourth quarter and that such investments held the earnings increase beneath the revenue increase.

Covey also noted that the company had been especially successful in recruiting affiliate business partners, and had added 21 during the quarter. This brought the year end total of affiliate business partners up to 113, vs. 58 at the end of the previous year.

The liquidity position of the company continued to improve. Cash balances during the fourth quarter rose from approximately $21.7 million to $28.4 million and accounts receivable days sales outstanding fell to its lowest level in the history of the firm.

In view of the company's strong cash position, the board of directors of the company unanimously approved the payment of a 25 cents per share annual dividend. The first annual dividend will be paid to all stockholders of record as of Dec. 10, 1990.

SAN JOSE, CA (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - MJC Enterprises Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of CopyMat Inc. (OTC:pink sheets) recently completed the sale of its wholly owned subsidiary CopyMat Corp. to Golden West Devlopment Bancorp, a newly formed entity headed up by Clifford Orloff.

The sale was part of a Plan of Reorganization which, when completed, will result in the vast majority of the debt of CopyMat Inc. and its subsidiaries being paid off through an irrevocable trust or conversion of certain creditor obligations to preferred stock of CopyMat Inc.

Michael J. Cook, the president of CopyMat Inc., said ''The Plan of Reorganization provides the creditors a method of settlement of their claims to be paid over a period of 90 days to eight years through a trust that will be funded by the transfer of an eight-year note used to purchase CopyMat Corp.''

In excess of $4,000,000 of debt will be removed from the balance sheet through the implementation of the Plan of Reorganization.

CopyMat Inc. will retain a 25 percent interest in the CopyMat trademarks and through a subsidiary has signed a licensing agreement that gives it the right to develop CopyMat centers in San Diego County and the state of Arizona.

SAN FRANCISCO (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Pacific Bell Wednesday was given the green light to increase the value of telephone service by expanding local calling areas and including Touch-Tone in basic service. ''Beginning Feb. 1, 1991, Pacific Bell will make Touch-Tone a standard feature of basic service for residence and business customers, eliminating the separate charge for that service,'' said Pacific Bell Assistant Vice President Bruce Jamison.

Touch-Tone gives customers the convenience of using a push-button phone to place calls, and makes it easier to use features such as ''voice mail,'' or other services that work through telephone ''tones.''

And beginning June 1, Pacific Bell will enlarge the local calling areas, allowing most customers to call more places at their low local rate. Calling areas will be expanded from about 8 miles to about 12 miles.

For example, customers in the southeastern part of San Francisco have a local calling area that includes all of San Francisco, South San Francisco and Pacifica. When the calling area is expanded, they also will be able to call Belvedere, Sausalito, Millbrae, San Mateo and parts of the East Bay as local calls. ''We first proposed these improvements in basic service more than two years ago, and we're eager to deliver,'' Jamison said. In October 1989, the California Public Utilities Commission agreed that the improvements we had proposed should be made. Today's CPUC decision gave the go-ahead for putting the changes into effect.

''Today, about 80 percent of our residence customers, and 93 percent of our business customers, subscribe to Touch-Tone,'' Jamison said. Residence customers pay $1.20 a month, and business customers pay $1.70 for Touch-Tone. Starting Feb. 1, the monthly Touch-Tone charge will be dropped, as will the one-time ''sign-up'' charge for the service.

Customers may still use rotary dial phones without making any changes. Customers who wish to use Touch-Tone should obtain a tone telephone, which are available at stores everywhere. Expanding calling areas June 1, 1991 means most customers will pay less for calls to nearby communities. For example: For customers in metropolitan areas where ''ZUM'' rates apply, calls to ZUM Zone 2 communities (which today are 8 cents for the first minute) will cost the same as local calls (no charge for Flat Rate customers, 4 cents for the first minute for Measured Rate customers.) For areas where ZUM rates do not apply, toll calls to communities 9-12 miles away (which today are 17 cents for the first minute) will cost the same as local calls (no charge for Flat Rate customers, 4 cents for the first minute for Measured Rate customers.) For customers using Pacific Bell coin phones, the charge will be 20 cents for calls up to about 12 miles away.

While most of our customers live in areas which would see larger local calling areas under the plan, some do not. And some customers live in areas that already have larger local calling areas. Their local calling area would not change under the plan.

Pacific Bell will mail customers a letter prior to June 1 explaining the details of expanding local calling areas, and listing the telephone prefixes that will be included in their new local calling area.

The actual customer savings from the changes will vary with each individual, depending on a number of factors, such as the number of calls made to the 9-12 mile area. For most customers, the savings will be partially offset by a simultaneous reduction in the billing credit they now receive.

Pacific Bell is a subsidiary of Pacific Telesis Group, a worldwide diversified telecommunications corporation based in San Francisco.

LYNNWOOD, WA (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - ELDEC Corp. (NASDAQ:ELDC) has settled an indemnification claim made by Dobson Park Industries, purchaser of the ELDEC subsidiary, Transducers Inc.

SHERMAN OAKS, CA (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Olson Industries Inc. (Pink Sheets) reported Wednesday that sales for the third quarter for its only operating subsidiary, Dolco Packaging Corp., amounted to $16,174,758, in 1990, with a net loss of $984,958, or $1.50 per share.

The 1989 third-quarter results reflected sales of $17,760,292, with a net loss of $799,960, or $1.22 per share.

The 1990 nine months ended sales totaled $52,185,879, with a net loss of $920,167, or $1.40 per share, compared with sales of $54,772,463, with a net loss of $2,377,715, or $3.63 per share, for the same period in 1989.

As stated earlier, Dolco Packaging is presently involved in a reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code. The effect of any reorganization could materially reduce or eliminate the interest of Olson Industries in Dolco.

Accordingly, the operating results of Olson Industries and Dolco as reflected herein on a consolidated basis may not accurately reflect the business prospects or operations of Olson Industries as a separate corporate entity. The expenses relating to the Chapter 11 proceedings total approximately $803,000, for the first nine months of 1990.

Sales declined 5 percent during the first nine months of 1990 and 9 percent during the third quarter of 1990 compared with the same periods in 1989, primarily due to the decision of a major customer of Dolco not to purchase product after Aug. 1, 1990, made by the manufacturing process used by most of Dolco's plants.

The customer has since decided to discontinue using foam packaging for most of its products. The gross profit on net sales was 14 percent for the first nine months of 1990 as compared with 11 percent for the first nine months of 1989 due to a 14 percent decrease in the cost of polystyrene resin, the major raw material ingredient and due to operating efficiencies achieved at the plant level.

$308,000, or 2 cents per share, on a fully diluted basis, compared to a loss of $147,000, or 19 cents per share, for the first quarter ended Sept. 30, 1989.

Per share earnings in 1990 are computed on the basis of 759,853 weighted common shares outstanding and the conversion of 13,785,000 preferred shares. Total revenues for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, were $15,771,000 as compared to $27,000 for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1989.

The acquisition of the California and Texas homebuilding operations from Emerald Homes in March of 1990, accounted for total revenues of $14.4 million for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, as compared to pro forma revenues of $18.6 million for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1989. Unit deliveries decreased 28 percent to 81 in 1990 from 113 in 1989 due to a substantial decrease in sales at the California operation.

''We have seen a dramatic slowdown in sales activity in California from the levels of a year ago,'' said Jimmy Wood, executive vice president, chief operating officer and chief financial officer. ''The current economic conditions have had a negative impact on sales at our Houston operation also, but that market is still holding up fairly well,'' Wood continued.

''We had a positive contribution from the Hotel Viking during the first quarter. The acquisition of the Portuguese resort occurred in July and has already added to the bottom line,'' Wood remarked.

With the additional acquisitions that occurred during the first quarter, total equity has increased to over $46 million and total assets have increased to over $111 million at Sept. 30, 1990.

CAMARILLO, CA (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Everest & Jennings International Ltd. (ASE:EJ.A/EJ.B) Wednesday announced it incurred a loss of $38.4 million, or $4.20 per share, on revenues of $53.5 million in the third quarter ended Sept. 30.

This includes a charge of $32.4 million, or $3.54 per share, for additional restructuring, write-down of certain assets to net realizable values and to provide for other liabilities. The restructuring charge provides for anticipated losses and associated costs relating to the sale of its Camarillo facility and restructuring provisions relating primarily to the U.S. operation.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the company incurred a loss of $46.5 million, or $5.09 per share, on revenues of $156.3 million as compared with a loss of $9.5 million, or $1.16 per share, on revenues of $138.0 million for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1989.

Commenting on the results, Barre Rorabaugh, president and chief executive officer, said third-quarter results were adversely impacted by the restructuring charge that provides for costs associated with restructuring and consolidating domestic operations.

Additionally, Rorabaugh said the company has made tremendous progress in reducing domestic manufacturing overhead and operating expenses and, together with progress made in negotiations with the company's principal domestic lender, providing a foundation for improved operating results in the fourth quarter and in 1991.

In a previous announcement, the company reported it had reached agreement in principle with its primary domestic lender in negotiations for an extension of its credit agreement on favorable terms through June 1992.

Genicom manufactures a complete line of high-quality printers including dot

Marshall Computer Products Manager Kim Bickmeier attributed their success to Marshall's ability to meet a wide variety of customers' needs. The terms of the agreement call for payment of approximately $86 million in cash for the facility, along with the assumption of certain financial liabilities associated with the plant. The transaction is expected to close in the first quarter of calendar 1991.

Under the terms of the sale, Matsushita will acquire the two buildings and 92 acres of land which comprise the Puyallup manufacturing site. Matsushita will also acquire certain manufacturing equipment from National Semiconductor.

We are pleased with this agreement, which will allow the plant to continue to be operated as a semiconductor manufacturing facility, providing continued employment opportunities in the Puyallup area.''

National Semiconductor said that both companies will submit a joint, voluntary filing under the Exon-Florio national security review provisions. The parties will also submit appropriate U.S. anti-trust notification.

LAGUNA HILLS, CALIF. (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Hart Industries Inc. (NASDAQ:HRTI) announced Wednesday the signing of a multipart contract with a branch of the Russian government for the Orange County firm to clean up and remove toxic wastes generated by leaking underground storage tanks (LUSTs) in the greater Moscow area.

The other parts of the agreement cover the design, construction and operation of a municipal refuse facility to collect and dispose of commercial and residential refuse generated in and around Moscow.

Rolan A. Bykov, chairman of the Cultural Commission of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Supreme Soviet, met with Hart officials at the firm's Laguna Hills headquarters Nov. 14 to discuss arrangements for Hart representatives to visit the Soviet Union in mid-December of this year.

Hart has been invited to address Russian officials, including President Boris Yeltsin and Prime Minister Ivan Silayev, about the technical advances made in the clean up and disposal of hazardous waste and hydrocarbon pollution in the United States and abroad.

Hart will send technical personnel to evaluate the extent of the Soviet LUST problem and formulate plans for the clean up of hydrocarbon pollution from LUSTs. Further evaluations and surveys will be performed with respect to the municipal refuse facility.

The agreement calls for Hart to remove and replace underground storage tanks (USTs) not meeting minimum requirements for safety and containment. Replacement tanks used in this project will be built in the Soviet Union to Hart's specifications. Further, Hart will install leak detection/inventory control equipment in all UST installations to prevent further damage to the environment. Hart has exclusive rights to import the equipment used for leak detection/inventory control.

Pollution found in LUST excavations will be remediated using proven Western technology, some of which has been previously unavailable in the Soviet Union. Disposal of additional wastes will be discussed during the technical visits.

Hart also announced board of directors' approval of a stock repurchase plan opening the way for the firm to repurchase up to 20 percent of its outstanding common stock over the next two years.

Hart Industries is an environmental services firm based in Laguna Hills. Hart currently offers a full service leasing plan for the replacement of USTs in the United States and performs environmental clean up of toxic wastes.

RICHMOND, VA. (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - James River Corp. (NYSE: JR) Wednesday announced the results for its second fiscal quarter which ended Oct. 28, 1990.

On a pro forma basis, reflecting the restructuring plan announced in August, sales for the quarter of $1.2 billion and operating income of $133 million were both essentially the same as last year. On the same basis, net income was $66.6 million, 7 percent below last year, and earnings per share were 81 cents compared to 88 cents last year.

The small decline in net income and in earnings per share was attributable to a higher effective tax rate and reduced earnings of pulp manufacturing affiliates.

These pro forma numbers have been recalculated as though the restructuring had been completed at the beginning of each fiscal year and include the application of the resulting proceeds from asset sales to reduce debt and repurchase common shares.

Management believes that the pro forma calculation provides a more meaningful year-to-year comparison of the restructured Company's results because each quarter has been restated to include the same operations.

Operating performance for the Consumer Products Business declined moderately from last year's second quarter due primarily to promotional spending in the retail segment. Strong demand improved year-to-year results for the commercial segment. The Company's Food and Consumer Packaging Business results were favorable year to year due to improved operating performance.

A positive development for this business during the quarter was McDonald's announcement that James River's Quilt-Rap is a cost-effective substitute for the foam clam shell. Communication Papers enjoyed results comparable to those of last year, on good sales and effective mill operations.

Reflecting accounting for the restructuring plan announced last August, James River reported net income of $61.8 million for its second fiscal quarter, down 7 percent from the prior year. Earnings per share were 68 cents compared to 75 cents a year ago.

DALLAS (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - National Realty L.P. (AMEX:NLP) Wednesday announced operating results for the third quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, the partnership recorded a net loss of $5.9 million, or 67 cents per limited partner unit, on revenues of $24.9 million, compared with a net loss of $10 million, or $1.12 per unit, on revenues of $24.7 million in the third quarter of the prior year.

Last year's third quarter results included a provision for losses of $4.3 million. The third quarter of 1990 had no such provision, but included an extraordinary gain of $897,000 because the partnership extinguished debt related to foreclosure of one of its properties. The aggregate loss on foreclosure of this and another property was $1.1 million for the third

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, net income was $4.4 million, or 50 cents per unit, on revenues of $73.9 million, compared with net loss of $14.3 million, or $1.58 per unit, on revenues of $72.5 million in the third quarter of 1989. The partnership recorded a gain on the sale of properties for the first nine months of 1990 and 1989 of $20.1 million and $6 million, respectively.

The partnership's loss from operations for the three and nine month period ended Sept. 30, was $5.6 million and $15.5 million, respectively. Loss from operations for the three and nine month periods in 1989 was $8.6 million and $17.1 million, respectively.

''As we expected, losses continued for the partnership in the third quarter,'' said a spokesperson for the partnership. ''However, operating cash flow at the property level has increased modestly -- an important factor in increasing the value of the partnership -- and the general partner anticipates continuing improvements.''

Since June 30, the general partner and its affiliates have demonstrated their continued confidence in National Realty's future by purchasing over 115,000 additional units.

ANAHEIM, CA (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - General Automation Inc. (ASE:GA) reported a loss of $460,000, or 4 cents per share, for the first quarter of fiscal (June 30) 1991 on sales of $12.3 million.

These results contrast to a loss of $179,000, or 2 cents per share, on sales of $9 million in the first quarter of fiscal 1990.

In commenting on GA's performance, Leonard N. Mackenzie, president, made the following observations: ''Like so many other companies in the computer industry, we were forced to report a net loss in our first quarter.

''Nevertheless, our ongoing cost-control programs enabled us to again record a profit (albeit modest) for the seventh consecutive quarter before interest charges and the provision for income taxes, which together were 23 percent higher this year over last.

''Perhaps an even better measure of our improved efficiency showed up in our gross profits which, as a percent of sales, jumped from 41 percent in Q1/FY1990 to 46 percent in the first quarter this year.

''Although reported Q1/FY1991 sales are 36 percent higher than last year, the dollar figures have been adjusted to reflect the sale, at the close of fiscal (June) 1990, of General Automation Ltd. (GAL), our U.K. subsidiary, and our purchase of the controlling interest in SGA Pacific Ltd. (SGA), our distribution arm in the Far East.

In commenting on the company's financial condition, Don Rutherford, chief financial officer, pointed to a 20 percent gain in working capital to approximately $9 million and expressed pleasure that the company has reached a tentative agreement for a $750,000 revolving line of credit.

He noted that, if signed, this would mark the first time that GA has had access to a working credit line since 1986, roughly four years ago.

General Automation designs and manufactures computer systems for the database-oriented business systems market. Its systems, related applications software and field service capability are distributed through a multinational network of computer marketing and service support companies in the United States, United Kingdom, Europe, Latin America and the South Pacific/East Asia (SGA).

GA's proprietary GA/Maxial Hotel Property Management system presently operates in 14 countries. Annual revenues of the multinational group are now in excess of $110 million.

SANTA CLARA, CA (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Based on figures through September, 1990, the American Electronics Association (AEA) estimates that domestic sales of electronics products and services for 1990 will be approximately $307 billion, about 4 percent more than the $295 million reported for 1989.

Nine-month sales of $225.4 billion were 4 percent higher than the $216.8 billion reported in the comparable 1989 period. Orders for $221.8 billion in electronics products and services were placed on domestic plants in the first three quarters of 1990. This compares with $213.6 billion in the first nine months of 1989.

For the third quarter, sales increased 3.1 percent to $75.7 billion from $73.4 billion in 1989. New orders rose marginally to $73.6 billion from $73.2 billion.

In September, the ratio between sales and orders (three-month moving average) was below parity for the seventh consecutive month.

Setember, 1990, sales were $29.3 billion, up slightly from $28.9 billion in September, 1989. Orders were $28.9 billion compared with $30.0 billion a year earlier.

J. Richard Iverson, AEA president and chief executive officer, said, ''The industry sales and orders in September are consistent with a generally sluggish economy. In fact, September was only the third month since March, 1987, that new orders were lower than in the same month of the previous year.

''The one bright spot is the sharp rise in computer and office equipment bookings in September,'' Iverson added. ''We'll have to wait and see if this is the start of a positive trend.''

Sales increased September to September in all product segments. Consumer products sales rose 4.9 percent and telecommunications products 3.2 percent. Third quarter 1990 consumer products sales fell 2.0 percent while telecommunications sales rose 6.9 percent.

AEA estimates of sales and orders are based on U.S. Department of Commerce data that has not been adjusted seasonally and is subject to DOC revision. The figures incorporate a software component.

The American Electronics Association represents more than 3,500 electronics companies located in technology concentrations throughout the United States. For almost 50 years, AEA has been the accepted voice of the U.S. electronics industry.

WILKES-BARRE, PA (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Directors of First Eastern Corp. (OTC: FEBC) declared a regular quarterly dividend of 28 cents per share at their November board meeting held Wednesday at corporate headquarters in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The dividend is payable Jan. 2, 1991 to stockholders of record Dec. 5.

At the same meeting the company announced that it is currently undergoing a reappraisal of its loan portfolio due to the continuing decline of the economy and a current regularly scheduled examination by the Comptroller of the Currency, which has not been completed.

As a result of this re-evaluation the company expects to make a special loan loss provision in addition to its normal provision for the fourth quarter.

While the exact amount of the special provision has not been determined, it is expected to result in a loss for the fourth quarter. First Eastern's management anticipates that the loss may offset the earnings of the year's three previous quarters, leaving the company with nominal earnings or a loss for 1990.

Richard M. Ross, Jr., chairman and CEO, said that while this action is consistent with current economic trends, he remains optimistic that the company will return to profitable operations in the first quarter of 1991 and continue profitable operations throughout the year.

These projections include provisions for loan losses which are believed to be consistent with presently forecast economic conditions.

In addition, Ross expressed satisfaction that the company is maintaining its dividend at the present level. He explained that the company's strong capital position has enabled it to do this.

Despite disappointing earnings in 1990, the company's capital base remains strong. As of Sept. 30, Tier I risk-based capital stood at 8 percent and total risk-based capital above 10 percent. In the most recent peer report compiled by the Federal Reserve Bank, First Eastern's primary capital ratio was above the median when compared to peers across the country.

It is anticipated that there will be little change in these comparisons at year end.

Ross noted that capital is a significant measure of the strength of a banking institution, especially at a time when regulators are increasing capital adequacy requirements.

The chairman said the present leveling off in earnings would not have a lasting effect on the company's ability to serve its customers.

SANDWICH, MA (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - The Sandwich Co-operative Bank (NASDAQ:SWCB) Wednesday reported a net loss for its fiscal 1991 second quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990, of $542,000, or 30 cents per share, compared to net income of $384,000, or 21 cents per share, for the comparable period in 1989.

FORT WORTH, TX (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - The new Tandy 1000 RL home computer is getting high marks from its owners. A recently-completed survey revealed that 94 percent of the respondents were either "satisfied" or "completely satisfied" with the unit.

The results of the survey were disclosed by Radio Shack President Bernard Appel at Tandy Corp.'s annual shareholder's meeting on Thursday, Nov. 8.

The survey, conducted in October by M/A/R/C Inc., of Irving, Texas, polled 200 buyers of the Tandy 1000 RL computer which was introduced July 25. It sought to determine customer satisfaction levels, the purchasing process, which members of the household were using the computer, and for what purpose.

"The 'RL' is selling well, and the overwhelming consumer approval is gratifying," Appel stated. "The survey's results appear to say there is a good market for non-business computers in the home."

Respondants said that the most important factors in choosing the "RL" were its price, its ease of use and its unique home management software. "While the computer will run any PC-compatible business software," Appel said, "its focus is on household tasks that are not business-related. There has never been a PC-compatible quite like it."

Seventy-two percent of those surveyed indicated they use the 1000 RL for "personal use only." Only two percent reported using it for "business only," and the remainder, 26 percent, said they use the RL for both.

A majority, 65 percent, said the Tandy 1000 RL is the first home computer they have owned. And 71 percent of those surveyed said two or more people in the home regularly use the computer.

While 65 percent said they had seriously considered purchasing a home computer 11 percent indicated they had given no thought to buying any computer until they saw the RL.

"We are extremely pleased with our customers' response to the Tandy 1000 RL," Appel said, "but we are equally gratified by their rating of our store personnel." Radio Shack's salesmakers were given a 93 percent approval rate by those surveyed, and more than 70 percent said the store personnel were either "extremely well informed" or "very well informed" about it.

In addition to the home market, Tandy is a leader in the business and work-at home PC market, and continues to aggressively develop and market other models for those markets.

DALLAS (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Employees of Georgia-Pacific (NYSE:GP) have initiated nationwide action to implement an Employee Stock Ownership plan (ESOP) buyout of the Atlanta-based firm's mills and subsidiaries.

A petition encouraging employee ownership of the company is being circulated by employees in conjunction with International Business Consultants (IBC), an international consulting and management firm with representatives based in Dallas and Arkansas, engaged to handle business management, legal and financial services for Georgia-Pacific employees.

The purpose of the action is to create a new entity wholly owned by its employees. This proposed acquisition would represent the largest ESOP buyout of a public company in U.S. corporate history.

IBC officials have determined favorable market conditions, combined with Georgia-Pacific's solid asset base, cash flows and stong, productive labor force will facilitate a successful transaction. ''There is no question this action will have a strong economic impact on Georgia-Pacific employees in the areas of their long-term security and economic opportunity,'' said Joe Greer, a spokesperson for IBC.

IBC officials stress that no ESOP has ever been defeated by management, failed to obtain adequate financing, failed to result in a more profitable company, and no ESOP has ever lost money for its employee/owners. ''This is absolutely the right time for Georgia-Pacific employees to take this action,'' said Kevin McCool, an IBC representative in Dallas.

''We believe Georgia-Pacific management will have no choice but to stand solidly and positively behind all their employees in an action of this nature. To do otherwise would critically damage management's relationship with employees as the company now stands.''

Expectations of Georgia-Pacific's performance once the buyout is complete includes timely payoff of existing debts and a remaining strong cash-flow picture based on the company's past performance, a picture further strengthened with Georgia-Pacific's recent acquisition of Great Northern Nekoosa.

''Georgia-Pacific management has publicly declared the company is capable of generating substantially large cash flows--enough to retire its existing debt much quicker than most expect,'' Greer said.

''This tremendous success and potential may as well inure itself to the employees as opposed to outside shareholders.'' Actively involved employees and IBC representatives are setting no time table for the ESOP completion.

CHICAGO (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Kemper High Trust expects to declare a monthly dividend of $0.0875 per share on Nov. 30, 1990, payable Dec. 31, 1990 to shareholders of record on Dec. 14, 1990.

This is a reduction from the 10 cents per share paid in previous months.

Most financial markets, including the high yield corporate bond market, have come under considerable selling pressure throughout 1990. Three primary factors have been behind the sell-off: concerns over the weakening economy; continued selling of failed S&L bonds by the Resolution Trust Corp.; and selling by high yield mutual funds to meet redemptions. These developments have already been reflected in the Fund's published net asset value.

Kemper believes that high yield corporate bonds are attractive investments for producing high levels of income. We believe the new dividend level will still be very competitive.

We regret that this dividend reduction is necessary. It is essential however that we bring the dividend into balance with the income being earned by the Fund.

RONKONKOMA, NY (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Logitek Inc. (NASDAQ:LGTK) Wednesday announced results for the first quarter ended ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Net sales decreased to $1,062,049 from $1,104,149. During the first quarter the company sustained a loss of $79,133, or 2 cents per share, as compared to net income of $11,121 for the prior first quarter.

Commenting on the results, Herbert L. Fischer, LOGITEK President stated, ''A general slowdown of business activity resulted in a reduced rate of sales orders since the beginning of fiscal 1991. We believe that lack of a timely federal government budget agreement and the weakened economy contributed to this slowdown. Our cost of sales were up slightly, while our more aggressive marketing and sales effort contributed to an increase in operating expenses during the first quarter. We are hopeful that the resolution of the budget crisis, in addition to an expected increase in contract manufacturing sales, will offset these factors during the second half,'' Fischer concluded.

LOGITEK Inc. manufactures and markets electronic power monitors and controls and electronic power supplies for use in mobile systems such as aircraft and space vehicles, aboard ships, vehicular mobile communications and radar systems, off-shore rigs, and pipeline control stations. WEST CALDWELL, NJ (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - First State Financial Services Inc., parent holding company for First DeWitt Savings and Loan Association, reported a net loss of $3.1 million or 98 cents per share for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared to a net loss of $654,000 or 21 cents per share for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1989.

The net loss for the year ended Sept. 30, 1990, was $8.5 million ($2.69 per share) compared to a net income of $1.5 million (48 cents per share) for the same period in 1989.

First State's net loss of $8.5 million reflects a provision for loan losses of $11.8 million for the fiscal year. The loan loss provisions recognize the effect of the deteriorated real estate environment on First DeWitt's loan portfolio.

Michael J. Quigley, III, chairman and chief executive officer of First State, reported that assets at Sept. 30, 1990, decreased $23.1 million to $449.9 million compared to $473.0 million at Sept. 30, 1989, a decrease of 4.9 percent.

Deposits increased by $5.9 million to $389.7 million and loans decreased $24.7 million to $350.5 million. Quigley stated that First DeWitt Savings' capital of $29.4 million continued to exceed all federal regulatory requirements.

Quigley also reported that First State's annual meeting will be held on Jan. 16, 1991.

SHEFFIELD, ALA. (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - The bank continues to experience an improvement in interest income from quarter to quarter.

The growth in the loan portfolio would account for this improvement. Even though there has been a large increase in savings deposits. The bank has been able to reduce cost of funds by 38 basis points during the 1989-90 fiscal year.

The core loan portfolio yield improvement coupled with the cost of fund reduction has rendered a pleasing improvement in net interest income for the bank.

Even though other expenses increased over the 12 month period, there was some reduction in the fourth quarter from 1989. After re-evaluating classified assets, the bank provided an additional provision for loan loss reserves of $130,000 in the fourth quarter. Unfortunately, the application of this entry in this quarter reduced earnings to a negative $7,085 before tax calculations.

Furthermore, provisions for loan losses are not considered for tax benefits since the bank has previously devoted over $3.9 million to loan loss reserves for tax purposes only.

MIAMI (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Vidoe Jukebox Network Inc. (VJN) (NASDAQ:JUKE) Wednesday announced that a wholly owned subsidiary of Tele-Communications Inc. (TCI), has completed a previously announced $5 million investment in the company.

According to the terms of the investment, TCI received 1,033,500 shares of the company's common stock, which represents approximately 9.8 percent of the total shares outstanding.

Net proceeds from the investment will be used to continue the expansion of the company's interactive music television service, The Jukebox Network, provide additional working capital, and fund initial development costs of new interactive television products based on the company's proprietary technology.

In addition to the investment, VJN and TCI also entered into an affiliation agreement which will lead to expansion of The Jukebox Network in TCI owned cable systems across the country. Launches have already been planned for Dallas (100,000 subscribers), Buffalo, N.Y. (83,000), and St. Louis (55,000).

Other announcements are expected in the near future, pending channel space availability and local market considerations.

Commenting on the transaction, VJN President/Chief Executive Officer Andrew H. Orgel said, ''The TCI investment strengthens the financial and cable industry positions of The Jukebox Network, which has already begun to receive strong support in the music industry and with viewers.

''TCI management understands what television can become with the combination of interactive technology and localized niche services.''

Peter Barton, senior vice president of programming for TCI added, ''We have done extensive research into interactive televison technology over the past 18 months, and believe that VJN has a very practical approach to developing new applications and introducing them into the marketplace.''

The private placement was arranged by Communications Equity Associates (CEA), the company's investment banker.

VJN also announced its results for the three month period ended Sept. 30. The company reported third quarter revenues of $3,797,000, an increase of 231 percent over the $1,145,000 for the like period in 1989. The company realized a loss of ($415,000) or (4 cents) per common share, as opposed to a loss of ($290,000) or (3 cents) for the like period in 1989.

Third quarter income before non-cash expenditures (which include stock compensation, depreciation, and amortization) was $63,000.

Year-to-date figures for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 show revenues of $9,821,000, an increase of 384 percent over the $2,028,000 reported for the comparable period in the previous year. The nine month loss was ($1,014,000) or (11 cents) per common share, compared to ($1,732,000) or (22 cents) for the like period in 1989.

The reduction of the loss compared to 1989 was attributed to significantly increased distribution of The Jukebox Network combined with effective cost control and economies of scale inherent in the expansion.

Regarding the third quarter results, Orgel said, ''We are very encouraged by the development of our advertising and ancilliary call revenue streams. Although our viewer revenues, particularly in September, did not meet our expectations, we will be using recently concluded research to help us fine tune the programming and marketing of The Jukebox Newtwork to drive viewer awareness and usage.''

Tele-Communications Inc. is traded over-the-counter with Class A Common Stock and Class B Common Stock trading separately under the symbols of TCOMA and TCOMB, respectively.

TCI's 11-1/8 percent Senior Subordinated Debentures, 7 percent Convertible Subordinated Debentures and TCI Rights are traded in the over-the-counter markets, the latter two under the symbols of TCOMH and TCOMR, respectively.

Video Jukebox Network Inc. is an interactive television company that currently operates 118 units of The Jukebox Network, the leading interactive television network in the country. The Jukebox Network is available in 30 states and reaches over 10 million households.

LA BELLE, FL (NOV. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Mr. Ben Hill Griffin III, chiarman of Alico Inc. (ALCO), a La Belle, Fla. agribusiness company, announced Wednesday that net earnings for the fiscal year ending August 1990 were $4.7 million or 67 cents per share.

These values compare to net income earned during fiscal year 1989 of $8.8 million or $1.24 per share.

Total revenues for the 1990 fiscal year were $21.8 million compared to $26.8 million for the previous year.

Shareholders' equity at the end of August was $48.6 million compared to $45.9 million a year ago. Total assets increased by $11.8 million to $69.3 million and total liabilities increased by $9.1 million to $20.8 million.

Griffin stated that, ''The reduction in net income for 1990 resulted primarily from reduced citrus revenue and fewer real estate sales. The frost in February 1989 and the freeze in December 1989 both served to reduce the harvestable citrus crop. Income from all other areas was comparable to the previous year.''

Griffin further stated that, ''The Development of Regional Impact application for the Lee County property was completed and filed with the various regulatory boards in September 1990. Portions of the property are under consideration for expansion of the Southwest Florida Regional Airport and for a proposed University of Southwest Florida.''

Griffin remarked that, ''Additional citrus and sugarcane acreage was planted during the fiscal year and a St. Augustine sod project is currently in the development stage.''

MOSCOW (NOV. 21) - Moscow intends to retain control over Soviet Interior Ministry troops to deal with internal threats to the security of the union, the force's commander, General Yuri Shatalin, told the army daily Red Star on Wednesday.

Speaking of a parliamentary bill under preparation, Gen. Shatalin said it provided for "structural divisions of interior troops into all-union (federal) formations and units assigned to settle emergency tasks in the interests of security of all subjects of the federation" at a time when there are increasing "trends for greater independence of union republics".

The bill also provides for the troops - currently recruits doing their national service - to serve on a volunteer basis, under contract.

The number of troops is a state secret but their numbers have been expanding as a result of recent violent flare-ups across the country triggered mainly by inter-ethnic conflicts.

The bill also provides for union-republican units to protect labour camps and special motorised militia units subordinated to republican interior ministries the general added.

States of emergency, involving the use of interior ministry troops, are currently in force in Nagorny-Karabakh, a disputed Armenian enclave inside Azerbaijan, in Baku, the capital of Azerbaijan, in the autononous republic of Nakhichevan, an Azeri territory bordering Iran and Turkey and in the Megri corridor which links Nakhichevan to Azerbaijan proper through Armenia, an Interior Ministry official told AFP Wednesday.

Armenia itself, including its capital Yerevan, is also under a state of emergency, along with the autonomous republic of Abkhazia, in Georgia, and five regions in southern Moldavia which are home to the Gagauz community.

In central Asia, Dushanbe in Tadzhikistan, Ferghana in Uzbekistan and several areas in and around the town of Osh, Kirghizia, are also subject to a state of emergency, the official added.

WINDHOEK (NOV. 21) - The governor of Namibia's Central Bank, Wouter Bernard, confirmed Wednesday he had resigned his post, Namibian radio reported here.

Mr. Bernard said he had handed in his resignation 10 days ago after informing President Sam Nujoma of his decision.

Dutch-born Mr. Bernard was appointed governor in July after he was recommended by the International Monetary Fund (IMF), which also paid his salary.

Mr. Bernard told radio news his resignation would be discussed at next week's meeting of the Namibian cabinet. The cabinet would also consider a request that his three-month notice period be shortened.

He said once this request had been granted he would explain the reasons for his resignation but added that all he was prepared to say at present was that it had not been prompted by personal reasons.

PRETORIA (NOV. 21) - South Africa's worst drought since 1930 has cut by 65 percent the amount of maize normally planted by this stage in the season, the Maize Board said here Wednesday.

In a statement, the board said that only 472,000 hectares (1.2 million acres) had been planted as opposed to the average plantings for the corresponding period of the last four years of 1.36 million hectares (3.35 million acres).

Economists have said that unless it rains in the maize growing areas in Transvaal and Orange Free State provinces within the next two weeks, a severely impoverished maize harvest can be expected.

National Maize Producers Organisation (NAMPO) economist Kit le Clus said that agricultural authorities were preparing for a "worst-case" scenario of a maize crop of six million tons.

This represents one million tons less than needed for domestic consumption and 5.5 million tons less than the record 11.5 million tons produced in 1989.

LONDON (NOV. 21) - British telecommunications group Cable and Wireless, announced a 25 percent increase in taxable profits Wednesday to 301 million dollars (593 million pounds) from 241 million (475 million dollars) last year.

"For all the uncertainty of the world economic climate, the telecommunications industry is in good shape and growing vigorously", said the new Cable and Wireless president, Lord Young of Graffham. He forecast further profits and an increase in dividends.

But although the dividend per share has only increased by five per cent to 15.1 pence, previously 14.4 pence, the group has increased the initial dividend by 19 percent to 3.7 pence per share, previously 3.1 pence.

Turnover rose by 16 percent to 1.26 billion pounds (2.48 billion pounds) for the six months ended in September, in comparison with 1.09 billion (2.15 billion dollars) the previous year.

Cable and Wireless indicated that without the present unfavourable currency shifts, the operational profit of 288 million pounds (567 million dollars) would have been 24 million (47 million dollars) higher. Lord Young warned that this negative effect would be increasingly in evidence during the second six months.

The taxable result is in line with analysts' predictions of between 290 million pounds (571 million dollars) and 320 million (630 million dollars).

Lord Young applauded proposals to give greater freedom to the telecommunications market made last week by the British government. Cable and Wireless is British Telecom's sole competitor, and has been so since 1982. It is "the chance we have been waiting for", said Lord Young.

In the first six months the turnover achieved on the British telecommunications market increased by 29 percent which allowed the subsidiary Mercury Communications to more than double their operational profit from 22 million pounds (43 million dollars) to 50 million (98 million dollars).

During the early morning, shares were being traded at 423 pence in the Stock Exchange.

Revenues, however, jumped 35.6 percent to 1,337 billion yen (9.7 billion dollars), Japan's eighth biggest bank said.

The bank forecast a net profit of 62 billion yen (450 million dollars) for the year to March, slightly down from an earlier estimate of 60 billion yen (435 million dollars).

The revenue forecast remained unchanged at 2,700 billion yen (20 billion dollars).

TEHERAN (NOV. 21) - Former Gulf war foes Iraq and Iran on Wednesday resumed an exchange of prisoners from the eight-year conflict, after a break of more than two months in the release of POWs.

Teheran Radio said 238 Iranian POWs who had been convicted by Iraqi courts for crimes committed during their captivity were freed and flown home to the Iranian capital aboard an Iraqi Airways plane.

The aircraft was to return to Iraq later the same day with 179 released Iraqi prisoners, including 79 convicted of crimes in Iranian courts, the official radio said.

Apart from the 79, Teheran has decided to free 100 Iraqis each day, starting Wednesday, in what it called a unilateral gesture of goodwill "to encourage Iraq to settle the dossier of the POWs."

The release of all the convicted prisoners follows an agreement reached during a historic visit to Baghdad last week by Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati.

An exchange of the estimated 100,000 POWs from the eight-year Gulf war, which ended in a ceasefire in 1988, started last August and led to the repatriation of 78,000 prisoners before it was interrupted in mid-September.

The suspension came as Baghdad maintained that it was holding only the convicted prisoners, whereas Teheran insisted that 2,000 other Iranians were still missing and believed held in Iraq.

Iran, which is holding a far larger number of POWs, also charged that Iraq was secretly holding the former Iranian oil minister, Mohammad Javad Tondgouyan, but Baghdad says he died of ill health while in captivity.

JAKARTA (NOV. 21) - Indonesia has urged Japan to convert some 1.2 billion dollars in outstanding debt repayments into new soft credits to ease its foreign debt burden, President Suharto said Wednesday.

The request was made during a meeting with Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu in Tokyo last week, Mr. Suharto told Indonesian journalists on his flight home from visits to Japan, China and Vietnam.

He said the international currency realignment in recent years had increased the amount of yen-denominated loans Indonesia had to pay Japan by 1.2 billion dollars.

This, he said, was straining scarce cash resources needed to assure continuity in economic development.

Indonesia's total foreign debt is estimated at around 50 billion dollars with repayments taking over a third of total export revenues, most of which are denominated in dollars.

Mr. Suharto said whatever additional revenues were gained from higher international oil prices in recent months would be spent on domestic fuel subsidies and on repaying Indonesia's foreign debts.

He said he had told Mr. Kaifu not to "assume that we no longer need foreign aid." He did not give Mr. Kaifu's reponse.

Mr. Suharto said he had also assured the Japanese premier on the continuity of oil and liquified natural gas (LNG) supplies from Indonesia to Japan.

Indonesia supplies about 14 percent of Japan's oil needs and over half of its annual LNG requirements.

Orix, the country's top leasing company, said group revenue jumped 55.9 percent to 214 billion yen (1.55 billion dollars), with income from loan operations posting a sharp increase.

The car rental business and the leasing of measuring instruments proved to be notably profitable, the company said.

For the year to March, net income was forecast at 20 billion yen (145 million dollars), with revenue of 415 billion yen (three billion dollars).

KUMI, UGANDA (NOV. 21) - Hundreds of Ugandan rebels have surrendered after the army launched a drive to flush them out of eastern Uganda, local officials said here Wednesday.

The rebels belonged to the Ugandan People's Army (UPA), which has been fighting government forces in eastern Uganda since President Yoweri Museveni seized power in 1986 after a five-year guerrilla war.

UPA fighters last week killed a senior politician in the eastern district of Kumi, William Apongya, whose badly mutilated body was found a week after rebels abducted him. His eyes had been gouged out.

The rebels ambushed a military truck on the main Kumi-Mbale road last Thursday killing two government soldiers.

An Agence France-Presse correspondent saw some 200 UPA fighters who said they had just surrendered in this eastern town on Tuesday. They were assembled at the railway station.

Mr. Museveni declared a presidential pardon for political crimes committed by the rebels two years ago. But he said those who had murdered civilians or committed crimes such as rape or theft would be prosecuted.

MUSCAT (NOV. 21) - Iraq's Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz arrived here unexpectedly Wednesday to begin the first visit to a Gulf monarchy by an Iraqi official since Baghdad's seizure of Kuwait.

Mr. Aziz travelled to Oman after a brief stop-over in Yemen. U.S. Secretary of State James Baker was also expected to visit both Gulf states after the European security summit in Paris.

Omani officials said the Iraqi foreign minister would deliver a message to the Omani leader, Sultan Qaboos, from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Mr. Aziz was met at the airport here by Omani Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Youssef bin Alawi Abdallah.

Oman, current head of the Gulf Cooperation Council that includes Kuwait, has urged Iraq to withdraw its troops from the emirate.

The government announced Monday its opposition to an emergency Arab summit, proposed by Morocco, as long as Baghdad refused to commit itself to evacuating its forces.

Before Oman, Mr. Aziz was briefly in Yemen, where authorities have criticized the Iraqi invasion but have shown sympathy for Baghdad.

Yemen in December will chair the 15-member U.N. Security Council, where the United States is promoting a resolution authorizing the use of force to dislodge Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

The Iraqi foreign minister's tour of the Gulf came hours before Mr. Baker was expected in Yemen and Oman, as well as a visit to Saudi Arabia by U.S. President George Bush.

Mr. Baker is due to meet in Oman with officials of Malaysia, which is also currently a member of the Security Council.

Since the August 2 invasion, Yemen has abstained three times from backing Council resolutions imposing sanctions on Baghdad and voted once against an anti-Iraqi measure.

LONDON (NOV. 21) - A Mozart manuscript found recently in the United States was auctioned off at Sotheby's here Wednesday for 800,000 pounds (1.6 million dollars), only the second time in history that a musical score had fetched such a price.

Japanese bidders were anxious to snap up the 14-page manuscript, which opened at 100,000 pounds, but it eventually went to London dealer Otto Haas. The price equalled the amount paid for a Schumann piano concerto almost exactly a year ago.

Written between 1784 and 1785, Mozart's Fantasie in C-minor and Sonata in C-minor are usually played together and figure in great pianists' repertoires. Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart himself played them for the first time in 1789.

The manuscript, unsigned and undated, was discovered four months ago in a safe at the Philadelphia School of Theology. Marguerite Treat Doane, daughter of the U.S. philanthropist Wiliam Howard Doane, had donated it in 1950.

Although it was known to exist, the institution was unaware of its value until they had it appraised for insurance purposes.

PARIS (NOV. 21) - World Bank donors have agreed to provide Kenya with more than one billion dollars in 1991 while indicating in veiled terms that they expect improved respect for human rights, sources close to this week's two-day meeting of the consultative group on Kenya said here on Wednesday.

The 12 countries involved were generally agreed ''that economic development and political stability and consensus are intertwined, although many participants noted that this is a complex relationship,'' a communique said.

''In the light of recent international political developments, delegates underlined the importance of good governance, participation, accountability and transparency for sustained economic development,'' it added.

The sources commented that the donors had pledged financial support but "no longer wish to close their eyes to corruption'', while respect for human rights ''is becoming an implicit condition'' for aid.

(The United States has suspended 15 million dollars of military aid to show its disapproval of human rights abuses in Kenya, and Denmark has cut its aid by 25 per cent following a crackdown on advocates of multiparty politics.)

The bank communique said more than 400 million dollars of the new aid pledge would be for balance of payments support. It urged ''vigorous'' implementation of a comprehensive parastatal reform programme in line with the Nairobi government's own stated objective of improving the efficiency of state-owned enterprises and reducing their role in the economy where appropriate. Delegates urged that a rapid increase in public sector employment be contained.

A session on human resources and social issues discussed the importance of reaching all levels of society with basic social services, and emphasized the need for special efforts to reduce child malnutrition.

BUCHAREST (NOV. 21) - Romanian and foreign enterprises have set up 570 joint ventures, investing 66 million dollars, since December last year, as compared to a mere four joint ventures previously, officials announced here Wednesday.

The United States topped the list of foreign investors with 10 million dollars trailed by France, Britain and Italy, according to Misu Negritoiu, director of the Romanian Agency for Foreign Investment.

Mr. Negritoiu announced that parliament would adopt legislation easing foreign investments by the end of the year. This would allow the transfer overseas of hard currency profits "without any restrictions", he said.

"Joint ventures or foreign companies will be able to make all sorts of trade deals in Romania", he added.

Under the new law machines, spare parts and other equipment could be imported tax-free if used as investment. Other incentives would include exemption from profit taxation for a three to five-year period as soon as the enterprise made a profit, as well as tax exemptions for the import of raw materials.

The law would also give guarantees "against the threat of nationalization or seizure of company assets", according to Mr. Negritoiu, who sees his agency as a "link between foreign investors and Romania's economic agents to identify, facilitate and promote investments".

DHAHRAN, SAUDI ARABIA (NOV. 21) - President George Bush pays a whirlwind visit to American troops in the Gulf on Thursday as the U.S. military prepares to serve a hot turkey dinner to every sailor, soldier, airman and Marine for Thanksgiving Day.

More than 90,000 pounds (41,000 kilos) of turkey, the traditional Thanksgiving Day dish, have been flown or shipped in to feed the more than 230,000 American servicemen in the Gulf, according to U.S. military food service officials.

Even the U.S. soldiers closest to Iraq-occupied Kuwait, who eat vacuum-packed MREs, or Meals Ready to Eat, twice a day, have been promised an "A-ration" meal of roast turkey for Thanksgiving, first held by the Pilgrims in the 1600s to give thanks to God for their survival in the "New World."

For those troops who may not care for turkey, the army has ordered 70,000 pounds (32,000 kilos) of roast beef, 35,000 pounds (16,000 kilos) of shrimp and 45,000 pounds (20,000 kilos) of ham, more than ever before seen in this Moslem kingdom where pork is banned.

Other Thanksgiving Day staples on the menu: cornbread dressing, cranberry sauce, sweet potatoes and pumpkin, cherry and apple pie.

U.S. officials said the Saudi Government donated much of the food, including 230,000 Mars and Snickers candy bars.

Bush is scheduled to arrive here on Thursday morning after talks in Jeddah late Wednesday with Saudi King Fahd and the Emir of Kuwait, Sheikh Jaber.

He will be the first U.S. president to visit troops in a potential combat zone since Richard Nixon went to Vietnam in 1969 and is scheduled to spend time with all four branches of the U.S. armed forces during his seven-hour stay.

Bush and his wife, Barbara, are to eat Thanksgiving dinners with Marines and U.S. Army soldiers at undisclosed desert locations south of Kuwait, visit sailors on the USS Nassau in the Gulf and address U.S. airmen at a Saudi air base here.

The reaction among U.S. troops to Bush's visit ranges from excitement to indifference, although they are virtually unanimous in saying it would be good for morale.

"If I saw him it would be pretty monumental," said Marine Lance Corporal Donald Tuyls, a Californian wearing a floppy hat decorated with a peace sign and the name of his wife, Wendy.

"It'd be a great experience," added 18-year-old Private Johnny Harris from Chicago.

While the chances of either of the two Marines meeting Bush are slim, a U.S. airman at the base here who will at least get a glimpse of the president was not too worked up about it. "It'll give me something to do," he said.

U.S. Army Specialist Lawrence Holloway summed up much of the sentiment toward Bush's visit and Thanksgiving.

"It's good because it shows that the commander-in-chief is standing behind his troops," he said, although "holidays around here are just another day on the calender."

Asked what he would say to the president if he met him, the 23-year-old from Miami said: "Ready to fight, sir. Just say when."

U.S. troops will also be able to tune in to a live broadcast on the U.S. armed forces radio station on Thursday of a Detroit Lions American football game.

In keeping with tradition, however, the Lions are having another sorrowful season, going into the game against the Denver Broncos with a record of three wins and seven losses.

The U.S. television network airing the game has flown out former Buffalo Bills star and actor O.J. Simpson to Dhahran to provide the commentary for the game.

Other activities include a Thanksgiving Day parade complete with eight floats and a band by U.S. Air Force units in Oman.

The U.S. telephone company AT&T is providing free three-minute calls to the United States for U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia on Thursday.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 21) - Washington will allow Turkey to sell more textiles and clothing in the United States as a reward for strongly opposing Iraq's August invasion of Kuwait, The Washington Post reported Wednesday.

The agreement, reached two weeks ago but not yet made public, boosts the quotas on Turkey's clothing and fabric by up to 40 percent or as high as 50 percent in a few cases, the newspaper cited an official as saying.

"We don't do that very often in textiles," said the official, who declined to be identified.

Turkish President Turgut Ozal appealed to U.S. Secretary of State James Baker in Geneva two weeks ago to open U.S. markets to more Turkish textiles, the Post said.

Mr. Ozal told Mr. Baker he thought his country should be rewarded for supporting the U.N.-mandated economic sanctions against Iraq and said boosting the quotas would offset strains the sanctions put on the Turkish economy.

Iraq could have circumvented the sanctions easily if its neighbor Turkey had not supported the international embargo.

Currently, Turkey accounts for only 1.3 percent of U.S. textile imports.

PARIS (NOV. 21) - Daewoo Electronic, a subsidiary of the South Korean Daewoo group, has bought 34 percent of the French JCB Industries distribution company and has signed an agreement of association, the companies announced on Wednesday.

The agreement would enable Daewoo Electronic to gain a foothold officially in Europe. The agreement concerns distribution of Daewoo consumer electronic goods in a first stage limited to France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxemburg.

The new company, which will be called Daewoo Electronic Sa, will be based in Paris.

Daewoo Electronic set up a plant to manufacture micro-wave ovens at Longwy in France in 1988, and capacity at this factory is to be developed substantially in coming months, the statement said.

JB Industries has distributed Daewoo products in France since 1984 and in 1989 had sales of 400 million francs (about 80 million dollars).

LE HAVRE, France (NOV. 21) - An Irish veterinarian Wednesday began to inspect 1,600 Irish sheep stranded for nearly a week in a hangar on dockside of this northern port.

The inspection was to check the identity of each sheep against an export register "which ought to have been done in Ireland to begin with", chief port veterinary official Philippe David said.

Mr. David said it was "the first time that we have been forced to hold up a cargo of animals, but it is also the first time that we have noticed such a breach of Community regulations laid down in July 1988."

The Irish vet began work while awaiting completion of health controls which would permit the sheep to enter France legally.

Mr. David said the French Agriculture Ministry considered "the Irish have forced its hand" after the ship that unloaded the sheep Thursday left without waiting for verification of the cargo papers which turned out to be imprecise.

The exporter, Irish Livestock, would have to pay for the use of the hangar, wasted journeys by lorry drivers who tried to take delivery of the sheep, and cancellation of contracts with fattening centres in Brittany, southwestern France, and east of Paris.

PARIS (NOV. 21) - The Paris Court of Appeal on Wednesday turned down an application for the release of Paul Touvier, who is charged with crimes against humanity for his role as intelligence chief for the pro-nazi French para-military police during World War II.

Mr. Touvier, 75, will stay in prison until his trial, the court ruled.

Mr. Touvier, who was a senior officer in the militia, a German army auxiliary force, in Lyons, was arrested in 1989 in a priory near Nice (south-east France) after living in hiding for 45 years, mainly in monasteries.

Charges against him include helping to murder the president of the French League of Human Rights, Victor Rasch and his wife in January 1944 and responsibility for the murder of seven Jewish hostages in June 1944.

He is also accused of ordering the deportation of two caretakers of the Lyons synagogue in June 1944, and of 57 Spanish political refugees in April 1944.

The Appeal Court ruling follows shortly after the arrest of 81-year-old Rene Bousquet, former Secretary General of Police under the collaborationist Vichy regime from 1942-1943.

Mr. Bousquet, who is charged with crimes against humanity, is said to have cancelled official regulations which would have spared certain categories of Jewish children from being rounded up for deportation, on account of their age.

His instructions are said to have led to the deportation of 194 Jewish children from six departments in the south of France in 1942.

MANAMA (NOV 21) - Kuwait's government-in-exile announced Wednesday the creation of a "consultative committee" of 35 members, including opposition figures, to help it free Kuwait from Iraqi occupation, a Kuwaiti official said.

The government, headed by the exiled prime minister, Sheikh Saad al-Abdallah al-Sabah, said the committee was formed by implementing the resolutions of Kuwait's popular congress which met in mid-October in the western Saudi city of Jeddah, a statement disseminated by the Kuwaiti news agency KUNA said.

The congress drew about 1,000 Kuwaiti figures, including several opposition leaders, and decided to form a popular committee to help the premier in his political and diplomatic efforts.

Kuwaiti leaders have been trying to muster support from all their compatriots to counter Iraq's August 2 invasion of their country.

The "consultative committee" also groups some members of the constitutional movement which boasted about 30 MPs from the parliament that was dissolved by the emir, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah, in 1986, KUNA said.

On Sunday, Oman's leader, Sultan Qaboos bin Said, said he had ordered the creation of a consultative council to ensure wider participation by Omani citizens in domestic affairs.

BELGRADE (NOV. 21) - The former communist Party for Democratic Change (PDC) has been dealt a sharp setback in Bosnia-Herzegovina's first free elections since World War II.

Nationalist parties put in an unexpectedly strong showing, according to partial results reported here Wednesday by the news agency Tanjug.

Despite having been favored in pre-election polls, the PDC failed to carry any parliamentary seats in the first round and appeared to have been shut out of the Yugoslav republic's collegial presidency.

After 85 per cent of the vote had been counted, 57 out of the 110 seats in the lower Chamber of Commons appeared to have been won in the first round by the three main nationalist parties, while only a few PDC candidates had qualified for the second round of ballotting on December 2, Tanjug reported.

The Alliance of Yugoslavian Reformist Forces, formed in Bosnia in August by the Yugoslav prime minister as a centrist alternative to the communists and ethnic-based political parties, made an equally disappointing showing.

The three main nationalist parties were also leading in the 130-member Chamber of Citizens, elected under the proportional representation system, with the Moslem Party for Democratic Action (PDA) leading in four out of the seven main electoral districts, the Serbian Democratic Party (SDP) in two and the Croatian Democratic Community (CDC) in the last.

Bosnia's Moslem minority, while mostly Slavic, is recognized as a distinct ethnic group and accounts for 40 per cent of the republic's 4.5 million inhabitants, while ethnic Serbians make up 32.2 per cent and Croatians follow with 18.4 per cent.

In the elections for the seven-member collegial presidency -- which must include two Moslems, two Serbians, two Croatians and one representative of other ethnic groups -- the most votes were won by PDA candidate Fikret Abdic, who outdistanced his party's president Alija Izetbegovic.

PDA representatives, who hope to carry 95 seats in parliament, had not yet decided whether Mr. Abdic or Mr. Izetbegovic would be their candidate for the revolving presidency.

BERLIN (NOV. 21) - The lot of Christians in predominantly Moslem Egypt has improved recently, the head of the Coptic Church in Egypt, Pope Shenouda Iii of Alexandria, said Wednesday.

In an interview with the German Press Agency dpa during his visit to Germany, the cleric said the number of monasteries, monks, priests and bishops was increasing.

Although relations with ''neutral'' Moslems were very good, he said there were problems with fundamentalist Moslems whose aims were more political than religious.

During his one-day stay in Berlin, Shenouda Iii celebrated a religious service with the city's small Coptic Orthodox community, which comprises about 40 families.

Copts living in Berlin spoke of ''an atmosphere of fear'' in Egypt. Just recently, they said, churches were set on fire and Copts shot to death in broad daylight - and no one was prosecuted.

There are seven Coptic communities in Germany and a Coptic monastery in the Taunus mountains near Frankfurt.

LONDON (NOV. 21) - A violin made by Antonio Stradivari fetched a record 920,000 pounds sterling (about 1.9 million dollars) at a Christie's auction here Wednesday.

The previous high price for a Stradivarius was about 572,000 pounds sterling.

The instrument, which until the end of the 19th century was owned by the Berlin banking family of Mendelssohn - descendants of the German composer Felix Mendelssohn - was auctioned on behalf of an unnamed musician.

The violin was made in 1720, during the so-called ''golden period'' of the famous violin maker from Cremona, Italy. Proceeds from the auction are to go to a Jewish charitable organization in New York.

LONDON (NOV. 21) - Margaret Thatcher, ignoring calls for her resignation on the eve of a no-confidence debate in her government, vowed here Wednesday to press ahead with her fight to remain leader of the Conservative Party and prime minister of Britain.

Emerging from her Downing Street residence after several hours of intensive and urgent consultations with senior ministers and top Tory party officials, Mrs. Thatcher told reporters: "I fight on, I fight to win."

Her remarks, made a day after she suffered her worst political defeat in 11 and a half years as prime minister by failing to score an outright victory over a rival challenger for the leadership of the governing party, effectively quashed rumors that Mrs. Thatcher might be forced to take herself out of the leadership race.

Addressing MP's in the House of Commons shortly afterwards, Mrs. Thatcher, 65, asserted that despite the bruising leadership battle with Mr. Heseltine her government had "great strength and great resolve."

"I believe this government has both and will continue to have them," Mrs. Thatcher said.

Informed by one Tory MP that his constituency wanted her to carry on as prime minister and party leader despite deep splits within her own party, Mrs. Thatcher replied firmly: "I too want just exactly what you want."

In response to a jibe from Paddy Ashdown, the leader of the opposition Liberal Democrats Party who said Mrs. Thatcher was now in the "twilight days" of her tenure, Mrs. Thatcher coolly responded: "Please remember there are 24 hours in a day."

But even as Mrs. Thatcher was taking questions from MP's, most of which focussed on the just-ended European security summit in Paris, speculation continued in political circles that Mr. Heseltine, 57, was gaining support among fellow Tories for his leadership bid.

In a secret ballot among Tory MP's Tuesday, Mrs. Thatcher fell just four votes short of the majority she needed to be reelected as party leader but one report Wednesday said around 10 MP's who voted for Mrs. Thatcher in the first round were prepared to switch their allegiance in the second vote next Tuesday.

The television network ITV reported meanwhile that Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd and Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major were prepared to second Mrs. Thatcher's official nomination to stand in the contest against Mr. Heseltine.

Both men, who also seconded her candidacy in the first round, had stated previously that they would not challenge her for the party leadership and the premiership, but there had been speculation that Mr. Major might not put his name to her nomination in this round so that he might also join the race.

In a further indication of the Thatcher camp's seriousness about fighting to retain her leadership, it was reported that Mrs. Thatcher's current campaign manager, former defence secretary George Younger, was to be replaced in favor of a cabinet minister.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Thatcher was working late Wednesday in preparation for Thursday's debate of no-confidence, tabled by Neil Kinnock, leader of the opposition Labour Party, just minutes before the result of Tuesday's voting were announced.

Mr. Kinnock and other opposition leaders have called on Mrs. Thatcher to resign and demanded an immediate general election.

The growing splits within the Tory party were brought about over deep divisions on Mrs. Thatcher's reluctance to accede to European Economic Community plans for tighter integration among member states as well as widespread dissatisfaction with her insistence on introducing an unpopular new taxation system.

Mr. Heseltine has promised that if he were elected to head the Tory party and took over as prime minister he would consider replacing the local poll tax with a system "that takes greater account of people's ability to pay."

A long-time proponent of closer ties with Europe, Mr. Heseltine has also attracted Tory support with pledges to foster closer ties with Britain's EEC partners.

Tory sources announced later that Energy Secretary John Wakeham, a former leader Tory leader of the House of Commons, had been named to replace Mr. Younger as the head of Mrs. Thatcher's leadership campaign.

Mr. Wakeham was also already in charge of drafting the Conservative Party's next election manifesto and would be well-placed to canvas support for Mrs. Thatcher among wavering Tory MP's, analysts noted.

Mr. Younger left Mrs. Thatcher's election team for business reasons, colleagues said.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (NOV. 21) - U.S. President George Bush arrived here Wednesday for talks with Saudi officials on the Gulf crisis and an inspection of American troops deployed in the country.

Bush was welcomed by Saudi King Fahd on his arrival in the Saudi Red Sea port city Jeddah and immediately driven to the al-Hamra palace where he will stay overnight.

The president, who flew in from Paris where he attended the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (Csce), was due have talks later Wednesday with King Fahd.

Bush is also due to discuss the Gulf crisis with Kuwait's exiled emir, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, at his temporary residence in the Saudi summer resort of Taif, official sources said.

On Thursday Bush will fly to the Saudi Eastern Province to celebrate Thanksgiving Day among the more than 200,000 U.S. troops stationed there as part of a multinational force to deter an possible Iraqi attack on Saudi Arabia.

Prior to his departure from Paris, Bush reiterated that the anti-Iraqi alliance was undivided, saying, ''We are on the same wavelength with the Soviet Union and almost all the others on the Security Council.''

Most of the Council members agreed that ''all steps to suppport the U.N. resolutions have to be taken'', he said, rejecting Iraq's announcement that it will release hostages gradually as a ''cynical, cruel ploy'' by an ''embattled dictator''.

LONDON (NOV. 21) - Britain on Wednesday asked the Hong Kong government to begin making recommendations on December 1 for citizens of the colony entited to British nationality under a new law.

Home Secretary David Waddington, announcing plans to implement the first stage of the Hong Kong Nationality Act, said recommendations for most of the 50,000 key Hong Kong citizens to be granted British citizenship between December 1 and January 1, 1994.

He said recommendations from the Hong Kong governor should include not more than 32,700 people in the general occupational class, not more than 6,200 in the disciplined services class and not more than 3,850 in the sensitive service class.

A home office spokesman defined people in the sensitive service class as those in a civil or military capacity who "had been exposed to special consideration or factors" during the course of their jobs and might find it difficult to remain in Hong Kong after 1997 when it is handed over to China.

A total of around 225,000 Hong Kong residents -- the 50,000 key residents and their family members -- will be given British nationality status under the British scheme, which was made law in August.

The recommendations for places in the scheme not made during the three-year period specified by Mr. Waddington will be made closer to 1997, the home office said.

MOSCOW (NOV. 21) - The three Baltic republics of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia Wednesday warned the Soviet Union they would resist any attempts by Moscow to reassert control, according to a communique from the Lithuanian parliament.

The warning followed a meeting Wednesday in Jurmala, Latvia, of the presidents and premiers of the three republics which have declared independence from the Soviet Union.

The meeting was held to consider the Baltic republics' response to Saturday's move by the federal Supreme Soviet on granting President Mikhail Gorbachev extra powers, which the communique said, included "direct threats to use force to suspend our democratically-elected governmental institutions and our laws".

"In the face of these threats, we serve notice that the Baltic states will exercise their inalienable right to resist violence.

"The people, the parliaments and the government bodies of the Baltic states will oppose new aggression and the repetition of tragic events, comparable to those of 1940" when the republics were annexed by the Soviet Union, the communique sent to AFP said.

"We call upon the USSR Supreme Soviet to stop the escalation of the policy of intimidation and forceful pressure on the Baltic states, which are using peaceful means to restore their rights," the communique added.

On Saturday, the federal parliament gave its initial approval to proposals by Mr. Gorbachev for strengthening his executive power in the run-up to the conclusion of a new union treaty between the Soviet republics.

The proposals include plans for setting up a special body which will be responsible for ensuring that presidential decisions are applied throughout the union.

Failure to do this could lead to direct presidential rule over a region or republic, thereby suspending the powers of local authorities and assemblies.

Lithuanian deputy Premier Romualdas Ozolas Monday warned on local television of "resistance" "by all means" in case direct presidential rule was applied over the republic.

"Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia do not intend to participate in a union treaty but, as before, are ready and willing to conduct negotiations and conclude inter-state agreements with the USSR and the republic on political relations, as well as on economic and other forms of cooperation," the communique also said.

It was signed by Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis, Latvian President Anatolijs Gorbunovs et Estonian President Arnold Ruutel who were meeting within the framework of the recently set-up Baltic Council.

LONDON, Nov 21 (NOV. 21) - A situation described by dealers as comprising "negligible fundamental support for copper prices" prompted further falls in the price of copper on the London Metal Exchange (LME) Wednesday.

In after hours kerb trading the metal firmed marginally to 1,313 pounds per ton from the close of the afternoon ring at 1,311 pounds. It was down however from a close Tuesday at 1,326 dollars.

The likelihood of growing supplies in the first quarter of 1991 against a background of economic slowdown in the US and Western Europe were the key factors identified by dealers.

Aluminium fell back on the kerb to 1,617 dollars per ton, from the close of the afternoon ring at 1,621 dollars, but the metal still registered gains against Tuesday's close at 1,608 dollars. The rally was due to sentiment that losses earlier in the week had been overdone, traders said.

TRIPOLI (NOV 21) - Libya, deserted by its old allies, must now learn to be self-reliant, Tripoli leader Moamar Gaddafi said in a speech broadcast Tuesday by the national state radio.

''The countries of Eastern Europe were friends of ours, and now they have handed over all our files to America,'' Gaddafi told a meeting of public service ministry officials in reference to the political changes in the former communist East bloc.

''From Moscow to Hungary, they are admitting things about Iraq, about Libya ... The Russians are now passing on to the Americans the secrets of the weapons they sold to Iraq.''

''In the past they were indeed our friends. They sent nurses, doctors, equipment, companies ... they stood up with us against imperialism and against zionism. Now they say the Israelis, the Arabs, the Cubans and others are all the same.''

''The Soviet Union now makes no distinction between Cuba and the Israelis,'' Gaddafi was quoted as saying.

''Just don't expect any more Romanian, Polish, Czech or Turkish companies. We are in dispute with them, and we have problems with them,'' Gaddafi said.

''You must rely on yourselves,'' he said. ''The means of carrying out projects must be national. If this means we do not build, then we do not build. We have already laid down the basic structure.''

FREETOWN (NOV 21) - Liberia's interim president Amos Sawyer and five cabinet members left here Wednesday by military helicopter for Monrovia, the capital of his war-wracked homeland, African diplomatic sources said.

Mr. Sawyer's government will be inaugurated on Thursday at the Executive Mansion in Monrovia, where a West African peacekeeping force known as ECOMOG intervened in August after some eight months of bloody civil war.

The sources said Mr. Sawyer would return here Friday and later leave Sierra Leone for a special summit on Liberia among the 16-nation Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), to be held in Mali's capital Bamako on November 27.

Mr. Sawyer, 45, was chosen in August by Liberian politicians and exiles at a conference in the Gambia to lead the interim government set up under ECOWAS auspices.

The cabinet has never been officially announced, because the members did not want to establish themselves as "a government in exile".

Mr. Sawyer, a lawyer and constitutional expert who this week completed a tour of Ghana, Nigeria, Guinea, the Gambia and Sierra Leone -- the five nations that contributed troops to ECOMOG -- has said his government has been installed "in stages."

Interim vice president Ronald Diggs, a Lutheran bishop, and nine other members of the government left here for Monrovia 10 days ago.

Bishop Diggs's departure was cloaked in secrecy because of what one of his aides called "the situation in Monrovia".

National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) rebels shelled Monrovia's port area Sunday and Monday in retaliation for attacks last week by Nigerian fighter planes against the rebel-held port of Buchanan to the east.

The installation of the government is part of an ECOWAS peace plan supported by a rebel faction led by Prince Johnson and soldiers of the slain president Samuel Doe, but opposed by NPLF chief Charles Taylor.

WASHINGTON (NOV 21) - The surprise summit meeting Friday between U.S. President George Bush and Syrian leader Hafez al-Assad is a measure of the warming in relations between Washington and Damascus, but differences between the erstwhile adversaries remain profound.

The first meeting between the nations' top leaders in 13 years is the culmination of a dramatic rapprochement driven by the requirements of building the broadest possible alliance against Iraq and its seizure of Kuwait.

The discussions Friday in Geneva come amid a concerted effort by Mr. Bush and his secretary of state, James Baker, to bring together a global concensus on the need to threaten Iraq with military force if it refuses to withdraw from Kuwait.

But while Syria has squarely sided with the anti-Iraq alliance in demanding Iraq's unconditional pullout from Kuwait and has agreed to send some 15,000 troops to Saudi Arabia to confront the Iraqis, its objectives in the Gulf crisis are markedly different from Washington's and Friday's talks are likely to involve some serious negotiating, analysts said.

Syria has in its public statements opposed a major offensive against Iraq itself, fearing that the dismantling of Baghdad's formidable military machine would alter the regional balance of power in favor of Israel.

Some U.S. officials on the other hand, including Vice President Dan Quayle, have suggested that a resolution of the Gulf crisis must involve stripping Iraqi President Saddam Hussein of political power and removing Iraq's ability to threaten neighbors with long-range chemical and possibly nuclear arms.

Syria, one of the region's staunchest opponents of Israel, also remains highly criticial of Washington's nearly unconditional backing of the Jewish state, and especially of the latest arms sales to Israel following the August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

NAIROBI (NOV. 21) - Somali rebels on Wednesday said they would boycott proposed peace talks in Cairo between the Somali government and opposition movements.

The radio of the Somali National Movement (SNM), which controls much of northern Somalia, said the meeting, planned for December 12, would be "useless" without the participation of the rebels.

It said the SNM and the other two main rebel groups, the United Somali Congress (USC) and the Somali Patriotic Movement (SPM), had issued a joint statement saying they would not be going to Cairo. It did not say when or where the statement was issued.

The SNM stepped up attacks on government forces in northern Somalia last month. Diplomatic sources said the Somali army had also been pushed back by the USC in the centre of the country, and by the SPM in the south.

The Cairo meeting was announced in the Egyptian capital on Tuesday by a member of the Italian parliament, Mario Rafaelli, after a meeting with Boutros Boutros Ghali, Egypt's minister of state for foreign affairs.

The Somali government has accepted Egyptian, Italian and Kuwaiti mediation with rebel groups, the Somali ambassador to Egypt, Abdallah Hassan Mahmoud, told the Egyptian daily al-Ahram.

The Somali capital of Mogadishu, where President Mohamed Siad Barre's government maintains its grip, has been rocked by a spate of unclaimed bombings in recent months. Several Western embassies have made preparations to pull out their staff at any time.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (NOV 21) - U.S. President George Bush said here Wednesday he expected a new ''strong'' United Nations Security Council resolution against Iraq.

However, Bush, speaking after a meeting with Kuwait's exiled emir, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, said it remained to be seen what the exact content of the motion would be.

Bush, who arrived in this Red Sea port city earlier Wednesday from Paris where he attended the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (Csce), again called for the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

He said Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein must be blind if he failed to see the strong anti-Iraqi alliance and the continuing mobilisation of troops. ''If he doesn't understand he will soon ...,'' Bush said.

Bush, who will meet with Damascus leader Hafez Assad in Geneva on Friday, praised Syria as strong ally in the anti-Baghdad front.

On Thursday Bush will fly to the Saudi Eastern Province to celebrate Thanksgiving Day among the more than 200,000 U.S. troops stationed there as part of a multinational force to deter an possible Iraqi attack on Saudi Arabia.

NEW DELHI (NOV. 21) - Punjab's governor said Wednesday he had worked out a peace plan designed to end a seven years of Sikh militancy there as 28 people died in renewed violence in the northern Indian state.

Rival Hindu-Sikh communal tensions gripped Punjab's Amritsar city Wednesday over a massacre of 13 people gunned down by Sikh militants, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said.

PTI said the 28 dead in latest violence included 12 suspected militants shot in gunfire exchanges with security forces and one security trooper and 13 civilians shot by militants.

In addition, two unidentified men were shot dead by border forces when they illegally entered Punjab from Pakistan, officials were quoted by PTI as saying.

Governor Virendra Verma told reporters here that he had outlined his plan on Punjab to Indian President Ramaswamy Venkataraman and Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar, involving a major territorial concession.

Mr. Verma did not reveal details, but said he favoured the transfer of Chandigarh city to Punjab, where more than 3,000 people have died in the Sikh separatist campaign so far this year.

Moderate Sikh politicians have been demanding transfer of Chandigarh, presently shared by Punjab and neighbouring Haryana states as their capital, exclusively to Punjab, the only Sikh-majority Indian state.

Chandigarh's transfer to Punjab was the cornerstone of a peace pact signed by Sikh moderates and former premier Rajiv Gandhi's government in 1985. However, the accord collapsed because of Haryana's opposition.

Mr. Verma, a Hindu who took over June 14, said Haryana could be compensated for giving up Chandigarh and that he would discuss the details of his plan with Mr. Shekhar on Saturday.

He said the plan involved three broad issues -- a political solution, economic development of Punjab and steps to tackle Sikh separatism as a law enforcement problem.

Mr. Verma said the separatist campaign could not be ended with a "bullet-for-bullet" policy.

At the same time, he said he had asked for 5,000 more federal paramilitary troops to reinforce the estimated 30,000 already deployed in the state bordering Pakistan.

Police were quoted by PTI as saying they had shot dead four Sikh gunmen who struck at two places in Amritsar city Tuesday, leaving 13 people dead, including one who died of injuries later.

The four chased by police based on clues given by witnesses were killed in a gunfight outside a Babekear 'gurdwara' (Sikh shrine) elsewere in the city.

Violence erupted during the cremation of the victims of overnight militant strikes Wednesday with rival Hindu and Sikh groups pelting stones and attacking each other with swords and long iron rods.

Police intervention brought the situation soon under control, PTI said. It did not say if anyone was seriously injured or killed.

A two-hour curfew was imposed in Amritsar during the cremation.

India accuses Pakistan of aiding the Sikh militancy, which is rejected by Islamabad.

Sikh separatists have stepped up the bloody campaign for a theocratic homeland called Khalistan (land of the pure) since India's new Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar took over November 10 in the wake of a political crisis that toppled his predecessor Vishwanath Pratap Singh.

Mr. Shekhar reviewed the situation with senior Punjab officials, including Mr. Verma, here Tuesday.

NICOSIA (NOV 21) - Seven new Iraqi army divisions that are being mobilized in Kuwait to counter a foreign military buildup in the Gulf are elite troops, the official Iraqi News Agency (INA) reported Wednesday in a dispatch received here.

It quoted a military spokesman as saying the troops were "among the best regular forces currently in the armed services" and denied U.S. media reports that they were inexperienced.

The spokesman added: "This force is among the formations with a glorious past in battle and has a long training and combat experience, including in the past ten years."

He was referring to a period including the eight-year Iran-Iraq war, which ended with a United Nations-brokered cease-fire in August 1988.

On Monday, INA reported that Iraq had decided to send more than 250,000 reinforcements "to confront any future aggresion" against Kuwait and southern Iraq, with 100,000 scheduled to leave immediately.

But the chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Colin Powell, on Tuesday dismissed the Iraqi decision to send more troops to Kuwait as a "headline-of-the-day program" that may weaken the Iraqi army.

The U.S. has been leading a multinational military troop buildup in the Gulf since Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The Iraqi spokesman said the reinforcements would number over 100,000 troops, to which would be added some 60,000 others who had been withdrawn temporarily from the army to help with the winter planting season.

They would be joined by three battalions (of unspecified numbers) which had been demobilized a while back.

The spokesman said Iraq had other regular army divisions which had not yet been deployed on the battlefield and that it "can muster at the right time and place."

The Iraqi reinforcements add some 430,000 troops in Kuwait and southern Iraq where they face about 330,000 U.S. and allied forces in Saudi Arabia and the Gulf region.

Washington recently announced plans to send up to 200,000 additional forces to the Gulf region to bolster the forces already deployed there.

NEW YORK, United Nations (NOV 21) - U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar has accepted an invitation to visit Israel, Israeli President Chaim Herzog said Wednesday.

"I extended an invitation to visit Israel in the near future and he accepted and we will welcome him in due course in Israel," said Mr. Herzog after meeting with the secretary general here.

In addition, Mr. Perez de Cuellar's personal envoy to the Middle East, Jean Claude Aime, also might go to Israel as "a matter of mutual convenience between the government of Israel and the secretary general," Mr. Herzog said.

Mr. Perez de Cuellar said he would discuss Mr. Aime's visit -- which he termed "very useful" -- with Yoval Aridor, Israel's ambassador to the United Nations.

On Tuesday, the secretary general said he was considering sending Mr. Aime to Israel and the occupied territories because he was deeply concerned about the situation there, his spokeswoman said.

But before sending the envoy, Mr. Perez de Cuellar would await the results of an upcoming Security Council meeting on the occupied territories, diplomatic sources said.

They said the council might meet Friday in an effort to wrap up their debate on the region which began October 5.

Washington had recommended the Aime mission as a way for Israel to improve its relations with the United Nations that were strained after Israel refused to accept a U.N. delegation to investigate an October 8 incident in East Jerusalem where 18 Palestinians were killed by Israeli security forces.

The Security Council has twice adopted resolutions supporting the inquiry and has condemned Israel for refusing to accept it.

HANOI (NOV 21) - The Vietnamese government authorised Indonesian group Summa to open a joint venture commercial bank in Ho Chi Minh City with the new Vietnamese Bank of Trade and Industry, the official press said Wednesday.

The commercial bank, the first foreign bank allowed to operate in Vietnam, will open January 1, the Vietnam News Agency (VNA) said.

VNA said the new Vietnam-Indonesian bank would be a 50 percent joint venture, with a capitalisation of 10 million dollars, under the name Indovina.

The agreement was signed during an official visit to Vietnam by Indonesian President Suharto and Radius Prawiro, the minister for economic, financial and industrial affairs.

Indovina opened its office in the building of the Central Bank two years ago and has been waiting since then to get its operating licence.

Vietnam has just created four new national banks, from which the Bank for Trade and Industry was chosen to work with Summa.

PARIS, (NOV 21) - France expects a United Nations resolution sanctioning use of force against Iraq to be voted "within the next three weeks" but will insist that it be acted upon only after further consultations with countries concerned, President Francois Mitterrand said Wednesday.

The French president told a press conference following the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe summit in Paris, that France was "ready to take part in talks to draw up a resolution in the Security Council, comprising an eventual recourse to force".

"Our foreign ministers and diplomats must begin discussions on the text," he said, remarking however that France's commitment would "depend on what text is adopted", he said.

He said the resolution implied "no automatic response" and "the powers in a position to exercise this military action must be given the chance to discuss matters further before any final decision."

Mr. Mitterrand said he felt Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev had "hinted now and again" that the Soviet Union might support a U.N. resolution on force against Iraq "especially if this were to weigh crucially on the final decision" of President Saddam Hussein.

He said "as time goes on with no real process being achieved, the danger becomes greater."

Mr. Mitterrand said he had explained the French position to U.S. President George Bush at a private dinner on Sunday night.

"Bush asked me did I think a new resolution should be adopted sanctioning possible use of force. I told him yes."

This was because "several countries like France and the Soviet Union and perhaps a few others prefer maybe not to read Article 51 as authorising the start of a conflict", Mr. Mitterrand said.

Article 51 allows a country to go to the aid of another country with which it has a defence agreement. This is not the case for France and Kuwait.

SADDLE RIVER, NJ (NOV. 21) - A Japanese businessman has bought former president Richard Nixon's house for 2.4 million dollars, a real estate agent said Wednesday.

Broker Mary Lenk confirmed the sale of the seven-bedroom home but would not identify the buyer and said she did not know whether it had been bought last week as a residence or an investment.

The home's price tag was reduced from 3.25 million dollars to 2.9 million dollars last summer.

Mr. Nixon and his wife, Pat, are moving to a nearby three-bedroom condominium because they decided a smaller home would be easier and less expensive to maintain, a family spokesman said last spring.

They had bought the house in 1981 for 1.25 million dollars and made 300,000 dollars worth of improvements, the spokesman said.

Mr. Nixon served as president from January 1969 to 1974, when he resigned amid the Watergate scandal.

MUSCAT (NOV. 21) - Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz Wednesday had talks with Oman's ruler, Sultan Qabus bin Said, during which he handed him a message from President Saddam Hussein on the Gulf crisis, Oman radio said.

The message stressed Iraq's approval of the principle of dialogue as means to find a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis, the radio said without giving details.

Some news media reports said Aziz might leave Muscat for Sanaa where U.S. Secretary of State James Baker is expected Thursday for talks with Yemeni leaders on the Gulf crisis. Yemen has supported Iraq in the crisis sparked by the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Oman, a member of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council (Gcc), has condemned the invasion and repeatedly called for an unconditional Iraqi troop withdrawal from the emirate.

NEW YORK, United Nations (NOV 21) - The United Nations General Assembly has adopted 20 texts on decolonization issues, among them measures reaffirming the independence rights of New Caledonia, Western Sahara, Bermuda, British Virgin Islands, the Cayman Islands, the Turks and Caicos, Montserrat and Saint Helena.

All of the texts were adopted Tuesday night, some without votes.

The General Assembly also stressed the right of self-determination of the U.S.-controlled territories of Guam, American Samoa and the U.S. Virgin Islands, in addition to New Zealand's Tokelau island.

Within a few weeks the U.N. Security Council should receive a report from the Secretary General on the Western Sahara detailing involvement of U.N. diplomatic and military components in setting up and overseeing a self-determination referendum in that former Spanish colony.

Optimistic predictions out of the U.N. set the Western Sahara referendum for some time early next year.

A consensus resolution called on Britain and Spain to continue their negotiations on resolving Gibraltar's sovereignty. The two countries agreed in 1984 to negotiate a possible return of the Rock -- British for three centuries -- to modern Spain.

The General Assembly also repudiated anew the policy of apartheid in South Africa, while a Kuwaiti representative condemned the hypocrisy of the Iraqi delegation's votes in favor of self-determination resolutions after invading his country August 2.

COPENHAGEN (NOV. 21) - Danish Premier Poul Schlueter Wednesday announced early general elections for mid-December following the breakdown of prolonged talks between his minority government and the opposition on a tax reform.

Schlueter's Conversative People's Party-led coalition and the opposition Social Democrats had tried for several months to iron out their differences on a planned tax reform.

Schlueter's minority coalition government needs the support from the Social Democrats, which emerged as the biggest party in the last elections in May 1988, to obtain a majority in parliament.

The early poll is expected to be held either December 12 or 13.

ISLAMABAD (NOV. 21) - Two pro-Western leaders of the Afghan resistance movement categorically denied Wednesday that the mujahedeen was having anything to do with Afghan President Najibullah at supposed peace talks in Geneva.

The leaders, quoted by the rebel news agency MIDIA monitored here, called Mr.

Najibullah a "killer of the people of Afghanistan."

Sibgatullah Mojaddedi and Sayed Gailani, leaders of two small parties with links to former king Zaher Shah, denied through the agency that the mujahedeen was having any contact -- direct or indirect -- with Mr. Najibullah.

In a press conference Wednesday in Geneva, Mr. Najibullah refused to reveal the identity of the members of the resistance with whom he was meeting.

Mr. Mojaddedi, leader of the National Liberation Front, is on a visit to Iran and Mr. Gailani, head of the National Islamic Front, is undergoing "medical treatment" in London, resistance sources in Pakistan said.

A number of mujahedeen representatives believe Mr. Najibullah went to Switzerland in an attempt to widen dissent within the resistance, which has a number of factions, before he is ousted from power by a settlement to the conflict.

BUENOS AIRES (NOV. 21) - Argentine government officials Wednesday signed over the state-owned airline to a Spanish-Argentine joint venture in Argentina's second major privatization since the Peronist government of Carlos Menem gained power 16 months ago.

The agreement marking the transfer of Aerolineas Argentinas to a consortium formed by Spain's Iberia, the Argentine Cielos del Sur, and Argentine investors was signed at 2030 GMT, government officials said.

Cielos del Sur is owner of the national coastal carrier Austral.

Iberia is the largest single shareholder in the consortium, although the Argentine Government (with a five percent holding) also has certain veto rights.

Other members of the consortium: Cielos del Sur, 12 percent; five local companies with a combined 53 percent; and the airline's employees, 10 percent.

Argentina's state telephone company Entel was the first major state-run business to be privatized by President Menem's administration November 8.

ST. CHARLES, MISSOURI, (NOV 21) - Child abuse charges have been dropped against 63-year-old rock and roll pioneer Chuck Berry, who agreed to a plea agreement on drug charges, his attorney said.

"I feel fantastic, because I hope and believe that the clearance will be as prominently exposed as the allegation," Mr. Berry said about the child abuse charges. "And therefore, I can go on with my life."

Mr. Berry, whose early hits include "Johnny B. Good," "Roll Over Beethoven," and "Sweet Little Sixteen" agreed Tuesday to serve two years of unsupervised probation on a marijuana charge as part of a plea agreement.

Mr. Berry was charged in July after drug agents searched his 60-hectare (150-acre) estate some 65 kilometers (40 miles) west of St. Louis.

He was originally charged with possession of more than 35 grams of marijuana and three charges of child abuse for making nude films of youths under age 17 for sexual gratification.

His attorney Wayne Schoeneberg said the tape was phony and that "somebody had slipped that videotape into evidence seized at his property."

WASHINGTON (NOV. 21) - The U.S. Energy Department reported Wednesday that U.S. oil companies have posted only modest increases in profits despite soaring oil prices provoked by the Gulf crisis.

The report said oil company profits from production nearly doubled in the third quarter, but most of those gains were offset by reduced earnings in the refining, marketing and chemical sectors.

Calvin Kent, administrator of the Energy Information Administration, which produced the study, said the surge in oil prices following Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait did not result in runaway profits for the oil companies.

"There's no statistical evidence that profiteering took place," he said.

The report did not provide figures for specific oil companies, but said that major U.S. oil companies posted a 1.7 per cent increase in profit in the period from July through September.

But the majors reported a 24 per cent increase in earnings from their petroleum businesses during the third quarter, while profits of their chemical subsidiaries declined by 50 per cent because of higher oil costs.

Earnings from petroleum production by eight oil companies rose 90 per cent to 1.5 billion dollars during the period but it was unclear to what extent those gains were offset by declines in refining profits.

Five companies reported declines in refinery profits of up to 46 per cent while six other companies said their refinery profits dropped by as much as 83 per cent.

U.S. independent oil and gas producers, on the other hand, reaped 102 million dollars in profit during the period, a 685 per cent increase over the same period of the previous year, when they earned only 13 million dollars.

Since the Iraqi invasion, oil prices have climbed from about 21 dollars a barrel to 41 dollars a barrel before subsiding to a little more than 30 dollars a barrel Wednesday.

The report said "the vast majority of the benefit of higher (oil) prices went to foreign interests, primarily foreign governments."

MOSCOW (NOV 21) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein must not be allowed to "bring the international community to its knees," Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev said in an interview with French and Soviet televison.

The Soviet leader, speaking after the end of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe in Paris, said, "I am convinced that we will resolve the (Gulf) conflict in the interests of all peoples."

He stressed that "all politicians are doing their best to avoid a military solution" to the crisis. "That seems to me to be the main guiding mark," he said.

It would be for the U.N. Security to council to take the "appropriate decision " Mr. Gorbachev said, although he would not be drawn on the question of whether Moscow would vote would vote in the Council for a resolution authorising the use of force to evict Iraq from Kuwait.

He said that in his meeting with U.S. President George Bush, "to the extent that the situation is not becoming clearer and is even getting more complex, we decided it required study at the level of the United Nations Security Council.

In discussions in Paris with U.S. officials, Moscow had appeared reluctant to back a U.N. resolution sought by Mr. Bush for the use of force.

MUSCAT, (NOV 22) - Iraq's Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz on Wednesday gave Omani leader Sultan Qaboos a message from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein calling for dialogue to resolve the Gulf crisis, the Omani news agency ONA reported.

Mr. Aziz arrived here unexpectedly earlier Wednesday to begin the first visit to a Gulf monarchy by an Iraqi official since Baghdad's seizure of Kuwait.

The Iraqi leader's message to the Omani leader "contained Iraq's agreement on the principle of dialogue to reach a peaceful settlement" in the Gulf, ONA said.

The message was Baghdad's reply to an appeal to the same effect made by Sultan Qaboos on Monday, the Omani news agency said.

Mr. Aziz travelled to Oman after a brief stop-over in Yemen. U.S. Secretary of State James Baker was also expected to visit both countries.

Mr. Aziz was met at the airport here by Omani Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Youssef bin Alawi Abdallah.

Oman, current head of the Gulf Cooperation Council that includes Kuwait, has urged Iraq to withdraw its troops from the emirate.

The government announced Monday its opposition to an emergency Arab summit, proposed by Morocco, as long as Baghdad refused to commit itself to evacuating its forces.

Before Oman, Mr. Aziz was briefly in Yemen, where authorities have criticized the Iraqi invasion but have shown sympathy for Baghdad.

Yemen in December will chair the 15-member U.N. Security Council, where the United States is promoting a resolution authorizing the use of force to dislodge Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

The Iraqi foreign minister's tour of the Gulf came hours before Mr. Baker was expected in Yemen and Oman, and just U.S. President George Bush arrived n Saudi Arabia.

Mr. Baker is due to meet in Oman with officials of Malaysia, which is also currently a member of the Security Council.

Since the August 2 invasion, Yemen has abstained three times from backing Council resolutions imposing sanctions on Baghdad and voted once against an anti-Iraqi measure.

HALLE, Germany (NOV 22) - The head of the Christian Social Union (CSU), one of Germany's three governing parties, on Wednesday warned that public hostility to Saddam Hussein could shift if German hostages in the Gulf are freed.

"I see a danger whereby public opinion could change after the release of a large number of German hostages in Iraq or Kuwait," CSU general secretary Erwin Huber told the Express, a local daily, in an interview for publication Thursday.

The Iraqi parliament Tuesday voted in favour of freeing 124 German hostages.

The CSU is the Bavarian branch of Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Christian Democratic Union (CDU), the main component of the centre-right government.

Mr. Huber added that the trip to Baghdad this month by former chancellor Willy Brandt had been an "essential factor" in the promised release of the hostages.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (NOV. 22) - U.S. President George Bush and Saudi King Fahd agreed here Wednesday to reject any partial solution in the Gulf crisis and said the use of force against Iraq could not be ruled out, U.S. Secretary of State James Baker said.

Mr. Bush arrived here earlier Wednesday from the European security summit in Paris to dicuss the Gulf crisis and celebrate the traditional Thanksgiving Day holiday Thursday with American troops deployed in the region.

The U.S. president met for two hours with King Fahd and held separate talks with the exiled ruler of Kuwait, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah.

Mr. Baker said there had been complete agreement between the Americans and Saudis on the need for full application of U.N. resolutions demanding Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait.

Washington and Jeddah agreed they would need utmost caution in respect of calls for partial solutions, he said, mentioning proposals which have been made under which Baghdad would keep Kuwaiti islands in the Gulf.

Mr. Bush will also visit Egypt and is to hold talks on Friday with Syrian President Hafez el-Assad in Geneva, Syrian and U.S. officials said.

Before that Mr. Bush will spend Thursday with some of the more than 230,000 U.S. troops deployed in the region to celebrate the Thanksgiving Day feast.

The president, who is accompanied on his whirlwind tour by his wife Barbara, is making the first such visit by an American leader to a potential war zone since Richard Nixon went to Vietnam in 1969.

Mr. Bush is the third U.S. chief executive to visit Saudi Arabia -- a traditional ally of Washington -- in 16 years. Mr. Nixon came to the kingdom in 1974 and Jimmy Carter visited in 1978.

On Thursday morning, the U.S. president will visit the Dhahran air base in eastern Saudi Arabia where some U.S. troops are stationed and will travel to about 350 kilometers (217 miles) from the Kuwaiti border.

He will spend time with each of the four U.S. armed forces services -- Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps -- but for security reasons his exact itinerary has not been divulged.

Mr. Bush will leave Thursday afternoon for Cairo where he is to meet with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

In Cairo, Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel Meguid said that if the U.N. Security Council adopted a resolution authorizing the use of force to dislodge Iraq from Kuwait, it would not alter his country's determination to seek a peaceful settlement.

In an unexpected announcement, the White House said late Wednesday that Mr. Bush would hold talks on Friday with his Syrian counterpart to discuss the Gulf crisis.

Mr. Assad has become an important ally in the international standoff against Iraq despite the fact that ties between Washington and Damascus have been tense for years.

SYDNEY (NOV. 21) - Australia's interest rates seem set to fall again, bringing relief to business and home owners in the wake of a tax-wage trade-off announced by Treasurer Paul Keating Tuesday.

Financial markets appeared to give their support Wednesday to Mr. Keating's belief that the move was "unambiguously good news" for Australia.

Backed by union leaders, the deal follows the unexpectedly lower September quarter inflation rate and will deliver an average 2.95 dollars (2.26 U.S.) on top of tax cuts already promised from January 1.

Australian shares opened higher Wednesday, continuing the rally that started after Tuesday's announcement.

Brokers said the local market was focused on domestic factors and flying in the face of a steep fall on Wall Street overnight.

The all industrials surged 16.3 points to 2071.5, the all resources added 2.2 to 833.3 and rises led falls by 70 to 47.

Business welcomed the news.

The major employer body, the Confederation of Australian Industry, said there was a "good deal of common sense" in the decision to substitute a further tax cut for a wage increase promised under a government agreement with the unions.

"A wage-tax trade-off which leads to lower inflation and therefore to lower rates of interest is in the best interests of the Australian economy," said confederation chief executive Ian Spicer.

A further cut in official interest rates foreshadowed by Mr. Keating seems likely, possibly within days.

Most economists believe the Government will ease monetary policy for the sixth time before the end of 1990 from the current 13 percent level of official cash.

Commercial and housing rates could fall even without a change in official rates after the announcement by the biggest private bank, Westpac, of a 0.5 per cent cut in its mortage rates to 15 percent.

TOKYO (NOV. 21) - The Japan-Soviet Trade Association on Wednesday unveiled a plan to cooperate in a large-scale project to modernize the Soviet port of Vanino on the Sea of Japan, in order to promote Soviet exports to Japan.

Spokesmen said the association, comprising more than 80 small and medium-size Japanese companies, is planning to organize a consortium jointly with major trading and manufacturing companies and banks in order to obtain package orders from the Soviet Union for the project, which is estimated to cost 500 million dollars.

The project is to construct cargo-handling facilities at Vanino, 400 kilometers (250 miles) northeast of Khabarovsk, for containers, timber, oil and petrochemical products for export to Japan, as part of Moscow's efforts for economic liberalization in the Soviet Far East, they said.

The association is currently sending a survey mission to the Soviet port in order to work out detailed plans after their return this weekend, they said.

TEHERAN (NOV. 21) - Iran on Wednesday charged that a United Nations report alleging human rights abuses here was unfounded and reflected a misunderstanding of Islamic law.

The foreign ministry, in a statement carried by Teheran Radio, was reacting to report Monday by U.N. investigator Reynaldo Galindo Pohl that human rights violations were common in Iran and that government officials did little to curb abuses or punish the abusers.

Mr. Pohl, who visited Iran in 1989 and in October of this year to research his 99-page document, also said executions remained high and expressed skepticism of televised confessions.

"Political pressure from the West led to Mr. Galindo Pohl to draft a report that did not take into consideration the testimony he heard here," the foreign ministry maintained, adding that the document was designed "to exercise political pressure on Iran."

The ministry statement said the allegations were "baseless" and resulted from a "misundertanding by the author of Islamic law."

"Iran's cooperation with the human rights commission of the United Nations can continue in a climate of mutual comprehension -- but on condition that there is no effort to impose values unsuited to Islam and the Islamic Republic," the statement concluded.

BAGHDAD (NOV. 21) - An official Iraqi newspaper on Wednesday warned that Iraq would strike directly at Israel and pro-U.S. Gulf states if it came under attack, adding that Iraqi military capabilities were unlimited.

Al-Thawra, the publication of the ruling Baath Party, issued the warning only hours before U.S. President George Bush was due in Saudi Arabia, where more than 100,000 U.S. ground and air forces deployed following Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

"If ... aggression takes place, Iraq, whose (military) capacities are unlimited, will destroy all nests of evil and corruption. All the little allies of the United States in the region will be the direct targets of lightning strikes," the paper said.

"Israel could no longer remain as it is now, continuing to implement its expansionist plan - of which very little would be left," according to Al-Thawra.

Iraq on Monday announced plans to send a quarter of a million reinforcements to Kuwait and southern Iraq, bringing its total troop strength there to 700,000.

Some 350,000 troops from the United States, Britain, France and several Arab, African and Asian nations are currently stationed in Saudi Arabia and elsewhere in the Gulf as part of a campaign to persuade Iraq to pull out of Kuwait.

TOKYO (NOV. 21) - The Bank of Japan has received few complaints from Japanese companies about the yen's recent surge against the dollar and other major currencies, a senior central bank official said Wednesday.

"Surprisingly, we heard very little complaints about the rapid appreciation of the yen from the industrial sector," the official told a news conference.

The official, who asked not to be named, said the apparent lack of concern about the yen's surge from more than 150 to the dollar in July to less than 125 in September partly reflected the fact that the currency had hit even lower levels more than three years ago. "They know the scenery," he said.

But the indifference also reflected the fact that the Japanese economy is now driven more by domestic demand than external demand, reversing the situation of several years ago when the yen's appreciation began, he said.

Major Japanese exporters have meanwhile insulated their overseas sales from being further damaged by a stronger yen by shifting production offshore to foreign countries, the official added.

SEOUL (NOV. 21) - U.S. Ambassador Donald Gregg said here Wednesday there were problems in bilateral relations between Washington and Seoul and that misunderstanding abounded.

In a speech to the Korean Council on Foreign Relations, called very strong by other foreign envoys present, Mr. Gregg decried current trade friction between the two allies and the growing anti-Americanism prevalent among students.

"Unfortunately, I cannot stand here today and tell you truthfully that all is well with the relationship," Mr. Gregg said.

"There is now a young generation of Koreans who do not hold or understand the special bond with the U.S. that their elders who remember the Korean War still harbor," he said.

Citing a recent poll which found that almost 80 per cent of South Koreans blamed the United States for the division of Korea, Mr. Gregg said: "I wonder whether these students will continue to hold such views when they graduate from university and enter business or government careers."

The majority of the speech was devoted to a growing rift between Seoul and Washington over U.S. pressure on a reluctant South Korea to open its markets and end what foreign partners view as descriminatory trade practices.

"Misperceptions abound. Negative views of America have become widespread in Korea as outdated perceptions of U.S. influence on the peninsula lag behind the reality," he said.

In the United States, reports of violent anti-U.S. demonstrations and "the perception of (South) Korea as a mercantilist trader have contributed to an erosion of support for Korean positions on both trade and security," he said.

Mr. Gregg said it was in the interests of both countries to avoid emotionalism as the old relationship, based mostly on security issues, became more complicated.

MANILA, Nov 21 (AFP) - Philippine sugar production is expected to dip by five to six per cent due to damage wrought by killer typhoon Mike, Agriculture Secretary Senen Bacani said Wednesday.

Agricultural losses alone totalled 1.5 billion pesos (54 million dollars), "mostly sugar", he told reporters.

From the fiscal year beginning October 1, Manila has a 15.8 per cent share of the U.S. market representing an annual quota of 262,147 tonnes, according to the U.S. agriculture department.

Official figures for total Philippine sugar production last year were not immediately available.

Typhoon Mike ravaged the central islands last week including Panay and Negros, the country's sugar bowl, leaving nearly 300 people dead.

LONDON (NOV. 21) - Guinness, the British beer and spirits giant, Wednesday announced a 518-million pound (1.02-billion dollar) takeover bid of the Spanish brewery La Cruz del Campo.

Seville-based La Cruz del Campo is Spain's biggest brewery with a 22-per- cent share of the domestic market.

The brewery's main shareholders have accepted the buy-in which will push Guinness Brewing Worldwide from 17th to 12th position in a list of the world's biggest breweries.

The takeover will also re-balance Guinness's overall production, with beer falling back to spirits after the 1986 takeover of Distillers.

With Distillers which holds more than one third of the worldwide whisky market Guinness became one of the four big spirits makers, along with Grand Metropolitan, Allied Lyons and Seagram.

The Cruz del Campo deal will also introduce a range of lager beers to match Guinness's preference for stouts.

Cruz del Campo last year reported a pretax profit of 58 million pounds (114 million dollars) and a 237-million pound (467-million dollar) turnover.

ATHENS (NOV 21) EFE - The extreme leftist November 17 group Wednesday claimed responsibility for an assassination attempt on Greek shipping magnate Vardis Vardinoyannis.

In a statement sent to the socialist daily Epikerotita, November 17 said the car-bomb attack Tuesday was to protest the alleged mafioso methods used by the Vardinoyannis family.

Vardinoyannis and his bodyguards escaped unharmed from the attack which damaged nearby cars and shattered the windows of shops and houses.

The Greek conservative government and the socialist opposition have both condemned the assassination attempt.

In the last 16 years, the November 17 group has killed 14 Greek and U.S. citizens, including a U.S. military attache who died in a similar car-bomb attack in June 1988.

Paris (NOV. 21) EFE - Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney said Wednesday he had promised Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev urgent food aid to help ease the expected food supply crisis in the Soviet Union this winter.

Mulroney met Wednesday with Gorbachev in Paris and said new credit terms extended to the Soviet Union would be +reasonable and favorable+ as a way of showing Canada's support for reforms in the Soviet Union.

Mulroney said Canada would extend the Soviet Union credit in excess of its present credit line of dlrs 850 million to help it get through the winter, and said the Soviets had requested meat, powdered milk, butter, oil and other staples.

The Canadian premier also said the Gulf crisis had dominated informal discussions at this week's Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe summit in Paris.

He said he believed the United Nations Security Council would be convened in the +coming weeks+ for a new analysis of the Gulf crisis.

In response to a question asking if he would support a resolution being sought by the United States in favor of using force to solve the Gulf crisis, Mulroney said he would not support one that said "we go to war tomorrow morning".

Joe Clark, Canada's secretary of state for external affairs, said there was complete agreement among the 34 nations attending the Paris summit to seek a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis.

BRATISLAVA, CZECHOSLOVAKIA (NOV 21) EFE - The Slovak parliament has approved an agreement that allows it to share some powers with the Czechoslovak federal government but falls short of calls for full Slovakian autonomy.

"The Slovaks need the Czechs and the Czechs need the Slovaks," said Vladimir Meciar, president of the Slovak government, following the vote late Tuesday.

Legislators voted 90-14 with 22 abstentions in favor of the proposed agreement called the Competency Law.

It must also be approved by the Czech Parliament and the Federal Assembly.

Reached last week, it specifies the areas of authority of the two republics' governments and leaves foreign and monetary policy to the federal government.

But members of the separatist National Slovak Party and the Christian Democratic Movement argue that Slovakia should form an independent nation.

Up until the last moment, political observers doubted whether the Slovak Parliament would pass the proposed accord.

LIMA (NOV. 21) EFE - Striking Peruvian health workers began drifting back to work Wednesday after the government threatened to sack them and sent in security forces to keep hospitals open.

In a special decree, President Alberto Fujimori declared the nation's hospitals under a state of emergency, accusing the 50,000 striking workers of "abandoning" the public and attacking the system, and said if the workers did not return to work immediately they would be fired.

The decree, published in the daily El Peruano, accuses health workers of sabotaging the social security system and allows security forces to enter hospitals to maintain emergency services.

Some 5,000 health workers have gone back to work, although pickets are slowing down the return.

Last Saturday, Fujimori introduced the legislation which forbids public sector strikes and allows the government to sack workers in such key industries as transport, hospitals, telecommunications, food, and water, who break the new laws.

Saturday's legislation was introduced to counter a week-long strike by 600,000 state workers who, like the health employees, are protesting a government program of cutbacks which has drastically reduced public spending.

Striking workers have already clashed with police in the capital, while labor leaders have said they will intensify their efforts if the government tries to infringe on union's rights.

State workers are also calling for wage hikes to match inflation, which has reduced spending power to less than half what it was in December 1987.

GUARNIZO, SPAIN (NOV 21) EFE - A ball of nylon rope weighing 60.5 kg was found Wednesday in the stomach of a slaughtered cow in northern Spain, a livestock trader said.

Fernando Torre, who owned the cow, said the rope was found after the animal was killed in a slaughterhouse in Guarnizo in the northern province of Cantabria.

Before its death, the cow had given birth to a calf.

The vet who attended the birth believed that the cow had a second calf in its uterus, but thought it was dead as he could not hear its heartbeat, Torre said.

Slaughterhouse boss Ricardo Grijuela said the animal "had to swallow the cord during a period of 24 hours for it to reach its stomach."

BOGOTA (NOV. 21) EFE - Security forces Wednesday killed five kidnappers, including a woman, in a successful bid to rescue a hostage held in the western Colombian city of Medellin, police said.

In a 30-second operation, the elite Anti-Extortion and Kidnap Unit (UNASE) rescued businessman Alberto de la Roche from the upmarket district of El Poblado where he was being held on the top floor of a luxury building.

De la Roche, owner of a timber firm, was abducted three weeks ago in the town of Rio Negro near Medellin, capital of the department of Antioquia.

The kidnappers had demanded a dlrs one million ransom for his release.

UNASE, which comprises 100 of the best men from the Armed Forces and police units, was created last month in the department of Antioquia to counteract a rising wave of kidnappings.

Nearly 300 people have been kidnapped so far this year in Antioquia.

WASHINGTON, (NOV 21) - The United States could unleash a devasting agricultural trade war against the European Community if the EC fails to compromise on further reductions in subsidies to its farmers, a member of the House Agricultural Committee warned Wednesday.

Failure to negotiate a compromise, +would mean the beginning, I think, of a trade war on agricultural issues between the United States and the EC+, Democrat Rep. Dan Glickman of Kansas said after a meeting Wednesday with European agricultural attaches.

+That is a war that would be very expensive for both sides and it is one that could lead to very serious political and economic ramifications in the world,+ Glickman added.

The EC, which groups 12 European nations, has agreed to cut subsidies to its farmers by 30 per cent over a ten-year period during four years of talks aimed at pulling down barriers to international trade.

But the United States has called for a 75 per cent cut in farm grants and a 90 per cent cut in farm export subsidies under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) Uruguay Round of talks which are due to end in December with an agreement slashing trade barriers in 15 areas.

Earlier Wednesday, U.S. Commerce Department officials said that the United States was considering doubling import duties on several EC agricultural products in response to the loss of some dlrs 240 million worth of maize and sorghum exports to Spain and Portugal because of EC subsidies.

Glickman said he was +very pessimistic+ about reaching a compromise agreement on the farm subsidies meeting before the delegates from the 100 GATT signatory nations are due to meet in the Belgium capital December 3.

+The EC with ten million farmers, I just never thought they would be very interested in a meaningful GATT agreement,+ Glickman said.

+I think it's a mistake on (the EC's) part not to push the reduction on export subsidies. They should understand if we don't get a GATT agreement, Congress... will become much more assertive and probably much more protectionist,+ he added.

But Glickman held out some faint hope that the deadline for an agreement could be extended into 1991.

+I think it's possible, particularly if the parties can maybe work out some language that would make it look like it didn't end in disaster,+ he said, but added that +right now (I) don't see an agreement coming out that's meaningful or substantive+.

But chief U.S. trade negotiator Carla Hills said earlier this month that she was against any extension of the deadline for an agreement on agricultural subsidies.

If an accord on extending the deadline were reached this could pave the way for an agreement on 14 other trade areas, including computer software, at the meeting in Brussels.

But Glickman's pessimism on a successful conclusion to the Uruguay Round was echoed Wednesday by the permanent secretary of the Latin American Economic System, Carlos Perez del Castillo.

Perez de Castillo, a Uruguayan, said the subsidies dispute had +seriously comprimised+ the results of the Uruguay Round and predicted serious consequence for Latin America if a trade war broke out between the EC and the United States.

Uruguay forms part of the Cairns group of agriculture- exporting nations which is backing massive cuts to farm subsidies.

BEIJING (NOV. 21) XINHUA - CHEN MINZHANG, CHINESE MINISTER OF PUBLIC HEALTH, CALLED ON MEDICAL DEPARTMENTS AT ALL LEVELS AND MEDICAL SCHOOLS TO PAY MORE ATTENTION TO THE TRAINING OF RURAL MEDICAL PERSONNEL SO AS TO MEET THE NEEDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE.

THE MINISTER, SPEAKING AT A NATIONAL MEDICAL EDUCATION MEETING WHICH CONCLUDED HERE TODAY, SAID THAT THE HEALTH OF CHINA'S 850 MILLION PEASANTS VERY MUCH DEPENDS ON RURAL MEDICAL WORKERS WHOSE PROFESSIONAL QUALITIES MUST BE RAISED.

IN FACT, HE SAID, MANY MEDICAL WORKERS IN THE COUNTRYSIDE, INCLUDING SOME SENIOR DOCTORS, ARE NOT TRAINED BY MEDICAL SCHOOLS.

ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL STATISTICS, IN 1989 THERE WERE IN CHINA 1.25 MILLION DOCTORS PRACTICING WESTERN OR TRADITIONAL CHINESE MEDICINE. ABOUT 772,000 OF THEM SERVE THE URBAN RESIDENTS WHO MAKE UP 20 PERCENT OF THE COUNTRY'S TOTAL POPULATION. THE RURAL RESIDENTS, ACCOUNTING FOR 80 PERCENT OF THE TOTAL POPULATION, HAVE ONLY 484,000 MEDICAL WORKERS, ABOUT ONE-FOURTH OF THE URBAN LEVEL IN TERMS OF THE NUMBER OF DOCTORS FOR EVERY 1,000 PEOPLE.

TO TACKLE THE PROBLEM, THE MINISTER SAID THAT EFFORTS MUST BE MADE TO TRAIN RURAL MEDICAL PERSONNEL WHILE ADOPTING POLICIES TO ENCOURAGE DOCTORS TO WORK IN THE COUNTRYSIDE.

TOKYO (NOV. 21) KYODO - TOSHIBA CORP. SAID WEDNESDAY IT HAS PUT ON THE DOMESTIC MARKET A DEVICE THAT CAN STORE AND REPRODUCE LARGE NUMBERS OF HIGH-DEFINITION TELEVISION (HDTV) PICTURES.

THE TFS-500, WHICH CONTAINS 864 4-MEGABIT DYNAMIC RANDOM ACCESS MEMORY (DRAM) CHIPS, CAN STORE UP TO 72 HDTV PICTURES -- THE LARGEST CAPACITY OF ANY DEVICE OF ITS KIND, ACCORDING TO COMPANY OFFICIALS.

THE PRODUCT ALLOWS STILL PICTURE AND SLOW MOTION PLAYBACK. THE COMPANY EXPECTS IT TO BE USED AS THE CORE OF HDTV IMAGING SYSTEMS IN ART GALLERIES AND MEDICAL APPLICATIONS, AS WELL AS FOR COMPUTER GRAPHICS.

HDTV IS AN ADVANCED TV SYSTEM OFFERING MUCH SHARPER IMAGES AND BETTER SOUND THAN CONVENTIONAL TV. BECAUSE AN HDTV IMAGE CONTAINS FIVE TIMES THE PICTURE ELEMENTS OF A CONVENTIONAL ONE, AN IMMENSE MEMORY CAPACITY IS REQUIRED FOR STORAGE.

THERE IS INCREASING DEMAND FOR LARGER MEMORY STORAGE DEVICES THAT ALLOW REPLAY AND MANIPULATION OF DIGITIZED HDTV IMAGES, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

THEY SAID THE TFS-500 IS AVAILABLE IN THREE MODELS. THE CHEAPEST ONE, WITH CAPACITY TO STORE 12 FRAMES, SELLS FOR 9.8 MILLION YEN, WHILE THE MODEL STORING 36 FRAMES IS 13.4 MILLION YEN. THE LARGEST MODEL, WITH A CAPACITY OF 72 FRAMES, COSTS 18.8 MILLION YEN.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 21) KYODO - A SENIOR U.S. DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY (DOE) OFFICIAL PREDICTED WEDNESDAY WORLD OIL PRICES WOULD PROBABLY STABILIZE AROUND 25 DOLLARS A BARREL THROUGHOUT 1991, BARRING WAR IN THE PERSIAN GULF.

AT A PRESS CONFERENCE ON PETROLEUM PRICES AND THE PERSIAN GULF, CALVIN KENT, DIRECTOR OF ENERGY INFORMATION ADMINISTRATION, SAID THAT BY SPRING 1991 WORLD PETROLEUM PRODUCTION SHOULD BE 1 MILLION BARRELS A DAY ABOVE THE PRE-KUWAIT INVASION LEVELS.

HE NEVERTHELESS CAUTIONED WORLD OIL PRODUCTION IS AT MAXIMUM, LEAVING NO ''CUSHION'' OF SPARE CAPACITY IN THE EVENT OF ANOTHER SUPPLY DISRUPTION.

''WE ARE RUNNING AT FULL SPEED WITHOUT A SPARE TIRE,'' KENT TOLD REPORTERS.

THE ENERGY INFORMATION ADMINISTRATION RELEASED A REPORT EXONERATING THE U.S. OIL INDUSTRY AS A WHOLE FROM CLAIMS OF PROFITEERING WHEN THE UNITED NATIONS EMBARGO AGAINST IRAQ LED TO HIGHER WORLD OIL PRICES, AND POINTING TO FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS AS THE GREATEST BENEFICIARIES OF HIGHER PRICES.

''THERE IS NO STATISTICAL EVIDENCE THAT (ON THE AVERAGE) OIL COMPANIES HAD UNUSUAL PROFITS,'' SAID KENT. HE SAID INDIVIDUAL OIL COMPANY PROFITS WERE MIXED, WITH COMPANIES THAT DEPEND ON FOREIGN OIL SHOWING LOWER PROFITS.

KENT CITED THE PREVIOUS LOW RETAIL OIL PRICES RELATIVE TO THE CRUDE AND SPOT MARKET AS EVIDENCE THAT U.S. OIL COMPANIES HAD ''EXERCISED RESTRAINT.''

''RECENTLY CRUDE PRICES HAVE DROPPED, AND OIL COMPANIES ARE MAINTAINING RETAIL PRICES TO MAKE UP'' FOR EARLIER LOSSES, KENT SAID.

KENT SAID INCREASED DEMAND IMMEDIATELY PUSHED PRICES UP AS NERVOUS CORPORATIONS STOCKPILED PETROLEUM IN ANTICIPATION OF FURTHER SUPPLY DISRUPTIONS. HE CALLED THIS ''PERFECTLY RATIONAL BEHAVIOR.''

''ALL (ACTIVITY IN) THE FUTURES MARKET WAS DONE BY THESE COMPANIES, NOT BY SPECULATIVE INVESTORS,'' KENT SAID. ''THE MARKET WORKED, IT JUST DIDN'T WORK THE WAY WE WANTED IT TO.''

A STATEMENT BY THE CONSUMER GROUP CITIZEN ACTION DISPUTED THE DOE CONCLUSIONS, CALLING THE DOE REPORT ITS ''LATEST EFFORT TO DENY REALITY.''

CITIZEN ACTION SPOKESMAN ED ROTHSCHILD, SPEAKING AFTER DOE'S PRESS CONFERENCE, SAID KENT FAILED TO EXPLAIN HOW COMPANIES HOLDING LARGE PETROLEUM RESERVES BEFORE THE EMBARGO PROFITED ENORMOUSLY FROM THE SUDDEN PRICE INCREASE.

''WALL STREET ANALYSTS ARE FINDING THAT OIL COMPANIES ACCOUNTANTS USED ALL SORTS OF SCHEMES TO UNDERREPORT PROFITS IN ORDER TO AVOID WINDFALL PROFITS TAX '' ED ROTHSCHILD SAID.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (NOV. 21) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"Market sentiment toward the dollar seems to have changed just slightly," says ROBERT HATCHER, corporate dealer ar BARCLAYS BANK PLC. But based on underlying fundamentals, "the dollar doesn't have a leg to stand on," says Mr. Hatcher, adding that "lower still seems to be the longer term direction." (WSJ, 11/21)

Given the fundamental bearishness still weighing on the dollar, the Gulf crisis alone isn't a good enough reason to buy dollars, but it's a good enough to want to reduce oversold positions, says KEITH RAPHAEL, second vice president at CHASE MANHATTAN BANK in New York. (WSJ, 11/21)

ERIC MILLER, chief market strategist at DONALDSON LUFKIN & JENRETTE SECURITIES CORP., says that it is likely the Fed will meet investor expectations for another short-term rate cut before the end of the year, but he also predicts that the looming recession will be more severe than many investors now assume. (WSJ, 11/21)

"The problem here is not the level of interest rates, the problem here is the liquidity," says MONTE GORDON at DREYFUS CORP. "The absence of liquidity in the system is what will constrict the ability of the system to regroup and to grow back up again. You can always lower rates, but if the money isn't available you have a very serious problem. So what you are looking at here is a significantly larger effort on the part of the Fed will be required to ... re-liquify the economy. I don't think we will begin to see the effects of that until sometime around the second-quarter or the middle of 1991. But the [stock] market will begin to move earlier than that. Markets begin to rise during a recession, not after the recession." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 11/20)

The Treasury yield curve flattens out as investors see encouraging signs in curbing inflation. JEREMY GLUCK, an economist at MITSUBISHI BANK, says, "I think it's telling me people are a little less worried about inflation than they were a few months ago. There is some evidence it's not feeding through the economy like some people feared it would." (WSJ, 11/21)

"Clearly, the commodity markets are telling us that the primary impact of rising oil prices is to exacerbate woes in the economy rather than to promote an acceleration in inflation," says WARD McCARTHY, a managing director at STONE & McCARTHY RESEARCH ASSOCIATES. "These [Treasury security] price movements are a leading indicator of what is in store for the economy in the months ahead." (WSJ, 11/21)

THE ECONOMY:

"Consumers are scared to death," says MARTIN REGALIA, an economist for the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF SAVINGS INSTITUTIONS. "They're concerned about their incomes." (NYT, 11/21)

Housing starts have "gone off a cliff," says KENT COLTON, executive vice president of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF HOME BUILDERS. Colton says the industry needs help from Washington "to help achieve regulatory balance in order to ease the problems with the credit crunch. Interest rates are beginning to fall and that's positive. We think that will help, but we don't think this problem will be solved until the credit crunch is solved." "We keep thinking it'll bottom out - and it just doesn't," says ROBERT SHEEHAN, economist for the NATIONAL APARTMENT ASSOCIATION. "The numbers are really terrible," says BARBARA ALLEN at KIDDER PEABODY. "How can anyone avoid saying we're in a recession?" ("The Washington Post" and "USA Today" and CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 11/20 and 11/21)

ROBERT BRUSCA, economist at NIKKO SECURITIES, says the housing start report is "pretty poor" and suggests to him that "the housing dilemma is widening. It is spreading to parts of the country that so far had been relatively immune to some of the problems we had seen. It's bad news." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 11/20)

TOM HOLLOWAY, senior economist at the MORTGAGE BANKERS ASSOCIATION, calls housing starts "a very dismal report." He says, "Consumer confidence has been hit hard by the Mideast crisis, and unemployment has taken its toll as well." ("Investor's Daily", 11/21)

IN WASHINGTON:

"Keep lending to your good customers," TREASURY SECRETARY NICHOLAS BRADY is advising bankers. "Let's not overreact to the economy or the regulators. ... Don't use unrealistically negative scenarios in evaluating loans. ... Stand by your customers." The remarks came Tuesday night in a speech to the ARTHRITIS FOUNDATION OF AMERICA. ("USA Today", 11/21)

HAPPY THANKSGIVING! We at "Market Consensus" wish to take the opportunity to thank our loyal subscribers and friends for their support. LONDON (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - B.A.T. Industries today issued the following summary of the company's quarterly report to September 1990:

B.A.T. INDUSTRIES
Nine Months Results
(In millions of pounds sterling except per share amounts)

	1990	1989	Percent Change
Continuing Group turnover (including Farmers' exchanges)	13,846	12,623	+10
Continuing Group trading profit	795	1,274	-38
Pre-tax profit	599	1,072	-44
Earnings per share	12.79p	39.75p	-68

There were improved profit contributions from most businesses in both tobacco and financial services but the Group's performance was distorted by Eagle Star's results in the general business -- as a result, continuing group trading profit was significantly lower at 795 million pounds.

Tobacco: Great resilience demonstrated by trading profit up 13 percent to 703 million pounds -- good profit increases from Brown and Williamson, BATCo, BATCF and Imasco -- higher cigarette sales with further export growth.

Financial services: Further deterioration in operating environment in third quarter -- trading profit 110 million pounds for nine months despite worsening underwriting result and 212 million pounds exceptional investment depreciation at Eagle Star. Higher profits from Farmers, Allied Dunbar and Eagle Star Life. Eagle Star's general business solvency margin at 56 percent, a strong position relative to the industry. Total premium income, including the exchanges, rose to 6 billion pounds.

In a transitional year, the Group was affected by special factors, such as property finance indemnity reserving and the adjustment relating to extraordinary stock market volatility. Neither of these has significantly affected cash flow. However, these two factors, together with unrelieved ACT, have led to unusually high tax charge. Extraordinary profit of 439 million pounds reflects realized gains after tax from the disposal program.

EAST AURORA, NY (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Moog Inc. (AMEX: MOG.A, MOG.B), announced today that net earnings for fiscal 1990 were $6.9 million or $.86 per share, 41 percent above earnings for the previous year of $4.9 million or $.61 per share. The earnings improvement occurred on an 8 percent sales increase. Sales for 1990 were $304 million compared with $282 million for 1989.

Net earnings for the fourth fiscal quarter were $1.2 million or $.15 per share compared with $2.2 million or $.28 per share for the same quarter a year ago. Fiscal 1990 fourth quarter results reflected an after-tax charge of $1.2 million or $.15 per share for anticipated costs to be incurred over the next two years in the redesign and requalification of actuators for the Standard Missile program (Aegis). Robert T. Brady, president, said, "The original design requirements resulted in actuators that were too expensive. The new design will solve future cost problems for us, our customers and the Navy." Had this charge not been taken, fourth quarter earnings would have exceeded those of the same quarter a year ago.

Consolidated net sales of $77.2 million for the quarter were 9 percent above sales of $71.1 million for the fourth quarter of 1989. This increase occurred mostly in the international segment where sales for the quarter rose to $27.6 million from $22.3 million for the same quarter a year ago.

International segment sales for the year increased to $98.1 million from $83.7 million the previous year. This increase was partly due to stronger foreign currencies and also reflected continued sales growth in markets outside of the United States.

Net sales within the U.S. for fiscal 1990 increased by 4 percent to $206 million from $199 million a year earlier. Growth occurred largely in the missile systems and engine controls product lines.

Backlog of new orders on Sept. 30, 1990, was $237 million, up from backlog of $231 million at the end of the previous quarter and $236 million a year ago.

"We are pleased with our year-to-year earnings improvement," Brady said. "Historically, however, our net margins have been above the 2.3 percent on sales reported for fiscal 1990. We expect to improve our profit margins in the future."

Moog Inc. designs, manufactures and markets high-performance control components and systems for a wide range of defense, aerospace and industrial applications.

ATLANTA (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Richard M. (Dick) Stormont's election as the 1991 chairman of the board of the Georgia Hospitality & Travel Association (GHTA) signals new leadership for the statewide lodging, foodservice and travel organization responsible for industry lobbying and providing direction to Georgia's hospitality and travel-related businesses.

Stormont, a founding member of GHTA, views the association as a solid, effective organization for stimulating positive growth. "We are in the perfect position to dovetail our services and resources with other major tourism-related organizations to establish and cement Georgia's and Atlanta's premier position as the nation's travel and tourism arena.

"We are on the verge of tremendous opportunity for growth in the hospitality industry," said Stormont. "But if we are to remain Georgia's leading industry during this economically challenging and transitional period, it is imperative that we not allow the euphoria of the Olympics and the Super Bowl lull us into complacency.

"Our mandate is to become the world-class city that others expect and GHTA has an important obligation to its members and the state of Georgia in achieving that level of success."

Stormont brings more than 35 years of hotel management experience, including 22 years with the Marriott Corp., to his new position. He is founder, president and chief executive officer of The Stormont Companies Inc. and a director of six tourist and business-related organizations.

The Stormont Companies, established in 1984, is an Atlanta-based development and management group specializing in high quality hotels and resorts. Current operations include properties in Georgia, Florida and Virginia.

GHTA, the only trade group exclusively representing the interests of the hospitality and travel industry statewide, provides members a broad range of services in governmental affairs, education and information resources and communication. The group was formed in 1977 by the merger of five associations: the Georgia Hotel/Motel Association, the Georgia Restaurant Association, the Atlanta Hotel/Motel Association, the Atlanta Restaurant Association and the Georgia Travel Commission.

PORTLAND, Ore. (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - WTD Industries Inc. (NASDAQ: WTDI) reported a net loss of $8.8 million, or $1.42 per share, for the quarter ended Oct. 31, compared with net income of $2.2 million, or 33 cents per share, for the same period in 1989. Second quarter sales were $73.1 million, down 40 percent from the comparable period last year. The decrease in sales was attributable to a combination of lower production and lower product prices.

For the six months ended Oct. 31, the net loss was $16.1 million, or $2.59 per share, compared to net income of $8.6 million, or $1.31 per share, during the same period last year. Sales for the six months ended Oct. 31 were $170.9 million, compared to $242.1 million during the same period last year.

"As expected, the poor lumber market and depressed industry-wide conditions have continued. We are following our plan, which includes temporarily curtailing operations when they do not produce results exceeding shutdown costs, improving operational efficiencies at our mills, reducing long-term debt, and operating for cash flow," said WTD's President Bruce L. Engel.

"Despite the loss for the first six months, net cash flow from operations was a positive $3.5 million. Cash flow from operations, including reductions in inventories, accounts receivable and timber-related assets as well as receipt of tax refunds allowed the company to reduce its short and long-term debt balances by $6.5 million during the first six months and continue its capital improvements program.

We expect to receive additional cash from tax refunds, sales of harvested timberland, and other sources during the next several months. We remain confident that we have the resources and operational plan to carry us through these adverse times," he stated.

"Additionally, we continue to reduce corporate overhead and match management levels to operational activity. Our selling, general and administrative expense for the six months ended Oct. 31 was approximately 27 percent lower than the same period last year. In support of its overhead reduction program, officers of WTD have agreed to a 10 percent reduction in base salaries until profitability is restored. In addition, Andrew Franklin, executive vice president-operations, and Tore Steen, executive vice president-finance, have agreed to resign. These officers' duties will be allocated to existing WTD personnel," continued Engel.

"As we look ahead, we see several positive developments. First, log prices continue to fall from their peak in August, with log costs for our mills declining steadily since mid-September. Second, lumber production in the western United States has fallen as a result of production curtailments. According to the Western Wood Products Association, western lumber production fell 14 percent for the months from June through September compared to the same period last year. Western lumber production in October is expected to be more than 20 percent below last year's level. Reduced lumber production should provide greater stability to the depressed lumber market as well as continue downward pressure on log prices. Third, chip and by-product prices are expected to continue to increase in our third quarter," Engel stated.

"We believe the cyclical supply and demand problem facing lumber producers will correct itself, as it has historically. Profitability within the industry should be restored by the combination of lower log costs, less production and higher product prices," Engel concluded.

MILPITAS, Calif. (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Komag Inc. (NASDAQ: KMAG), the leading independent supplier of sputtered thin-film metallic disks for data storage applications, today announced that it is conducting negotiations with a third party for the acquisition of laboratory equipment and rights to certain patents and technical know-how for the development and manufacture of magnetic recording thin-film heads. If this transaction is completed, Komag plans to begin a research and development program to determine the feasibility of participation in the market for high quality thin-film heads.

"We are excited about the prospects of developing expertise and gaining new knowledge in the data storage components industry," stated Stephen C. Johnson, Komag Inc.'s president and chief executive officer. "We see a large benefit from this R&D project for our company because of the interdependency in a disk drive between our existing media products and thin-film heads," explained Johnson.

"We intend to pattern our head operations after our erasable, magneto-optics media program. Our two-year-old, internally funded magneto-optics media program has recently begun the transition from research to pilot production. Following this type of approach and assuming completion of the proposed transaction, Komag will commit prudent levels of capital through 1991 to acquire and advance its magnetic recording head efforts," commented Johnson. As a result of this new program, the company also anticipates that its research and development budget would increase as a percentage of sales from 6.5 percent in the third quarter of 1990 to about 8 percent during 1991. "We expect to conclude this acquisition of equipment and technology before the end of the year," noted Johnson.

Komag Inc. currently develops, manufactures and markets sputtered thin-film metallic disks for use in high-capacity, high-performance Winchester disk drives. Komag is the largest independent supplier of these disks to independent disk drive manufacturers and computer system manufacturers which build their own disk drives. Komag applies a recording layer only microinches thin onto a polished aluminum substrate using a sputtered or vacuum deposition technique similar to the way the semiconductor industry coats wafers with thin metallic films. Founded in 1983, the company maintains 360,000 square feet of manufacturing and administrative space in California. The company also manufactures and sells products through a joint venture, Asahi Komag Co., Ltd. which is among the top three media producers in Japan. Komag employs 1,500 people. The company is traded on the NASDAQ over-the-counter market under the symbol KMAG.

Revenues were $85,170,000, compared with $75,174,000 reported in 1989's third quarter, a 13 percent increase. NCS recorded a one-time charge to operations of $4.6 million or approximately $.18 per share in the third quarter of 1989, related to discontinuation of a software development project.

Nine month revenues increased 12 percent to $230,472,000 compared with $205,834,000 in 1989. Income from operations grew 105 percent to $19,596,000, compared with $9,580,000 a year ago. HIGH POINT, NC (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Culp, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: CULP) today reported a 41 percent gain in earnings per share for its second fiscal quarter. The higher earnings in the latest period, combined with the sharp increase in income in the first quarter, led to a 56 percent advance in earnings per share for the first half of the company's 1991 fiscal year.

For the three months ended October 28, 1990, Culp reported net income of $1,076,000, up from $753,000 in the year-earlier period. Earnings totaled $0.24 per share in the second quarter compared with $0.17 per share a year ago. Net sales for the quarter amounted to $46,725,000 versus $43,864,000 in the second quarter of fiscal 1990.

The second quarter results brought net income for the first half to $1,726,000 up from $1,123,000 in the year-earlier period. Earnings per share for the first six months totaled $0.39 versus $0.25 a year ago. Net sales for the first half were $88,443,000, up from $83,074,000 in the first half of fiscal 1990.

Robert G. Culp, III, chief executive officer, said, "As we had anticipated, the increase in sales during the second quarter resulted in a sharp improvement in the company's profitability. Our ongoing modernization program as well as continuing actions to contain operating costs have each contributed to the sound performance in both sales and earnings thus far in fiscal 1991."

Culp indicated that although sales of the company's upholstery fabrics remained generally favorable throughout the second quarter, a slowing in incoming orders has recently become apparent.

He remarked, "Our backlogs have now declined in both upholstery fabrics and mattress ticking, reflecting the prevailing softness in demand in the home furnishings industry. This trend adds a note of caution to our outlook for Culp's results over the remainder of this fiscal year."

Culp said, "Fiscal 1991 as a whole should still represent a year of meaningful progress for the company. We are particularly pleased with the major initiatives underway to enhance Culp's competitive position in our target markets.

"We are benefiting importantly from an increased emphasis on exports and sales to specialty fabric markets and are confident about the opportunity to broaden the company's customer base further. Supporting this effort is Culp's sound financial position, including the availability of sufficient internally generated cash to fund our modernization projects."

Culp, Inc. is a leading manufacturer and marketer of fabrics for the furniture bedding, recreational vehicle, and institutional furnishings markets. The company's common shares are traded in the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol CULP.

SAN FRANCISCO (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - The editors of Motor Trend magazine today announced that the Mazda Navajo, which has been on sale for less than 10 weeks, has been named the 1991 Motor Trend "Truck of the Year."

To win the award, the Mazda Navajo had to survive a rigorous testing schedule involving a wide variety of road conditions and performance tests. After the testing the Navajo had outscored the other five pickup trucks and sport utility vehicles in the competition.

Of the winning Navajo, the editors of Motor Trend said, "Priced at $17,560, the Navajo enjoys a significant cost advantage over virtually all of its comparably equipped competitors. Despite this key edge, it boasts an impressive array of standard features. Factor in Mazda's three-year, 50,000-mile zero-deductible limited warranty and you can see why the Navajo emerged as the top pick."

In accepting the award, Clark J. Vitulli, chief operating officer for Mazda Motor of America Inc., said, "We are very proud that Motor Trend has chosen to name the Mazda Navajo as its 1991 'Truck of the Year.' Simply put, Mazda is on a roll, and this is just the latest evidence of that fact. Our 1991 product line features a wide range of cars and trucks which have not only boosted our sales to record levels, but have also garnered the praise of the industry's critics and experts alike. We are pleased that Motor Trend has seen the same level of excellence in the Navajo that we felt was there."

The 1991 Mazda Navajo, which went on sale in mid-September, is designed to net new standards for two-door sport utility vehicles in terms of interior room, ride comfort and both highway and off-highway performance. The Navajo is powered by a potent 4.0-liter V-6 engine. A Touch-Drive pushbutton shift-on-the-fly four-wheel drive system is standard, as is an impressive list of standard comfort and convenience features. Two optional Value Packs add even more equipment at a substantial savings.

The full story on the Motor Trend "Truck of the Year" is featured in the January 1991 issue, which goes on sale Dec. 11.

LIVINGSTON, NJ (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - The CIT Group, Inc. announced today that it has agreed to acquire the business and most of the loan assets of First Fidelity Bancorporation's commercial finance subsidiary, Fidelcor Business Credit Corp. (FBCC).

According to the terms of the agreement, CIT will acquire in excess of $500 million in assets. FBCC is an asset-based lender, with operating offices in New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles, as well as six regional loan production offices.

It is engaged in the business of providing secured loans to middle market companies for working capital, debt restructuring, refinancing, and other related purposes. FBCC's average loan size is $3 million.

Albert R. Gamper, Jr., CIT's president and chief executive officer, said, "This strategic purchase of a national lender in middle market commercial financing gives us immediate entry and significant presence in a business segment that we would otherwise have found difficult to penetrate. Because FBCC has such a strong marketing presence, it will retain a separate identity within the CIT business structure as a result of this acquisition."

Gamper continued, "The president of the new CIT unit will be Drew Neidorf, the current head of FBCC and a veteran of 15 years in the business. We anticipate retaining the services of the very talented people who have made FBCC a success. With their continued contributions, we expect strong market penetration and growth for the new business."

Tony Terracciano, First Fidelity Bancorporation chairman and chief executive officer, said: "FBCC is a profitable, well-managed company. Its business simply was inconsistent with our focus on consolidating and building our regional consumer and commercial banking businesses in our primary New Jersey and Pennsylvania markets." The acquisition is subject to customary closing conditions, including regulatory approvals.

The CIT Group is a $11 billion company providing businesses in a variety of industries with flexible funding alternatives and financial advisory services. Founded in 1908, the company has a leadership position in secured business lending for corporations, manufacturers and dealers.

DALLAS (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Edisto Resources Corporation (AMEX: EDS) announced today that it has been informed by Hall-Houston Oil Company (Hall-Houston) that Hall-Houston has withdrawn its proposed initial public offering of common stock. Edisto and Hall-Houston each currently own a 47.3 percent general partner interest in Hall-Houston Offshore (Offshore), a Texas general partnership engaged in oil and gas exploration and development activities in the Gulf of Mexico.

Edisto and Hall-Houston plan to continue to participate as general partners in Offshore until March 1991, when the partnership will be dissolved. At that time, Hall-Houston may elect to make an additional capital contribution to Offshore in order to balance its ownership interest with Edisto as required by the Offshore partnership agreement, or the ownership interests will automatically be adjusted to be pro rata to the redetermined initial contributions by Hall-Houston and Edisto. Upon dissolution, Edisto would receive an undivided interest in its pro rata share of all assets and liabilities of Offshore.

James R. McNab, Jr., chairman of the board of Edisto, stated: "The uncertainties of the current situation in the Middle East, together with the uncertainties regarding the state of the U. S. economy, have combined to make this a very difficult time for a company to attempt to raise capital in the public markets. Despite the inability of Hall- Houston to consummate its public offering, Edisto expects to continue to be an active participant in exploration and development in the Gulf of Mexico. Our association with Hall-Houston has been successful and we look forward to continued dealings with Hall-Houston in the future.

DALLAS (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - American Realty Trust, Inc. (NYSE: ARB) today announced operating results for the third quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the company recorded net loss of $4.7 million, or 73 cents per share, on revenues of $1.0 million, compared with net income of $128,000, or 2 cents per share, on revenues of $2.7 million in the third quarter of the prior year. Equity in loss of investees, a non-cash item, reduced revenues $2.8 million and $2.0 million in the third quarter of 1990 and 1989, respectively.

Several factors contributed to the decline in financial results for 1990's third quarter compared with the third quarter of 1989. These included the decline in interest income of $2.2 million primarily because the company foreclosed four loans and changed the status of six others to nonaccruing. Revenue from property operations increased $1.1 million and property operations expenses and depreciation increased $1.3 million because the company acquired through foreclosure six properties since Sept. 30, 1989. Interest expense increased $1.8 million primarily because of increased bank borrowing. The company also had a third-quarter gain on sale of properties of $661,000, or 10 cents per share, compared with a $84,000, or 1 cent per share, gain on sale of properties in the third quarter of 1989.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the company recorded a net loss of $6.9 million, or $1.09 per share, on revenues of $7.7 million, compared with net income of $7.6 million, or 80 cents per share, on revenues of $14.2 million in the third quarter of 1989.

"As expected, American Realty's third-quarter financials reflect the problems certain assets in the portfolio are experiencing," said a spokesperson for the company. "Our directors and officers are confident of the stability and long-term prospects of the company, despite the difficult real estate environment, and have affirmed this belief through open-market stock purchases." The company's advisor and its affiliates purchased over 500,000 shares in the third quarter of 1990 and expect to continue open-market and negotiated purchases as conditions warrant.

LONDON (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - British Steel plc (NYSE: BST) confirmed today that it has reached an agreement in principle with the other three shareholders - Tippins International, O'Neal Steel, and American Cast Iron Pipe Company - to acquire all their equity and other interests in Tuscaloosa Steel Corporation, a plate and hot strip producer located in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Tuscaloosa was formed as a joint venture among these four companies in 1984. Tippins, the majority shareholder, designed and constructed its 112-inch rolling mill. British Steel is the primary supplier of semi-finished slabs to the mill and already owns 9.6 percent of Tuscaloosa's equity. O'Neal and American Cast Iron Pipe Company are both minority shareholders and purchase finished products from the mill.

Tuscaloosa's mill has an operating capacity in the range of 600,000 tons per year. Its annual sales are approximately $150 million (80 million pounds) and its net asset value is about $21 million (11 million pounds).

The new structure is designed to secure Tuscaloosa's future and to enable it to develop profitably in marketing hot rolled and cut plate and the toll-rolling of stainless steel slab into hot band.

Completion of the transaction is subject to execution of definitive agreements following a normal due diligence inquiry and receipt of necessary regulatory approvals and other consents.

THE HAGUE, NETHERLANDS (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Net profit of Nationale-Nederlanden N.V., leading international insurer headquartered in the Netherlands, grew slightly in the third quarter of 1990 compared with the same period in 1989.

However, for the first nine months of the year, there was a decline in profit from $351.2 million to $306.0 million. This was mainly due to non-life losses reported in the first half year caused by winter storms in northwest Europe, non-life underwriting losses in the London market and disappointing development in non-life operations in North America.

Life insurance profits increased from $162.7 million to $196.3 million for the first three quarters of this year due primarily to operations in the Netherlands. Profits from professional reinsurance increased to $14.5 million from $12.1 million and investments and other activities moved upward to $255.2 million from $237.7 million.

As a result of a profit of $20.8 million for the third quarter of 1990, the non-life loss of $76.8 million reported for the first half year was reduced to $56.0 million for the first nine months of 1990. The first nine months of 1989 closed with a profit of $81.4 million.

On the basis of these results, the Executive Board maintains its previously stated expectation of net profit of approximately $510 million for the year 1990 vs. $552 million for 1989. The decrease allows for $39.3 million after tax in claims resulting from the winter storms.

Revenue declined by two percent to $9,523 million. If currency exchange rates against the Dutch guilder had remained the same from the 1989 level, revenue would have increased by four percent.

On that exchange rate basis revenue would have increased in all major activities and in all geographic areas except for life insurance operations in Australia. As a result of lower taxes, the decline in net profit was lower than that in profit before tax.

Profit per share amounted to $2.03 with 150.5 million shares outstanding on Sept. 30. After an adjustment for an increase in the number of shares, profit per share for the first nine months of 1989 was $2.43.

Total assets for Nationale-Nederlanden worldwide increased from $52,643 million to $53,609 million. Capital and surplus has decreased from $5,519 million to $4,885 million since Jan. 1. The principal cause for this is the depreciation of the stock portfolio due to lower market prices. This also resulted in a lower provision for deferred tax liabilities.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Gantos, Inc. (NASDAQ: GTOS) today announced a net loss for the third quarter ended Nov. 3, 1990, of $2.4 million or $0.45 per share. This compares to net income of $2.4 million or $0.45 per share in the third quarter of fiscal 1989.

Net sales for the third quarter of fiscal 1990 were $60.0 million, an increase of 1 percent over sales for the third quarter last year. Sales for stores in operation throughout both periods decreased 15 percent. The company's "Sale for All Seasons" held this year in the second quarter, was held in the third quarter last year.

For the 39 weeks ended Nov. 3, 1990, Gantos announced a net loss of $5.8 million, or $1.09 per share compared with net income of $3.8 million or $0.79 per share for the same period of fiscal 1989.

Net sales for the 39 weeks ended Nov. 3, 1990 were $182.2 million, an increase of 12 percent over sales for the same period of fiscal 1989. Sales for stores open throughout both periods decreased 3 percent.

Commenting on the third quarter's results, Gantos President and Chief Executive Officer L. Douglas Gantos said, "The third quarter was a difficult period for retailers. As expected, the unsettled retail environment continued in the third quarter, which caused us to continue promotional activities that adversely affected our results. We have now taken several steps to return Gantos to profitability in fiscal 1991.

"First, our inventories are much leaner than they have been, which should help eliminate the need for excessive promotions. Second, we have lowered the price points of our merchandise, consistent with the current expectations of our customers. Third, we are continuing to reduce costs at all levels of the organization, especially selling, general and administrative expenses. Finally, we have reduced our expansion plans at least for fiscal 1991, which will allow us to conserve cash and strengthen our balance sheet.

Gantos opened 15 new stores during the third quarter and has opened 31 stores for the year. The company has closed three stores thus far in fiscal 1990.

Gantos, Inc. is a leading retailer of quality women's apparel. The company currently operates 167 stores in 25 states.

PRINCETON, NJ (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - SatCom C-1, the latest of GE Americom's Advanced SatCom satellites, was successfully launched Nov. 20, 1990. SatCom C-1 will replace SatCom 1R, the industry's first in-orbit protection satellite. C-1 will undergo approximately six weeks of technical check-out, before transition of SatCom 1R programming to C-1.

"With this tenth successful satellite launch, GE Americom maintains its leadership position in providing satellite delivery for entertainment services in the United States," said Eugene F. Murphy, senior vice president, General Electric Company (NYSE: GE).

According to W. Neil Bauer, senior vice president for GE Americom, "The C-1 neighborhood, with The Family Channel (West) and the Prime Sports family of affiliated regional sports networks as our anchor tenants, features a strong base of popular cable networks." Bauer noted that SatCom 1R is sold out and all customers will continue service on SatCom C-1.

Regional sports networks on SatCom C-1 will include: the Sunshine Network (Florida), Home Sports Entertainment, Prime Sports Network-Rocky Mountain, Pacific Sports Network, Prime Sports Northwest, Prime Ticket and SportsChannel Los Angeles. SatCom C-1 will also carry the six Netlink distant signal offerings: WGN-TV, KUSA-TV, KCNC-TV, KMGH-TV, KWGN-TV and KRMA-TV.

GE Americom has been a leader in developing satellite communications since its launch of the first 24-transponder commercial communications satellite in 1975. GE's Advanced SatComS placed in service in the 1980s were the world's first all solid-state C-Band communications satellites.

Adapted from the SatCom heritage design, developed and built by GE Astro-Space Division, SatCom C-1 provides performance enhancements, reliability improvements and more equipment redundancy. This will assure SatCom C-1 has even greater reliability and longer life than its predecessors.

Fuel aboard SatCom C-1 is expected to provide a minimum of 12 years service life. The 24 C-Band transponders offer an average of 9.5 watts of output power and are arranged in a seven for six redundancy pattern.

An important and innovative addition is the on-board polarization switch. It allows SatCom C-1 the flexibility to be used at any orbital position by switching the transponder configuration to the appropriate polarization scheme for that location.

SatCom C-1 is the vanguard of the next step in the development of the GE Americom fleet. Under the direction of Walter Braun, senior vice president, government and technical operations, it is the first of four new satellites to be launched during the next 24 months.

CHICAGO (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Santa Fe Railway announced today it has reached agreement with the Orient Railcorp (OR) for the sale of three segments of track located in Oklahoma and Texas, collectively known as the Orient Line. Santa Fe first announced its intentions to sell the light-density Orient Line in February 1988. OR is a private corporation headed by Gary Kerley of Conroe Texas. The segments involved are: Cherokee, Okla. to Sweetwater, Texas; Sweetwater to Maryneal, Texas; and San Angelo Junction (Santa Ana), Texas, to Presidio, Texas. The three segments total approximately 730 miles in length. Terms of the sale were not disclosed.

OR said it expected to file pertinent papers regarding its purchase with the Interstate Commerce by Nov. 29, 1990. Operating headquarters are scheduled to be in Altus, Okla. and San Angelo, Texas. OR will work with Rio Grande Pacific Corporation (RGP) of Forth Worth, Texas, headed by Gil Gillette, to provide service on its behalf to the Oklahoma portion of the Orient Line (Cherokee-Altus). The Texas portions will be serviced by American Railroads Corporation (ARC) of Chicago. Richard C. McClure, president of ARC, visited with shippers in San Angelo on Nov. 8 and in Crowell, Texas, on Nov. 9, where he discussed proposed operating plans and solicited comments from shippers on service requirements.

"The best way to run a business like this is in partnership with affected shippers and communities," McClure said. "We plan to offer good service sensitive to shippers' needs, starting with the first day of operations next month." Gillette and Kerley echoed McClure's statement. Kerley cautioned, however, "There are certain segments in both Texas and Oklahoma that will require substantial additional activities by shippers to ensure continued rail operations."

RGP and ARC will work with OR to set up an operating plan staffed with experienced railroad personnel to oversee day-to-day operations. Each has extensive experience with short-line railroads involving grain, petroleum and cotton transportation.

TROY, MI (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Fayette Tubular Products has developed a unique mobile machine shop that travels to customer plants and drives directly onto the shop floors in order to produce "first-phase" experimental tube-and-hose assemblies for air-conditioning systems directly on advanced vehicles.

"In addition to being properly engineered to attain optimum function, the air conditioner systems used on today's highly competitive cars and trucks also have to exhibit major esthetic qualities," explained James S. Sheline, president of Fayette Tubular.

"To achieve this, it's often necessary to mock-up the complete engine and all of its accessories on an advanced vehicle under the watchful eyes of engineers and stylists," he said.

While most consumers might think that the automakers concentrate their design and styling efforts on the vehicle's exterior and the passenger compartment, "under the hood styling" is also extremely important to them, Sheline explained.

"Our Mobile One unit is a completely self-contained shop that is electrically powered and can travel on its own solid rubber wheels to virtually any location within a plant or engineering center," Sheline said. "When we get to the advanced vehicle, our technicians and engineers begin forming the entire hose and tube assembly right on the spot," he explained.

"Under the guidance of customer experts and using their own specialized knowledge, our mobile team forms an assembly that fits the bill perfectly," Sheline noted.

Many modifications are made during this process, he explained. The type of rubber hose, the contours of the aluminum, copper or steel tubing, the location of clips and couplings, all can affect both the esthetic and the functional quality of the air-conditioning system, as well as access clearances to important service areas, he said.

"At some customer locations, they have their own vehicles standing right alongside those produced by the competition, and examine them closely under the hood to achieve the best underhood appearance," Sheline said.

When optimum mock-up assemblies are achieved at the customer location, these are taken to Fayette Tubular's product development center at the company's world headquarters in Troy. There they are used as the design basis for functional prototypes, which are then precisely engineered both from a product performance and manufacturing efficiency viewpoint.

Fayette Tubular is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Danaher Corporation (NYSE: DHR), a major manufacturing company headquartered in Washington, D.C., and listed on the New York and Pacific stock exchanges.

WEST PALM BEACH, FLA. (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - CV Reit, Inc. (NYSE: CVI), today announced that, due to its previously reported loss for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, its normal quarterly dividend will not be paid. The company also announced that its board of directors has authorized the purchase of up to one million shares of its common stock from time to time in the open market or in private transactions.

Alvin Wilensky, president, said the board believed that, under current depressed market conditions, the company's shares were attractively priced and that purchases would be in the best interest of the company and its stockholders.

Wilensky further stated that on Nov. 16, 1990, the company gave notice to Cenvill Development Corp. of its failure to pay the loans which, under an extension agreement, matured on Nov. 15, 1990, and that Cenvill Development would be in default if the loans were not paid within five calendar days thereafter. Net income for the current year's third quarter includes an after tax gain from the sale of the company's manufacturing operations of $617,000 or $.15 of primary earnings per share for the quarter.

The sales increase for the third quarter and year to date are attributed to newly acquired operations, new sales outlets opened during the past year, and increased market share.

Sales from outlets opened more than a year have declined as construction markets have declined as much as 30 percent throughout much of the Southeast. Increased market share has come at the expense of lower profit margins.

The company has repurchased an additional 153,000 shares of its common stock during the third quarter for a total of approximately 500,000 shares since Feb. 1, 1990.

TROY, MI (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Jerry Chisnell has joined Fayette Tubular Products as vice president, engineering, and is realigning and streamlining the newly organized product prototype center and engineering testing laboratories at Fayette's world headquarters in Troy.

This is being done, Chisnell said, to make these activities more efficient, and speed product development and product testing time for Fayette's wide range of automotive customers.

Fayette Tubular Products is a leading North American supplier of tube-and-hose assemblies for automotive air-conditioning systems, and operates plants in Reading and Oxford, Mich.; Fayette, Ohio; and Livingston, Tenn.

"Fayette has just completed a consolidation of the product prototyping and research and development activities at its new Troy world headquarters," Chisnell said.

"We concentrated all product engineering in Troy to be geographically closer to most of our major customers, and this involved transferring key engineering jobs from other engineering center locations, as well as moving the engineering testing laboratories here in their entirety from Fayette, Ohio," he explained.

"We have already reorganized our prototyping and testing personnel into customer teams, so that the same people stay involved with their customer counterparts on a continuing basis," Chisnell noted. "Now we are changing our prototype fabricating equipment to the same kind of flexible work cell processing equipment we use in our production facilities."

All four of Fayette Tubular's production plants recently converted to cellular processing. That involves producing parts in work cells on a just-in-time basis, with no inventory build between production stations. This type of processing has greatly improved product quality and led to outstanding cost efficiencies, Chisnell said.

Chisnell also is developing new laboratory testing procedures that will permit customers to reduce the number of hours spent in the field testing their products.

A veteran research and product development engineer, Chisnell has spent more than 30 years in the automotive tubular assembly industry. He joined Fayette from S&H Fabricating and Engineering of Farmington Hills, Mich., where he was senior vice president of research and development.

LINDENHURST, NY (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Richard E. Smith, chairman and CEO of Steve's Homemade Ice Cream Inc. (NASDAQ: STVEA), today announced the company's financial results for the third quarter of 1990.

Steve's reported revenues for the 13 weeks ended Sept. 29, 1990 of $7,099,000 as compared to $9,151,000 for the 13 weeks ended Sept. 30, 1989. Revenues for the 39 weeks ended Sept. 29, 1990 decreased to $21,051,000 from $25,571,000 for the comparable period in 1989. Net income for the 13 weeks ended Sept. 29 1990 was $116,000 as compared to net income of $604,000 for the 13 weeks ended Sept. 30, 1989. Net income for the 39 weeks ended Sept. 29, 1990 was $109,000 (including an extraordinary gain of $176,000) as compared to net income of $1,513,000 for the 39 weeks ended Sept. 30, 1989.

The decline in revenues and net income is attributable to a disruption in the company's distribution network in Florida and California, a recently resolved dispute with a major customer, fewer franchised and licensed stores in 1990 than in 1989, and the inventory control program of a major user. In addition, the net income for the 39 weeks ended Sept. 29, 1990 was reduced due to increased marketing and advertising expenditures related to the introduction of Steve's Gourmet Light Ice Cream.

Steve's Homemade Ice Cream, Inc. markets Steve's Super Premium, Steve's Gourmet Light, Swensen's Premium ice cream and American Glace Frozen Dessert, in 32 states and the District of Columbia and franchises and licenses ice cream shoppes and family restaurants in the United States and 15 foreign MILAN, IL (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Eagle Food Centers Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: EGLE) today reported that earnings for the third quarter ended Nov. 3, 1990 were stronger than the second quarter 1990 results, although less than the comparable year-ago period.

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Pat Petitti cited reduced expenses for the improvement in third quarter operating margins from the prior quarter's level.

For the third quarter ended Nov. 3, 1990, total sales rose 1.4 percent to $273.9 million from $270.0 million in the comparable year-ago period. Same store sales increased 0.3 percent in the quarter. Net income for the quarter was $1,949,000 or $0.17 per share, substantially above the $742,000, or $0.06 per share, in the 1990 second quarter, but trailed the $2,388,000, or $0.21 per share, in the 1989 third quarter.

The company reported that over $1,200,000 of additional wage and fringe benefits were absorbed in each quarter of 1990 compared to a year ago. The increases in wages and benefits arose from the return of employee concessions in connection with labor contract extensions negotiated at the beginning of the current year.

Petitti said the improvement in the third quarter results over the second was attributable to reduced expenses at both the store and corporate office levels and better operating margins late in the quarter.

"We are seeking the first results of our expense reduction and containment programs that were instituted early in the third quarter," he said. "Late in the quarter we also began to realize higher margins from these efforts and the implementation of a new advertising thrust."

Sales for the 39 weeks ended Nov. 3, 1990 were $838.0 million, an increase of 1.8 percent from the $822.9 million in a similar period a year ago. Same store sales increased 0.7 percent for the 39-week period. Net income for the 39 weeks of 1990 was $5,407,000 or $0.47 per share, compared to $7,453,000 or $0.65 per share a year ago.

The decline is attributable to higher employee, insurance, and promotional costs, and a one-time store closing charge recorded in the second quarter of 1990.

Petitti said, "Sales are extremely encouraging in many of the markets in which we operate but still remain difficult to get in markets where significant new competitive activity has occurred over the last 12 months. To respond to this problem we are implementing new sales-driven programs to improve the sales trends in these competitive markets."

NEW YORK (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - On Thanksgiving Day, Sony will launch its Video 1(TM) Network, the largest permanent outdoor color video display in the United States.

Using a giant 23.5-by-32-foot JumboTron(R) screen, the Sony Video 1 display will cover the fourth and fifth floors of One Times Square, site of the famous New Year's Eve ball drop. Its advanced technology and innovative programming combine to make it an entirely new form of public communications.

The most technologically advanced display ever built, Sony Video 1 Network will present bright, sharply defined video images both day and night. It will be visible from all of Times Square, a major Manhattan crossroads frequented by more than 1.5 million people each day. Its high-tech messages will include news, holiday greetings, public service information, special promotions and advertising -- in addition to innovative programming.

Appropriate to its Thanksgiving Day launch, the Sony Video 1 Network's initial programming will include video images of artwork created by New York City schoolchildren for the Thanksgiving holiday. Five thousand students took part, working with Mr. Sketch(R) scented water color markers donated by Sanford Corporation, a leading manufacturer of marking and writing instruments and other office and school supplies. A total of 140 drawings were selected by principals of participating schools for display on the new medium. The winning pictures, translated to video, will be seen by everyone passing through Times Square over the Thanksgiving weekend.

"In addition to making a significant contribution to the renewal efforts of the 42nd Street Development Project, a group committed to returning quality, energy and excitement to Times Square, we wanted to break new ground in communications," said Jeffrey Brooks, senior vice president, corporate advertising, Sony Corporation of America.

"Sony's ability to marry advanced video display technology with creative messages accomplishes that goal," he continued. "We wanted more than an electronic billboard. We will have relevant video programming to support the community."

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Fleet/Norstar Financial Group (NYSE: FNG) today declared a quarterly dividend on its common stock of 20 cents per share, a reduction from the 35 cents per share previously paid, it was announced by Terrence Murray, chairman and chief executive officer.

The dividend will be payable on Jan. 1, 1991 to stockholders of record on Dec. 15, 1990.

"Today's board decision to reduce the dividend was made after a careful and thorough analysis of industry prospects for 1991," Murray said. "Although Fleet/Norstar remains well-capitalized and better positioned than many other financial companies during this economic slowdown, it is clear to us that many economic uncertainties loom on the horizon. Given these circumstances, we are firmly convinced that retention of capital is the most prudent course of action at this time."

Murray pointed out that the board's dividend decision also was prompted by a desire to act from a position of relative strength. "Some banks have been forced to cut their dividends because of substantial operating losses and weak capital positions," he said. "We reported a small profit for the first nine months, and our 7 percent capital ratio is still among the strongest in the banking industry and well above the 4 percent to 5 percent industry average. With this action, we have taken the conservative step of protecting the corporation's capital base at a time when economic conditions are uncertain. In time, when the corporation shares in improving economic conditions, our shareholders certainly will be among the beneficiaries."

ROME (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Citing their "outstanding contributions to the safety of commercial aviation," the Flight Safety Foundation today bestowed its highest honors on three Boeing employees who developed new methods of analyzing aircraft accidents, Boeing Commercial Airplane Group said.

Boeing Commercial Airplane Group engineer Peter Gallimore and two recently retired colleagues, Lester Lautman and Richard Sears, received the foundation's Admiral Luis de Florenz Flight Safety Award at a ceremony held at the Flight Safety Foundation's annual conference.

Gallimore and Lautman were recognized for their study of accident statistics which showed that some operators clearly had better safety records than others. They visited, and closely examined, several of the more successful operators to determine if there was a common theme running through management policies. Their study established that policies and practices of top management play the vital role in controlling crew-caused accidents.

Richard Sears, meanwhile, developed a method for relating accident cause factors to accident prevention strategies.

Sears and Lautman then combined the concepts of their respective studies into a program of safety initiatives and practical steps to reduce accidents. Their efforts helped shift the primary focus of research from crashworthiness to accident prevention.

The de Florenz award recognizes outstanding contributions to aviation in basic design, device or practice which has resulted in a significant improvement in safety.

In presenting the award, John H. Enders, president of the Flight Safety Foundation, cited the recipients as "most deserving of this recognition by their peers in the aviation industry for their singular accomplishments on behalf of aviation safety."

CLEVELAND (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - National City Bank was honored today by Cleveland Action to Support Housing (C.A.S.H) for having underwritten both the most loans and most rehabilitation loans in the C.A.S.H. program during 1989.

"National City underwrote a total of $1,406,845 in loans in the C.A.S.H. program," said Ronald Thomas, executive director of C.A.S.H. "In addition, the bank underwrote $123,910 of rehabilitation loans."

Awards also were presented to Dollar Bank for outstanding underwriting of C.A.S.H. rehabilitation loans totaling $111,938, and to Society Bank for

A special award was presented to Anthony C. Cianciolo, vice president, consumer credit division, National City Bank, for outstanding service as chairman of the C.A.S.H. loan committee since 1981.

"Cleveland banks are doing their job in the city," said Thomas. "The banking community is taking an aggressive role in developing public/private partnerships and reinvesting in the targeted neighborhoods of the city."

Thomas also noted that in his experience as a member of the advisory council of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Cincinnati, "I have not come across a program such as C.A.S.H., which makes a direct attempt to leverage public dollars with private finances."

C.A.S.H. was established in 1978 with the purpose of stabilizing the neighborhoods in Cleveland. A partnership was formed composed of City government, community organizations and local lenders to provide housing rehabilitation assistance to eligible homeowners.

Investment in inner-city housing by local banks is encouraged by C.A.S.H. by backing the bank loans with Community Development Block Grant deposits. The deposits also lower the interest rates on the loans.

CAMBRIDGE, MA (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - T Cell Sciences, Inc. (NASDAQ: TCEL), announced today that its complement blocker, a drug that limits complement mediated tissue damage, may prove useful for heart transplantation in sensitized recipients. The drug, a modified human protein now in preclinical development, was shown to significantly delay rejection of heart transplants in sensitized rat recipients. The results of this study were presented at the Association for Academic Surgery Meeting in Houston on Nov. 17, 1990, by Scott K. Pruitt, M.D., Department of Surgery, Duke University.

Sensitized recipients are those with antibodies already formed against the donor's heart they are about to receive. The recipients mount an immediate immune response against the transplanted organ (hyperacute rejection) which causes immediate organ rejection. No immunosuppressive agents exist to stop this kind of rejection process. Delaying hyperacute rejection is the first step toward preventing rejection in sensitized recipients.

James D. Grant, chairman and chief executive officer of T Cell Sciences, said, "We are exploring the use of the complement blocker in many diseases where complement mediated tissue damage occurs, including heart disease, stroke, trauma and some infectious diseases. The results of this study are the first to be reported on the use of the complement blocker other than for limiting reperfusion injury."

Utilizing proprietary T cell receptor and soluble receptor technology, T Cell Sciences, Inc., is developing pharmaceutical products to treat heart disease and autoimmune diseases as well as products for diagnosing and monitoring immune system disorders and cancer. Located in Cambridge, Mass., the company currently markets products to the scientific community and an FDA approved test kit to the diagnostic market.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Robert H. McLean, chairman of the board and president of Buffton Corp. (AMEX: BFX), announced today its revenues and earnings for the fourth quarter and year ended Sept. 30, 1990.

The net income for the quarter was $724,000, or 19 cents per share on revenues of $24,856,000. For the same period last year, the company recorded a net loss of $4,397,000, or $1.11 per share loss on revenues of $111,011,000.

For the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990, the company reports a net loss of $1,137,000, or 29 cents per share on revenues of $94,863,000. For the prior year period, the company reported a net loss of $3,661,000, or 92 cents per share on revenues of $111,011,000.

In making the announcement, McLean stated, "The improvement in the current quarter reflects improvement in our PVC pipe operations. During the prior year quarter, in addition to reduced operating results, we also wrote off a significant portion of the purchase price of National Conduit Co. I am pleased to say that National Conduit Co. has been moderately profitable during the current quarter and past seven months. We believe our PVC pipe operations will show continued improvement throughout our next fiscal year."

McLean continued, "As we recently announced, we have received favorable final test results relating to the environmental investigation of our real property in Vestal, New York. By virtue of these favorable test results and opinions expressed by our experts, we reversed, in the current quarter, $1 million accrued for clean-up costs which was charged to operations in our fourth quarter ending Sept. 30, 1989."

McLean stated, "In addition, as we have previously announced, we are excited about the prospects of the recently FAA approved Cockpit Voice Recorder of our subsidiary, B & D Instruments and Avionics Inc. A significant amount of backlog has already been booked for this product, and we believe it should have a significant favorable impact on the profitability of Buffton should B & D meet its sales forecast for the coming year."

McLean concluded, "We are managing our way through very uncertain times. The U.S. economy is suffering generally and in several markets is seriously depressed. We do not see any significant improvement in the markets for products manufactured by Buffton's companies for at least six months. As a result, we have made substantial overhead reductions, primarily through consolidations undertaken in our PVC pipe, PVC fittings, and cable assembly operations."

DALLAS (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Toreador Royalty (NASDAQ: TRGL) reported a net income of $127,156 for the third quarter of 1990 equal to $0.028 per share in comparison with a loss of $2,763 or $0.001 per share for the third quarter of 1989.

Third quarter revenues were $422,018 in 1990, a 83.5 percent gain as compared with $229,916 in 1989. The majority of the increase was represented by the sale of 32,600 units of the company's holding in the Permian Basin Royalty Trust for a net gain of $170,422 together with higher oil volumes as a result of two recent acquisitions and higher oil prices.

Cost and expenses were $294,862 for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, up from $228,163 for the same period in 1989, due primarily to increases in general and administrative expenses, and depreciation, depletion and amortization expense of $30,617 and $24,334, respectively. Both increases are the result of the recent producing property acquisitions.

Toreador owns in excess of 500,000 net mineral acres located primarily in the Texas Panhandle and Northwest Texas. In addition, the company owns working and royalty interests in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana. Toreador's common stock is traded in the NASDAQ market under the symbol "TRGL."

DENVER, (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Asset Investors Corp. (NYSE: AIC) today announced its board of directors had declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share payable on Dec. 24, 1990 to stockholders of record on Dec. 10, 1990. With the payment of this dividend, Asset Investors will have paid aggregate dividends for 1990 of $1.85 per share. The increase in the fourth quarter dividend reflects management's confidence in the company's ability to meet or exceed its taxable income projection of $2.06 per share for 1990.

Spencer I. Browne, president and chief executive officer, stated that, "The company is continuing in its efforts to stabilize earnings under changing interest rate scenarios. The company decreased its exposure to LIBOR by more than $150 million during the first three quarters of 1990." "In addition, the company has acquired or has contracted to acquire four new fixed-rate residual interests during the past four months," Browne said.

Separately, responding to questions raised about Asset Investors' assets Browne said that there is little or no credit risk on Asset Investors' assets because substantially all of the assets are either government, agency guaranteed, or insured residential mortgage certificates (GNMA, FNMA and FHLMC). The company does not own any uninsured residential or commercial mortgages or real estate as is often owned by more traditional REITs.

The company also announced that at a settlement approval hearing held on Nov. 19, 1990 before a Magistrate of the United States District Court for the Southern District of California, in which consolidated civil lawsuits against Asset Investors are pending, the Magistrate found that the previously-announced proposed settlement of those actions is fair, reasonable and adequate to the settlement class and entered an order recommending that a final judgment be entered dismissing the actions with prejudice and approving the settlement terms. The amount of the settlement, $1.3 million (which was recorded in the company's Consolidated Financial Statements as of Dec. 31, 1989), was deposited into a settlement fund on Sept. 24, 1990.

Asset Investors is a real estate investment trust that generates income primarily from a portfolio of ownership interests in issuances of collateralized mortgage obligations and other mortgage-related assets.

TULSA, OK (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - MPSI Systems Inc. (NASDAQ: MPSG) reported today net income of $310,000 or 4 cents per share on revenues of $57,151,000 for the year ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared with a net loss of $3,139,000 or 37 cents per share on revenues of $51,507,000 for the prior year.

A net loss of $775,000 or 9 cents per share on revenues of $15,641,000 was reported for the fourth quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared with net income of $465,000 or 5 cents per share on revenues of $15,015,000 for the same period a year ago.

According to Ronald G. Harper, MPSI chairman, the increased revenues in fiscal 1990 were primarily attributable to increased sales of MPSI's market studies. The net loss for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 was due largely to lower sales and increased costs of its subsidiary, Execucom. Improved profitability in fiscal 1990 was due to improved margins on sales of market studies and provision for certain nonrecurring costs in fiscal 1989 related to asset write-downs, computer migration costs and reorganization expenses. Similar provisions in 1990 were relatively small.

EDMONTON, Alberta (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Echo Bay Mines Ltd. (AMEX: ECO) said today that it is in negotiations with Alta Gold Co. (NASDAQ: ALTA) and Magma Copper Co. (AMEX: MCU) regarding the potential sale of Echo Bay's 40 percent interest in gold production at the Robinson gold and copper property in Nevada. Echo Bay declined to speculate on the outcome of such negotiations.

Alta Gold is Echo Bay's 60 percent partner in the production of gold at Robinson under a lease from Kennecott Corp., the property's owner. Alta Gold and Magma Copper said late last week that they expect to complete their planned purchase of the 12,000-acre gold and copper property from Kennecott by year-end.

Echo Bay would not comment on market rumors of the possibility of a writedown of the company's interest in the Robinson gold operation if such a potential sale were consummated. The company's investment in the Robinson operation was about US$42 million as of Sept. 30, 1990.

Echo Bay is one of the largest gold producers in North America. The company's shares are traded principally on the Toronto and American stock exchanges and on other major exchanges in North America and Europe.

MIAMI, (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Catalina Lighting, Inc. (AMEX: LTG) announced that its board of directors authorized and declared a dividend distribution of one right for each share of common stock of the company outstanding at the close of business on Nov. 30, 1990.

John H. Browder, chairman and chief executive officer of Catalina, stated, "The rights are designed to assure that all of Catalina's stockholders receive fair and equal treatment in the event of any proposed takeover of the company." The Rights Plan was not adopted in response to any specific effort to acquire control of the company, and the company is not aware of any such effort.

The rights will be attached to all common stock certificates representing shares then outstanding, and no separate rights certificates will be distributed. The rights will be distributed upon the earliest of 10 days following a public announcement that a person or group of affiliated or associated persons has acquired, or obtained the right to acquire, beneficial ownership of 20 percent or more of the outstanding shares of Catalina's common stock, or 10 days following the commencement of a tender offer or exchange offer that would result in a person or group beneficially owning 30 percent or more of such outstanding shares of common stock, or immediately after the board of directors of Catalina declares any person to be an adverse person.

Each right entitles the registered holder to purchase from Catalina one share of common stock at a price of $20 per share, subject to adjustment. If a person or group acquires 20 percent or more of Catalina's outstanding common stock, each right will entitle its holder (other than the acquiring person or members of the acquiring group) to purchase, at the right's then-current exercise price, the number of Catalina's common shares having a market value of twice such price. In addition, if Catalina is acquired in a merger or other business combination transaction in which the company is not the surviving corporation, or more than 50 percent of the company's assets or earning power is sold or transferred, each holder of a right shall thereafter have the right to receive, upon exercise, common stock of the acquiring company having a value equal to two times the exercise price of the right.

At any time until 10 days following the acquisition by a person or group of beneficial ownership of 20 percent of more of the company's common stock, the rights are redeemable for one tenth of a cent per right at the option of the board of directors. The rights are also redeemable upon a vote by the shareholders of the company if the proposed purchase price for the shares is deemed fair by a recognized investment banker.

The rights are intended to enable all Catalina stockholders to realize the long term value of their investment in the company. They will not prevent a takeover, but should encourage anyone seeking to acquire the company to negotiate with the board prior to attempting the takeover. The rights will expire at the close of business Nov. 30, 2000.

Catalina is engaged in the design, importation, warehousing, marketing and distribution of lighting fixtures, security devices, ceiling fans and other consumer products. Catalina's common stock is listed on the American Stock Exchange (LTG).

The nine months of 1989 includes a $139,000 gain on repurchase of subordinated notes payable.

Steinfink stated, "The company's third-quarter 1990 net loss of $224,000, which included $86,000 in new business start-up costs, was the result of pressure on chain store margins and increased advertising and merchandising expenditures necessary to maintain our overall market share. In October, the company instituted several cost reduction programs. Although the fourth quarter will be a difficult period we anticipate the company's return to profitability in early 1991."

Specialty Retail Services, Inc. is a marketer of a broad range of professional beauty products, including hair care, nail care, cosmetics, skin care and other beauty accessories to salons, independent and chain drug stores, supermarkets, mass merchandisers, warehouse clubs and other retail distributors. HILLSBORO, OR (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Lattice Semiconductor Corp. (NASDAQ: LSCC) today announced that revenues and earnings for the third quarter ending Dec. 29, 1990, are currently expected to be significantly less than revenues and earnings for the second quarter.

Cyrus Tsui, Lattice's president and chief executive officer, said that Lattice's bookings in the current quarter have been lower than anticipated. "Our bookings in the quarter to date have not reflected the increase that normally occurs in the fall. Given the current economic situation and, in particular, the slowness of the PC market, we do not foresee a strong pickup in customer demand for the remainder of the quarter. Because activity levels remain uncertain, it is too early to predict the extent to which revenues and earnings will be affected," Tsui said.

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - General Public Utilities Corporation (NYSE: GPU) today announced that its New Jersey subsidiary, Jersey Central Power & Light Company (JCP&L), has received final approval of an increase in annual base rates of $95.5 million.

The New Jersey Board of Public Utilities (BPU) approved a stipulation between JCP&L, the BPU staff and the New Jersey Public Advocate's Division of Rate Counsel. That agreement settled JCP&L's original $156 million base rate filing made in November 1989.

"The stipulation resolves many important issues and provides a level of revenues which will permit the company to continue to meet its public utility obligation," said James R. Leva, president of JCP&L.

"At the same time, our average charge for a kilowatt-hour continues to be below rates in effect in 1985, and JCP&L's rates remain competitive with our neighboring utilities. Since that time, the number of customers JCP&L serves has increased by nearly 100,000."

The stipulation also provides for funding decommissioning of the company's nuclear generating stations predicated upon both the Nuclear Regulatory Commission guidelines for the decommissioning of nuclear power plants and the cost of removing non-radiological materials from the sites. In addition, JCP&L will contribute $30 million to a decommissioning trust. Half of this amount will not be reflected in customer charges.

GPU is a registered electric utility holding company with three operating subsidiaries: JCP&L, Pennsylvania Electric Company and Metropolitan Edison Company. The GPU system provides about 39 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity to more than 1.8 million customers in a service territory encompassing about half the land area of Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

MCLEAN, VA. (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - NVR L.P. (AMEX: NVR) today announced a pre-tax provision of $169.1 million relating to decisions made in connection with the operational restructuring of the company. The provision was the primary reason for a 1990 third quarter loss of $172.3 million ($6.02 per unit), also announced today. In the third quarter of 1989, the company reported net income of $9.6 million (34 cents per unit).

NVR Chairman Dwight Schar said: "As a result of our intense review of the current market for new homes and the new environment for financing real estate projects, with the assistance of Kenneth Leventhal & Company, we have decided to focus on our core homebuilding and financial services operations, exit geographical markets where we don't envision strong future profits, cease land acquisition and development activities, and readjust our product offerings to emphasize the affordable homes segment of the market in line with current market opportunities."

He said that the key components of NVR's restructured operations include:

-- NVR continues to be a holding company with two separate but related business segments: homebuilding and financial services. Home buyers are thereby offered a full range of new home products and associated services including mortgage lending, title insurance, and consumer banking.

-- The homebuilding operation is focusing on its most profitable projects and markets and has been downsized to control costs and gain marketing efficiency. Management of the homebuilding operations has been centralized, several regional offices have been consolidated, and the company is withdrawing from several of its marginally performing market areas, leaving the homebuilding operations focused primarily in the Washington, Baltimore and Pittsburgh markets, and to a lesser degree in several secondary markets.

-- The company has ceased making land acquisitions. A management group has been established specifically to oversee the orderly disposition of current land development projects and land development operations have been substantially reduced.

-- The building products manufacturing plants in Manassas, Va., and Jamestown, Ohio, are being closed.

HIROSHIMA, JAPAN (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Mazda Motor Corporation (MC) today announced it would issue new convertible bonds valued at 80 billion yen ($620 million)(a) on Dec. 10, 1990. The issue price of the securities will be 100 yen per 100 yen par value, with a March 31, 1999, maturity date.

The decision to undertake this issuance was made based on overall considerations such as the current movement of the market and interest rates, as well as the necessity to raise new funds.

RAVENSWOOD, W.VA. (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - United Steelworkers of America (USW) members who have been locked out by Ravenswood Aluminum Corp. (RAC) have been advised by the union that they have no duty to comply with the company's Nov. 19 offer that they return to work under terms of the company's last contract offer, it was announced today.

RAC ordered its 1,800 workers to leave their jobs on Oct. 31, when their contract expired and the company broke off negotiations on a new agreement, a spokesman for USW said. The workers are members of USW Local 5668.

USW Staff Representative Joe C. Chapman denied RAC's claim that the company and the union are at a bargaining impasse. He said the USW is filing charges with the National Labor Relations Board over this issue.

The company's most recent offer was given to the union on Nov. 13, and the union is committed to making a counter offer on Nov. 28, jwhen the parties are scheduled to meet in Pittsburgh with federal mediator Carmon Newell, Chapman said.

"This does not indicate that the parties are entrenched in their respective positions and are at an impasse," Chapman said. He noted that the union had offered on several occasions to continue working under terms of the expired contract while negotiations continue for a new agreement.

Chapman said that the company's so-called "final offer" would eliminate cost-of-living adjustments and a metal price bonus, which could cost each member as mush as $2 per hour. The company's offer would leave pensions far behind those provided USW members by other aluminum producers, and other economic and non-economic provisions in the company's offer would have an adverse effect on USW members, Chapman said.

"This is a profitable company which is asking the union and its members to accept an inferior contract, in wages, benefits and working conditions," Chapman said. "We are urging our members to support their negotiating committee and to reject the company's offer for a return to work under the terms of its substandard proposal."

NEW YORK (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Castle Harlan Inc., a New York merchant bank and Quantum Overseas, N.V., a $2 billion investment fund, said Federal Bankruptcy Judge Warren H. Bentz of the Western District of Pennsylvania today confirmed their plan of reorganization to bring Sharon Steel Corporation out of Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings.

The judge's action followed a confirmation hearing Tuesday in Erie, Pa. Sharon Steel had filed for protection from its creditors under the federal bankruptcy laws in April 1987. The plan to bring the company out of bankruptcy had been under development for more than a year.

The two parties said they expected the reorganization transaction to close shortly to a number of conditions, including financing, which Castle Harlan indicated it was confident was in place.

As approved by Bentz, the reorganization plan had been modified to, among other things, reduce the principal amount of the notes to be issued to holders of general unsecured claims from $25 million to $17.5 million, and to include $7.5 million principal amount of the notes as a component of a private placement.

Castle Harlan and Quantum also reported that the new collective bargaining agreement to be entered into by the successor steel company to Sharon Steel had been ratified last week by approximately 58 percent of the United Steel Workers of America who are employees of the steel division of Sharon Steel.

Sharon's headquarters is in Farrell, Pa. The company operates an integrated steel mill producing 1.2 million tons per year and concentrating on the specialty steel business. It also has other subsidiaries, including Mueller Brass Co. and a Natural Resources segment with mining properties.

MIAMI (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Southern Bell said today that approximately 40,000 of its 4 million Florida customers will be getting refunds as the result of an internal company investigation.

The customers are located in various Florida cities served by Southern Bell offices in Orlando and West Palm Beach. Most of the affected customers have been notified by mail, others will be notified soon.

An internal company inquiry was initiated when several customers advised to Southern Bell that they had been charged for a service they had not authorized. The review led to the dismissal of five employees in Orlando and West Palm Beach.

The refunds, including interest, could range from about $7 to about $35 depending on when the unauthorized charge was placed on the customer's bill.

Southern Bell is making refunds to all customers who had the service added by employees whose sales results were questionable. Thus, Southern Bell has structured the refund to make sure that all customers who might be entitled to a refund will receive one.

"The addition of any service without a customer's permission was clearly wrong and will not be tolerated," company spokesman Spero Canton said. "The charge resulted in most of these customers' bills being increased by $1 per month."

The company's internal investigation to date has not revealed any similar activities elsewhere in Florida.

The unauthorized actions stopped in May when Southern Bell changed its procedures to assure that all sales referrals are verified with the customer.

"We absolutely deplore these incidents which call into question the integrity of our relationship with our customers. Our company takes that relationship seriously and we intend to protect it," Canton said.

In a letter to affected customers, Southern Bell stated:

"We apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused you. Southern Bell appreciates your business and values you as a customer."

The total amount of the refund is expected to be about $600,000. Customers with questions may call 800-522-BELL, Extension 300.

STAMFORD, CONN. (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Rayonier Forest Resources Company (NYSE: LOG), the managing general partner of Rayonier Timberlands, L.P., announced today that the partnership sold timberlands located within the Quinault Indian Reservation in the state of Washington to the Quinault Indian Nation for approximately $7.6 million. The company said that the transaction will contribute approximately $6.8 million to partnership earnings, or 32 cents per Class A unit, during the fourth quarter of 1990 as a result of this sale.

The managing general partner also indicated that the Quinault Indian Nation has the right, under its agreement with the partnership, to purchase additional acres of the partnership's timberlands on the reservation in three separate transactions scheduled to close in November of 1991, 1992 and 1993. The aggregate purchase price of these tracts would be approximately $25.8 million, subject to reduction if the sales close earlier than scheduled.

According to the company, the partnership's parcels on the reservation are scattered and their sale would make management of the partnership's timberland base more efficient. Of the northwest timber volume planned for harvest during the ten remaining years of the partnership's initial term, 2 percent is included in the parcels just sold and 6 percent is included within the parcels which may subsequently be purchased.

Rayonier Timberlands, L.P. grows and sells timber on 800,000 acres in the southeast U.S. and on 382,000 acres in the northwest U.S. Partnership units were first sold to the public in November 1985.

ITT Rayonier Inc., the forest products subsidiary of ITT Corporation, owns 74.7 percent of the outstanding Class A units of Rayonier Timberlands, L.P. The balance is publicly traded on the NYSE.

SAN JOSE, CA (NOV. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - ICOT Corp. (NASDAQ: ICOT) today announced sales and earnings for the first quarter of fiscal year 1991.

For the three months ended Oct. 27, 1990, sales were $3,335,000 compared to last year's first quarter sales of $4,043,000. For the first quarter of fiscal 1991, ICOT incurred a loss of ($3,523,000) or ($.28) per share compared to a profit of $177,000, or $.01 per share in the first quarter of fiscal 1990. The loss for the current quarter includes a $2,560,000 write down of the company's holdings of VeriFone Inc. (NASDAQ: VFIC) common stock from $10 to $6 per share due to a decline in the market value of these securities. The sales decline in the first quarter of fiscal 1991 from the first quarter of fiscal 1990 results from a decrease of approximately $500,000 in airline product sales and service and a decrease of approximately $200,000 in data communication sales attributable to lower engineering development revenue.

According to Joe Becker, president and CEO of ICOT, "The company is continuing to implement a revised sales strategy for its United States sales operation which began in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990. As a result, the company's enhanced advertising and telemarketing programs are now in place and functioning well and the company's U.S. sales organization is being augmented to increase the amount of technical support available for the sales orgainzation.

"Additionally, the company's managing director of its successful international subsidiary has been promoted to vice president of Worldwide Sales and has taken over responsibility for U.S. sales operations. While these activities are expected in time to have a positive impact on U.S. PC connectivity sales, the company is uncertain as to when it will return to profitability."

ICOT Corp. is a provider of data communications systems including network interfaces and gateways. The products are sold throughout the world from its corporate headquarters in San Jose, sales offices located throughout the United States and a wholly-owned subsidiary in the United Kingdom.

MOSCOW (NOV 21) TASS - RADICAL SOVIET LAWMAKERS CALLED FOR A MAJOR PARLIAMENTARY RESHUFFLE TODAY, PROMPTING ACCUSATIONS FROM THE RIVAL SOYUZ PRO-UNION GROUP IN "ATTEMPTS TO BREAK UP SOVIET RULING STRUCTURES AND THE COUNTRY ITSELF".

THE STATEMENT BY THE RADICAL INTER-REGIONAL GROUP OF DEPUTIES, READ OUT TODAY ON SOVIET TELEVISION BY GROUP SECRETARY ARKADY MURASHOV, COMES IN THE RUN UP TO THE FOURTH CONGRESS OF SOVIET PEOPLE'S DEPUTIES, SCHEDULED FOR DECEMBER 17.

THE CONGRESS, WIELDING SUPREME LEGISLATIVE POWERS, IS DUE TO REELECT A QUARTER OF THE CURRENT USSR SUPREME SOVIET (PARLIAMENT).

"THE SUPREME SOVIET, IN ITS PRESENT COMPOSITION, INEVITABLY TAKES DECISIONS THAT FOMENT CONFLICTS IN THE COUNTRY RATHER THAN TACKLE THEM," THE STATEMENT SAID, CALLING FOR THE REELECTION OF THE ENTIRE PARLIAMENT.

THE DEMAND WAS MET AT LOGGERHEADS BY SOYUZ LEADER SERGEI SHUVALOV, WHO TOLD TASS THAT THE SUPREME SOVIET "IS ONE OF THE FEW STABILISING FACTORS AND ITS DISSOLUTION COULD ONLY WORSEN THE SITUATION IN THE COUNTRY."

THE SOYUZ GROUP AIMS TO PREVENT THE BREAK UP OF THE SOVIET UNION THROUGH A RENEWED SOVIET FEDERATION.

SHUVALOV SAID THE CALL FOR THE OBSTRUCTION OF THE PARLIAMENT AT A TIME WHEN IT WAS DISCUSSING NEW SWEEPING POWERS FOR PRESIDENT GORBACHEV WAS "OPENLY DESTRUCTIVE".

SOYUZ SUPPORTS THE IDEA TO GIVE MORE POWERS TO GORBACHEV, FOLLOWING HIS REQUEST LAST WEEK, SHUVALOV SAID.

THE FORTHCOMING CONGRESS OF SOVIET PEOPLE'S DEPUTIES IS CRUCIAL FOR THE SOVIET UNION'S FUTURE AND WILL SHOW WHETHER SEPARATIST SENTIMENTS COULD BE CHECKED OR THE COUNTRY WOULD DISINTEGRATE INTO A LOOSE FEDERATION OF ALIENATED REPUBLICS.

ARLINGTON, TX (NOV. 21) UPI - Students at the University of Texas at Arlington have resoundingly voted down a proposal to establish the first on-campus abortion clinic at an American university.

Students voted 1,430 to 746 against allowing first-trimester abortions in the UTA student health clinic. The election was held Monday and Tuesday and the results were made public late Tuesday.

The Student Congress ordered the issue placed on the ballot and it will consider the mandate at its Nov. 27 meeting. The members are expected to vote against sending the proposal on to the school administration.

The whole issue seemed moot from the beginning because UTA President Wendell Nedderman had said he opposed the measure, which could not be enacted without his approval.

Nedderman said more than two weeks ago that the proposal to permit abortions in Student Health Services was ''grossly inappropriate.'' He was was criticized by students for announcing a position before the vote.

A second question, asking whether students would support the resolution if the abortions were not paid for with student fees, resulted in a nearly identical vote: 1,372 against, 718 for.

Although the abortion clinic was rejected, 1,128 students said they considered themselves ''pro-choice'' while 859 called themselves ''pro- life'' and 198 said they were undecided.

Only about 9 percent of the school's 24,800 students cast ballots.

ERIE, PA (NOV. 21) UPI - A mix-up at a funeral home shocked mourners and sent morticians in Erie and North Carolina scrambling Wednesday to exchange two bodies.

Friends and relatives of Gloria Bennett, 59, were upset Tuesday night when they arrived at the John Taylor Funeral Home in Erie to pay their last respects.

She died in New York City last Friday and funeral directors at the Leo Wood Funeral Home in Mount Vernon, N.Y., prepared her body and put it on a USAir flight to Erie.

But when the coffin was opened, those who came for the viewing saw an unfamiliar face.

''In my 35 years in this business, this is the first time I have even heard of something like this,'' said funeral director John Taylor, shaking his head in astonishment.

Taylor said somehow Bennett's body was sent to Durham, N.C., by mistake and a casket containing the body of Myrtle Fuller arrived in Erie. Taylor contacted the North Carolina funeral home and said the two bodies should be in their proper locations by Wednesday afternoon.

''I just had to cry,'' said Bennett's brother, Marlowe Tolbert. ''It was just devastating to have something like this happen. I came to see my sister, have the wake this evening and bury her tomorrow.''

USAir spokesman Dave Shipley said he was not aware of an incident like this ever happening before.

(NOV. 21) UPI - The Atlantis crew says Florida was a fine place to land and they wish the space shuttles could land there all the time. Atlantis glided to a touchdown on the three-mile-long runway at the Kennedy Space Center because of high crosswinds in the California desert. It was the first Florida landing in more than five years. Those windy conditions at Edwards Air Force Base in California kept the shuttle in orbit for an extra day, but the astronauts didn't seem to mind.

Two American-made communications satellites are in orbit after a successful ride into space aboard the French-built Ariane- 4 rocket. It was the 35th successful launch of the rocket from the European Space Agency's jungle complex on the northern coast of South America. Both satellites will be boosted into their permanent near stationary orbits 23-thousand miles above the Earth by small on-board rockets.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher says she's disappointed she did NOT get enough votes to turn back Michael Heseltine's bid to take over the Conservative Party. Thatcher survived the challenge, but must face a rematch in a second vote next week that could still oust her from power. If Thatcher loses leadership of her party she could NO longer be prime minister.

U-N Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar says he is considering sending a senior aide to Israel for talks on the problems of Palestinians in the occupied territories. De Cuellar, just back from a 10-day trip to Japan and France, says a visit by his envoy might be useful. Israel has drawn fire for rejecting a U-N inquiry into the October 8th killings of at least 19 Palestinians during rioting on Jerusalem's Temple Mount.

Experts say the housing industry slump will probably only get worse. Housing starts fell six percent last month to their lowest level in eight years. The Commerece Department reports permits for new construction were down nearly seven percent, also the worst since the recession of 1982. National Council of Savings Institutions economist Martin Regalia says mortgage money is there, but recession- wary consumers are afraid they won't be able to make the payments.

Harvard Law students are taking their protest for more minority professors to court. The students filed a suit in Middlesex County Superior Court charging Harvard with discrimination against blacks, Latinos, Asian-Americans, native American Indians, the disabled and women. However, Harvard Law Dean Robert Clark issued a statement defending the school's hiring record. Clark says 45 percent of the ''tenure-track'' positions in the last decade have gone to women and minorities.

BANGKOK, Thailand (NOV. 21) UPI - A small airliner crashed into a forest during a rainstorm Wednesday as it tried to land on a resort island in the Gulf of Thailand, killing at least 37 people, police said.

Bangkok Airways Flight 125, a 37-seat Dash-8 aircraft carrying 33 passengers and a crew of four or five, crashed about 6 miles from the airport on Samui Island, said Charan Kuama, a police officer on the island, about 300 miles south of Bangkok.

''The wreckage is scattered, and there are no reports of suvivors,'' Charan said. Rescue worker had recovered 37 bodies from the forest where the crash occurred, the officer said.

A manifest showed 33 passengers aboard, including one infant. Airline sources said four or five crew also were believed to have been aboard.

Charan said he had not received reports on the nationalities of the victims, but noted that Samui Island is a popular destination for foreign tourists. The passenger list gave names but no nationalities.

Sources at Bangkok's Don Muang Airport, where the flight originated, said the passengers included at least 29 foreigners.

Charan said the plane crashed in a rainstorm at about 6:15 p.m., 35 minutes after it was to have landed. The tiny airport on Samui Island is not equipped with radar or other advanced equipment.

A woman answering the telephone at Samui airport said two loud explosions had been heard and that it was feared all aboard the plane had been killed. The woman refused to identify herself.

Prasert Prasart-thong-osoth, chairman of the board of the airline, said the crash was the airline's first. He said the craft was insured and about $12,000 in compensation would be paid to the heirs of each victim.

Bangkok Airways is small, privately owned carrier that operates on six internal routes and recently began flights to Phnom Penh in neighboring Cambodia.

In September 1988 a Vietnam Airlines jet crashed in a rainstorm near Bangkok, killing 76 people. Just over a year earlier a Thai Airways plane carrying tourists to Phuket, another southern Thai beach resort, crashed into the sea, killing all 83 people aboard in Thailand's worst aircrash.

PARIS (NOV. 21) UPI - Leaders of 34 nations adopted a blueprint Wednesday for post-Cold War security in Europe, a sweeping Charter of Paris that cements a new age of East-West harmony after four decades of ideological and military tension.

''The era of confrontation and division of Europe has ended,'' the heads of state said in the final document of a landmark three-day summit of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

The CSCE summit's centerpiece was Monday's signing of a massive conventional arms treaty by 22 NATO and Warsaw Pact nations, although the rising threat of a Persian Gulf war dampened the festivities.

''That subject was in every corridor, in every bilateral discussion, in everybody's mind,'' said President Bush, who flew from Paris to the Middle East to spend the Thanksgiving holiday with U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia.

The 20-page Charter of Paris for a New Europe, the summit's conclusions, creates a Secretariat in Prague for the previously homeless CSCE, a Conflict Prevention Center in Vienna and an Office for Free Elections in Warsaw.

CSCE leaders will meet every two years to solidify the new pan- European partnership, beginning with a 1992 summit in Helsinki, site of the last such meeting in 1975. Foreign ministers will meet yearly.

The 34-nation CSCE includes all of Europe except Albania, plus the United States and Canada.

''Henceforth our relations will be founded on respect and cooperation,'' says the new charter, which was signed around a huge rectangular table at the sumptuous Kleber International Conference Center near the Arc de Triomphe.

''Ours is a time for fulfilling the hopes and expectations our peoples have cherished for decades: steadfast commitment to democracy based on human rights and fundamental freedoms, prosperity through economic liberty and social justice, and equal security for all our countries,'' the charter declares.

The document includes sections on economic cooperation, human rights, security the environment and culture.

''The old order and the false certainties that supported it have collapsed,'' French President Francois Mitterrand said in closing the historic summit, compared by some to the Congress of Vienna in 1815, which redrew Europe's boundaries after Napoleon's defeat.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said the comparison is faulty.

''The Congress of Vienna was associated with the repression of free thinking of all types, whereas here in Paris we have negotiated a Magna Carta of freedom and human and civil rights,'' Kohl said. ''In Vienna, an attempt was made to re-establish absolute forms of rule, whereas here in Paris we have inextricably linked the future of our continent with democracy based on human rights and fundamental freedoms.''

The summit was launched Monday by the signing of a 110-page Conventional Forces in Europe treaty, which reduces the risk of surprise attack by setting sharp ceilings on tanks, artillery, combat vehicles and aircraft. Tuesday was devoted to speeches, in which several Eastern European nations warned that a new ''Welfare Wall'' between rich and poor nations could replace the Iron Curtain as a dangerous new European divide.

Mitterrand also focused on future challenges in his closing address Wednesday.

''Europe has not traveled the longer part of the road only to stumble on hidden obstacles,'' he said. ''Everything must be thought through again. No institution will evade this critical reexamination - neither the European Community, the Atlantic Alliance nor the Council of Europe, and everyone will take his share.''

France, which pulled out of NATO's integrated military command in 1967, favors the European Community as the post-Cold War Europe's political heart.

The gulf crisis was not on the summit's formal agenda but many heads of state said it posed a crucial test to the new world order.

As the summit ended, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev called for a meeting of the U.N. Security Council ''without delay to discuss the situation and to take a decision there.''

The United States seeks a Security Council resolution authorizing force to oust Iraq from Kuwait.

Domestic politics also provided plenty of sideshows to the main event.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was stunned by a Tuesday night vote in which a challenger for the Conservative Party leadership, former defense secretary Michael Heseltine, won enough votes to force a second ballot next week among Conservative MPS.

''There was a general sense of sadness for her and good wishes for her,'' said Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney. ''We'll have to see what happens.''

Thatcher flew back to London ''well ahead of schedule,'' shortly after the summit concluded, said Orly Airport officials.

French Prime Minister Michel Rocard narrowly escaped a no-confidence vote on Monday night over an unpopular new social-security tax.

TOKYO (NOV. 21) UPI - Tokyo stock prices fell sharply in thin trading Wednesday as a lack of confidence kept buyers off the trading floor.

The Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues plummeted 388.49 points to 22,816.99 following a 312.68 point fall Tuesday.

The Tokyo Stock Price Index of all major issues also plunged 31.26 points to 1,688.53.

An estimated 260 million shares were traded, compared with 217.77 million shares Tuesday.

Brokers said the strength of the yen and bonds spurred bargain hunting in mid-afternoon trading but bearish sentiment drove investors off the trading floor.

''Everybody is bearish, so smaller investors are selling now before things get worse,'' said Joseph Marchal, a trader at Maruso Securities. ''Investors who have to sell have to go deeper and deeper to find a buyer.''

The brokers said investors ignored positive factors such as the yen's rise against the dollar and firming bond prices.

The market suffered from margin-linked selling and selling by institutional investors and investment trusts, they said.

Lowers outnumbered gainers 869-121, with 87 issues unchanged.

Shipbuildings such as Ishikawajima-Harima Heavy Industries and Kawasaki Heavy Industries were sold. Steels like NKK and Kobe Steel also weakened along with electricals, electric powers, constructions, trading firms, chemical, nonferrous metals and land transportations.

Some real estates were among scattered gainers.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 21) UPI - Workers secured the site of an excavation cave-in near the White House Wednesday, allowing United Press International to move back into its headquarters, as crews labored to repair severed telephone and power lines.

The collapsed sides of the 50-foot-deep construction pit, which occupies a quarter of a city block, were shored up with mounds of dirt shoveled into the hole by bulldozers, and the area was declared stable Wednesday, said fire department Capt. Ted Holmes.

UPI, forced out of its world headquarters next to the site after the cave-in Monday night, returned at about 12:30 p.m. EST Wednesday from a temporary news center set up by the wire service at its computer office in suburban Virginia.

The chief engineer for the District of Columbia gave the go-ahead to reopen the 12-story UPI building, which stands at one edge of the pit, after determining there was no longer any danger of further collapse, Holmes said.

''It is safe to go back,'' he said.

Most of UPI's telephone and transmission lines, knocked out by the cave-in, also were restored Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Potomac Electric Power Co. worked to restore electricity cut off by the initial cave-in and a smaller, secondary collapse Tuesday afternoon.

In all, five of six feeder cables supplying power to a six-square- block area were severed, and by midday only one had been repaired, PEPCO spokeswoman Nancy Moses said.

''This has eased the situation a small amount,'' Moses said, but she added that power customers in the area were being asked to ''restrict their use of electricity to a bare minimum'' until full service is restored.

Moses said the power company hoped to have all six cables repaired over the weekend. Utility crews also worked to restore natural gas and water service disrupted after the collapse.

The excavation pit is the site of an office building under development next to a subway stop in the city's busy 14th Street corridor, four blocks from the White House.

The walls of the pit gave way at about 8:15 p.m. Monday night in a roar of earth, sparks and steel, swallowing construction trailers, a crane, sidewalks, trees, sign posts and the alley separating the site from the UPI building.

An extensive search of the area after the collapse turned up no signs of anyone trapped in the rubble and no one was reported injured.

Authorities could not rule out the possibility that somebody walking along the sidewalk or alley was buried in the collapse, ''but from all indications, there is no one, certainly no one recoverable'' in the pit, Holmes said.

The subway station next to the site was shut down until Tuesday, and a three-block section of 14th Street remained cordoned off Wednesday, snarling downtown traffic. The street was not expected to reopen before Friday, police said.

''Traffic's all screwed up,'' officer J.A. Brown said. ''It's terrible.''

The UPI headquarters and one other office building adjacent to the excavation pit were evacuated immediately after the collapse.

Construction and fire crews had feared the possibility of further cave-ins along the southeast corner of the UPI building, where a 90-foot pylon supporting the building was exposed in the initial collapse. UPI managed to keep its operations going with little interruption to clients.

The UPI bureau in Los Angeles assumed control of the wire service for about four hours Monday night while the new agency's staff in Washington moved the principal editorial operations into UPI's computer office in Vienna, Va.

PARIS (NOV. 21) UPI - Western European leaders pledged substantial amounts of emergency food Wednesday to help the Soviet Union through the coming winter but a decision on the amount will not be made until the European Community meets in Rome next month.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said Monday he pledged additional food aid to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, but refused at a news conference Wednesday to confirm a specific amount or dollar figure.

Kohl said he spoke to Gorbachev about aid from private sources and insisted that benevolent organizations be assured the food and medicine reached those most in need.

''We just want to insure that there are no disappointments, that the humanitarian associations that wish to offer assistance will not find that the aid they give does not reach the people,'' Kohl said.

The German chancellor said the success of Gorbachev's economic and government reforms will insure peace in the Soviet Union and that the principal German objective was to help the Soviets help themselves.

''If we can help with economic aid we will do this. This is something that emerged very clearly in the last few days in Paris,'' Kohl said. ''This interlinking of the different problems in Europe has never been so clear as it is at the present time.''

Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney also refused to specifically say how much aid his country could give but said the Soviets already have an 840 million Canadian dollar credit line that can be redeemed at any time.

Mulroney said the Soviets provided Canada a list of products in short supply, including pork, beef, butter and powdered milk.

''We have a fairly good idea of what we can do and we can cause that to be delivered in an effective manner that would benefit the people of the Soviet Union,'' Mulroney said.

On Tuesday, Italian Foreign Minister Gianni De Michelis predicted the European Community would approve $1 billion in emergency aid for Moscow.

''I expect a green light from the European Community next month for financial aid to the Soviet Union,'' De Michaelis was quoted as saying.

The aid package would be the first major Western effort to help the ailing Soviet economy and would go against the Bush administration, which has resisted giving Moscow large scale economic aid.

Bush has said a first step towards resolving the Soviet Union's economic woes would be to end the $5 billion in aid Moscow gives Cuba each year.

American and Soviet officials said Bush and Gorbachev did not discuss the aid issue when they met for dinner at the American ambassador's residence Monday night.

DETROIT (NOV. 21) UPI - General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers union have agreed to implement a sweeping program under which the automaker will redesign every job at its plants that could cause repetitive motion injury.

The program is part of an arrangement announced Tuesday by the U.S. Labor Department's Occupational Health and Safety Administration, which prodded GM and the union into undertaking the program.

Under the arrangement, GM also agreed to pay OSHA $360,000 for alleged violations of health and safety rules and recordkeeping at plants in Oklahoma City and Trenton, N.J. GM paid $500,000 in 1987 for similar violations.

U.S. Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole called the program "the most extensive of its kind in U.S. industry," adding that it should reduce repetitive motion injuries "in an industry that has always been the key to America's economic well-being."

Repetitive motion injuries are the fastest growing hazard in the workplace, and affect one of every ten autoworkers each year. They can cause severe inflammation, pain and even disability because of repeated motion over a long period of time.

GM and the UAW, which represents nearly 300,000 workers at the giant automaker will train workers to avoid such injuries, as well as redesign tools and workplaces to reduce the risk of repetitive trauma, which cost companies billions of dollars each year in medical bills and lost productivity.

UAW Vice President Stephen P. Yokich, who heads the union's GM Department, said factory workers will have a large say in how their jobs are redesigned. Both GM and the UAW have no estimate on how much the program will cost, although industry sources say it could run into the tens of millions of dollars.

(NOV. 21) UPI - The Washington Bullets learned it takes more than one King to beat Sacramento.

The Sacramento Kings earned their first win of the season after seven losses, notching an 87-82 victory over the Washington Bullets Tuesday night thanks to balanced scoring led by Wayman Tisdale's 23 points.

''They were all worried about getting the gorilla off their back,'' Kings Coach Dick Motta said of the losing skid and the impact it was having on his young players. ''I told them it was just a little monkey and not to worry about it.''

''We learn from our losses,'' Tisdale said. ''We'll take a lot of bumps and lumps this season.''

Rookie Duane Causwell's three-point play with 38 seconds left on a layup and foul shot gave the Kings an 85-82 lead that Washington could not overcome.

The loss is Washington's fourth straight, despite a season-high 45 points from Bernard King, the NBA's leading scorer. The Bullets lost to the coach who took them to the 1978 NBA title.

The Kings had lost their last 13 games, their last win having come April 9.

Sacramento's Antoine Carr tallied 15 before fouling out with one minute left. Rookies Lionel Simmons and Travis Mays scored 14 and 13 points, respectively. Veteran Rory Sparrow added 11.

In double figures for the Bullets were Harvey Grant with 14 and Darrell Walker with 10.

The Kings opened a close game with a 19-1 scoring run at the onset of the second quarter, paced by Carr, who hit his first five field-goal attempts.

The Kings outscored the Bullets in the second quarter, 28-9, thanks to Carr's 10 points and Tisdale's 11. The Bullets' second-quarter total is a one-quarter low since the franchise moved from Baltimore in 1973.

Sacramento led at the half, 53-38. The Bullets regrouped in the second half, turning a 58-44 deficit into a 60-58 lead with 3:59 left in the third quarter.

King's buzzer-beater from 21 feet knotted the score at 68 with 12 minutes to go. King scored 16 points in the third quarter.

Hornets 128, Hawks 121

At Charlotte, J.R. Reid scored 23 points, including four in the last four minutes, to give the Hornets their second straight victory over the Hawks and hand the Hawks their fifth straight loss. Charlotte won despite the absence of leading scorer and rebounder Armon Gilliam, out with tendinitis in the knee.

Pistons 106, Heat 90

At Miami, John Salley scored 24 points and Detroit shut down the Heat to extend its winning streak to four. Detroit, 7-2, also was led by Mark Aguirre with 22 points and Joe Dumars with 17. Glen Rice led Miami with 19 points and Sherman Douglas added 16 as the Heat shot only 38 percent from the field.

Rockets 113, Knicks 88

At New York, Akeem Olajuwon scored 30 points and Kenny Smith added 15 points and nine assists in a game that featured a matchup of two of the best centers in the game in Olajuwon and Patrick Ewing. But the Rockets kept Ewing out of the game by double- and triple-teaming him.

Timberwolves 92, Mavericks 91 (ot)

At Dallas, Tyrone Corbin's two-handed tip-in with three-tenths of a second remaining in overtime lifted Minnesota. Corbin's desperate slap at the ball five feet from the basket came after he had missed a short jumper and after teammate Felton Spencer had missed a try at a tip-in.

Warriors 123, Magic 120

At Oakland, Calif., Tim Hardaway scored 23 ponts and added 11 assists, leading the Warriors, who never trailed on the way to their sixth straight home victory this season and their eighth straight dating back to last season. Orlando was led by Terry Catledge, who pumped in 17.

Sonics 105, Nets 88

At Seattle, Xavier McDaniel's 35 points paced the Sonics and sent New Jersey to an NBA record 33rd consecutive road loss. The Nets broke a 36- year-old record set by Baltimore on March 14, 1954. The Nets haven't won on the road since Dec. 23, 1989. McDaniel, who had only 24 points in his previous two games, made 16 of 25 field goal attempts.

MOUNT KATAHDIN, ME (NOV. 21) UPI - Blind hiker Bill Irwin and his German shepherd guidedog were poised Wednesday to complete an eight-month trek over the entire 2,000-mile Appalachian Trail.

Irwin began the hike over the rugged mountain trail in Georgia eight months ago, completing the journey on Mount Katahdin in northern Maine.

A spokeswoman at Baxter State Park, where Mount Katahdin is located, said Irwin was expected to finish up about noontime at a place called Katahdin Stream campground.

''He's doing fine. He's in great shape,'' she said.

She said a group of friends and supporters from Irwin's home in North Carolina were on hand at the campground Wednesday morning to meet Irwin as he ended his task.

Irwin said earlier he decided to hike the trail following what he called an inspiration from God.

''I said 'Lord, I hope you know what you're saying, because it's not going to be easy, and you better be sure,''' he told The Boston Globe this past weekend.

His guide on the trek was Orient, a black and tan German shepherd who packed his own provisions and stopped at every signpost, which Irwin read with his fingertips.

When Irwin stumbles on rocks and falls, Orient stops and waits for him to get up.

Irwin ran into some difficulty recently when he crossed the snow and ice-covered presidential range in New Hampshire. He said the hike through a boulder field for several days over an area covered with ice on the slope of Mount Washington, the highest peak in the Northeast, left him discouraged and weak.

Orient suffered sore paws from crossing the rough terrain.

Irwin said he doesn't stop often on the trail, preferring to push on to cover as much area as possible, realizing how severe the weather can get in northern Maine in November.

Irwin said he was able to hike 10 to 15 miles a day for about 10 days at a time. He said he stopped every few weeks for supplies and to rest.

He was joined by other hikers at various points along the trail.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (NOV. 21) UPI - With Atlantis back on the ground after a surprise Florida landing, NASA is gearing up to launch the shuttle Columbia in less than two weeks, around Dec. 2, to kick off a long- delayed astronomy flight.

Atlantis and its five-man crew, diverted from a California landing because of dangerous crosswinds, glided to a flawless day-late touchdown at the Florida shuttleport at 4:43 p.m. EST Tuesday to close out a five- day mission, the last top-secret shuttle flight currently planned by NASA.

It was the first Florida shuttle landing in 5 1/2 years - only the sixth in the 37-flight history of the program - and NASA officials said the $2 billion orbiter appeared to sail through its 2-million-mile 79- orbit flight in excellent condition.

''I was very pleased to see the successful completion of the mission here,'' said Forrest McCartney, director of the Kennedy Space Center. ''We have had in place ... contingency plans such that if we needed to land the orbiter here, we could. We implemented the plan and it turned out extremely well.''

But William Lenoir, NASA's associate administrator for spaceflight, said more landing tests are needed on the broad lakebed runways at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., the normal shuttle landing site, before shuttles will be cleared for routine touchdowns in the Sunshine State.

''When will be begin to try routinely to come into the cape? We would like to get a little more characterization of our handling qualities, our brakes,'' Lenoir said. ''We have some tests we'd like to do on ... subsequent missions that are better suited on a lakebed where you have more latitude.

''We're probably a year and a half or so away from attaining that. In the meantime, we have no hesitation whatsoever in a situation like this to return to the cape.''

Atlantis's picture-perfect touchdown closed out a presumably successful mission to launch a top-secret military satellite. But with a Pentagon-imposed news blackout in effect, it was not immediately possible to determine if all the goals the flight were met.

Landing originally was scheduled for Monday at Edwards in California's Mojave Desert, but dangerous crosswinds forced NASA managers to delay re-entry one day. After more of the same was observed Tuesday, Atlantis was diverted to the Kennedy Space Center.

The shuttle's all-military crew - commander Richard Covey, 44, co- pilot Frank Culbertson, 41, Charles Gemar, 35, Carl Meade, 40, and Robert Springer, 48 - flew back to their homes in Houston about 4 1/2 hours hours after landing.

''We think it's great that we have such a fine place to come to when we can't go to either of our other primary and secondary landing sites,'' Covey told reporters before leaving. ''We're anxious now to go on back to Houston and catch up with our families.''

With Atlantis back on the ground, engineers are gearing up for Columbia's launch on a 10-day astronomy mission around Dec. 2, just 17 days after Atlantis's liftoff from the Kennedy Space Center - a shuttle record.

On board will be commander Vance Brand, 59, co-pilot Guy Gardner, 42, John ''Mike'' Lounge, 44, Robert Parker, 53, Jeffrey Hoffman, 46, and civilian astronomers Ronald Parise, 39, and Samuel Durrance, 47.

Brand and company originally were scheduled for takeoff May 30, but the ship was grounded the night before liftoff by a dangerous hydrogen fuel leak. A second leak grounded the ship twice more in September.

But Columbia finally passed a fueling test last month and engineers say the ship is back on track for blastoff. An official launch date will be set next week after a one-day flight readiness review at the Kennedy Space Center.

An internal space agency rule requires three weeks between shuttle missions so data from one flight can be studied before launching the next.

The rule was put in place after the 1986 Challenger disaster to make sure problems like those with the doomed shuttle's boosters are found before another shuttle is launched.

But NASA managers say Atlantis's boosters and other critical systems can be inspected in time for Columbia to take off early next month and that if any major problems are discovered, the flight can be put on hold.

The Blackhawks have not been known for their fierce play away from the friendly confines of Chicago Stadium. However, with a 3-1 victory over the Edmonton Oilers, they are 4-0 on their current road swing and that has given them the best record the league.

Chicago has 34 points, one ahead of the New York Rangers, with each team having played 24 games.

''It feels great,'' said Chicago Coach Mike Keenan. ''We've built our entire game on team defense and it's working out well for us. We've got really good balance and we've been getting a consistent effort from everybody.''

Chris Chelios, Adam Creighton and Jeremy Roenick scored in rapid succession late in the first period to give the Blackhawks a 3-0 lead. Roenick attributed Chicago's success to ''hard work and confidence, especially in our goaltending''.

Netminder Ed Belfour once again played well and improved upon the 1.95 goals against average he brought into the game.

''They had a great jump right at the start,'' said Edmonton defenseman Kevin Lowe. ''They were really freewheeling. Then when we had our chances in the second period we could only score once. They're playing really well right now. They're definitely functioning on all cylinders.''

The loss snapped the Oilers' three-game winning streak and ended a four-game homestand. The Blackhawks are 4-0 on their six-game road trip and are unbeaten in their past seven road games. They have also earned 20 of a possible 24 points in their past 12 games (9-1-2).

Chicago dominated from the outset but needed 16:28 to open scoring as Chelios drilled a low point shot through traffic on a Chicago power play.

A quick flick of the wrists from Creighton put the puck in the top corner from 10 feet out at 17:16 to make it 2-0. Goal No. 3 came at 19:18 when Roenick stuffed home his own rebound from the edge of the crease.

The Oilers responded in the second period, scoring the only goal despite being outshot 11-7. Glenn Anderson cut the lead to 3-1 with a brilliantly executed deflection of a Steve Smith point shot on the power play at 9:37. Anderson burst out from the corner and arrived at the edge of the crease at the same time as Smith's low drive.

Wayne Gretzky added a goal and two assists for the Smythe Division leaders, to pull to within one point of NHL leader John Cullen's 39 points. MINNEAPOLIS (NOV. 21) UPI - The Minnesota Vikings activated running back D.J. Dozier Tuesday.

To make room for Dozier and possibly for quarterback Wade Wilson, the Vikings waived linebacker Walker Lee Ashley and quarterback Gil Renfroe.

For now, Wilson, who is recovering from a thumb injury, is officially listed on the practice squad. If he shows this week in practice that he can throw the ball well enough, he probably will be activated.

To make room for Wilson on the practice squad, rookie linebacker Kerry Owens was released.

''We'll see how Wade throws and how well he moves around and then make a decision later in the week,'' Coach Jerry Burns said. ''No matter what, though (Rich) Gannon will definitely start on Sunday.''

The Vikings, 4-6, take on the Chicago Bears, 9-1, at the Metrodome Sunday. Gannon got off to an 0-4 start as Wilson's replacement following the starter's injury in the Vikings' last game with Chicago Sept. 23. But the Vikings have won their last three games with Gannon at the controls.

Dozier, who signed recently after holding out while he played minor league baseball in the New York Mets organization, is needed because of an injury to JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (NOV. 21) UPI - President Bush arrived in the volatile Middle East Wednesday to spend Thanksgiving Day with American troops and bolster the alliance against Iraq's Saddam Hussein with key leaders, including Syria's President Hafez Al-Assad.

Arriving in the second largest Saudi city bordering the Red Sea, Bush was greeted with royal fanfare by Saudi Arabia King Fahd and an entourage of princes draped in ceremonial robes.

Under clear skies and a bright crescent moon, which is the symbol on the Saudi flag, Bush shared a ceremonial cup of coffee with Fahd before heading to the spectacular al-Hambra Palace where he met with the exiled emir of Kuwait, Sheik Jabir al-Alhmad al-Jabir al-Sabah.

Bush arranged to meet with Fahd later over a state dinner.

In an announcement timed to coincide with Bush's dramatic evening arrival, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater revealed that the president also would meet Friday with Assad, a longtime U.S. rival but current ally in the Persian Gulf standoff.

''The two presidents will discuss a number of international and regional issues,'' Fitzwater said from Air Force One, shortly before Bush's jumbo jet touched down.

Syria also is believed to have some indirect influence over some of the hostage-takers in Lebanon, but Fitzwater said the main purpose of the two hours of talks in Geneva Friday, arranged at the behest of Mideast allies, including Egypt and Turkey, will be to discuss the situation in the gulf.

Syria, which remains on the U.S. list of countries that sponsor international terrorism, has long been a bitter rival of Iraq and has sent troops and tanks to Saudi Arabia to join the anti-Saddam coalition led by the United States.

Bush landed in the oil-fed oasis assured of continued international support of actions against Saddam.

The meetings with Fahd and Assad, an opportunity to explore the next steps the administration believes are necessary to check Iraq, are part of his continuing attempt to isolate the Iraqi president and bolster the international coalition amassed against him since the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Just before leaving Paris, Bush said he looked forward to spending Thanksgiving Day, complete with turkey and trimmings, with the 230,000 U.S. military troops stationed in the gulf.

''We have a lot to be thankful for,'' Bush told a news conference as he wound up his stay in Paris. ''And I will try to tell every single man and woman over there that we are going to prevail. We're not there for mission impossible.''

As for his journey into the troubled Persian Gulf area, he also assured reporters he did not feel he would be endangered when he travels through the Saudi desert on Thursday.

''I have never felt more secure in going any place than in going to see our troops there,'' said Bush, adding, ''And I think the men and women there are looking forward to visiting with us. Our safety is guaranteed. Not risky. Let me just assure people there is no risk.

''Why? Well, it's Thanksgiving.''

Before turning to the coming days' critical sessions with Middle Eastern leaders, Bush said the European nations he had consulted with were ''very solid'' in their support of U.S. policy against Iraq, adding that no one is suggesting compromise.

He also rejected reports that his relations with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev were strained because the Soviets deferred a public backing of further action against Saddam.

''Things are holding together and very well indeed,'' Bush said.

He also pledged he will keep up the pressure against the Iraq leader ''until he does what he should have done before.''

During his three-day stay in Paris, part of a weeklong 16,000 trip through Europe and the Middle East, Bush pressed a behind-the-scenes campaign to garner support for the use of force in the form of a new U.N. resolution.

U.S. officials indicated Tuesday that Bush appeared to have made progress toward that goal and indicated Moscow may be willing to back a U.N. resolution that would authorize conditional use of force against Iraq.

That disclosure was made after intense talks between Secretary of State James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and meetings between Bush and Gorbachev.

Officials also indicated several options were discussed with the Soviets leaning toward an approach that would give economic sanctions against Iraq more time - perhaps two months - before agreeing to execute an international military effort to drive Saddam's troops from Kuwait.

Summing up the discussions, Shevardnadze pointed to the possible agreement down the road. ''I think the time has come for the security council to ... pass a proper judgment on what has been done in respect to implementation of the already passed resolutions. And, if there is a need, then adopt new resolutions.''

The United Nations has passed 10 resolutions condemning Iraq for its invasion and subsequent occupation of Kuwait and has imposed economic sanctions. The embargo basically has prevented Iraq from exporting goods, including the main product - oil. The economic counterpunch also has resulted in a freeze of Iraqi assets in the United States and abroad.

Before leaving Paris, Bush, Gorbachev and other world leaders signed the final documents of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, which was the forum for the signing of a major arms and forces accord that signaled the official end of the Cold War.

Bush told reporters Wednesday morning that ''the Cold War is over,'' a declaration he has avoided until this time. ''We have closed a chapter in history.''

(NOV. 21) UPI - Snow continued to pile up in the mountains of the West Wednesday and authorities said high winds and snow-packed roads made driving hazardous in the Colorado Rockies.

Snow fell throughout the Rockies and the mountains of the Northwest for the second day in a row, with up to 18 inches of snow piling up in some areas.

Authorities advised motorists to use snow tires or chains in the Red Mountain and Wolf Creek passes of Colorado's San Juan Mountains.

High winds to 60 mph buffeted the front range and Pikes Peak area of Colorado, the National Weather Service said. Gusts reached 80 mph at the top of the ski lift near Wolf Creek, Colo. Travelers were warned to be prepared for blowing and drifting snow.

Snow also fell across the mountains of northern California Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Arizona and New Mexico.

Rain extended from the southeast third of New Mexico across Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Early morning temperatures were in the 20s in northern New England and the northern Rockies, the 30s in the East, the 40s and 50s in the Midwest and the 60s in the desert Southwest, Southern California and the South.

HOUSTON (NOV. 21) UPI - State Farm Insurance Co. has agreed to pay $12 million to settle a discrimination suit filed by south Texas women, blacks and Hispanics denied jobs by the company.

The agreement, tentatively approved Tuesday by U.S. District Judge David Hittner, would settle a year-old class-action suit filed against the nation's largest property and casulaty insurer by seven Texas women.

The plaintiffs - from Dallas, El Paso, Austin, and San Antonio - claimed they were denied jobs as State Farm agent trainees and field claim representatives as part of a widespread pattern of discrimination by the company from 1975 to 1983.

State Farm agreed in 1988 to settle a similar suit filed in California by paying each of three women $420,000 and guaranteeing at least half its new agent jobs in the state would go to women over the next decade. A second discrimination suit filed against the company in California is pending.

Under the Texas settlement, the women will share $500,000 to recover wages they would have received if State Farm had hired them. The balance of the award will be distributed by the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to women and minorities in State Farm's South Texas region, which includes Houston, San Antonio, Austin, and El Paso.

The money will be available to all Hispanics, blacks, and women in the region who were not hired, recruited, or promoted as State Farm agent trainees or field claim representative trainees before 1984.

Money also will be distributed to women or minorities who can prove they did not apply for State Farm jobs because they were discouraged by the company's history of discrimination, said Donna Ryu, an attorney who helped negotiate the settlement.

State Farm spokesman Mark Brandt said the Bloomington, Ill., company does not now have any inequities in its hiring system. "We make a conscientious effort to recruit an all-American agency force," Brandt said. "Our numbers would show that we have done a good job."

Brandt declined to release statistics about State Farm's Texas employees because of restrictions in the settlement agreement. But he said the company has 1,477 agents in the state, including 762 in the South Texas region.

NEW YORK (NOV. 21) UPI - Author-lyricist John Driver has given James Clavell's richly resonant historical novel, ''Shogun,'' the sound of hollow brass in its reincarnation as a $6 million Broadway musical noteworthy for its production values and little else.

''Shogun: The Musical,'' which opened at the Marquis Theater Tuesday, is the sort of extravagant show that evokes more applause for its 70 tons of scenery and stage effects than for its acting and singing, a trend of the 1980s that shows no signs of abating.

The acting and singing is good enough but Driver's book is almost incomprehensible to anyone unascquainted with the novel or the TV mini- series it spawned and the songs are forgettable.

Academic composer Paul Seiko Chihara's music is pleasant enough in the Andrew Lloyd Webber vein with Oriental overtones, but it lacks the melodic and rhythmic distinction necessary to a hit musical.

Philip Casnoff, a youthful actor whose credits include TV's ''North and South '' plays John Blackthorne, an English sea captain whose ship runs ashore in a storm in medieval Japan. Marooned there, he becomes involved in a samurai civil war, commercial intrigue involving venal Portuguese Jesuit missionaries, and a romance with the wife of an evil court official.

Seppuku, which is ritual suicide according to a glossary in the Playbill, is rife in ''Shogun'' but it is not an exaggerated symbol for a show that displays suicidal tendencies as early as the first hour of its three-hour eternity.

Casnoff has enough spirit and talent to provide a dashing though callow hero and he has a serviceable but not particularly musical voice. But his Blackthorne suffers in contrast to the larger characterization Francis Ruivivar gives the role of the Shogun.

Ruivivar makes this man of humor and political resourcefulness immensely likable and he dominates the stage whenever given the chance. He is graceful for a portly man, giving a fine account of the hornpipe with Blackthorne as his dancing master, and blessed with a sonorous vocal instrument.

June Angela as Blackthorne's paramour, Lady Mariko, has a pretty face, fluty voice and servile blandness that is boring rather than charming. Jo-Ann Hunter makes much more of her role as a flippant courtesan, and John Herrera as a greedy Jesuit and Joseph Foronda as the nobleman cuckolded by Blackthorne are commendable.

Director-choreographer Michael Smuin has attacked the dramatic possibilities of ''Shogun'' with relish.

The show opens with amusingly fake sea storm that could double for the opener of Verdi's ''Otello'' and moves on to a fiery earthquake, cavalry troops riding through fog and snow, a firefly festival, a clever twist on an archery contest, displays of martial arts, ninja hijinks and simulated sex behind a diaphanous curtain.

Good taste does not stand in Smuin's way when he wants to make an effect that will stun or titillate his audience. The scene of courtesans singing a paean to a dildo and other sexual enhancements certainly rates mention when the book of Broadway's best blunders is compiled. TV's ''Shogun'' was too prudish to even mention the subject, which is to TV's lasting credit.

Loren Sherman's sets, especially the palace interiors with their lovely screens and polished woods, are sheer poetry in combination with Natasha Katz's lyric lighting, especially the lovely scene in which Lady Mariko has tea without sympathy with her husband, Lord Buntaro.

The sets provide a a marvelously varied series of backgrounds for Patricia Zipprodt's magical costumes in silks and brocades that dazzle the senses and finally overwhelm them with a whirl of warrior's golden coats that brings down the curtain.

Smuin's choreography is resourceful, forceful or silky as the dramatic situation requires, although never as polished as the exotic choreography Jerome Robbins created for ''The King and I,'' the show about English woman struggling to understand the alien culture of Siam, just as Blackthorne tries to fathom the misteries of Japan.

CAIRO, EGYPT (NOV. 21) UPI - For all of Saddam Hussein's confident rhetoric that he can survive anything the U.S.-dominated alliance throws at him, a returning Egyptian worker said Wednesday that Iraq is running out of food and its troops could be forced to fight on an empty stomach.

Iraq last week ordered cuts in rations of a number of basic foods in an indication the three-month-old U.N.-sponsored economic embargo was beginning to bite.

One Egyptian returnee called Mohammed, who asked that his family name not be used for safety reasons, said in an interview in Cairo that Iraq might soon run out of wheat and has begun slaughtering livestock because of a shortage of animal food.

''Iraq has stocks of wheat to last only a few more weeks,'' said Mohammed, citing Iraqi contacts in Baghdad. ''They are mixing barley into the flour to make up for the shortfall and the bread does not taste very nice. But even this barley will finish.''

He said beef remains available, although expensive, but only because of the stepped-up slaughtering of livestock, particularly cattle.

The Egyptian, who spent three years in Iraq as a technician, said there were also shortages of powdered milk, which is extensively used not only for feeding babies but also in cooking given Iraq's insufficient dairy production.

He said despite an appeal by Saddam and his wife on Baghdad Radio Aug. 12 for Iraqi women to cut consumption of meat by half and refrain from hoarding food, many families were worried that a protracted U.N. blockade could cause malnutrition and even starvation.

''If military action is delayed by another three months, some people (in Baghdad) think Iraqi soldiers may have to fight on empty stomachs, or at least without the food they are used to,'' Mohammed said.

To persuade Iraqi farmers to release their stocks, Saddam ordered the Ministry of Trade to increase prices paid them for wheat, barley and corn by up to 50 percent.

In other signs of desperation, Egyptian press reports said Saddam had asked Thailand and Brazil to help alleviate the country's food shortages. Iraq was reported to have asked the Thai government to resume shipments of food, especially rice, in return for which Thai nationals would receive exit visas.

Iraq freed about 240 Brazilian engineering workers and asked Brazil to send more food, the reports said. Brazil had been a major exporter to Iraq of frozen chickens, beef and sugar.

Despite Saddam's statements that he can take anything and still emerge victorious, Amman radio recently reported that Iraq was unable to import food in large quantities across the sealed Turkish, Saudi and Syrian borders.

The state-owned radio said despite Iraq's peace settlement with Iran, Iranian leaders confirmed they would abide by U.N. sanctions and would not open a food supply route for Saddam.

The air embargo has halted food shipments and Western navies are imposing a strict sea blockade in the Persian Gulf.

Although some supplies were still reported to be getting through from Jordan, ''the volume is insufficient to meet Iraqi needs'' and was declining as the international embargo was taking effect.

SAN SALVADOR, EL SALVADOR (NOV. 21) UPI - Government troops Wednesday beefed up security in the capital following rebel attacks that killed 25 people and wounded at least 116, the armed forces said.

In a speech broadcast nationally Tuesday night, President Alfredo Cristiani warned rebels that their dependence on military action to win concessions in the peace talks could backfire.

''Far from making the developing peace process more dynamic, you are putting it in danger,'' Cristiani said. ''The violence will generate confrontational attitudes that will not allow the reflection necessary for reaching agreements.''

Rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, known by its Spanish initials as the FMLN, said attacks Tuesday against four important military installations and several economic targets were aimed at ending a stalemate in the 6-month-old U.N.-mediated peace process.

The talks have broken down over rebel demands for a purge of the armed forces and replacement of the military with a civilian police force.

Defense Minister Rene Emilio Ponce said 12 soldiers, 10 guerrillas and three civilians were killed Tuesday in rebel attacks in nine provinces. Heavy fighting also broke out in several small towns in the northern suburbs of the capital.

Ponce said 50 civilians, 66 soldiers and an undetermined number of guerrillas were wounded in the most widespread attacks since the FMLN's massive offensive on the capital in November 1989.

''The armed forces continues on alert,'' he said. ''We are working 24 hours a day to defend a system and our people.''

Although fighting has been continuous in the rebel-controlled northern mountains, Tuesday's attacks brought the decade-old civil war back to the cities for the first time since last year's offensive.

Government spokesmen characterized the fighting as a major offensive but the FMLN calleld it a ''military campaign ... of limited objectives.''

''We reserve the right to launch a large scale military offensive in the short or medium term,'' the FMLN said in a statement. ''The end of the war will come only with the complete disappearance of the antidemocratic army.''

Citing its constitutional mandate, the Salvadoran armed forces has firmly rejected rebel demands that the army be disbanded.

LONDON (NOV. 21) UPI - Reeling from a serious blow to her leadership, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher declared Wednesday that she will fight to victory in the toughest and perhaps last big battle of her political career.

''I fight on, I fight to win,'' Thatcher, commonly known as the ''Iron Lady,'' said outside the 10 Downing Street office she has held for 11 1/2 years.

Michael Heseltine, her challenger as leader of the ruling Conservative Party and thus as prime minister, likewise expressed optimism.

''I think the unanimous view of all my supporters ... is that I had to go on '' Heseltine said, ''and we were reinforced by the number of people who had not voted for me on the first round ... who have said, 'We will now switch to you on the second.'''

Heseltine failed Tuesday to oust Thatcher outright as head of the Party, but drew enough votes to force a second ballot Nov. 27 that could sweep her from power.

Thatcher was four votes short of turning back the challenge and continuing her 15-year tenure as leader, receiving 204 votes compared with Heseltine's 152 in the vote of Conservative members of Parliament. Sixteen members abstained.

The winner will need a simple majority of 187 votes if there are no other candidates or abstentions.

Thatcher has alienated many party members with her aggressive opposition to greater European Community integration and a common European currency.

Both Thatcher, 65, and Heseltine, 57, declared their intentions to compete on the second ballot, but only Heseltine's nomination papers had been submitted by Wednesday evening. Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd and Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major were expected to nominate Thatcher before the deadline of noon Thursday.

Senior Conservatives met with Thatcher Wednesday morning upon her return from a 34-nation European summit in Paris.

Party Chairman Kenneth Baker, a Thatcher supporter; Cranley Onslow; government chief whip Tim Renton, and Norman Tebbit, a former Cabinet member, were among those present. Hurd, seen as a possible candidate if Thatcher steps down, slipped in through a backdoor.

Thatcher emerged from the meeting unbowed to report to Parliament on the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe. Some members waved and cheered in support of her as she entered the House of Commons.

Tebbit said Thatcher would fight for her political life until the end. ''She has already made that clear.''

Conservative leaders are concerned about the ruling party's future, with a deadline of mid-1992 for a general election.

''Obviously, anybody who believes in the Conservative Party is worried,'' said Tory elder statesman William Whitelaw. ''We've got to get united and win the next election, and getting united is a very great problem after all the fuss that has happened.''

Despite speculation that Tory leaders would pressure Thatcher to stand aside for the good of the party, Whitelaw said the decision rests with her alone. ''It is up to her to decide what she does, and I would support entirely what she does,'' he said.

Goeffrey Johnson Smith, a leader of the committee overseeing next Tuesday's vote, said some members of Parliament have expressed a desire to vote for candidates other than Thatcher or Heseltine. ''They would like a wider choice than just leaving it to the two to slug it out at the OK Corral next Tuesday '' he said.

Heseltine took a jab at Thatcher for her announcement that she would run on the second ballot within 10 minutes of hearing the tally at the British Embassy in Paris. ''I wouldn't have done that,'' he told the British Broadcasting Corp., faulting her leadership style.

''Really, we're talking about the same thing, about whether the Cabinet has a role in the way this government is run and whether perhaps the elder, experienced voices of the party who have always played a big role behind the scene in time of difficulty, whether perhaps they shouldn't have had a chance to explore the options and take the temperature.''

AUSTIN, MN (NOV. 21) UPI - Geo. A. Hormel Co. said Wednesday it earned a company record $77.1 million, or $1.01 a share, for the fiscal year ended Oct. 27, up10 percent from the $70 million, or 91 cents a share, reported in 1989. Net sales for the year reached nearly $2.6 billion, a gain of 14.6 percent over the $2.34 billion reported last year.

For the fourth quarter, Hormel had net earnings of $36.32 million, or 48 cents a share, up from $32.3 million, or 42 cents a share, in the year-ago period. Fourth-quarter sales were $772.82 million, up from $699.08 million in the year-ago period.

Hormel said it was distributing $6.72 million to its employees as part of its profit-sharing program. That averages out to $1,303 for each eligible employee an increase of $62 from last year.

"We are pleased tgo again provide profit-sharing to our employees," Chairman R.L. Knowlton said. "Profit-sharing is our opportunity to express appreciation for the dedicated employees who contributed to the company's record results in fiscal 1990." The 100-year-old meat and food processing company, ironically, was torn by a bitter and sometimes violent 13-month strike which ended in September, 1986.

Hormel also announced its 25th consecutive annual increase in its dividend rate Wednesday. The company will pay a dividend of 30 cents a share, up from 26 cents.

The earnings results left Knowlton glowing about the company's performance. "Unusual and unforeseen near-record high pork prices placed severe pressure on margins and tested our ability to incorporate into product pricing the escalating raw material costs," Knowlton said.

"Compounding the problem was a sluggish economy and rapidly rising energy costs, which adversely impacted year-end results due to increased production and transportation expenses.

"Our ability to finish with a record year while confronted with major industry challengres is evidence the corporation can successfully achieve its established objectives regardless of almost any difficulty."

LONDON (NOV. 21) UPI - Stock prices closed higher Wednesday in moderate trading on the London International Stock Exchange as Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher vowed to continue fighting a leadership challenge and institutional dealers anticipated a recovery from recession.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which gained 19.3 points Tuesday, closed up 11.1 points at 2,126.3. The narrower top 30 industrial average gained 8.9 points to 1,676.0.

Volume amounted to around 444 million shares, down from the 518 million shares changing hands on Tuesday.

The stability of the British pound was a key factor in the equity market's surge. Thatcher's firm stance against stepping down in the face of Michael Heseltine's challenge to her position as Conservative party leader, and the threat of Bank of England intervention helped to prop the sagging British currency higher, analysts said.

A lower opening on Wall Street tempered some of the gains in London, however, market watchers said.

But some favorable corporate earnings reports suggested that all was not gloom in the British economy.

On the trading floor, Courtauld's gained 4 cents to $6.06 after the paints, packaging and chemicals group announced its interim pre-tax profits climbed 23 percent, with worldwide sales up slightly more than 4 percent.

Telecommunications group Cable & Wireless announced interim pre-tax profits rose 25 percent.

''For all the uncertainty in the world economic climate, the telecommunications industry is in good shape and growing vigorously,'' said Cable & Wireless chairman Lord Young, in a statement.

Cable & Wireless lost 12 cents to $7.93 as dealers discounted the figures.

B.A.T Industries, the financial services and tobacco company, gained 16 cents to $10.73 despite a poor profits statement.

Guinness PLC gained 4 cents to $14.25 on news of its acquisition of Spain's largest brewer, Cruz del Campo.

Media and information group Reuters dropped 26 cents to $11.97.

In Germany, banks, major businesses, markets and government offices were closed for the Penance Day holiday.

(NOV. 21) UPI - Leaders of 34 nations today in Paris adopted and signed a new blueprint for post-Cold War security in Europe. The sweeping 20-page Charter of Paris cements a new age of East-West harmony after four decades of tension. The heads of state, including President Bush, said in the final document of a landmark three-day summit of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe- quoting- ''The era of confrontation and division of Europe has ended.''

President Bush says he and Soviet President Gorbachev and many other nations are ''on the same wavelength'' on the Persian Gulf crisis. Bush rejected reports that he and the Soviet leader don't see eye-to-eye on the possible use of military force against Iraq. The president told reporters in Paris this morning- ''I think we have good synchronization with them and many other nations as we face the problems of the gulf.''

With the European summit behind him, Bush leaves the French capital today to journey to the Saudi Arabian desert. He's scheduled to hold talks this afternoon in Jeddah with the exiled emir of Kuwait and Saudi King Fahd. The president and the first lady will then spend Thanksgiving day visiting American and British troops at several locations in desert.

In New York, fallen junk bond king Michael Milken faces up to 28 years in prison this morning when he's sentenced on securities and tax violations. The 44-year-old Milken, who earned a fortune peddling junk bonds, has pleaded guilty to six counts, including five counts of illegal securities trading and one count of filing a false tax statement. And he's agreed to pay 600-Million dollars in fines and penalties.

City and federal safety officials in Washington, D-C, are still trying to determine what caused the collapse of a giant excavation site four blocks from the White House. The pit cave-in Monday night swallowed up construction trailers, a crane, a truck, and portions of the adjacent street and sidewalk. Authorities are concerned about the structural integrity of surrounding buildings, including the 12-story United Press International building where a 90-foot pylon supporting the structure was exposed in the collapse.

In Atlanta, the estranged wife of suspected mail bomber Walter Moody Junior reportedly has pleaded guilty to charges related to his appeal of a 1972 bomb possession conviction. The Atlanta Constitution newspaper quotes unnamed sources as saying that Susan Moody pleaded guilty to witness-tampering charges earlier this month in a closed court hearing and the judge sealed records of the proceeding. The paper says Susan Moody agreed to cooperate with government prosecutors in their investigation of her husband.

Massachusetts Congressman Barney Frank has been moved out of intensive care at a Boston hospital and predicts he'll be back to work when Congress reconvenes in January. The 50-year-old Democratic lawmaker suffered a mild heart attack while exercising last weekend. Doctors at Beth Israel Hospital say Frank will remain in the hospital for another seven to 10 days for tests and observation. Frank said of his condition- ''There's NO good time for something like this to happen, but at least Congress is now out.''

MOSCOW (NOV. 21) UPI - Leaders of the Russian-speaking Dniester region decided Wednesday to proceed with weekend elections in their effort to break from the Moldavian republic, despite fears of ethnic clashes and appeals from a top Soviet official.

The elections are scheduled for Sunday but the local election commission allowed voting to begin Wednesday in the city of Bendery and early balloting may also be held in other areas ''depending on the local political situation '' the independent Interfax news service said.

Russians and Ukrainians in the area of Moldavia east of the Dniester River and the Gagauzis in the republic's southern part have declared their own autonomous regions because of fears that minority rights will be trampled under Moldavian nationalism and the majority's desire to reunite with neighboring Romania.

At least three people were reported killed in the Dniester region earlier this month in clashes between Russian and Ukrainian residents and Moldavian militia and vigilantes.

Elections last month to set up a separate Parliament in the southern Gagauz region also led to ethnic confrontations, with Soviet Interior Ministry troops sent in to prevent serious bloodshed.

Moldavian President Mircea Snegur and the republic's Parliament have said the declarations of autonomy by the Dniester and Gagauz regions are illegal. Snegur said on republican television Tuesday night the Dniester elections planned Sunday are illegitimate and should be boycotted.

Marshal Sergei Akhromeyev, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's top military adviser who also represents Moldavia in the national legislature, has been in the republic since Monday, pushing for a deal that would cancel or postpone the elections.

But a ''Provisional Supreme Soviet'' set up in the Dniester region declared Wednesday, after meeting with Akhromeyev and a conciliatory commission of the Moldavian Parliament, that the elections would be held as scheduled, Interfax said.

''Preparations to elect the Supreme Soviet of the so-called Dniester Republic are still continuing,'' the official Tass news agency said.

Interfax said that the provisional legislature decided to hold a meeting Dec. 1 to decide whether to accept a moratorium on the election results, apparently a possible compromise to avoid ethnic confrontation.

In another move toward compromise, the Moldavian Parliament gave preliminary approval Wednesday to a measure that would guarantee the rights of all ethnic groups in the republic and allow education in languages other than Moldavian, which has been declared the republic's official language.

Tass said the law passed on first reading and would be published in the republic's press in an effort to defuse ethnic tension before it is given final approval.

Akhromeyev, respected in both Moscow and his home republic, urged Moldavian leaders in the republic's capital of Kishinev to denounce any desire to join Romania and agree instead to sign a new ''union treaty'' to remain in the Soviet Union.

Akhromeyev then urged the Dniester area to cancel or at least postpone elections for a local legislature.

Clashes between Moldavians and Russian speakers broke out two weeks ago in the Dniester region because of rumors the elections would be held early, and in the past week there have been reports of fresh ethnic violence in Moldavia.

Local authorities imposed a state of emergency until Dec. 1 in the Dniester River city of Tirapsol to ''prevent provocations'' during the weekend elections.

Interfax said Moldavian militia members were being harassed and even kicked out of the Russian-speaking cities along the Dniester, and that workers' self-defense groups had sealed off the city of Bendery, where it said telephone communications were disrupted earlier in the week by explosions.

Soviet television showed women and children in the region sheltered together at a barracks because of fears of ethnic violence, and Interfax said some schools had been closed for several days.

A republic of 4.4 million people, Moldavia was formed by joining a former Moldavian autonomous area of the Ukraine with large areas of Romania that Josef Stalin seized in 1940 as part of a secret pact with Nazi Fuhrer Adolf Hitler.

Moldavians, whose language is Romanian, make up 64 percent of the republic's population, Ukrainians 14.2 percent and Russians 12.8 percent. Gagauzis represent 3.5 percent and Jews 2 percent of the people in the tiny republic.

Like 13 of the other 14 Soviet republics, Moldavia has declared its sovereignty and is insisting on being called by its Romanian name of ''Moldova.''

But Moldavia, just as the other republics, has been hit with a boomeranging nationalism by minority groups threatened by the radical policies of republican leaders.

WARSAW (NOV. 21) UPI - Outgoing President Wojciech Jaruzelski said Wednesday he believes history will acknowledge his contribution to Poland's emerging democracy, but acknowledged that he probably won't be alive to enjoy it.

At a farewell reception for reporters in Belwedere Palace, the communist general who ordered martial law in 1981 to crush Solidarity - which now leads the government - said he will eventually write his memoirs describing the reasons for his decision.

''I don't regret the decision on the introduciton of martial law. I regret that the situation made it unavoidable,'' he said, apparently referring to the Soviet threat to invade unless Solidarity was put under control.

The normally ramrod-straight Jaruzelski, who is resigning only a year into his six-year term because of the changing political climate, chatted easily with Western reporters.

Asked how he believes his leadership will be assessed in the years to come, the president said, ''I think now probably the negative (emotions) prevail. But with time, the further we are from these moments, the more objective the picture will be,'' he said. ''I believe history will acknowledge this.

''By that time I will surely be in Powazki (Cemetery) or somewhere else, so it will not be much of a personal satisfaction,'' he added. ''But what counts is the historical truth.''

Jaruzelski, 67, whose career began when he joined the Polish Army in the Soviet Union in 1943, was named head of Poland's Communist Party in October 1981 while serving simultaneously as chairman of the Council of Ministers. Three months later, with the country rocked by strikes led by the newly legalized independent union, he declared martial law.

He became head of state in 1985 as Poland was moving toward ''normalization'' after martial law.

After another series of disruptive Solidarity strikes in 1988 and 1989, Jaruzelski persuaded the Communist Party to offer independent groups a share of power. The result was the historic round-table agreement that allowed supporters of the re-legalized Solidarity to run for certain seats in the June 1989 parliamentary elections.

Solidarity's victory was so overwhelming that the Communists were unable to form a new government, and Solidarity was thrust into the leadership.

''We have all sinnned. We were all less clever than we are today,'' Jaruzelski said, reflecting on the past decade. ''I have already said we have gone through purgatory in order not to find ourselves in hell.''

Despite his leading role in setting up the groundwork for bringing democracy to Poland, most Poles remember him with bitterness as the man who declared war on his own country.

When, as part of the round-table pact, he was elected by the Parliament as president, he scraped in by a single vote - and only after intense debate during which a few Solidarity deputies changed their votes to support him.

Asked the most unpleasant moment of his presidency, Jaruzelski cited that election. ''I regretted that I did not follow it more closely,'' he said. ''Maybe I would not have accepted the post.''

The presidential election to replace him is Nov. 25, but if none of the six candidates draws 50 percent of the vote, a runoff will be held two weeks later.

The new president is expected be sworn in after a meeting of the Sejm, Poland's parliament, probably around Christmas. The leading candidates are Solidarity founder Lech Walesa and Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki, although a Canadian businessman, Stanislaw Tyminski, has slipped in front of Mazowiecki in the latest opinion polls.

Jaruzelski said he had two sets of feelings on stepping down, one of them relief ''that the yoke I have been carrying will be taken off my shoulders.''

''The other sensation is the expectation - I don't want to say anxiety - of how will the situation in Poland develop (and) to what extent we will be able to overcome our difficulties?''

And asked how he will spend his first day free from any duty, the outgoing president said, ''I hadn't thought about it. But I think I will sit in my armchair in my slippers and watch on TV the reactions of our society to the choice of a new president.''

BEIRUT, Lebanon (NOV. 21) UPI - Lebanese President Elias Hrawi vowed Wednesday that a militia-free Beirut will be established, despite reported last-minute hitches to reunify the city.

Hrawi made the pledge on the eve of Lebanon's Independence Day.

''Greater Beirut is designed to stop the war. It will be established as long as Lebanese keep faith in this project,'' Hrawi said in a nationally televised speech.

''No one will be able to obstruct this plan (greater Beirut). This is the stage of great achievements,'' Hrawi said.

Hrawi's statement came amid reports that a militia leader was opposing a plan to deploy army troops in all Beirut areas.

Christian political sources said Samir Geagea's Lebanese Forces militia was hesitant to allow troops loyal to the army commander, Gen. Emile Lahoud, to take over Asharafiyeh, the militia's main stronghold in east Beirut, and nearby areas.

The sources said Geagea expressed dismay at Hrawi's leadership at the active presence of rival Syrian-backed militiamen in other parts of east Beirut.

The Voice of Free Lebanon, operated by the LF, reported Wednesday that a Christian citizen believed to be a supporter of Geagea was kidnapped by Syrian-backed Christian gunmen.

Geagea in a televised interview Tuesday vowed not to facilitate the government plan as long as rival gunmen remained at large in east Beirut, and noted recent abductions of his followers.

But in a statement broadcast on local radio stations Wednesday, Geagea was quoted as saying he agreed with the authorities ''on all the details'' regarding the establishment of a militia-free Beirut.

Geagea's new stance came after he met Ghazi Kenaan, the chief of Syria's intelligence in Lebanon, late Tuesday in the district of Kesrwan, north of Beirut, the hotbed of Geagea's gunmen.

(NOV. 21) UPI - The leaders of 34 nations today signed a sweeping new blueprint that cements a new age of East-West harmony after four decades of Cold War tension. The heads of state signed the Charter of Paris at the end of a landmark three-day European summit in Paris.

President Bush left Paris this morning aboard Air Force One on his way to the Middle East. Bush is to hold talks later today with the exiled emir of Kuwait and Saudi King Fahd in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, before spending Thanksgiving with U-S troops in the region.

45 members of Congress want to prevent President Bush from committing U-S troops to a Persian Gulf war without congressional approval. The lawmakers filed suit in federal court in Washington yesterday to enforce the war powers clause of the Constitution which grants Congress the power to declare war.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater calls the lawsuit ''unnecessary.'' He says the administration wouldn't comment on the legal aspects of the congressmen seeking suit, but notes Bush's commitment to working with the Congress ''to keep them completely informed.''

Soviet President Gorbachev says Iraq's ''aggression canNOT go unpunished.'' In a live interview with French television, the Soviet leader also affirmed that there''s ''NO divergence'' with the United States over the Persian Gulf crisis.

Meanwhile, Iraq is drawing U-S criticism over it's announcement to free all Germans held hostage in Iraq and Kuwait. The White House responded to the announcement by accusing Iraq of building ''a cottage industry of political ploys'' to split the alliance and said ''it's NOT going to work.''

Both British Prime Minister Thatcher and her challenger Michael Heseltine say they'll fight the final round of a leadership battle. Heseltine failed to oust Thatcher outright as head of the Conservative Party yesterday, but mustered enought votes to force a second ballot.

Fallen junk bond king Michael Milken goes to court today in Manhattan, New York, to face sentencing on securities and tax violations. He could get up to 28 years for his crimes. Milken earned a fortune peddling the junk bonds that fueled the 1980's takeover mania.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 21) UPI - At the outset of the Senate ethics committee's hearings into influence-peddling by five senators, the battle lines seemed clear: the accused lawmakers vs. the panel's special counsel and incriminating witnesses.

The opening four days of hearings before the panel revealed that the sides are not so neatly drawn in this political drama and set the stage for further bitter in-fighting between at least two of the so-called Keating Five, Arizona's two senators: Democrat Dennis DeConcini and Republican John McCain.

The trial-like hearings resume Monday with special counsel Robert Bennett expects to call Edwin Gray, the former chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Four of the five senators met with Gray on April 2, 1987, in one of the sessions that supports Bennett's case that the lawmakers applied improper pressure upon bank regulators at the behest of savings and loan operator Charles Keating Jr., who contributed $1.3 million to the senators. All five senators deny any wrongdoing, saying their actions were legitimate and proper help for an important businessman and constituent.

Keating faces racketeering charges in California on a criminal fraud indictment related to the 1989 failure of his Irvine, Calif., Lincoln Savings and Loan, which will cost taxpayers some $2 billion.

The parent company of Lincoln, American Continental Corp., located in Arizona, employed some 2,000 people, had about $1 billion invested in the home state of DeConcini and McCain, and was one of Arizona's leading home builders.

The first shots in the DeConcini-McCain feud have already been fired. DeConcini, in his lengthy and angry opening statement to the committee, suggested McCain was accorded preferential treatment by Bennett because McCain is the lone Republican among the Keating Five.

Meanwhile, McCain aides, in testimony, questioned the truth of statements made to the committee by DeConcini's staff and suggested DeConcini had tried to "coax" McCain into the actions on behalf of Keating to make the effort appear bipartisan. "You have a difference of opinion here by two senators," DeConcini said. The two sides are even in dispute over who Keating called a "wimp."

McCain aides claim Keating called their boss a wimp during a March 19, 1987, meeting with DeConcini for McCain's refusal to follow the S&L owner's orders to negotiate with bank regulators for more favorable treatment for Lincoln, then repeated the "wimp" comment in other Capitol Hill offices. In depositions given to Bennett, DeConcini's aides say Keating not only called McCain a wimp, but also called their boss a wimp.

Chris Koch, McCain's top assistant, acknowledged that bickering over who was called a wimp "sounds like a bunch of school-yard kids," but said the comment "showed an unwillingness by John to do something Charlie (Keating) wanted."

McCain, who had been the only one of the Keating Five to have a genuine friendship with Keating, had a heated falling out with Keating over the wimp remark, effectively ending their relationship, McCain's side says.

DeConcini's lawyer tried to etablish that damaging memos about DeConcini were leaked to the news media by McCain's office, but Koch and another McCain aide testified they had no knowledge that McCain's office had leaked the material. Later, McCain told reporters, "I have the impression that Senator DeConcini's problem is with the evidence more than leaks."

DeConcini accused special counsel Bennett of giving McCain and his staff a "pretty cozy" deal, with an informal interview before formal sworn depositions were taken, a courtesy afforded none of the four Democrats: DeConcini and Sens. Alan Cranston of California, John Glenn of Ohio, and Donald Riegle of Michigan. He also said Bennett did not ask McCain several damaging questions, while not sidestepping any controversial issues with the four Democrats.

In addition, McCain's lawyer called a letter relating to a meeting with the regulators sent by DeConcini "a phony," with DeConcini retorting, "To call me a phony by calling that letter a phony ... I think is a bit strong." DeConcini said, however, he has "no animosity" toward McCain, adding, "I think he should be exonerated. ... I don't think he did anything wrong."

BUENOS AIRES (NOV. 21) UPI - Argentine President Carlos Menem said Wednesday his administration would hand over ownership of the state airline Aerolineas Argentinas later in the day to a consortium led by the Spanish carrier Iberia.

Menem told a local radio station early Wednesday that the transfer papers would be signed tonight at a ceremony scheduled for 7 p.m. EST. The transfer was originally scheduled for September, but was delayed several times by contract deliberations.

The sale is touted by government officials as a major element in President Menem's privatization plan, though both Aerolineas and the former state telephone company Entel were sold to consortiums that included government-owned entities.

The plan allows the Argentine government to swap ownership of money-losing companies in exchange for cash and external debt paper bought on the New York secondary market. In the Entel and Aerolineas sales alone, Argentina reduced its debt of $67 billion by more than $7 billion.

But hammering out the final points of the airline deal dragged as negotiators haggled over "serious difficulties" with the financial guarantees the Iberia-led consortium provided for future cash payments, banking sources said.

The banking sources, who asked not to be named, told United Press International that Iberia had offered bank guarantees for the $130 million that it will dole out in ten bi-annual payments, with a five-year grace period.

Economy Minister Erman Gonzalez said that "until the external debt paper is handed over, the guarantee will constitute the retention of the stock package" by the Argentine government."

According to the banking sources, Iberia also raised its participation in the new consortium from 20 to 30 percent of the stock so that it could control the presidency of the new company.

In addition to the long-term payments, the Iberia group will be obliged to hand over $2.01 billion in Argentine external debt paper and a lump cash payment of $130 million.

The paper was selling for 17 cents on the New York secondary market Monday and according to banking sources, the cash payment was readied for the transfer.

The spokesman for the Buenos Aires Banco de la Provincia, Marcelo Bonin, told UPI his bank had agreed to give a guarantee to the Argentine government for a portion of the long-term payments if Iberia gave the bank its guarantees from other financial institutions.

But Bonin said he could not confirm exactly what percentage between 20 and 33 percent that Iberia would hold in the new consortium. "When the negotiations begin, everything changes," he said.

Before negotiations last weekend, Iberia was to control 20 percent of the stock in the new company; followed by Argentine businessman Luis Zanon with 18 percent; local air carrier Austral with 12 percent; other private local investors with 35 percent and company employees with ten percent. The Argentine government was to retain five percent of the stock of the new company and the right to veto its board of directors.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (NOV. 21) UPI - The shuttle Atlantis sailed through its five-day flight in excellent condition, officials said Wednesday, setting the stage for the shuttle Columbia's launch Dec. 2 on an astronomy mission delayed six months by fuel leaks.

''Columbia looks real good,'' said shuttle operations director James Harrington. ''The payload is in good shape.''

Atlantis and its five-man crew, diverted from a California landing two days in a row because of dangerous crosswinds, glided to a surprise Florida touchdown Tuesday to close out a presumably successful mission to launch a top-secret military satellite.

''You could have lighted up a Christmas tree with all the smiles from the troops around here,'' Harrington said of the first Florida shuttle touchdown in 5 1/2 years. ''It was really a big day for us to have Atlantis come home this way.''

Harrington said the $2 billion orbiter came through its ground- shaking launch and fiery re-entry in excellent condition with no major anomalies that would delay its next flight in early April.

''The vehicle looks excellent,'' he said. ''It's probably one of the cleanest birds I've ever seen come back after a mission. We had very little tile damage. We had a good clean mission and a good clean landing.''

A preliminary inspection indicates only three heat-shield tiles will have to be replaced and the ship's tires and brakes appear to have come through landing on the Kennedy Space Center's 3-mile-long runway in good condition.

Atlantis's landing was the first shuttle touchdown in Florida since April 19, 1985, when the shuttle Discovery blew a landing gear tire after a brake locked up during landing in a stiff crosswind.

Harrington said Atlantis's beryllium brakes showed no obvious signs of damage, but space shuttles will not be cleared for routine Florida landings until a variety of shuttle tests are completed at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., and until tougher carbon brakes are declared operational.

Engineers at launch pad 39A, meanwhile, are on schedule to launch Columbia around Dec. 2 on a 10-day astronomy mission that has been delayed since May 30 by a series of elusive hydrogen fuel leaks.

An official launch date will be set next Tuesday after a one-day flight readiness review, but if all goes well, Columbia's countdown will begin next Wednesday at midnight EST for a launch attempt at 1:24 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 2.

On board will be commander Vance Brand, 59, co-pilot Guy Gardner, 42, John ''Mike'' Lounge, 44, Robert Parker, 53, Jeffrey Hoffman, 46, and civilian astronomers Ronald Parise, 39, and Samuel Durrance, 47.

The goal of the flight is to study high-energy stars, galaxies, quasars, black hole candidates and other targets with three telescopes sensitive to ultraviolet light and one sensitive to X-rays.

The astronauts originally were scheduled for takeoff May 30, but the flight was called off the night before after sensors detected explosive hydrogen gas spewing into the ship's engine room.

A separate leak grounded the ship twice in September, but engineers believe they have fixed the problems once and for all, setting the stage for launch next month.

(NOV. 21) UPI - President Bush has arrived in Saudi Arabia to spend Thanksgiving Day with American troops and to meet with key leaders in the alliance against Iraq's Saddam Hussein.

In an announcement timed to co-incide with Bush's dramatic evening arrival in Saudi Arabia, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater confirmed that Bush will meet Friday with Syria's President Hafez Assad. Syria long has been a U-S rival but has become an ally in the gulf standoff.

Before leaving Paris for the Middle East, Bush told reporters that- IN HIS WORDS- ''We have a lot to be thankful for.'' Bush says he plans to tell the troops that they are NOT on ''mission impossible'' and that they will prevail.

Authorites in Washington, D-C, are giving the all-clear for tenants of a 12-story office tower evacuated on Monday because of a cave-in at a neighboring construction site. Parents of students at the Pulaski Acadamy public grade school in Chicago are upset by a mysterious note left at their homes. Freedom of expression still is NOT allowed in China. The world's most populous

(NOV. 21) UPI - President Bush and first lady Barbara stepped off Air Force one in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia today, in time for a late meeting with King Fahd. Their arrival came just minutes after the White House confirmed that Bush plans to meet with Syria's president the day after tomorrow to discuss the Persian Gulf standoff. Bush says he intends to tell American troops in the Saudi desert on Thanksgiving Day that their mission is NOT in vain. And the president will join the military personnel for a meal of turkey with all the trimmings.

Junk bond king Michael Milken received a 10-year jail sentence in a New York federal courtroom today. The decision ends a major chapter in the financial history of the go-go '80's. The 44-year-old financier almost single-handedly created the high-yield- but high-risk- bonds that fueled the debt-ladened takeovers that changed the face of more than one company. But things went sour late in the decade. Milken pleaded guilty to five counts of illegal securities trading and it is on those charges that he has been sentenced. He also must pay more than 650-Million dollars in fines and penalties.

The firm Milken worked for, Drexel Burham Lambert, paid him handsomely for the business he brought in. His salary and bonuses totaled more than one-point-one-BILLION dollars from 1983 to 1987, half of it coming during just one year. He was friendly with other powers of the decade, including now-disgraced financier Ivan Boesky, and Drexel became the major player in the junk bond industry. But Drexel fled to Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection when everything came apart and Boesky and Milken eventually had to stand before a judge.

Authorities in Thailand now say they've recovered 37 bodies in the aftermath of a plane crash that occurred during a rainstorm. The 37-seat Dash-8 went down into a forest about six miles short of the intended airport... scattering wreckage. A manifest showed 33 passengers aboard, including one infant. Airline sources said four or five crew members are believed to have been aboard. The plane was taking a number of foreigners to a beach resort.

Officials of U-S Air are trying to find out exactly what happened when the airline shippped the caskets of two women to the wrong funeral homes. The body of Myrtle Fuller arrived in Erie, Pennsylvania, instead of Durham, North Carolina, while that of Gloria Bennet was in Durham instead of Erie. Airline officials say the bodies should be in the correct cities later today.

TALLAHASSEE, FL (NOV. 21) UPI - Florida is reopening trade offices in Japan and Korea closed last year during a major retrenchment of the state's overseas marketing program, Commerce Secretary Bill Sutton announced Wednesday.

The move coincides with the opening of a Tampa office by the Japan External Trade Organization, or JETRO, a non-profit outfit established by the Japanese government to help U.S. companies market their goods and services in Japan.

Japan is Florida's largest overseas trading partner, but there is a huge imbalance in the relationship. Sutton said Florida sells goods worth some $300 million in Japan each year, while $3.7 billion in Japanese products enter Florida.

"You can see the scales of justice are not exactly equal," Sutton said in a news conference. "Now that some of the trade barriers are lifted, we know that those figures are going to get much closer. But it will take some time to do it."

Gov. Bob Martinez has been criticized by some business leaders for his handling of trade issues. Top Japanese industrial leaders were reportedly insulted last month when Martinez did not attend the annual meeting of the Southeastern U.S.-Japan Association in Atlanta.

Although Sutton attended on Martinez' behalf, he conceded, "I'm sure they'd have rather had the head coach." Last year, the state closed Florida trade offices in Toyko and Seoul, and scaled back to two employees each in the London and Toronto offices and to one in Frankfurt.

It was a cost-cutting move by the Legislature, according to Sutton, but one not seen in business circles as terribly wise. "We've got to have a continued presence over there. Now we've got to make up for lost time," Sutton said. Now the offices are being restored to full strength, while new offices are being opened in Sao Paolo, Brazil, and Brussels, Sutton said.

JETRO is part of the Japanese government's effort to equalize the trade imbalance with the United States by boosting imports of U.S. goods. It offers merchandizing advice and organizes buying missions to promote foreign goods. Florida has traditionally exported agricultural products including citrus, phosphate and seafood to Asian markets, state officials said..

Yasumasa Iwasaki, senior trade adviser for JETRO In Atlanta, said Florida might also market medical technology and kitchen appliances such as dishwashers and food processors in Japan.

Additionally, Florida's sporting-goods industries might find a niche in Japan, where the government is encouraging citizens to spend less time at work and more at play, said Takashi Tanji, JETRO's Florida representative. "Yachts, boats, also golfing," said Tanji. "We are trying to reduce the number of labor hours."

Florida might also serve as a conduit for Japanese businesspeople headed for Latin America, said Sutton. Florida hosts 92,000 Japanese annually. Approval was recently granted for non-stop airline service between Orlando and Tokyo, while Miami already offers daily service to Brazil, home to a large Japanese community. Jacksonville is port of entry for a large number of Japanese small trucks and cars.

(NOV. 21) UPI - President Bush is on his way to Saudi Arabia. Bush told a hastily called news conference before leaving Paris that he's prepared to tell U-S military troops stationed in the Persian Gulf that ''we are going to prevail.'' Bush rejected reports that his relations with Soviet President Gorbachev were chilly, insisting they've never been better.

Soviet President Gorbachev is calling for the U-N Security Council to meet ''without delay'' on the Persian Gulf crisis. The Soviet leader says the U-N needs to discuss the crisis and make a decision. But he gave NO details on what action should be taken. He added, however, ''We have to be resolute and firm.''

A new security has been created for Europe after four decades of Cold War tension. The leaders of 34 nations today adopted a sweeping document, the Charter of Paris, that cements a new age of East-West harmony... ending what they called ''the era of confrontation and division of Europe.''

A judge in Manhattan, New York, this morning will decide the fate of fallen junk bond king Michael Milken. He could get up to 28 years in prison when he's sentenced on securities and tax violations. The 44- year-old Milken pleaded guilty to the charges last April and agreed to pay some 600-Million dollars in fines.

GUATEMALA CITY (NOV. 21) UPI - The government announced Wednesday a price increase for all oil-based products, including gasoline, to compensate for higher crude prices on international markets. Energy and Mines Minister Raul Castaneda said the amount of the increase had not yet been decided.

"The state cannot continue subsidizing the oil bill," Castaneda said. Guatemala spends some $200 million a year on imported petroleum. "It's an unfortunate and difficult decision to make because we are aware of the negative impact on the population, but we have to readjust prices to guarantee the country's oil supply," Castaneda said.

The increase in oil and gasoline prices is the second in the last three months. On Sept. 5, leaded gasoline rose 40 cents to $1.35 a gallon. Diesel, which costs 60 cents a gallon, was not increased because of government fears of inflationary effects on transport. Casteneda said the government also plans to increase the price of electricity.

NEW YORK (NOV. 21) UPI - Middle East oil producers will realize a windfall of about $44 billion in extra revenue this year from the rise in oil prices during the Persian Gulf crisis, an industry newsletter reported Wednesday.

OPEC Listener, an authoritative monitor of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, said an "analysis shows OPEC countries will enjoy about a $44 billion windfall in estimated full-year 1990 oil income over 1989."

As a result of oil prices doubling since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, the New York-based publication estimated 1990 oil revenues of the OPEC nations at approximately $148 billion. It estimated Saudi Arabia's revenues will rise $16 billion, or 68 percent, over 1989 to nearly $40 billion for 1990.

In late October, the governor of the United Arab Emirates' central bank estimated OPEC's Persian Gulf producers were spending at an annual rate of $18 billion to support the U.S.-led multinational force assembled in Saudi Arabia and other nations in the Gulf region to deter further Iraqi aggression.

Abdul Malik al-Hamar, the UAE governor, also was reported as saying the oil income of the nations making up the Gulf Cooperation Council would rise 43 percent to $60 billion in 1990. The GCC consists of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the UAE, Qatar, Bahrain and Oman. All except Bahrain and Oman also belong to the OPEC cartel.

The Pentagon in Washington has said that the Gulf nations, primarily Saudi Arabia, Kuwaiti government in exile and the UAE have committed $6 billion to support the multinational force through the end of 1990.

Japan had committed $2 billion in support through March, Germany had promised $1.05 billion to defray 1990 expenses of the multinational force and Korea has pledged $95 million, a Pentagon spokesman said.

U.S. government officials said the GCC nations have pledged another $6 billion to help nations such as Egypt, Jordan and Turkey, which are suffering economically from the U.N. embargo of Kuwait and Iraq imposed in the wake of the invasion.

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., recently said the decision to send additional U.S. troops to Saudi Arabia will nearly double the cost of maintaining the U.S. force in the Middle East to $30 billion in the current fiscal year.

CHICAGO (NOV. 21) UPI - Soybeans were strongly higher and wheat was somewhat higher at the close Wednesday at the Chicago Board of Trade. But corn and oats closed lower.

Short covering in advance of the Thanksgiving holiday was a feature in grains and beans as country movement of crops slowed further. Ideas that the market was oversold had helped prices rebound from Tuesday.

A lower-than-expected census oil stocks report buoyed the entire soy complex, with aggressive professional buying helping bean prices. Also helping was an idea that Germany and Canada agreeing to farm credits for the USSR puts pressure on the U.S. to do the same. Add to that reports that the U.S. and Soviet leaders are moving closer in philosophy on dealing with Iraq.

Sympathy gains in corn were limited by light commercial and fund selling, with a late round of commercial selling carrying December to new lows.

Professional buying also aided wheat prices recover from contract lows on Tuesday.

At the close corn was unchanged to off 1 1/2, wheat was up 3 3/4 to 5 3/4, beans were up 1 1/2 to 9 and oats were off 1 to up 1.

BONN, Germany (NOV. 21) UPI - Nearly two months after the two Germanys became one, the two soccer federations followed suit Wednesday, ending 45 years of division.

The soccer merger was unanimously approved by 171 delegates at a special meeting in an opera house in Leipzig, site of the founding of the German Soccer Association (DFB) in 1900.

In the wake of Oct. 3 German unification, the soccer amalgamation was made possible Tuesday when the former East German Soccer Association (DFV) disbanded and formed the North Eastern Soccer Association (NOFV).

Hans-Georg Moldenhauer, former DFV president and the first NOFV president, was elected to the DFB's board of directors. The number of delegates was increased to 209.

Top soccer representatives from around the world attended the event, including Joao Havelange, president of FIFA, soccer's governing body, and Joseph Blatter FIFA's secretary-general .

East German soccer will be mostly remembered for the national team's 1-0 victory over West Germany in Hamburg at the 1974 World Cup..

''DFB has made soccer history worldwide and will strengthen its position as a leading association,'' Havelange said.

DFB is the world's largest national single sports organization with 5,256,631 members organized in 26,760 clubs after the inclusion of almost 420,000 eastern members.

The festivities surrounding the merger was overshadowed by last week's cancellation of the game between World Cup winner West Germany and the national team of former East Germany. Security could not be guaranteed after recent clashes involving fans and police.

In place of the game, an all-German team will play Switzerland Dec. 19 in Stuttgart. National coach Berti Vogts said five or six former East Germans will be on the roster.

An all-German professional league begins next season when the champion and runner-up of eastern Germany's first division automatically joins the western counterpart, the Bundesliga. The teams ranked third to eighth in the final standings will be included in western Germany's second division.

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (NOV. 21) UPI - President Bush, arriving in Saudi Arabi to spend Thanksgiving Day with American troops, sent a blunt message to Iraq's Saddam Hussein Wednesday: ''Withdraw unconditionally from Kuwait right now'' or face more action soon from the United Nations.

Arriving in the Saudi city bordering the Red Sea, Bush was greeted with royal fanfare by Saudi Arabian King Fahd and quickly began the first of a series of critical meetings with Middle Eastern leaders, which will include a surprise session Friday with Syria's President Hafez Al-Assad.

Under clear skies and a bright crescent moon, which is the symbol on the Saudi flag, Bush met first at the spectacular al-Hambra Palace with the exiled emir of Kuwait, Sheik Jabir al-Alhmad al-Jabir al-Sabah.

At a news conference afterward, Bush declared: ''The window of opportunity for Saddam Hussein is right now. And he should withdraw unconditionally from Kuwait right now.

''... The pressure is increasing on Saddam Hussein and if he doesn't understand it now, he will soon,'' Bush warned.

Standing next to the ousted emir, the president also said he came away from the meeting ''more committed than ever'' to the stand against Saddam and predicted further U.N. action, possibly in the form of a resolution allowing the use of force against the Iraqi, would soon be forthcoming.

''I feel that we should take action before Nov. 30. I think we should take action right away in the United Nations for more resolutions - stay tuned,'' he told reporters.

And though refusing to discuss specifics of a new move, contending consultations were continuing and would so for the next several days, Bush noted U.S. efforts to win support for a resolution of force and said, ''I would expect that there would be yet another resolution strongly against Saddam Hussein.''

Bush said the emir, who he last met with in Washington, had shown him more pictures ''of the treatment of Kuwaitis so cruel and so brutal that it just turns your stomach.''

''It is a moving and touching and horrible story,'' Bush said. ''And I come away from this conversation more committed than ever to seeing this cruel occupation come to an end and those responsible for this violence called to account.''

Bush's remarks before heading to a formal dinner with Fahd preceded an announcement by White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater that the president also would meet Friday with Assad, a longtime U.S. rival but current ally in the Persian Gulf standoff.

Syria also is believed to have some indirect influence over some of the hostage-takers in Lebanon but Fitzwater said the main purpose of the two hours of talks in Geneva Friday, arranged at the behest of Mideast allies including Egypt and Turkey, will be to discuss the situation in the gulf.

Syria, which remains on the U.S. list of countries that sponsor international terrorism, has long been a bitter rival of Iraq and has sent troops and tanks to Saudi Arabia to join the anti-Saddam coalition spearheaded by the United States.

Bush defended his meeting with Assad because of his role as ''a coalition partner. ... I have no problem sitting down with him for this common objective '' he said.

NEW YORK (NOV. 21) UPI - A federal court judge Wednesday handed former 1980s financial wizard Michael Milken a surprisingly tough ten-year prison sentence, telling him she was not punishing him for "a decade of greed" but meting out a fair penalty for his confessed crimes.

U.S. District Court Judge Kimba Wood sentenced Milken to two years each on five counts of securities and tax law violations, plus three years' probation on a conspiracy charge. The longest sentence she could have given Milken, who pleaded to six felony counts in April, was 28 years in prison. Milken, 44, wiped away tears during a statement by his attorney, Arthur Liman, but listened stonyfaced as Wood pronounced sentence.

Liman, whose impassioned statement described Milken as a brilliant financial innovator whose business dealings had a "messianic quality," a devoted husband and father, a generous philanthropist and a longtime volunteer in the cause of distressed children, was visibly chagrined at the outcome.

During each probationary year, Wood said, Milken must perform 1,800 hours of unspecified, full-time community service. She said the jail sentence could be reduced if Milken cooperated fully with federal investigators. Under standard judicial practice, Milken should be eligible for parole after serving one-third of his jail term with good behavior.

Milken must surrender March 4 to begin serving his sentence. It was unclear, given that Milken pleaded guilty to the charges, whether his lawyers would have any technical leeway to appeal the sentence.

Wood said she sentenced Milken not to satisfy an angry public demanding "a verdict on the decade of greed," but to address a "legitimate public concern that everyone, no matter how rich or powerful, respect the law."

"When a man of your power in the financial world ... repeatedly conspires to violate, and violates, securities and tax laws to achieve more power and wealth for himself and his clients," Wood said before pronouncing sentence, "a significant prison sentence is required."

When she handed up the ten-year jail term, which was about twice the length of what most observers expected, there was a hushed gasp from the more than 200 people packing the fifth-floor courtroom. It was the longest term received by any Wall Street criminal in the crackdown on 1980s abuses.

By comparison, speculator Ivan Boesky received a three-year term for his 1987 conviction on one charge of filing a false document with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Dennis Levine, convicted of inside trading in another prominent case, received just two years in prison.

Milken's sentencing not only concluded his own case, which authorities began assembling in 1986 when arbitrageur Boesky agreed to cooperate with a probe of Milken's activities, but also seemed to close out the 1980s era of debt-fueled enrichment schemes in which he played a central role.

Milken, who wore a somber grey suit and a maroon tie, addressed the court briefly. "What I did violated not just the law but all of my principles and values," he told Wood. "I deeply regret it, I will for the rest of my life, and I am truly sorry." He and his wife Lori, accompanied by his brother Lowell and other friends and supporters, later slipped out through the judge's chambers.

"Judge Wood has crafted a sentence that is both fair and appropriate to the circumstances," U.S. Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said Washington. "The balance sheet now reflects not only $600 million in penalties, for which Milken is personally responsible, but a bottomline of ten years behind the bars of a federal prison as well."

The five securities violations to which Milken pleaded guilty April 20 carried a maximum sentence of five years, while the one tax count carried a top penalty of three years. Prosecutors asked for "a substantial term of incarceration."

Milken agreed to pay $600 million in fines and restitution in a plea bargain with the Justice Department that allowed him to avoid trial on racketeering charges in a March 1989 indictment on 98 counts.

Milken virtually invented junk bonds and touted them as a way for companies without access to traditional credit markets to grow. His firm, Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., dominated the explosive 1980s junk bond market.

In December 1988 Drexel reached an agreement with the U.S. Attorney's office in the Southern District to plead guilty to charges of insider trading, stock manipulation and other violations. The $650 million in penalties and fines it paid helped push Drexel into bankruptcy earlier this year.

Wood effectively dismissed the main arguments put forward by Milken's defense lawyers - that he had merely been overzealous on behalf of clients and that he was mostly guilty of technical securities violations.

MOSCOW (NOV. 21) UPI - Boris Yeltsin, president of the republic of Russia, threatened Wednesday not to sign a proposed unity pact with the central government unless his republic is given substantial control over its own natural resources, including diamonds and oil.

The threat, following refusals by other of the Soviet Union's 15 republics, could spell trouble for Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's plans to reorganize his nation.

Yeltsin also criticized Gorbachev's proposals to expand his own powers, calling them ''not quite clear or consistent'' and urging a plebiscite on the matter.

''If we want to know exactly whether the public wants Mikhail Gorbachev's presidential powers in full or not, we have to hold a national referendum,'' Yeltsin said. ''Russia has a law on referendums and we can hold one.''

Yeltsin, increasing the stakes in his growing power struggle with Gorbachev, set two conditions for sighing a ''union treaty'' that is to be the legal basis of a reconstituted country.

''Russia will sign the new union treaty if it is going to have actual sovereignty, if its (June) declaration of sovereignty is officially recognized by the Supreme Soviet or the president.

''The second condition is an agreement between the governments of Russia and the Soviet Union on the separation of functions,'' said the president of the Russian Federation. ''Questions of property, including foreign currency, diamonds, precious metals, oil, gas and so on, must be settled. Russia will not sign the union treaty before these issues are settled.''

Gorbachev promised local governments greater autonomy in the reformed ''Union of Sovereign Soviet Republics'' under a new pact leaders of the 15 republics would voluntarily sign, replacing the 1922 treaty by which the Soviet Union came into existence.

The Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania declared independence earlier this year and say they will not sign the pact. The Transcaucasian republic of Georgia said it would not sign after nationalists gained control of the Tbilisi legislature in elections last month.

But Yeltsin's statement was his first indication that the dominant Russian Federation might not enter into the agreement, a refusal that could spell trouble for the Soviet Union a viable country.

Yeltsin has already signed bilateral treaties with the Ukraine and with the Kazakhstan republic, continuing to build a foundation from which to challenge Gorbachev's authority.

Yeltsin's aggressive leadership of Russia began May 29 with his election as chairman of its new legislature, a post that makes him an effective president of the republic that takes up three-quarters of the Soviet Union and has more than half its 290 million people.

The Russian Parliament declared sovereignty in June and adopted measures asserting control over its large reserves of raw materials.

The central government ignored the Russian claims, concluding a $1 billion diamond deal with a South African firm and insisting it will continue to decide how such valuable resources are allocated.

Gorbachev and Yeltsin met Nov. 11 to try to mend their differences and agreed to set up two working panels to address the distribution of powers and division of resources between the Soviet and Russian governments.

Yeltsin, however, broke the peace in a dramatic speech last Friday when he urged the Soviet Parliament to pass a vote of no confidence in the central government and approve a major shift of power to an ''anti- crisis committee'' controlled by the republics.

Gorbachev retaliated the next day with a plan to take over direct control of the Soviet government from Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov and to create three law-and-order agencies also based in the president's office.

Yeltsin said Tuesday the Russian republic is prepared to hold a referendum that would ask its residents to judge Gorbachev's performance.

DETROIT (NOV. 21) UPI - The Big Three automakers said Wednesday they will temporarily idle at least a dozen plants next week and beyond to trim bloated stocks of unsold cars and trucks, affecting more than 36,000 workers.

Industry leader General Motors Corp. plans to temporarily idle at least six U.S. plants next week because of high supplies of unsold cars and vans. Nearly 19,000 workers will be affected.

GM plants to be temporarily shuttered next week include ones in Wentzville, Mo.; Lansing, Mich. (A and B plants); Lordstown, Ohio (van plant); Kansas City Kan. (Fairfax); and Van Nuys, Calif.

Several of those plants, like Van Nuys, Fairfax and Lordstown, have been idled since early November due to lackluster sales, have been above last year's slow pace, but still not strong enough to support uninterrupted production schedules.

GM's Lansing B plant, which makes Pontiac Grand Am cars, will also be closed the week of Dec. 3 because of high inventories. Its Lordstown van plant will resume output on Dec. 3, but on one shift, with production scaled back from 384 to 272 vans per day, GM said.

Second-ranked Ford Motor Co. was slated to idle several U.S. assembly plants for two weeks starting Monday because of a shortage of dealer orders, affecting 12,700 workers.

Among them is its Wayne, Mich., plant that produces the all-new Escort subcompact car. Ford has pinned high hopes on the Escort to help it meet government fuel-economy laws.

"Dealers are quite cautious about inventory levels, and that caution extends to subcompact, entry-level buyers whose incomes and credit ratings are most vulnerable in a recession," one company analyst said. "But all dealers are hearing is recession, recession, recession."

Ford will also idle its light truck plants in Norfork, Va.; Edison, N.J.; and Twin Cities, Minn., for two weeks because of a shortage of orders. Its Dearborn, Mich., Mustang car plant will also be closed until Dec. 10.

Ford's Thunderbird/Cougar and full-sized van plants in Lorain, Ohio, are to begin alternating single shifts Monday for four weeks, idling 2,000 workers each week.

Chrysler Corp. announced plans Wednesday to idle its Jeep plant in Toledo for one week starting Monday because of high inventories. The move will affect about 4,700 hourly people, a company spokesman said.

"Production levels are not strong enough to encourage dealers to ignore what they read in papers and see on the nightly news," said one Big Three sales analyst. "If the recession doesn't start today, they think it will start tomorrow. And inventories have been climbing."

As of Nov. 10, GM's supply of cars stood 82 days, while its light truck inventories were equal to 111 days, companywide. Ford had a car supply of 69 days and a truck supply of 87 days. Chrysler had a car supply of 75 days and a truck supply of 101 days. A vehicle supply of between 70 and 75 days is considered normal for the industry for this time of year.

PRAGUE, CZECHOSLOVAKIA (NOV. 21) UPI - Finance Minister Vaclav Klaus said Wednesday prices will never be completely free of state control because of the danger of inflation.

In addition, some restrictions will remain when Czechoslovakia embarks on a market economy Jan. 1, he said in a statement published in the Prague newspapers Lidove Noviny and Rude Pravo. It marked the first time Klaus, a free-market advocate, stepped back from total liberalization of prices.

The minister said the state will continue to set price limits on some goods because if all controls were lifted, monopoly producers would try to balance their books by raising prices rather than increasing efficiency, thereby creating inflation.

"Information from the enterprise sphere tells us that some enterprises expect to raise prices of their products on Jan. 1," he said. "This thinking is completely wrong." He said restrictive credit and financial policies are already being used to counter the trend.

"Immediately after prices are liberalized, similar attempts will be hindered by regulation of prices" under legislation now before the Czech parliament, he warned.

Klaus said the bill, if enacted, will let most prices be set by the market but at the same time give the government power to regulate price movements for goods and services and could even allow the government to temporarily freeze some prices.

There has been growing concern that the transition to a full-market economy, combined with the climbing price of oil, could launch explosive inflation and lead to social unrest. The communists have made it a major issue in their campaign for local elections Friday and Saturday.

Klaus said the legislation is intended to ensure that price changes reflect real changes in costs. He said powers granted in the legislation "would be used in full" starting Jan. 1. "The intensive use of regulatory instruments means the immediate impact of world prices on the economy at the start of 1991 will be spread out," he said.

Klaus did not say how the government, which owns most of Czechoslovakia's commerce and industry, would finance the continued subsidization of some economic sectors due to continued price regulation.

DALLAS (NOV. 21) UPI - An accountant Wednesday traced the flow of funds and the use of false invoices to explain how a posh beach home in California was secretly leased by the now-defunct Vernon Savings and Loan.

"We were told to submit (fake) invoices to document the draw requests," said Carol Sandford, a financial aide to Texas developer Jack Atkinson. "The money had to match, but the reasons for the invoices were just to make the draws look authentic."

The government claims a complex payout arrangement was cut between Atkinson, the actual owner of the home, and Vernon involving tax deferrals and property swaps.

As result of the dealings, Vernon officials, at the behest of indicted thrift owner Don Dixon, were able to use the Solano Beach, Calif., house for parties - often involving prostitutes - Atkinson was able to take out big loans and the home's owner, Rose Van Boxtel, was able to use Vernon-owned condominiums in Dallas.

Defense attorney Billy Ravkind, while not denying the charges that Vernon secretly leased the beach home, said such deals were common in corporate America.

"The fact is everybody was happy," he said. "Everybody got their money. If Vernon had not collapsed, nobody would be griping." But Vernon did collapse in 1987 with losses of $1.3 billion. The home was seized by the government and both Atkinson and the Van Boxtel lost money.

According to a detailed flow chart presented by the government, Vernon checks for up to $24,000 a month were issued to Atkinson, who turned around the paid roughly half that amount - $13,000 to $15,000 - to the home's owners. The leasing arrangement did not mention Vernon as a party.

Prosecutors say Dixon used the home for personal purposes and often held wild parties for associates, clients and thrift regulators. In a 38-count indictment, Dixon is accused of illegally using Vernon funds to pay for prostitutes, make political contributions and support his lavish lifestyle. At one time, Dixon's thrift owned a fleet of six jets and a 112-foot yacht, the High Spirits. Dixon claims he is peniless and taxpayers are subsidizing his legal expenses.

Tuesday, Sandford said her boss told her he was drawing advance money from loans for his firm, Atkinson Land Co., through the home-lease contract with Vernon. "(Atkinson) told me that Mr. Dixon and he had discussed this and that it was more or less a condition of this loan," she testified.

Sandford said Atkinson asked her to "invent information" on forms submitted by his company to qualify for draw payments. The money was often requested as "consulting fees," she said.

MILWAUKEE (NOV. 21) UPI - There is a good supply of Christmas trees nationally for 1990 and prices will be only a little higher than a year ago, an official with the National Christmas Tree Association said Wednesday.

Cate Miller, assistant executive director of public relations for the Milwaukee-based association, said the group's 2,800 members expect to sell about 36 million Christmas trees for the holiday season.

"Price is the good news for consumers," she said. "There is a very little increase, probably to the range from $3.25 to $5.25 per foot for retail. That's just a slight increase over 1989 prices (of $3 to $5.25)."

Miller said in the last 20 years, the consumer price index has "risen by over 135 percent, but real Christmas tree prices are up by just 69 percent. So we're increasing at less than half the rate of the consumer price index. That's good news for consumers."

Up until last year, the Christmas tree industry had experienced a growth rate of about 2.5 percent for five straight years. But Miller said poor weather during the selling season accounted for a slight dip to about 34.4 million trees. "A chill in the air and a few snowflakes are good (for sales), but extremes hurt," she said.

She said fewer sales last year were pegged to extreme cold in the north during the selling season and a warm spell in southern areas. "Neither are very conducive to sales," she said.

Supplies in most of the nation "are adequate", Miller said, and trees are reported in excellent condition. "Our growers report trees look very good and that it's been a really good season," she said.

Miller said there have been changes in the market in recent years, with "choose and cut" tree farms now accounting for about 25 percent of all sales. "They continue to grow in popularity," she said. "These farms recreate the by-gone tradition of going out into the forests to cut the family Christmas tree." She also said living Christmas trees, which can be planted after the holidays, "are a small but vital sector of the industry."

PARIS (NOV. 21) UPI - President Francois Mitterrand said Wednesday that France is ''ready to take part in a discussion'' on a United Nations resolution on the use of force against Iraq but said military intervention would not ''automatically'' follow.

The French president's statement came on the heels of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's statement at the conclusion of a summit of world leaders that the U.N. Security Council should meet ''without delay'' on the Persian Gulf crisis.

''France is ready to take part in a discussion to determine the language of a resolution presented to the Security Council in regard to the possible use of force,'' Mitterrand told a news conference after the conclusion of the 34-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

Mitterrand said such a U.N. resolution ''should be adopted in the next three weeks.''

''As time continues to pass and there is no real progress, the danger continues to grow,'' Mitterrand said in reference to the possibility of armed conflict in the region.

Mitterrand's and Gorbachev's comments came at the close of the three- day conference on Europe during which U.S. officials engaged in intense negotiations on the gulf with European leaders present.

The Soviet leader said nations in the anti-Iraq coalition must be ''resolute and firm'' and emphasized the need for a Security Council meeting ''to discuss the situation there and take a decision.''

Mitterrand expressed frustration over Iraqi leader's Saddam Hussein's intransigence over Kuwait and piecemeal release of hostages.

''Iraq must free all the hostages ... it's not negotiable,'' Mitterrand said, adding that Iraq's planned release of several thousand hostages between Dec. 25 and March 25 ''carries no weight'' in '' in

The French president said ''every word'' of the proposed U.N. resolution would be carefully examined. He said he did not expect the language to ''automatically trigger the use of force. He said it would be ''up to the Security Council members to meet and discuss its ''il members t

WASHINGTON (NOV. 21) UPI - The United States exported a record $40.2 billion in farm products in fiscal 1990 but also posted record farm imports due to U.S. taste for foreign wine, beer, meat, fruits, and vegetables, the government said Wednesday.

Even with the $22.5 billion in imports - up $1 billion from the preceding year - agriculture is a bright spot in the U.S. trade picture with a trade surplus of $17.7 billion, the Agriculture Department said. The surplus was $18.2 billion in fiscal 1989. Exports occupy an important position in the farm economy, providing about 20 percent of cash receipts to farmers.

"Fiscal 1990 exports edged up one percent from the previous year to almost $40.2 billion," the department said in its first report on results of the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30.

The export figure was slightly higher than the $40 billion total that was forecast last August. Exports have climbed for the past four years, boosted by world demand for U.S. grain plus additional sales of cotton, tobacco, livestock products, fruits and vegetables.

Increased imports of so-called competitive products, items such as fruit, vegetables and wine that also are produced by U.S. farmers, accounted for the higher import figure. It was up $1.7 billion from fiscal 1989 while imports of non-competitive products, such as rubber, coffee and spices, were down $660 million.

Freeze damage to fruit and vegetable crops in the South last winter led to larger demand for foreign-grown produce, which was sold at a higher average price per pound. The imported produce was worth $5.7 billion, up about 14 percent.

In addition, there was a 17 percent increase in the value of imported meat and meat products to reach a total of $2.85 billion. Importers also bought $1.86 billion in foreign wine, beer and other beverages, a three percent increase. Canada, Mexico, Brazil, Australia and New Zealand are the leading sources of agricultural imports.

The Agriculture Department is due next week to issue its first forecast of agricultural imports and exports during the current fiscal year. Some analysts expect a drop in the dollar value of exports due to low grain prices and bumper crops worldwide.

CHICAGO (NOV. 21) UPI - The Chicago Cubs Wednesday announced they have signed free agent left-hander Danny Jackson to a four-year contract, plugging a hole in their predominantly right-handed starting rotation.

Terms of the agreement were not announced.

Jackson, 28, was 6-6 last year for the World Champion Cincinnati Reds with a 3.61 ERA and won the third game of the National League playoff against Pittsburgh. His overall major league record is 72-74 with a 3.66 ERA in 196 games.

''Signing Danny Jackson solidifies our starting rotation,'' said Cubs' President Don Grenesko. ''This also helps demonstrate our commitment to winning.''

Jackson began his major league career in 1983 in Kansas City and was traded to Cincinnati in 1988.

In 1988 he posted his best season, leading the league with 23 wins against eight losses and a 2.73 ERA. He had 15 complete games in 35 starts that year with six shutouts.

Including this fall's action, Jackson has played in four league playoff games with a composite 2-0 record and a 1.50 ERA. In three World Series starts, he is 1-1 with a 2.89 ERA. He has pitched one complete game in the league playoffs and another in the World Series.

''We've watched Danny Jackson seriously over the last few years,'' Cubs General Manager Jim Frey said. ''In 1988 he had a monster year, a Cy Young Award-winning type of year. We were interested in him before he went to Cincinnati. In fact, we tried to acquire him from Kansas City.''

Jackson becomes the first free agent signed by the Cubs since Vance Law was acquired in 1987. The only other major Cubs' free agent signing in recent years was Andre Dawson earlier the same year.

The Cubs' starting rotation, still questionable because of Rick Sutcliffe's shoulder surgery, also features 1990 rookie sensation Mike Harkey. However, Sutcliffe, Harkey and others considered likely starters in 1991 all throw from the right.

(NOV. 21) UPI - Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev called Wednesday for an urgent meeting of the U.N. Security Council to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis while Egypt, a staunch supporter of U.S. policy in the region, said it would seek a peaceful solution to the standoff even if the Security Council authorized force against Baghdad.

''Egypt is keen to preserve Iraq as a state and a people and to avoid the catastrophes for the region that a destructive war would bring,'' Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel Meguid said in Cairo on the eve of President Bush's scheduled visit to Egypt.

Bush arrived Wednesday in Saudi Arabia, where he was to spend part of Thanksgiving with U.S. troops deployed there to discourage Iraq from expanding its Aug. 2 invasion of neighboring Kuwait.

Meguid said ''Egypt will continue its efforts for a peaceful settlement of the Iraq-Kuwait dispute even if the (U.N.) Security Council issues a resolution approving the use of force against Iraq'' for its invasion of Kuwait.

Meguid's dovish remarks and his referral to Iraq's invasion as a dispute, suggested Bush may be losing the enthusiastic backing on his most prominent Arab ally.

Gorbachev, who has also expressed reluctance to solve the crisis with a military strike, called in Paris for an urgent meeting of the Security Council warning that the gulf situation has become ''very serious.''

One regional observer said Meguid's remarks indicate Egypt would not allow its 20,000 troops deployed with Operation Desert Shield in Saudi Arabia to take part in a U.S.-led military strike against Iraq.

Last week, Egypt and Syria asked the United States to delay the military option for three months to give Iraqi President Saddam Hussein time to pull out of Kuwait.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, a staunch supporter of the U.S.- dominated multinational force confronting Iraq, said in remarks published last week that Egyptian troops would not fight against Iraq, but would be prepared to play a peace-keeping role in Kuwait.

The new developments came as Bush headed from Paris for the Middle East at the end of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe for his first talks with major Arab allies since Iraq invaded Kuwait and to inspect U.S. troops.

He was met by King Fahd at the airport in the Saudi Red Sea port of Jeddah Wednesday evening and spoke later with the exiled emir of Kuwait.

Bush and first lady Barbara Bush were to attend Thanksgiving services Thursday with U.S. and British troops at several locations in the Saudi desert and at sea.

In a surprise move, it was announced Bush would meet with Syrian President Hafez Assad in Geneva on Friday on his way back to Washingtont.

Syria and the United States have had strained relations because Syria is on the U.S. list of countries that support terrorism, but Assad has been a harsh critic of Iraq and has deployed troops to Saudi Arabia to serve alongside American soldiers.

Bush flew to the gulf after appearing to make progress in his diplomatic efforts against Saddam as Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said the time was ripe for the U.N. to take further action to force Iraq out of Kuwait.

''I've said all along we're on the same wavelength with the Soviet Union,'' Bush told reporters in Paris. ''I think we have good synchronization with them and many other nations as we face the problems of the gulf.''

Shevardnadze said: ''I think the time has come for the Security Council to sum up - to take stock of things and to pass a proper judgment on what has been done in respect to implementation of the already passed resolutions. And, if there is a need, then adopt new resolutions with a view toward implementing all the previously passed decisions.''

In a related development, Secretary of State James Baker was to fly to Yemen Thursday in a bid to persuade Yemeni leaders to go along with any U.N. resolutions sanctioning force against Iraq, Arab radio stations said.

Yemen is one of a handful of Arab states supporting Iraq in the gulf standoff and it is to assume the rotating presidency of the Security Council next month. But the recently unified state, which has seen Iraq as a bulwark against Saudi Arabia, has indicated it could be persuaded to vote against Iraq on some issues.

In Paris, French President Francois Mitterrand said France is ''ready to take part in a discussion'' on a U.N. resolution on force against Iraq but cautioned that armed intervention would not ''automatically'' follow.

In Cairo, Mubarak continued extensive consultations with pro-Kuwaiti Arab ministers and other officials before meeting Bush on Friday, Cairo Radio said.

Baghdad Radio reported Wednesday that 238 Iranian prisoners of war left Baghdad for Tehran aboard a special Iraqi airliner as part of a wider agreement ending their 1980-88 war. Iran said 5,000 Iraqi POWS have sought political asylum and refuse to return to Iraq.

French right-wing extremist Jean Marie Le-Pen said he would leave Baghdad Thursday with a number of European hostages, including 35 Britons, Cairo radio said. Iraq released all French nationals several weeks ago in what was seen as an effort to break the alliance against Baghdad.

The radio said a Swiss delegation would also leave Iraq with 36 hostages, half of them Swiss.

Former boxing champion Mohammed Ali was also in Baghdad for a meeting with Saddam that he said Saddam asked for, Cairo radio said. The U.S. government has advised Americans not to travel to the troubled country.

In another development Wednesday, Iranian President Akbar Hashemi- Rafsanjani reiterated that Iraq should withdraw from Kuwait and that foreign forces should keep out of the gulf.

(NOV. 21) UPI - President Bush is sending a blunt message to Iraq's Saddam Huseein- ''withdraw unconditionally from Kuwait right now'' or face tougher action soon from the United Nations. Bush arrived in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, to spend Thanksgiving with American troops. Following a royal greeting from King Fahd, Bush quickly met with the ousted emir of Kuwait and later told reporters the emir had shown him evidence of ''treatment of Kuwaitis so cruel and so brutal that it just turns your stomach.''

HOWARD AIR FORCE BASE, Panama (NOV. 21) UPI - Gen. George A. Joulwan took over as chief of the U.S. Southern Command Wednesday, pledging to help Latin American nations combat drug trafficking and terrorism.

''I ... pledge my support and the support of this command to assist those nations of the region that are threatened, encountering terrorism, subversion, insurgency and illegal production and trafficking of drugs,'' Joulwan said at a brief ceremony at Howard Air Force Base, 5 miles west of Panama City.

Joulwan, 51, replaces Gen. Maxwell R. Thurman as commander of the U.S. military forces in Latin America. Thurman, one of the chief architects of the U.S. invasion of Panama last December, is retiring from the Army.

About 10,000 troops are stationed at the Southern Command, which is the headquarters for the U.S. military in Latin America.

In the past year, the war on drugs has emerged as a major new role for the Southern Command, whose principal role is defending the Panama Canal.

Joulwan said the Southern Command would cooperate to ensure a smooth turnover of the Panama Canal. Under the 1977 Panama Canal treaties, Panama will take over control of the 51-mile waterway on Dec. 31, 1999.

Joulwan, a Vietnam veteran, previously served as commanding general of the V-Corps, U.S. Army Europe, 7th Army and the 30th armored division, and as special assistant to the Supreme Allied Command in Europe.

ARLINGTON, Texas (NOV. 21) UPI - Students at the University of Texas at Arlington have resoundingly voted down a proposal to establish the first on-campus abortion clinic at a U.S. university.

Students voted 1,430 to 746 against allowing first-trimester abortions in the student health clinic on the campus. The election was held Monday and Tuesday and the results were made public late Tuesday.

The Student Congress ordered the issue placed on the ballot and it will consider the mandate at its next meeting Nov. 27. The members are expected to vote against sending the proposal on to the school administration.

''I think, yes, they will use the results in making their decision,'' said Student Congress President Brian Chase, a junior engineering major.

The issue seemed moot from the beginning because UTA President Wendell Nedderman had said he opposed the measure, which could not be enacted without his approval.

Nedderman said more than two weeks ago that the proposal to permit abortions in Student Health Services was ''grossly inappropriate.'' He was was criticized by students for announcing a position before the vote.

A second question, asking whether students would support the resolution if the abortions were not paid for with student fees, resulted in a nearly identical vote: 1,372 against, 718 for.

Although the abortion clinic was rejected, 1,128 students said they considered themselves ''pro-choice'' while 859 called themselves ''pro- life'' and 198 said they were undecided.

Only about 9 percent of the school's 24,800 students cast ballots.

PHOENIX (NOV. 21) UPI - The Phoenix Cardinals Wednesday claimed from waivers Dexter Manley, the Washington Redskin defensive end who was reinstated by the NFL after serving a one-year drug suspension.

Cardinals Coach Joe Bugel expressed a strong interest in Manley on Monday, the day the NFL ruled he could play again in the league.

The Cardinals must pay Manley for the final six games. He earns about $450,000 a year.

Following Monday's decision, Manley, 32, was immediately waived by the Redskins, where he had played since his rookie season in 1981 and became one of Washington's most popular and flamboyant athletes.

The first team that had the option to sign Manley was the 1-9 New England Patriots, by virtue of having the worst record in the NFL. But the Patriots said they had no interest in the Redskins' all-time sack leader.

The next opportunity went to the Cleveland Browns or the Cardinals, depending on a coin flip, which would have been needed if both 2-8 teams sought Manley. However, the Browns also did not want Manley.

That left it open for the Cardinals to claim him. Manley, who is eligible to play starting Dec. 9, was not immediately available for comment following his selection.

Manley's attorney, Bob Woolf, said Tuesday Manley ''would be happy to play in Phoenix, but he will still miss Washington and the Redskins.''

Manley was suspended for ''life'' Nov. 18, 1989, following a positive test for cocaine use, his third violation of the league's substance abuse policy. However, he applied for reinstatement after one year, as the policy allows.

NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue met with Manley Friday in the commissioner's New York office to discuss Manley's rehabilitation from cocaine and alcohol addiction. Manley has been enrolled in a substance abuse program in Houston and says he has been drug-free for more than a year.

The NFL statement said Tagliabue's decision on reinstatement was conditioned on several factors, including Manley's continued avoidance of further drug involvement and the player's participation in a structured support program.

''Manley must be enrolled in such a program before he may play in an NFL game on the weekend of Dec. 9.''

(NOV. 21) UPI - President Bush says ''the pressure is increasing on Saddam Hussein and if he doesn't understand it now, he will soon.'' That warning came as Bush spoke with reporters in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, and as other world leaders seem to be moving toward asking the United Nations to send another warning to Iraq. Bush says he is ''more committed than ever'' to standing firm against Saddam... and predicts the U-N will take further action soon.

Bush and first lady Barbara arrived in Jeddah shortly after the White House confirmed that Bush will stop in Switzerland on his way back to Washington to meet with Syrian President Assad. Washington has tried to keep ties with Syria at arms length because of its alleged links to terrorist groups. But Bush defends the Friday meeting to talk about the Persian Gulf, saying he has ''NO problem'' sitting down with Assad to discuss a ''common objective.''

Other financial reporting organizations said average yields for money-market mutual funds were mixed, as were deposit and lending rates at competing U.S. savings and loan institutions.

The institute said institutional fund assets increased by $3.74 billion to $107.24 billion in the latest week,while broker-dealer fund assets rose by $1.32 billion to $166.29 bilion and assets of general- purpose funds moved up by $1.3 billion to $149.99 billion.

"Assets of money-market funds surged in the latest reporting week shortened by Thanksgiving," said Jacob Dreyer, vice president and chief economist of the Washington-based institute.

Dreyer said institutional funds moved the most as portfolio managers, reactingsharply to credit-easing moves by the Federal Reserve, "massively shifted monies from direct money-market instruments ... into mutual funds."

The Investment Company Institute, a national association of the American investment company industry, reports assets of money-market funds to the Federal Reserve Board each week.

The Donoghue Organization, of Holliston, Mass., said average seven- day simple yields were 7.35 percent, up from 7.34 percent, and 30-day simple yields were 7.38 percent, down from 7.40 percent. The average maturity of fund portfolios rose to 51 days from 49.

The Bank Rate Monitor, of North Palm Beach, Fla., gave average rates as follows: money-market deposit accounts, 5.84 percent, down from 5.85 percent; Super-Now accounts, 4.96 percent, unchanged; six-month certificates of deposit 7.36 percent, down from 7.39 percent; 1-year CDs, 7.43 percent, down from 7.47 percent; 2 1/2-year CDs, 7.53 percent, down from 7.57 percent; and five-year CDs, 7.75 percent, down from 7.78 percent.

The average rate for a one-year, adjustable-rate mortgage was 8.04 percent, down from 8.08 percent the previous week.

The average rate on a 15-year, fixed-rate mortgage fell in the latest week to 9.53 percent from the prior week's 9.61 percent. The average rate for a 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage eased to 9.84 percent from 9.94 percent.

The average interest rate for a four-year automobile loan was unchanged at 12.23 percent, the Bank Rate Monitor said.

NEW YORK (NOV. 21) UPI - The stock market closed mixed Wednesday in light Thanksgiving eve trading, saved from a decline by the blue chips' late push into positive territory.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which lost 35.15 Tuesday, added 9.16 to close at 2539.36.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 0.25 to 172.73 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.72 to 316.03. The price of an average share rose 5 cents.

Declines led advances 741-712 among the 1,974 issues traded. Big Board volume totaled 140,660,000 shares, down from 161,170,000 traded Tuesday.

Stocks opened mixed before turned slightly higher in Wednesday trading. But the market then reversed course, heading lower before turning mixed in late trading. Institutional buying helped firm prices, along with bargain hunting after Tuesday's sharp drop, analysts said.

The market hit its low at about midday, with the Dow down about 20 points. But Sidney Dorr, vice president of institutional trading at Charles Schwab & Co. in San Francisco, said the market's thinness, reflecting the Thursdayholiday, rescued it from further declines.

"The market looked like it may have been ready to fall further for a while, but when it was down 20-some points there was no liquidity out there," he said. "When sell orders did come in, there was no one around to absorb them."

This, Dorr said, put a brake on the selling pressure until some late bargain hunting pulled prices up. "There was no reason for the lack of liquidity, just that it's the day before a holiday, which many people turned into a long weekend," said Dorr. The market will be closed Thursday for Thanksgiving and while trading resumes Friday, the session promises to be dull with many players taking an extra day off.

On the trading floor, Boeing was the most active issue, up 1 5/8 to 44 1/4 in a recovery from Tuesday's ten percent plunge in the price of the stock.

National Semiconductor followed, up 3/4 to 4 1/4. The company said it had signed a letter of intent to sell a Puyallup, Wash., chip manufacturing plant to Matsushita Electronics Corp., ending an expensive attempt to enter the market for static random access memories, used in leading-edge computers and instruments such as mainframe computers.

Federal National Mortgage Association, known as Fannie Mae, was third, down one to 30 5/8.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T rose 3/8 to 32 3/4 and IBM gained 3/4 to 114 1/8, but American Express lost 3/4 to 19 3/4 amid continued concerns about how brokerage unit Shearson Lehman Hutton would fare in the fourth quarter. Merck fell 3/8 to 84 3/8 and General Motors eased 1/2 to 37 5/8.

Elsewhere, Digital Equipment plunged 2 3/8 to 49 3/8 after saying Tuesday it will close the computer company's Phoenix manufacturing plant, cutting about 476 jobs.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 172,420,120 shares, compared with 195,598,140 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices fell in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index lost 0.43 to close at 295.58. Declines led advances 288-251 among the 800 issues traded. The price of an average share fell one cent. Composite volume totaled 14,052,400 shares vs. 12,894,900 traded Tuesday. B.A.T. Industries led the Amex issues, off 1/16 to 10 11/16. The company offered a positive outlook even though it reported nine-month profits plunged.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 0.48 to close at 348.77.

NEW YORK (NOV. 21) UPI - The dollar mostly firmed in thin New York trading on the eve of the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, but it skidded against the Japanese yen on a report that monetary authorities would let the U.S. unit fall further.

Currency traders said most market participants squared positions in dealings that many banks and investment houses wrapped up early. The New York market isclosed Thanksgiving and will reopen Friday for limited business.

In the only significant currency move, the dollar plunged 1.70 yen as players reacted to a report from a well-connected Washington economic consulting firm saying Japanese and German authorities had set a dollar floor.

Late in the New York session, the dollar was quoted at 1.4770 German marks, up from 1.4735 Tuesday, and at 127.10 Japanese yen, off from 128.80.

The Smick-Medley Associates report, according to market observers, said German and Japanese monetary authorities had agreed they would step in to support the dollar only when it hit 1.45 marks and 120 yen.

One New York trader said this triggered a big dollar plunge in Tokyo early in the global trading day. "The yen had been undervalued for some time," she said against the dollar, so the yen benefited most.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2472 Swiss francs, up from 1.2445; 4.98 French francs, up from 4.9745; and 1,110 Italian lire, up from 1,108.

The British pound strengthened to $1.9700 from $1.9655 as traders covered commitments to sell sterling and as Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher made a defiant speech to Parliament, indicating she would fight an attempt by dissidents in her ruling Conservative Party to oust her.

In Europe, the dollar closed mixed in thin trading as war threats subsided in the Persian Gulf ahead of Thanksgiving.

"The dollar was trading in very tight ranges ahead of the holiday. Also, the possibility of war seems less likely in the short term," said Mike Janes, a Midland Bank currency analyst in London.

Reports saying U.S. Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady was ready to see the dollar fall further prompted selling of the currency, dealers said.

Frankfurt deutsche mark trading was halted for a German national holiday and will resume Thursday. The dollar closed Tuesday at 1.4755 marks. In Zurich, the greenback was unchanged at 1.2465 Swiss francs Wednesday.

In early trading in London, the pound slipped to $1.9685 from $1.9705 before Thatcher's speech. The battle between Thatcher and Michael Heseltine for party control is to be settled in a Parliament vote of Conservative ministers next week.

The dollar declined in Paris and Milan, to 4.9760 French francs from 4.9785 and to 1,108.60 Italian lira from 1,111.25, respectively. In Brussels, the dollar rose to 30.52 Belgian francs from 30.4650.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar plunged against the yen on a report that Brady had remarked he would accept a continued slide of the currency, closing at 127.68 yen vs. Tuesday's 128.93.

Reported comments by a high-ranking Soviet official that Iraq will withdraw from Kuwait in the near future also spurred dollar selling.

Gold closed higher in both Zurich, at $378.50 an ounce vs. $377.50 Tuesday, and London, at $378.50 an ounce vs. $378.

Silver closed lower in Zurich, at $4.10 an ounce vs. $4.15, but moved up in London to $4.12 an ounce from $4.11.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $379.50 an ounce, up from $378.25 Tuesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $378.90 an ounce, up from $377.60.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.13 an ounce, up from $4.115. Comex silver finished trading at $4.125 an ounce, up from $4.11.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (NOV. 21) UPI - State Secretary of Environmental Resources Arthur Davis said Wednesday his agency would not continue holding up the evaporation of 2.3 million gallons of slightly radioactive water from the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant.

Davis asked the operators of TMI in August to delay the evaporation until he had a chance to review a newly released study of cancer cases.

The study, conducted by two epidemiologists from Columbia University, found no connection between the rate of cancer around TMI, in Middletown Pa., and the March 28, 1979 partial meltdown of Unit 2.

Mary Wells, a spokeswoman for GPU Nuclear Corp. which operates the plant, said Davis's go-ahead was welcome news. She said a new evaporation schedule would be announced next Tuesday.

The plans call for the gradual evaporation of water that collected during the clean-up from the accident. Most of the radioactive material has been removed, but a small amount of radioactive tritium will be released into the air over the course of 18-24 months, she said.

Wells said the release plan has been cleared by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and DER last year.

An anti-nuclear citizens' organization objected to Davis' decision.

''We think the decision is short-sighted and disappointing,'' said Eric Epstein, spokesman for the 500-member TMI Alert. ''The responsible position is one that opposes evaporating radioactive material into the community.''

He contended not enough research has been done to assure the safety of the operation, and charged that TMI is in a hurry to get rid of the water.

Wells stressed that the cancer study and Davis's request to hold up the evaporation were not related. At the time, TMI officials suggested Davis temporarily blocked the evaporation because he was not given advance review of the cancer study.

In his letter giving the go-ahead to the evaporation, Davis said DER will conduct random, unannounced site inspections and carry out an independent radiation monitoring program in communities near the plant.

NEW YORK (NOV. 21) UPI - R.H. Macy's Inc. dealt a severe blow Wednesday to Daily News management by announcing the high-profile department store had decided to stop advertising in the strikebound tabloid, union officials said.

Macy's, one of the largest and most profitable advertisers to the News, decided to stop the ads as management continues to combat crippling circulation problems that have plagued their efforts at getting copies of the newspaper into readers' hands during the month- long strike.

The announcement came the day before the 64th annual Thanksgiving Day Parade, which is sponsored by Macy's and traditionally ends in front of the store's flagship Herald Square outlet.

Sam McKnight, an attorney for the striking unions, said Macy's executives told him the store would not resume advertising in the News until the newspaper settles the bitter labor dispute, now entering its second month.

McKnight said G.G. Michaelson, a Macy's executive, made the announcement Wednesday in response to union demands that the department store take a neutral stance in the strike that began Oct. 25.

''Union workers throughout New York can now enter Macy's with a clear conscience,'' McKnight said.

News spokeswoman Lisa Robinson declined to comment on Macy's decision, saying only, ''We will not speak to any specifics of our advertisers.''

Meanwhile, a poll released Wednesday and commissioned by a union sympathetic to striking workers found that regular readers of the News support striking employees over management by a 3-to-1 margin.

The survey, funded by Local 1199, the city's hospital and health care workers union, which came out early in support of striking unions, also said that just over half of all those questioned, 52 percent, support the workers over management.

That figure rose to 60 percent, however, among those who described themselves as regular readers of the News before Oct. 25, when the strike began.

In both instances, about 15 percent said they supported management, with the remaining percentage of those questioned supporting both sides equally, supporting neither side or expressing no opinion.

Fingerhut/Granados Opinion Research, a polling organization specializing in Democratic party and labor issues, conducted the telephone survey of 418 people between Nov. 3-17. The poll has a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percent.

Pollster Vic Fingerhut said two-thirds of those who support the workers said it was very important that the workers win the strike, and the more people knew about the strike, the more they indicated support for striking workers.

''They said that if they (management) can do this at the Daily News, they can do it anywhere.'' Fingerhut said.

He added that 40 percent of the people who routinely read the News before the strike were ''not even bothering to look for copies anymore because they can't find it.''

Robinson said research conducted by the News, which is owned by the Tribune Co., of Chicago, ''shows something completely opposite.''

A phone hotline set up to gauge readers' attitudes on the strike has indicated ''overwhelming'' support for management, Robinson said.

''Consistently, eight out of 10 callers support the Daily News and are sick and tired of the continued union violence and intimidation,'' Robinson said.

On Tuesday, a Bronx bodega was firebombed, injuring two employees slightly, and almost completely destroyed in what police said was the 196th strike-related incident reported since nine unions struck 28 days ago.

AUSTIN, Texas (NOV. 21) UPI - The Texas insurance commissioner on Wednesday ordered USLife Credit Life Insurance Co. of Schaumburg, Ill., to refund $70,000 in premium overcharges on insurance sold to customers of Lomas Bank in Dallas.

Commissioner A.W. Pogue said the overcharges were on credit disability insurance policies sold to holders of credit card accounts with Lomas Bank.

The customers were charged a higher premium rate than the rate approved by the state Board of Insurance. The refunds will be applied to customers' credit card balances.

Pogue said USLife agreed to the action, which requires the company to make the refunds in a single billing month and also pay a $4,000 forfeiture.

The overcharges, caused by the company's misunderstanding of the method for computing premiums, occurred from July 14, 1987 until March 15, 1990, he said.

CINCINNATI (NOV. 21) UPI - Pitcher Tom Browning signed a four-year agreement Wednesday with the Cincinnati Reds, but terms were not announced.

''I'm very happy that Tom is staying with the Reds,'' said club president Marge Schott.

This contract will carry him through the 1994 season, with a club owning an option for the fifth year.

Browning was 15-9 with a 3.80 ERA last year. It was his third straight year with 15 or more wins, and the 15 wins was the most for the World Champion Reds.

Browning, 30, has spent his entire professional career in the Reds organization. He was drafted in June 1982, and made his major-league debut in Los Angeles Sept. 9, 1984.

In his rookie year, 1985, he compiled a 20-9 record, the best for a Reds rookie. He earned The Sporting News National League Rookie of the Year honors.

The local baseball writers voted him the Reds' outstanding pitcher in 1985 and in 1989 when he pitched the club's only perfect game.

He owns a 93-61 career record in the majors.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 21) UPI - The Energy Department Wednesday cleared the oil industry of profiteering from the Persian Gulf crisis following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, saying prices rose because of ''uncertainties'' over war in the region.

''Price restraint at the retail level reduced profits. There is no evidence of industry profiting during this period,'' said a report released by the department's Energy Information Administration.

''Prices for oil remained high because of uncertainties. Most of the replacement crude was coming from the Persian Gulf, primarily Saudi Arabia, which is adjacent to Kuwait. The possibility of war maintained high oil prices '' concluded the department's analysis of the first 90 days following the invasion.

However, Edwin Rothschild, representing the Washington-based consumer advocacy group Citizen Action, slammed the report, calling it a ''defense, not an explanation, of oil company profiteering.''

The government acknowledged the report was ''preliminary'' but said it did not expect a more comprehensive analysis now being prepared to ''substantially alter the trends and conclusions presented.''

Compiled in response to concerns voiced in Congress and by the general public and the press, the report also concluded that speculation by traders in future delivery contracts on the New York Mercantile Exchange did not drive prices up.

''There was no apparent increase in speculative activity, and the futures market did not contribute to the run up in prices or price volatility,'' the report said.

Last month, Amerada Hess Corp. reported it made more than $200 million in the third quarter ended Sept. 30 by trading in the futures market. Leon Hess, chairman of the New York-base company, later testified to a congressional committee that some control is needed over futures trading in oil.

The Energy Department report found that higher retail prices for gasoline and home heating oil in Japan and Europe drew imports that would normally have come to the United States, tightening U.S. markets.

But ''by November, the price differentials had disappeared and imports were returning to the United States,'' the agency said.

In addition, the report found that most of the benefit from higher prices went to those entities producing crude oil or holding large inventories.

''Most oil is owned by foreign interests, principally governments. Eighty percent of the worldwide benefit went to those outside the United States,'' thereport said.

On a related note, OPEC Listener, a respected industry newsletter, reported Wednesday that Middle East oil producers will realize a windfall of about $44 billion in extra revenue this year from the Persian Gulf crisis.

As a result of oil prices doubling since Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, the New York-based publication estimated 1990 oil revenues of nations belonging to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries at approximately $148 billion.

Saudi Arabia's revenues will rise by 68 percent - $16 billion - over 1989 to nearly $40 billion for 1990, according to the newsletter.

(NOV. 21) UPI - King Fahd and U-S General Norman Schwarzkopf were among those who greeted President Bush tonight when he arrived in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, aboard Air Force One. Schwarzkopf is the man in charge of the U-S forces taking part in Operation Desert Shield. Bush began a round of meetings immediately and later told reporters that the exiled emir of Kuwait showed him photographs of actrocities being committed by Iraqi forces who invaded Kuwait. Bush described it as a ''moving and touching and horrible story.''

The United States exported a record 40-BILLION, 200-Million dollars worth of farm products in fiscal 1990. Still, the government says agriculture is a bright spot in the U-S trade picture with a trade surplus of nearly 18-BILLION dollars.

TORONTO (NOV. 21) UPI - Stanley Hartt, named president and chief executive of Campeau Corp. almost two weeks ago, has been appointed a director and chairman of the troubled real estate and retail company, it was announced Wednesday.

The move was not unexpected.

Hartt replaces Robert Despres, who had been serving as interim chairman, after having earlier taken over from James D. Raymond and Gary M. Goodman, who jointly served as chief executives.

Despres, Raymond and Goodman, who continue to serve as directors on the Campeau board, were appointed on an interim basis to the office of the chief executive Aug. 10, when Robert Campeau was ousted from the company's senior management team.

Hartt, 52, has served as Prime Minister Brian Mulroney's chief of staff and as a deputy Canadian finance minister. A partner in the Stikeman Elliott law firm's Montreal office, Hartt will move to Toronto.

A multi-point strategy developed by the company's business plan advisory committee was stalled July 30, when Robert Campeau decided not to seek shareholders' approval to sell most or all of the company's Canadian real estate assets.

Two weeks later, Robert Campeau was removed as chairman and chief executive officer, but he remains a leading shareholder and a director of the company he founded more than four decades ago.

Shareholders have yet to be asked to approve a resolution that would allow the business plan's real estate asset disposal program to proceed.

Several of the company's U.S. retailing subsidiaries filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection early this year.

(NOV. 21) UPI - Francois Mitterrand says France is ''ready to take part'' in talks on a United Nations resolution on the use of force against Iraq. The Soviet leader said the U-N Security Council should meet ''without delay'' on the Persian Gulf crisis.

IRVINE, CA (NOV. 21) UPI - F. Sherwood Rowland, the chemist who helped alert the world that the precious ozone layer was being depleted by aerosol sprays, has been elected president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Rowland, 63, the Bren Professor of Chemistry at the University of California, Irvine, was one of two candidates for the post and was elected by the organization's Board of Directors, the group announced Wednesday. The AAAS is the largest general science association in the world.

In his candidacy statement to board members, Rowland urged international scientific cooperation, particularly in regard to the environment.

''The deterioration of the environment is not intrinsically a fundamental problem of science, it is a fundamental problem of civilization and therefore an important problem for science,'' he said.

Rowland is best known for his joint discovery in 1973 with Dr. Mario Molina, that the Earth's stratospheric ozone layer could be depleted by chlorofluorocarbons, or CFCs, used in refrigeration, foam blowing and cleaning electronic components.

The finding eventually led to a ban on the chemical propellants in aerosol sprays in the United States and other countries and subsequent international agreements to begin limiting the production and use of CFCs.

Rowland, who has been associated with the University of California's Irvine campus since 1964, also criticized the propensity of the federal government to fund multimillion-dollar scientific research projects at the expense of smaller-scale efforts.

''The increasing tendency to focus on giant initiatives instead of on the individual investigator is of great concern to me,'' Rowland said. ''I persist in believing that most good new ideas come from individuals rather than giant combines.''

He was specifically critical of the multibillion-dollar Superconducting Super Collider, which was awarded to scientists in Dallas, Texas.

''Some giant projects ... are not, in terms of funding, scientific decisions at all, but political ones,'' he said. ''It is the promise of creating jobs in the Dallas area more than any anticipated scientific results that is motivating the expenditures.''

Rowland has received numerous awards and honors, including the 1989 Japan

Prize, that country's equivalent to the Nobel.

LOS ANGELES (NOV. 21) UPI - Layoffs have continued to hit at Southern California aerospace companies, faced with tightened defense spending and a slowing economy.

Spokesmen for Litton Industries Inc. and Rockwell International Corp. said that, despite no formal announcements of the cuts, their companies have made reductions of about 750 jobs.

And a third company, McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Co., has placed a hiring freeze on its 2,000-employee work force because of cuts to the budget of Space Station Freedom project.

The McDonnell Douglas unit, prime contractor on the space station, has ordered a 90-day review of operations that should be completed by early next year, spokeswoman Ann McCauley said.

The review resulted from Congress telling the National Aeronautics and Space Administration last month to cut $6 billion from the $37 billion space station budget over the next six years.

Litton has cut about 600 jobs from its 6,000-employee work force in Southern California since October 1989. About 400 cuts came at its Guidance Systems Division in Woodland Hills, and 150 at its Data Systems Division in Van Nuys.

''We're not doing this because we've lost programs,'' said Litton spokesman Robert Knapp. ''We're doing it because the marketplace is tightening, so we need to be leaner and more competitive.''

''Unfortunately, that involves reducing the number of jobs,'' Knapp said.

Similarly, Rockwell's Rocketdyne division in Canoga Park has reduced union employees at its facility there by 161 since June, officials said this week.

Knapp pointed out that the numbers for Litton are small by comparison to other companies in Southern California - the nation's leading area for aerospace and high-technology jobs, estimated at 375,000.

TRW Inc. recently disclosed that it had cut about 1,000 jobs this year from its Southern California work force of about 15,600, producing about 500 layoffs.

Northrop Corp.'s announced at the company's May shareholders meeting that it was cutting about 3,000 jobs this year. Also, the company recently said that it would close a missile operations plant in Newbury Park next year, a move that will cut another 800 jobs.

Lockheed Corp. said in the spring that it would move its aircraft- building operations out of Burbank and transfer most of the work to Marietta, Ga., resulting in job cuts of about 4,000.

The biggest cuts have come at Douglas Aircraft Co., which operates a huge assembly plant in Long Beach with nearly 40,000 employees and another facility in Torrance. Cuts at Douglas, a unit of St. Louis-based McDonnell Douglas, are expected to hit 8,000 by the end of the year.

LOS ANGELES (NOV. 21) UPI - State Farm, the leading auto insurance seller in California, said Wednesday it plans to lower most rates for drivers with good records and sharply boost premiums for bad drivers.

State Farm, which carries about 3.3 million policies in California, is expecting the moves to be approved by state regulators in time to go into effect by January 1, spokesman William Sirola said.

The rate changes, if approved by the state's Department of Insurance, would be designed to reflect the intent of long-stalled insurance reform measure Proposition 103, approved more than two years ago by the state's voters to cut rates for good drivers and eliminate zip-code rating.

''We think that our plan is in compliance with Proposition 103,'' Cirola said.

The Department fo Insurance was not immediately available for comment as to whether it will approve State Farm's proposal.

Since State Farm has about an 18-percent share of the California auto insurance market - the biggest in the nation - its move to lower rates could signal that other insurers will do likewise.

The implementation of Proposition 103 has been snarled in court battles, as insurers have effectively blocked provisions providing for a 20-percent rate rollback and a 20-percent good driver discount. Court decisions on both are on appeal.

State Farm's overall rates for good drivers in Central and South Los Angeles - which has long carried higher rates than other areas - would be cut by 7 percent, Cirola said. However, good-driver rates in some areas, such as the San Gabriel Valley, will increase slightly, he said.

Rates for bad drivers, defined as those with two or more violations or one at-fault accident over the past three years, could go up by as much as a third.

But the insurer, which is headquartered in Bloomington, Ill., declined to reveal further details.

The proposals drew immediate fire from Harvey Rosenfield, who authored Proposition 103 and heads Los Angeles-based reform group Voter Revolt.

Rosenfield said he was ''disturbed'' at State Farm's lack of full disclosure of its pricing proposal since it may not be in compliance.

Rosenfield has repeatedly blasted Insurance Commissioner Roxani Gillespie, who will be replaced by newly elected commissioner John Garamendi in January, for foot-dragging on the measure's implementation.

''I'm very suspicious of what could be a last-minute deal by Gillespie, because insurance companies have managed to avoid complying with most of the regulations,'' Rosenfield said.

The measure was designed to create a structure under which the first three measures used for rate-setting, in descending order of importance, would be driving record, mileage and years of experience.

It also provided for the abolition of territorial-based rating, but Gillespie has replaced that with pricing zones that are based on the costs and frequency of claims. Consumer advocates have also appealed those new regulations.

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (NOV. 21) UPI - Troubled FarWest Financial Corp., hit by large declines in all its investments, reported Friday a huge third-quarter loss of $89.8 million, heightening the possibility that its 28- branch thrift will be seized by federal regulators.

FarWest's loss compared with a $22.9 million loss for the year-ago quarter, while its nine-month loss was $119.7 million, compared with $6.6 million in the year-ago period.

The parent company said Friday that the loss stemmed from previously announced loss provisions of $42.7 million in loans, $22.3 for real estate investments and $26.8 million in the value of its junk bonds.

The disclosure by the parent of FarWest Savings and Loan Association is the latest in a long string of bad news coming from California thrifts. Many of which have either been seized, such as Imperial Savings of San Diego and Mercury Savings of Huntington Beach, while others, such as Columbia Savings, are on the verge of being taken over.

The company, with assets of $3.54 billion, also disclosed that it is insolvent with a shareholders' deficit of $23 million as of Sept. 30. A year ago, shareholders' equity was $136.1 million.

FarWest is best known as the U.S. flagship for the Belzberg brothers of Canada - Samuel, Hyman and William, who is chairman of the board. Through it, they became well known as takeover strategists during the 1980s, making runs at a number of companies, such as Gulf Oil, Blue Bell, H.H. Robertson, Ashland Oil and Southland Corp.

In a number of cases, FarWest was able to profit from selling off the stock of those companies at a premium. The company also invested heavily in junk bonds, with about 14 percent of its $4.8 billion in assets invested in that manner as of August 1989.

However, with federal thrift bailout legislation requiring divestment of all junk bonds by 1994, the value of portfolio has plunged since then.

FarWest, which had been highly profitable, lost $46.1 million last year and began writing down the value of the junk bonds from $667 million to $395 million as of June 30.

Last August, thrift regulators slapped strict operating restrictions on the thrift, prohibiting any asset sale, purchase or loan without regulatory approval. It no longer has enough capital to meet regulatory requirements and regulators have already rejected a previously submitted recovery plan.

FarWest said Friday that it is formulating another plan.

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (NOV. 21) UPI - The nation's sales of electronics products and services rose 4 percent in the first nine months of the year, but orders in September dropped from the year-earlier period, the American Electronics Association reported Wednesday.

Total sales through September grew to $225.4 billion from $216.8 billion in the first nine months of the year, the trade group said. For the entire year, sales are expected to reach $307 billion, up 4 percent from $295 billion in 1989.

In September, sales edged up to $29.3 billion from $28.9 billion, but orders slipped to $28.9 billion from $30 billion in the year-earlier period.

September was the seventh consecutive months that new orders trailed sales, indicating an industry downturn, the trade group said.

''The industry sales and orders in September are consistent with a generally sluggish economy,'' said J. Richard Iverson, AEA president and chief executive officer. ''In fact, September was only the third month since March 1987 that new orders were lower than in the same month of the previous year.''

Third-quarter sales grew 3.1 percent to $75.7 billion from $73.4 billion in the third quarter of 1989, while orders crept up marginally to $73.6 billion from $73.2 billion in the year-earlier period, the AEA said.

QUEBEC (NOV. 21) UPI - Soviet defenseman Alexei Gusarov will join the Quebec Nordiques during the first week in December, the team announced Wednesday.

Team president Marcel Aubut obtained Gusarov's release from the Red Army after negotiations in Moscow with the Soviet Ice Hockey Federation. Gusarov was signed to a 4-year contract, but no monetary details were released.

The 6-foot-2, 180-pound, left-shooting defenseman was drafted by the Nordiques in the eleventh round of the 1988 draft, the 213th pick overall. The 26-year-old Leningrad native is the youngest hockey player ever to be released from army service.

Valeri Kamensky, a 24-year-old forward who the Nordiques also have the rights to, apparently will not be available before the 1992 winter Olympics in Albertville, France.

The addition of Gusarov explains why the Nordiques felt they could trade defenseman Michel Petit to Toronto.

Gusarov will become available as soon as he receives a Canadian work permit and his official discharge from the Red Army.

(NOV. 21) UPI - Tomorrow, President Bush becomes the first president to visit front- line U-S troops since Richard Nixon's trip to South Vietnam in 1969. Bush arrived in Saudi Arabia today, beginning a series of meetings with Middle East leaders. On Thanksgiving Day, Bush will visit Americans at two encampments in the Saudi desert... and attend a service aboard a warship in the Persian Gulf.

Discussions on the crisis in the Persian Gulf will also reportedly be taking place in Iraq. Cairo radio says Mohammed Ali arrived in Baghdad today for a meeting with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. The former heavyweight boxing champion who converted to Islam says Saddam invited him to Iraq's capital. Washington has advised American citizens to stay away from Iraq.

The government says a court should NOT decide whether President Bush has the authority to send troops to the Persian Gulf without congressional approval. The Justice Department says the question of whether or NOT the United States is on the verge of war is a political question. The arguments came in response to a lawsuit that claims Bush has violated the 1973 War Powers Act.

Controversies continue more than 11 years after the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. State officials say they will NOT further delay the evaporation of several Million gallons of slightly radioactive water from the partial meltdown at the plant. An anti-nuclear group objected to the decision, calling it ''short-sighted.''

Police in Rolling Meadows, Illinois, say murder charges are pending against a father already charged with aggravated battery in his son's death. Prosecutors say David McGuigan violently shook his 49-day-old son because the infant would NOT stop crying. But defense attorneys say McGuigan accidentally dropped the baby and the fatal shaking came while he was trying to revive him with C-P-R.

LONDON (NOV. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - British Gas (NYSE:BRG) today announced that for the first half of fiscal year 1990/91 ended September 30, 1990 sales were 2.955 billion pounds sterling, compared with 2.754 billion pounds for the similar period last year.

On a historical cost accounting basis, net profit for the first six months of fiscal 1990/91 was 24 million pounds, compared with 2 million pounds for the first half last year.

When adjusted to conform to US and Canadian Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP), net profit was 140 million pounds, compared with 109 million pounds.

On a GAAP basis, earnings per American Depositary Share (ADS) were 33 pence for the first half of fiscal 1990/91, compared with 26 pence for the similar period last year. (Ten ordinary shares of British Gas stock are equivalent to one ADS. On September 30, 1990 the exchange rate was $1.8735 to 1 pound sterling.)

The company said investors should remember that sales and profits from its main business--the sale of gas for heating purposes--are seasonal and are mostly generated in the second half of the fiscal year. Keeping this in mind, net profits on a US and Canadian GAAP-adjusted basis for the most recent 12 months ended September 30, 1990 were 1.160 billion pounds, compared with 1.066 Billion pounds for the prior 12 month period.

The Board of Directors of British Gas are recommending an interim dividend of 3.75 pence per share for the first half of 1990/91, a 17.2 percent increase over the corresponding period last year. This reflects last year's decision to increase the payout ratio and the Directors' confidence in the continuing development of the Company.

British Gas, headquartered in London, is the largest integrated gas company in the Western world and is primarily involved in the purchase, transmission, and sale of natural gas to domestic, industrial and commercial customers in Great Britain. Important support activities to its marketing efforts include appliance trading and customer service to domestic gas customers.

British Gas is also active in the exploration for and production of hydrocarbons both offshore and onshore. Expertise developed in the gas business is offered for sale overseas through the British Gas International Consultancy Service. American Depositary Receipts are traded on the New York Stock Exchange. BAGHDAD (NOV. 22) - President Saddam Hussein denounced a visit Thursday to Saudi Arabia by U.S. President George Bush and warned that Iraq would "destroy" him and "break the teeth" of U.S. forces in the Gulf region.

President Hussein issued the threat Wednesday as the U.S. head of state began a visit to Saudi Arabia for talks with King Fahd and the exiled ruler of Kuwait, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah.

Mr. Bush was to celebrate U.S. Thanksgiving Day Thursday with his troops deployed in the Saudi desert and would travel to within 350 kilometers (220 miles) of Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

"We are determined to destroy you and break the teeth of the American forces," warned President Hussein in a statement carried by the Iraqi press on Thursday.

"Iraq has the means to confront any aggression," Mr. Hussein said in the central Iraqi town of An-Nasiriyah, some 200 kilometers (125) from the Saudi border.

He accused Mr. Bush of having come to the region to "defy Iraq" and said he was convinced the "Iraqi people, who have inherited a 6,000-year-old civilisation, cannot be vanquished."

Iraq, the president said, could "forgive" those who take positions against it "under pressure", but he reiterated that there would be no mercy for "traitors".

His last remark was apparently aimed at Washington's Arab allies in the Gulf crisis, notably Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Syria -- whose leaders Mr. Bush is meeting on his current tour.

After separate talks late Wednesday in the western Saudi city of Jeddah with with King Fahd and the exiled Kuwaiti ruler, Mr. Bush said his country wanted to see a United Nations resolution allowing force to be used to end the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker meanwhile arrived Thursday in Yemen, apparently to discuss possible U.N. backing for military action against Baghad.

Mr. Bush on Wednesday said he was "determined more than ever" to end Iraq's occupation of Kuwait and planned to discuss the military option Friday in Cairo with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

Mr. Bush was then to fly to Geneva for a previously unscheduled meeting with Syrian President al-Assad.

Syria and Egypt -- along with Morocco -- are the only Arab countries to have dispatched troops to Saudi Arabia as part of a multinational troop buildup in the region.

On Thursday Mr. Bush flew to Dhahran in eastern Saudi Arabia to visit U.S. armed forces present in the kingdom.

He then left in a convoy of helicopters for a Thanksgiving Day dinner in the Saudi desert with a U.S. army unit.

The United States -- with some 230,000 troops deployed in Saudi Arabia and the Gulf region -- leads a 350,000-strong multinational force.

It faces 450,000 Iraqi troops massed in southern Iraq and the occupied emirate.

But Iraq this week said it would send more than 250,000 reinforcements to southern Iraq and Kuwait in response to a U.S. decision to bolster its presence in the Gulf by an additional 200,000 troops.

In a related development, U.S. citizens held against their will by Iraqi authorities, on Thursday appealed for "justice and freedom" in a Thanksgiving Day message to Iraqi nationals and Iraqi-Americans in the United States.

TOKYO (NOV. 22) - Japanese instant noodle maker Nissin Food Products Co. Ltd. said Thursday its net profits tumbled 43.5 percent from a year earlier to 2.9 billion yen (21 million dollars) in the six months to September.

Nissin, the pioneer in noodles and oil-fried processed food products, blamed a stock market plunge that reduced the value of its stock holdings.

Sales rose 2.5 percent to 82 billion yen (600 million dollars) in the same period, with those of instant noodles posting an increase.

Nissin forecast a net profit of 9.8 billion yen (71 million dollars) for the year to March on sales of 172 billion yen (1.3 billion dollars), both unchanged from earlier projections.

MUNICH (NOV. 22) - German auto company BMW plans to open an assembly plant in the United States to counter the unfavorable effect of the dollar's decline, BMW chairman Eberhard von Kuenheim said in an interview published on Thursday by the business weekly Wirtschaftswoche.

He said that "BMW has several plans on hand for assembly in the United States" adding that such assembly could lead to lower BMW production in Germany itself. BMW now builds all its vehicles in Germany.

Mr. Von Kuenheim also said that Japanese group Matsushita, which already holds 25.1 percent of Germany's Loewe firm (electronics), intends to buy more shares in Loewe, in which BMW has the biggest stake (31 percent).

He said BMW had not decided whether it wanted to sell off that holding.

He commented that "the question of selling something to a Japanese group or helping it set up shop in Europe is a moral question".

LONDON (NOV. 22) - Shares lost most of the gains made immediately after the announcement of the resignation of Prime Minister Thatcher Thursday morning.

The initial relief that the political uncertainty detested by the markets did not last long and the Footsie 100 share index finished the day at 2127.9, only 1.6 points up on the close Wednesday. The FT-30 index lost 3.8 points to 1672.2 and a total volume of 496.1 million shares were traded against 439.1 million shares Wednesday.

The news that John Major, the chancellor and Douglas Hurd, the foreign secretary, were to enter the leadership contest reminded the city that the political uncertainty was not yet at an end.

News that more British troops were to be deployed in the Gulf also helped to dampen initial optimism.

The strength of the pound helped gilts to gain more than a half a point in places.

Rolls Royce, British Aerospace and Lucas, the engineering company all fell following profits warnings.

LONDON (NOV. 22) - British Defence Secretary Tom King on Thursday said an additional armoured infantry brigade will be sent to the Gulf, taking the number of British troops there from 16,000 to 30,000.

Mr. King also told parliament here that two minesweepers would join those already in the Gulf.

"With the further major American deployments and the continued buildup of units from 30 other countries in the multi-national force, the deployment I have announced today is the clearest possible message to (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein that there is a credible military option and that he must now end his aggression, release the hostages and leave Kuwait", Mr. King said.

British forces in the Gulf comprise the 7th armoured infantry brigade, the so-called Desert Rats, about 15 warships including two destroyers, two frigates and three minesweepers, as well as four and a half Tornado and Jaguar fighter groups.

Most troops are stationed in Saudi Arabia.

PARIS (NOV. 22) - The French carmaker Renault and Iran's Saipa company have signed a letter of intent whereby the two firms are to assemble 20,000 R-21 mid-sized models per year in Iran by the mid-1990s, it was announced here Thursday.

A renault statement said more R-21 models would be constructed in Iran at a later stage.

Saipa factories have assembled in cooperation with Renault more than 110,000 R-5 small cars since 1975. The production of this model is to be raised to 20,000 per year, the statement said.

NEW DELHI (NOV. 22) - Sikh militants lined up 25 public bus passengers and shot them dead Thursday in the northern Indian state of Punjab, the Press

Trust of India (PTI) reported.

Another 19 people were killed in a number of violent incidents in Punjab on Wednesday and Thursday.

The violence coincided with a statement from a powerful Sikh committee ordering journalists in Punjab to follow guidelines in reporting the events.

The 25 bus passengers were members of an unidentified community travelling in three state-run Chandigarh Transport Union buses, police sources were quoted as saying.

Informed sources said it was likely the victims were Hindus.

The Sikh's five-member Panthic Committee ordered Punjab-based journalists to refrain from describing the militants as "terrorists" or "extremists", the terms commonly used by local Indian press and government.

Those dissenting will meet their death, the committee warned in the statement circulated to the newspapers and news agencies in Chandigarh, the joint capital of Punjab and neighbouring Haryana, PTI reported.

The Panthic Committee is based in neighbouring Pakistan, which is accused by India of arming and harbouring Sikh separatists. Islamabad refutes the allegation.

In the earlier violence Thursday, militants gunned down Harbans Lal, a local leader of former premier Rajiv Gandhi's Congress (I) party, in Punjab's Sangrur district, PTI said.

Two villagers and a voluntary policeman were shot dead in Amritsar district, a known separatist bastion bordering Pakistan, police were quoted as saying.

Security forces gunned down four Sikh separatists, while six others died in factional fights, PTI said.

PTI said a half dozen more people were killed separately elsewhere in the state, where some 3,500 people have died this year in the campaign for an independent Sikh homeland called Khalistan, or land of the pure.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (NOV. 22) - U.S. Secretary of State James Baker returned to this western Saudi city from Sanaa late Thursday following a brief stopover in Yemen, the Saudi Press Agency (SPA) reported.

He had flown earlier in the day from Jeddah to sound out Yemeni President Ali

Abdallah Saleh on the need to resort to force against Iraq to dislodge it from Kuwait which it invaded on August 2.

The U.S., which holds the rotating presidency of the 15-member United Nations Security Council, is spearheading a move among council members to authorize the use of military force.

Yemen is next in line for the Security Council presidency and assumes the position next month.

Mr. Saleh told the U.S. foreign affairs chief that the military option was fraught with dangers for the region and that "the interests of all the parties concerned would be threatened", Yemeni officials said.

The Yemeni president also said his country was willing to continue seeking a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis.

JOHANNESBURG (NOV. 22) - Anglo American Corporation (AAC) announced here Thursday a 10 per cent fall in the multi-faceted South African-based giant's attributable earnings for the six months ended 30 September 1990.

The corporation's attributable earnings for the first six months ended 30 September, 1990, fell to 540 million rands (214 million dollars) from 599 million (237.6 million dollars) in the comparable period last year.

Equity accounted earnings also fell by some 12 per cent to 1.15 billion rands (456 million dollars).

Trading income decreased by 19 per cent to 226 million rands (89.68 million dollars) from 279 million rands (110.7 million dollars) the same period last year.

AAC directors said the fall was mainly due to the fall in operating profit of AAC's coalmining subsidiary, Amcoal. They attributed the fall in Amcoal's operating profit to lower export sales, increased unit working costs and the strong rand against the dollar.

Net income from investments at 594 million rands (235.7 million rands) was six per cent down compared to the 632 million rands (250 million dollars) the same period last year.

PARIS (NOV. 22) - France has signed a new contract to sell grain to the Soviet Union, as the European Economic Community (EEC) has granted the required certificates and export subsidies, several informed sources said on Thursday.

The sale is for 600,000 tons of soft wheat and 500,000 tons of barley, they said.

On Thursday, the EEC Cereals Management Committee in Brussels decided to grant an export subsidy ("restitution") of 116 European Currency Units (ECU) per tonne on the wheat, and one of 104 ECU per tonne for the barley.

Last week, the Committee granted a subsidy of 115.5 ECU per tonne on a French sale of 900,000 tons of soft wheat to the Soviet Union, and one of 103.50 ECU per tonne for 500,000 tons of French barley to Moscow.

PARIS (NOV. 22) - Thomson-CSF Group chairman Alain Gomez told financial analysts on Thursday that the group's net result for the 1990 financial year should be no less than six per cent of sales.

Moreover, anticipated sales, 36 billion francs (about 7.2 billion dollars) should remain roughly at the same level over the next several years, he said.

On that basis, the group should have a net result of at least 2.16 billion francs this year, which would be down 18 per cent on the 2.6 billion francs recorded for 1989.

SAN SALVADOR (NOV. 22) - Leftist guerrillas killed five soldiers and wounded five others in an attack on an army base in eastern El Salvador Thursday as hopes faded for an end to a two-day-old rebel offensive.

Colonel Ciro Lopez said the mortar attack on the army base in San Miguel, 120 kilometers (75 miles) east of the capital, lasted only eight minutes, but five shells exploded inside the compound, one of them near a group of soldiers.

It was the latest assault by the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) since it launched a "limited" offensive Tuesday on government positions in seven of the country's 14 departments, in a bid to force concessions in ongoing peace negotiations.

A second hour-long rebel mortar attack heard throughout the city early Thursday failed to inflict significant damage on a power plant on the outskirts of the capital. A guard said there were no casualties in the shelling.

Residents of the capital watched government helicopters strafing suspected guerrilla positions on the outskirts of the city.

In other fighting, military sources said army installations at San Jose Guayabal, in the central part of the country, and at Mercedes Umana, 105 kilometers (62 miles) east of here, came under guerrilla attack around midnight Wednesday, although no casualties reported.

By the government's count, the latest casualties in San Miguel raised to 53 the number of people killed since the offensive began. The armed forces said Wednesday that 29 rebels and 11 soldiers had been killed and 69 government troops wounded. In radio broadcasts, the government said eight civilians were killed and 106 wounded.

But the U.S. State Department, citing Salvadoran officials, said Wednesday that 33 Salvadoran soldiers, 44 rebels and seven civilians had been killed in the fighting, and that 266 people had been wounded. There was no immediate explanation for the divergent casualty tolls.

An FMLN radio communique Thursday said 395 government troops had been killed or wounded since the fighting began, and that the rebels had destroyed nine armored vehicles, three aircraft and captured two rocket launchers and 37 rifles during the offensive.

It was the biggest rebel operation since the FMLN launched its largest offensive of the 10-year-old civil war in November 1989, which left more than 2,000 people dead.

Although the fighting died down by Wednesday, Thursday's assaults showed that the rebels intended to keep up pressure on the government with only days to go before a new round of U.N.-sponsored peace talks begin in Caracas.

In a statement read over a clandestine radio station, the FMLN said it was engaged in military operations in seven of the country's 14 departments and vowed there would be no ceasefire so long as the armed forces could act with impunity.

The statement also said the FMLN, which groups five separate rebel armies, had become the National Army for Democracy.

In a statement issued at the start of the offensive, the rebel group threatened a sustained anti-government drive in the future if no advance was made in the peace negotiations.

A guerrilla commander interviewed Thursday by AFP in Nejapa, a town 14 kilometers (eight miles) north of San Salvador, insisted the latest fighting was not a full-scale offensive but only a "warmup" in case peace efforts fail.

"If this was an offensive, we'd be in San Salvador," said the 30-year-old commander, known as Aristides, who heads a 200-strong guerrilla unit in the area near the capital.

The guerrilla leader, who has been fighting with the FMLN since the start of the war, said the rebels remained committed to a negotiated settlement "because the war isn't leading to anything good."

In the stalled, U.N.-mediated peace talks begun April and due to resume Friday in Caracas, the FMLN has demanded that the Salvadoran Armed Forces be dismantled and that all military officers charged with human rights abuses be brought to trial.

NEW YORK (NOV. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Fujitsu Limited, one of the world's leading producers of computers and telecommunications systems, semiconductors and other electronics components, reported net sales of Y1,295.08 billion ($9.38 billion) on a consolidated basis for the six- month period ending Sept. 30, 1990. This represents an 11.5 percent increase compared with net sales of Y1,161.01 billion ($8.41 billion) over the same six-month period in 1989.

In terms of sales by product areas, computers and data processing systems climbed 13.5 percent over last year's half-year period, and telecommunications products reported a 17.7 percent gain. Sales of semiconductors and other electronics components decreased by 4.8 percent. Overseas sales, including local production as well as exports from Japan, rose by 0.3 percent over the same period in 1989.

The company reported net income of Y25.99 billion ($188.36 million) for the half-year period, down 33.9 percent from the 1989 half-year figure of Y39.35 billion ($285.17 million). Similarly, profit per share dropped 34.5 percent to Y14.38 ($0.10) from the Y21.94 ($0.16) reported in the comparable period in 1989.

The company attributed the decline in earnings for the half-year period mainly to negative results at some overseas subsidiaries due to a number of factors, including: lower sales growth, expenses arising from expansion of overseas manufacturing facilities, increased investment in new product development and efforts to strengthen marketing organizations, as well as higher interest payments.

The results reflect the performance of 154 consolidated subsidiaries (148 in the same 1989 half-year period), including Fujitsu America, Inc., and Fujitsu Microelectronics, Inc., as well as 13 other companies (also 13 in the same 1989 half-year period), including Amdahl Corporation and Fanuc Ltd., using the applied equity accounting method.

MILAN, ITALY (NOV. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - The boards of directors of The Ferruzzi Group companies involved in the decision regarding Montedison's Enimont stake (Serafino Ferruzzi S.r.1., Ferruzzi Finanziaria and the new Montedison) met today in Rome.

The board of directors of Montedison, having considered the evaluations of the group's strategy voiced by the shareholders, reviewed ENI's offer to buy Montedison's 40 percent stake or sell its 40 percent stake in Enimont.

The board has decided to proceed with the sale of Montedison's Enimont stake at the 1,650 lire per share price offered by ENI (for a total of approximately 2.8 trillion lire).

The factors which motivated this decision were given as follows: The dangerous move made by ENI which resulted in the intervention of the court in the running of Enimont, a situation which is contrary to facing whatever issues are involved in the entrepreneurial management of a company;

The unproductive atmosphere surrounding Montedison's strategic proposals, and ENI's widely known desire to take over the management and control of Enimont, created circumstances which could only lead to Montedison making the responsible decision to disengage itself from a company which was made unmanageable for the private-sector partner.

Montedison's protection of the interests of all shareholders of Enimont has also led ENI to commit to purchase the publicly traded shares of Enimont at the same price that was offered for Montedison's shares.

At the beginning of the Ferruzzi Finanziaria board of directors meeting, Raul Gardini stated, "The Ferruzzi-Montedison Group was practically forced to sell its Enimont shares by the formulation of an onerous contract which would be impossible for us to accept as a purchasing party. We have taken a long and painful journey as entrepreneurs down the obliged road to this final decision."

Managing Director Giuseppe Garofano reviewed the main issues of the offer and the impacts of the sale of the Enimont shares.

Upon a motion by Ferruzzi Finanziaria Vice Chairman Sergio Cragnotti, the board unanimously resolved to request that Montedison sell its Enimont stake.

The Ferruzzi Group is a leading international industrial system which operates through Montedison in the chemical, pharmaceutical and energy sectors, as well as in the agro-industrial sector, with an aggregate turnover of approximately $40 billion.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - SPI Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (AMEX:

SPI), of the United States, an 89 percent-owned subsidiary of ICN Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (NYSE: ICN), and Galenika Pharmaceuticals, of Yugoslavia announced today that they have signed a definitive agreement to create a new company with consolidated sales of $370 million, 7,400 employees and 18 manufacturing and distribution facilities, operating in six countries.

The transaction marks the first major consolidation of an Eastern European pharmaceutical company with a western company and is one of the largest east-west transactions to occur in Yugoslavia since the end of World War II.

Under the agreement, the assets of Galenika, the largest pharmaceutical company in Yugoslavia, would be transferred to a new joint company, ICN Galenika, 75 percent of which will be owned by SPI and 25 percent of which will be owned by Galenika. The agreement is subject to final approval by the Federal Secretariat for External Economic Relations of Yugoslavia, the boards of directors of SPI, ICN and Galenika, and customary closing conditions.

SPI and Galenika The combination of Galenika Pharmaceuticals of Yugoslavia with SPI Pharmaceuticals of the United States will create a major international pharmaceutical company serving the health care needs of patients in Eastern European and Western countries.

The new company will have sales of $370 million, 7,400 employees, 18 manufacturing plants and distribution facilities, and assets of approximately $245 million. It will make, market and distribute 600 prescription pharmaceuticals in a broad range of therapeutic classes.

The transaction was made possible by the changes in Yugoslav law in late 1988 that permitted privatization of businesses owned by the people of Yugoslavia.

The infusion of capital by SPI will permit Galenika to modernize equipment, and position it for competition from foreign firms -- Western European or Japanese companies for example -- that is expected to intensify with the easing of East-West tensions.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 22) UPI - The government, responding to a lawsuit challenging President Bush's authority to send troops to the Persian Gulf without congressional approval, said matter is a political question not suitable for courts to decide.

The brief filed by the Justice Department late Wednesday comes in response to a lawsuit brought by an Army national guardsman, who claimed the president has commited U.S. forces to the Middle East in violation of the 1973 War Powers Act.

Sgt. Michael Ange, 26, attached to the 1,450th Transportation Unit at Fort Lee Va., also sought an emergency order blocking his deployment to the Middle East because an ulcer and leg injuries made him unfit for duty.

In a response filed in U.S. District Court, the government disputed the contention by Ange's lawyers that the United States was on the verge of war and said courts should not enter into such political debates.

''In terms of the broad sweep of events in the Persian Gulf,'' the government said, ''there are simply no manageable standards by which this court can evaluate whether this country is engaged in 'war' in the constitutional sense, or determine whether 'hostilities' within the meaning of the (War Powers Act) are occurring or are about to occur.''

To rule in favor of Ange, the government said, ''would make the court an active participant in the delicate and ever-changing Persian Gulf diplomatic, military and political situation.''

Ange's lawyers appeared in federal court Nov. 13 seeking an emergency court order suspending Ange's deployment to the gulf until a full hearing can be held on the constitutional question.

U.S. District Judge Royce Lamberth declined to issue the emergency order, but scheduled a Dec. 10 hearing on the case.

Ange's lawyers say the guardsman doesn't fall into the ''conscientious objector'' category, but instead fears Bush is pushing the United States toward a war without consulting his countrymen.

''We believe that this is a historic and critical moment for the American people, that they should have, as should Sgt. Ange, the consent of Congress and the American people before launching a war in the gulf,'' said Michael Ratner, a lawyer for the Center for Constitutional Rights, which has taken up Ange's case.

The 1973 War Powers Act requires the president to notify Congress within 48 hours when U.S. forces are in an area of ''imminent hostilities.'' Congress has 60 days to vote on whether to authorize the military action. Presidents have generally ignored the act and the courts have been reluctant to step into what many consider a political question.

The Justice Department's brief says Bush has notified Congress of his intentions through letters and through conferences among White House officials and congressional leaders.

If the court intervened in the matter, the government said it would result in a situation in which ''the president, rather than turning to his diplomatic and military advisers in time of national crisis, would be required to consult his lawyers in the first instance, a consequence not likely contemplated by the framers of the Constitution.''

In addition, the government said Congress ''has not yet asserted whatever constitutional powers it has,'' noting that lawmakers have not called a special session to debate whether U.S. troops should be in the gulf.

On Tuesday, 45 members of Congress filed suit in the same court seeking to prevent Bush from committing U.S. troops to a Persian Gulf war without congressional approval.

The suit is based on the War Powers clause in the Constitution, rather than the War Powers Act, which some lawmakers claimed has proven to be ineffective. A federal judge Wednesday scheduled a Dec. 4 hearing on that lawsuit.

ADAK, Alaska (NOV. 22) UPI - The second moderate earthquake in as many days struck the Aleutian Islands Wednesday, shaking up the 5,000 Navy personnel and dependents at Adak Naval Air Station but causing no damage or injuries.

It was followed within hours by two smaller and unrelated earthquakes that shook within a 40-mile radius of Anchorage, officials said.

The Pacific Tsunami Warning Center said an earthquake with a preliminary reading of 5.1 on the Richter scale was centered 50 miles southeast of Adak, where officials at the Navy air base reported the jolt was felt strongly. The quake struck at 8:14 p.m.

Two lesser earthquakes struck later Wednesday about 1,000 miles away along the same major fault system known as the Aleutian Megathrust Zone that runs from Japan to the southern coast of Alaska, PTWC spokesman George Carte said.

But they hit too far away from the 5.1 quake and from each other to be considered related seismic events, spokesman Carte said.

An earthquake of magnitude 4.3 struck an area 40 miles southwest of Anchorage at 10:19 a.m. and another measuring 3.5 hit 20 miles north of Anchorage at 9:15 p.m., Carte said.

A quake measuring 5.6 on the Richter scale hit the Aleutian Islands Tuesday, about 150 miles from Wednesday's jolt. The tsunami center said the two Aleutian quakes were also too far apart to be related.

A rookie goalie arrived to stop pucks and, in the process, he helped stop the Philadelphia Flyers' two-game losing streak.

Bruce Hoffort, who hadn't seen any action this season until 2:53 of the third period, entered when starting goalie Pete Peeters had the wind knocked out of him.

Philadelphia led the Pittsburgh Penguins 4-2 at the time, and the Flyers hung on for a 5-4 victory.

''We got by,'' Hoffort said. ''We won and that was the only thing I cared about. I wanted the win regardless of the score.''

Hoffort gave up two goals but made several big saves down the stretch.

''He really made some '10 bell' saves for us,'' Flyers Coach Paul Holmgren said. ''He really was able to hang in there and get the win.''

Pittsburgh also said the Flyers rookie netminder came up big on a number of occasions.

''Hoffort really saved the game for them. He stopped me a couple of times, he stopped (Paul) Coffey twice and he got some big saves against (John) Cullen,'' Pittsburgh's Mark Recchi said.

The Penguins took a 2-0 lead with goals 1:09 apart late in the first period. Paul Stanton scored his first career goal on a slapshot from just inside the blueline at the 13:01 mark. Randy Gilhen followed with his seventh goal of the season at 14:10 on a shot from between the faceoff circles.

The Flyers got on the board in the final minute of the first when Scott Mellanby scored his eighth goal on a rebound of a shot by Kjell Samuelsson.

Philadelphia tied the game at 2-2 on Tony Horacek's goal at 1:19 of the second on a 10-foot wrist shot. The Flyers took a 3-2 lead Rick Tocchet's 14th goal from Mike Ricci at 3:34.

-- AROUND THE NHL --

In other games, Detroit nipped Minnesota 4-3, Quebec tied Hartford 4- 4, Washington downed Toronto 5-3, Buffalo tied the New York Rangers 5-5 and Vancouver pounded Chicago 4-1.

RED WINGS 4, NORTH STARS 3

At Detroit, rookie Johan Garpenlov scored his first goal in seven games midway through the third period to break a tie and lift the Red Wings. The victory was Detroit's second in its last eight outings, while Minnesota has five defeats and a tie in its last six games.

WHALERS 4, NORDIQUES 4

At Hartford, Tony McKegney scored at 18:09 of the third period, helping Quebec snap a 14-game losing streak. Kevin Dineen had tallied for the Whalers with 3:28 left to give them a 4-3 lead but McKegney connected from the left circle. The tie extended the Nordiques' winless streak to a club-record 15.

CAPITALS 5, MAPLE LEAFS 3

At Landover, Md., John Druce scored two power-play goals and assisted on a Kevin Hatcher score that capped a three-goal splurge late in the second period handing Toronto its league-leading 19th loss of the season. Washington snapped a three-game home losing streak and evened its record at 12-12.

RANGERS 5, SABRES 5

At Buffalo, Alexander Mogilny and Dave Andreychuk scored 18 seconds apart late in the third period to give the Sabres a tie. Andreychuk poked a rebound under goaltender John Vanbiesbrouck at 18:09 for his second goal of the game. Darren Turcotte had given New York a 5-3 lead at 16:32 of the third.

CANUCKS 4, BLACKHAWKS 1

At Vancouver, British Columbia, Troy Gamble and Kirk McLean stopped 37 shots, helping the Canucks end Chicago's five-game unbeaten streak. Gamble turned away all 24 shots he faced, before being forced to leave after being elbowed in the head by Steve Thomas.

TOKYO (NOV. 22) UPI - Matushita Electric Industrial Co. Inc., the world's largest consumer electronics firm, could announce by this weekend a deal to purchase American entertainment giant MCA Inc., a Japanese newspaper reported Thursday.

The economic daily Nihon Keizai Shimbun said talks between executives of the two companies in New York on the possible $7-billion takeover of MCA are close to an end and the deal, which would be the largest merger this year, may be announced as soon as Sunday.

The Kyodo New Service reported Matsushita will hold an emergency meeting of its board of directors at its headquarters in Osaka Sunday.

The news service said the aquisition price would be about $7 billion, or $75 to $80 per share. MCA closed up 8 3/4 at $68.13 a share Wednesday in New York.

''There is nothing we can say right now,'' said a Matsushita spokesman who asked not to be identified. ''We cannot confirm either (the Nikkei or the Kyodo) report.''

If Matsushita - better known by its brand names, Panasonic, Technics, Quasar and JVC - buys MCA, it will be the second major purchase of a Hollywood film studio by a Japanese electronics company in as many years.

Sony Corp. bought Columbia Pictures in 1989 for $3.4 billion and touched off a storm of resentment in the United States over the increasing Japanese purchase of American properties.

MCA is the producer of such film hits as ''Jaws,'' ''E.T.'' and ''Back to the Future,'' and television shows, such as ''Murder, She Wrote'' and ''Major Dad.'' MCA Records has recording contracts with Tom Petty, Bobby Brown and Fine Young Cannibals.

Matsushita, which had revenues of $44 billion in 1989, has been seeking a major Hollywood film and recording studio to complement its production of entertainment harware - television sets, video recorders and stereos.

MCA, which earned $3.4 billion in 1989, had been talking about a merger with Paramount Communications Inc. for years, but broke off the discussions last year in a dispute over who would lead the combined studio.

Philadelphia improved its home record to 5-1 Wednesday night when Rick Mahorn scored on a tip-in with four-tenths of a second to play to give the 76ers a 101-99 victory over the Sacramento Kings.

The record does not show, however, that Philadelphia had to go to overtime to beat both lowly New Jersey and Washington and had problems with Charlotte before nearly stumbling against the Kings, who fell to 1- 8 on the season.

Sixers Coach Jim Lynam might be worried about the way the team has struggled, but not Barkley, who led Philadelphia with 31 points.

''I'm only concerned that we've won five of six,'' he said. ''If we win five of six the rest of the year, I can live with it. You guys come up with negative things. We only worry about wins and losses.''

Hersey Hawkins, who had 24 points, agreed.

''We're winning and that's the bottom line,'' he said. ''It doesn't matter how you win. It would be nice to get some easy wins but that only comes with experience. If you have too many of these kind of games, sooner or later you learn.''

The 76ers led by as many as 11 points in the fourth quarter before allowing the Kings to tie the score several times in the last two minutes.

Barkley missed on a drive and a follow shot before Mahorn scored the game-winning basket.

''I asked to be isolated but Ralph Sampson surprised me and made me change my shot,'' he said. ''I got the rebound but Rick Mahorn made a great effort and hit the basket.''

Sampson failed to score on the ensuing inbounds pass as the Kings lost for the sixth straight time at the Spectrum.

''I would like to get a stopwatch on those last 10 seconds,'' Sacramento Coach Dick Motta said. ''I thought after the second miss, we were in overtime.''

Sacramento got a season-high 23 points from Antoine Carr and 20 points each from rookie Travis Mays, his season high, Lionel Simmons and Wayman Tisdale.

Simmons, a Philadelphia native playing for the first time at the Spectrum, hit 10-of-19 shots and grabbed 13 rebounds.

''He played terrific but I'm not surprised,'' Lynam said. ''He's a very good basketball player.''

Sampson tipped in a missed layup by Rory Sparrow to tie the score at 99-99 with 10.7 seconds to play.

Ron Anderson sank a pair of free throws for a 99-97 Philadelphia lead with 29.5 seconds to go after Tisdale scored on a turnaround jumper to tie the score at 97-97.

Barkley hit two free throws to give Philadelphia a 97-95 lead with 1:04 left after the Kings had scored six straight points to tie the score at 95-95 on a fast-break layup by Sparrow with 1:49 to play.

Pistons 108, Pacers 100

At Indianapolis, Isiah Thomas scored 32 points, eight of them in overtime, to rally Detroit to its fifth straight victory. Thomas opened overtime with back-to-back 3-point shots. The Pistons have beaten Indiana eight straight times, including a sweep of last year's first- round playoff series.

Celtics 108, Rockets 95

At Boston, Kevin McHale scored 32 points and Larry Bird pulled down 15 rebounds to go along with 18 points, helping the Celtics extend their winning streak to four. Houston has not won at Boston Garden since 1981. The Rockets, coming off a rout of the Knicks in New york, are 1-4 on the road.

Bucks 105, Hawks 93

At Milwaukee, Ricky Pierce scored 25 points and Jack Sikma added 24, helping the Bucks send Atlanta to its sixth straight loss. The Hawks' Moses Malone hit his first field-goal attempt to become the seventh player in NBA history to score 25,000 points. Wilt Chamberlain is first on the list with 38,387.

Lakers 141, Nuggets 121

At Inglewood, Calif., James Worthy scored 29 points and Magic Johnson added 22 and 18 assists to lead the Lakers, who reached the .500 mark for the first time this season. Denver fell to 1-10, losing their last two games to the Lakers. Orlando Woolridge led the Nuggets with 28 points and rookie Chris Jackson added 23.

Phoenix 109, Chicago 107

At Phoenix, Kevin Johnson hit an off-balance jump shot at the buzzer to give the Suns the victory. Jeff Hornacek led Phoenix with 24 points, followed by Kevin Johnson with 18 and Tom Chambers with 17. Michael Jordan led all scorers with 34 points, but had only two points in the fourth quarter.

Spurs 114, Timberwolves 100

At San Antonio, Texas, David Robinson helped the Spurs to a quick start. The Spurs jumped to a 14-point lead after one quarter and maintained a comfortable cushion for most of the night with Robinson scoring 30 points and Terry Cummings adding 23 for the Spurs.

Clippers 99, Nets 90

At Los Angeles, Charles Smith hit 13 of 20 shots and scored 27 of his season-high 34 points in the second half, lifting the Clippers. The loss extended the Nets' record-setting winless mark on the road to 34 straight games. The Nets held a 72-71 lead after three quarters, but Smith pumped in 15 points in the last quarter to rally the Clippers.

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (NOV. 22) UPI - President Bush told American troops they will be stationed in the Persian Gulf until Saddam Hussein is out of Kuwait and warned that every day Saddam is closer to ''his goal of a nuclear weapons arsenal.''

Bush, spending Thanksgiving Day with U.S. forces stationed in the volatile gulf, told military personnel in the area in three separate speeches that they are there to send a message to ''any would-be Saddam Husseins that the world will not tolerate tyrants.''

In his final speech, Bush told some 1,500 U.S. Marines, Navy Sea Bees and British ''Desert Rats'' gathered in the sand under a mid-afternoon sun, ''We want every single troop home. We want every Brit to be able to go home as soon as possible. We want every single American home.

''And this I promise,'' Bush added. ''No American will be kept in the gulf a single day longer than necessary, but we won't pull punches. We are not here on some exercise. This is a real world situation. And we're not walking away until our mission is done, until the invader is out of Kuwait and that may well be where you come in.''

His remarks were greeted with enthusiastic cheers and one soldier was heard to say, ''Well, let us do it.''

Bush also warned about a Saddam armed with nuclear weapons.

''Every day that passes brings Saddam one step closer to realizing his goal of a nuclear weapons arsenal,'' Bush said, standing in front of military tanks, trucks and jeeps. ''And that's why more and more your mission is marked by a real sense of urgency. You know, no one knows precisely when this dictator may acquire atomic weapons or exactly who they may be aimed at down the road, but we do know this for sure, he's never possessed a weapon that he didn't use.''

Bush, looking tired after only 4 hours of sleep, stood in line with the troops to get a cup of coffee.

''Thank you, sir, for showing up here in the desert and showing your support '' 2nd Lt. Emiciades Alcon, 23, of Fort Benning, Ga., told her commander in chief. The president responded, ''That's what Woody Allen said; 90 percent of life is showing up.''

The President and Mrs. Bush later flew on to Cairo, arriving at 7:40 p.m. (1:40 p.m. EST), and were greeted by Egyptian President and Mrs. Hosni Mubarak. The Bushes spent the night at Qubba Palace where a formal welcoming ceremony will be staged Friday morning before the two chief executives begin formal talks.

On his final stop in Saudi Arabia, Bush summed up his day.

''I learned a lot about the kids, looking them in the eye, and seeing how highly motivated they are,'' Bush said. ''They're strong and tough and I'm very moved today, I'll tell you.''

Bush said he detected that the American troops in the Persian Gulf are ''here to do something and they want to do it fast.''

''I've been very moved and motivated by this,'' Bush said. ''We'll go the extra mile for peace.''

Bush said everyone is upset about the treatment of innocent lives, ''I'm darned upset. I'll admit it. It was a very emotional day.''

The first lady posed for photos for anybody who asked, even coaching them where to stand. She told E4 Kelly Fischer of El Paso to take her glasses off and she put arms around Fischer's waist. ''I admire her very much,'' Fischer said of Mrs. Bush. ''In fact I wanted to see her more than I wanted to see the president. That's a terrible thing to say.''

Earlier Bush said the 230,000 U.S. military personnel stationed in the gulf have ''spearheaded what history will judge as one of the most important deployments of military power in the last half century.

''You've done it for principle,'' said Bush, the first president to visit front-line U.S. troops since Richard Nixon's trip to South Vietnam in 1969. ''You've done it for freedom and you've done it to make America proud. And so I've come out here today, personally, to thank you the men and women who have endured much and sacrificed more to stand tall against aggression.

''Simply put, we are here to guarantee that freedom is protected and that Iraq aggression will not be rewarded,'' Bush said to cheers. ''We must send a signal to any would-be Saddam Husseins, that the world will not tolerate tyrants who violate every standard of civilized behavior, invading, bullying and swallowing whole a peaceful neighbor. We will not tolerate the raping and the brutalizing and the kidnapping and the killing of innocent civilians. And we will not tolerate those who try to starve out foreign embassies, breaking a diplomatic code of conduct that has been in place for centuries.''

The president sent a strong message to Saddam: ''I say today, free the hostages, all the hostages and free them today or you are going to pay the price.''

Bush arrived in the Saudi desert after several days of pressing a diplomatic effort to solidify and build on the international coalition against Iraq. The president had lobbied for a U.N. resolution to authorize military force against Iraq if Saddam does not unconditionally withdraw his troops from Kuwait.

On Wednesday, Bush was greeted by King Fahd of Saudi Arabia and began a series of critical meetings with Middle Eastern leaders, including a session Friday with Syria's President Hafez Al-Assad in Geneva.

Bush met first at the spectacular al-Hambra Palace with the exiled emir of Kuwait, Sheik Jabir al-Alhmad al-Jabir al-Sabah, and later with Fahd.

A confident Bush, buttressed by international backing, declared: ''The window of opportunity for Saddam Hussein is right now. And he should withdraw unconditionally from Kuwait right now.

''The pressure is increasing on Saddam Hussein, and if he doesn't understand it now, he will soon,'' Bush told a news conference.

Standing next to the emir, the president said the two had agreed the situation should be resolved peacefully, but added, ''We also agreed that all options remained open and that steps needed to be taken right now in order to make these options credible and effective.''

He said he came away from the meeting ''more committed than ever'' to the stand against Saddam and predicted that further action by the United Nations, possibly a resolution allowing the use of force against Iraq, would soon be forthcoming. U.S. officials said work on generating enough support for a resolution is an ''ongoing process'' that was ''making progress.''

Secretary of State James Baker, also touring the Middle East, warned against the ''siren song of partial solutions'' and rejected the idea of any concessions and restated that nations aligned against Iraq ''should not rule out force'' as an option. ''We have to make it a credible option and a political option,'' said Baker, who traveled to Yemen while Bush shared traditional turkey and trimmings with the troops in Saudi Arabia.

Yemen later this month assumes the chairmanship of the U.N. Security Council, which has passed 10 resolutions condemning Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion and subsequent occupation of Kuwait and has imposed economic sanctions.

Bush refused to discuss specifics of a new move, but he noted U.S. efforts to date to win backing for a force resolution. ''I would expect that there would be yet another resolution strongly against Saddam Hussein,'' Bush said.

Bush also said the emir had shown him more pictures ''of the treatment of Kuwaitis so cruel and so brutal that it just turns your stomach.''

''It is a moving and touching and horrible story,'' he said. ''And I come away from this conversation more committed than ever to seeing this cruel occupation come to an end and those responsible for this violence called to account.''

The president's remarks followed a White House announcement that Bush would meet with Assad, a long a thorn in the U.S. side for his support of terrorists but currently an ally in the gulf standoff.

Syria has very close ties with Iran, and Bush's talks with Assad were expected to determine whether that country could be brought into the coalition fold. Syria also is believed to have some indirect influence over some of the hostage-takers in Lebanon, but White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the purpose of the talks will be to discuss the situation in the gulf.

Syria, which remains on the U.S. list of countries that sponsor international terrorism, has long been a bitter rival of Iraq and has sent troops and tanks to Saudi Arabia to join the anti-Saddam coalition spearheaded by the United States.

Bush defended his meeting with Assad because of his role as ''a coalition partner. ... I have no problem sitting down with him for this common objective '' he said.

LONDON (NOV. 22) UPI - Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, under fire in her own Conservative Party for her aggressive opposition to greater European Community integration, announced Thursday she would resign after 11 1/2 years in power.

Thatcher, reeling from a serious blow to her leadership, said she believed the Conservative Party would best be served by her resignation.

''Having consulted with leaders and my colleagues, I have concluded that the unity of the party and the prospect of victory in a general election would be better served if I stepped down to enable Cabinet colleagues to enter the ballot for the leadership,'' said Thatcher, the longest serving prime minister this century.

''I would like to thank all those in the Cabinet and outside who have given me such dedicated support.''

Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd and Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major both announced they will try to succeed her as party leader, joining renegade Conservative Michael Heseltine on the ballot scheduled for next Tuesday.

Heseltine, 57, dealt the blow to Thatcher that will end an era in British politics. He failed to end her 15-year tenure as head of the Conservative Party in a party vote Tuesday but mustered enough votes to force a second ballot that could have swept her from power next week.

Thatcher had declared, '' I fight on, I fight to win'' Wednesday, but waivered when her Cabinet and others pressured her to resign for the good of the party.

Thatcher, 65, told an early morning Cabinet meeting and Queen Elizabeth II she would resign as soon as a new leader is selected.

She reportedly told cabinet members ''it's a funny old world,'' that she had won three general elections, had support from a majority of the country and Conservative MPs but questions were still being raised about her political future.

Thatcher's decision was viewed by pundits as bad news for Heseltine, whom the prime minister did not want to succeed her. Either Hurd or Major was viewed as a more likely successor than the man nicknamed ''Tarzan,'' who resigned from the Cabinet in 1986 to protest the government's refusal to intervene and save Britain's only helicopter service.

Heseltine said Thatcher ''led the country with distinction'' through the 1980s but a change is needed for the 1990s.

The lord chancellor, Lord McKie, expressed ''profound sadness'' at Thatcher's announcement. He said she served the country well, reforming its floundering economy and leading the country to victory in the 1982 Falklands War with Argentina.

Neil Kinnock, opposition Labor Party leader, had filed a motion of no confidence in the government that was scheduled to be debated in Parliament Thursday afternoon.

Kinnock said he would pursue the motion, but said Thatcher's announcement, ''is very good news indeed. It's news that I have been waiting for and millions of people in Britain have been waiting for for a long time. We should have a general election very soon because apart from my own delight, it is the British people who must decide on the government.''

The government is required to call a nationwide election by mid-1992. Conservative Party leaders have been concerned that Thatcher's leadership style, perceived by some as abrasive and unyielding, would cost them the general election and pressured her to step down.

Thatcher alienated many party members with her vehement opposition to greater European Community integration and a common European currency.

Markets rallied on the news of Thatcher's resignation, the Financial Times 100-share index rising 26 points to 2152.3.

Thatcher faced the first serious challenge to her party leadership this week when Heseltine made a bid to topple her.

She received 204 votes from Conservative MPs in a first ballot Tuesday, four votes short of the 208, or 65 percent, needed to turn back Heseltine's challenge. Heseltine received 152 votes and 16 members abstained.

The winner would have needed a simple majority of 187 votes in a second ballot and Thatcher's campaign managers feared she would fall short.

With three candidates now in the running, the balloting will continue until someone receives a majority of the votes.

BANGKOK, Thailand (NOV. 22) UPI - Rescue workers recovered the bodies of all 38 people, at least two of them Americans, killed aboard a small airliner that crashed in a rainstorm on a resort island in the Gulf of Thailand, police said Thursday.

''We have now recovered 38 bodies and we are trying to identify them, '' said a police officer at the main police station on Samui Island, 300 miles south of Bangkok.

''There are no survivors,'' he said.

Officials of the small privately owned Bangkok Airways said 33 passengers and five crew members were aboard the plane when it took off from Bangkok for the popular beach resort island.

Police have tentatively identified 33 victims, including five Japanese, two Americans, four Australians, one Dutch, five Swedes, five Germans, two Italians, one Finnish and eight Thais (including five crew), said the officer who declined to give his name.

The police officer said the bodies would be brought to the mainland later

Thursday and flown to Bangkok for further examination and identification.

A U.S. embassy official in Bangkok said two American citizens had been identified among the dead, but their names could not be released until family members were notitified. Police identified the Americans as Mr. K. Lincoln and Ms. B. Lincoln, without providing any further details.

An Australian Embassy consular official said four Australians were aboard the plane and the families of two, B. Rodin and A. Kinsett-Smith of Melbourne, had been notified.

Italian and German officials said several of the names on the passenger list indicated their citizens were aboard the plane but were not able to confirm any identities or nationalities.

Initial reports said the crash of the 37-seat, Dash-8 turboprop plane was caused by a fierce rainstorm that also capsized several fishing boats.

Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan said he had ordered an immediate investigation into the cause of the crash. He said he feared such incidents would hurt Thailand' s booming tourist industry.

Prasert Prasart-thong-osoth, chairman of the board of the airline, traveled to Samui early Thursday. He said the plane was insured and compensation of about $12,000 would be paid for each of the victims.

He refused to make any further comment on the crash, the first experienced by the airline.

Bangkok Airways is small airline that operates on six internal routes and recently began flights to Phnom Penh in neighboring Cambodia.

The crash was the third civilian airline disaster in Thailand in the past three years.

A Vietnam Airlines jet crashed in a rainstorm near Bangkok in September 1988, killing 76 people.

At the end of August 1987, a Thai Airways plane carrying tourists to Phuket, another southern Thai beach resort, crashed into the sea, killing all 83 people aboard in Thailand' s worst- ever aircrash.

BEIJING (NOV. 22) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and his Chinese counterpart, Qian Qichen, will meet Friday in a Chinese border province, presumably to discuss this week's European summit, Soviet Embassy officials said.

Soviet sources in Beijing said Shevardnadze planned to depart Moscow late Thursday and fly overnight to Alma-Ata, capital of the central Asian republic Kazakhstan, then continue Friday to China's remote western Xinjiang province.

The morning meeting was to be held in the Xinjiang capital, Urumqi.

Qian made no mention of the meeting during a public appearance Thursday with Spanish Foreign Minister Francisco Fernandez Ordonez and a spokesman for China's foreign ministry also declined to comment.

But Soviet Embassy spokesman Yuri Lyssenko said that as far as he knew the meeting would take place as scheduled.

''They will be meeting in the morning in Urumqi. Its true,'' Lyssenko said.

The spokesman said he did not know the agenda for the Qian- Shevardnadze meeting but said it was likely to include the historic European summit.

Shevardnadze returned to Moscow Wednesday from Paris, where earlier this week leaders of the 34-member Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe met to sign treaties formally ending the Cold War.

(NOV. 22) UPI - President Bush arrived in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, Thursday to spend part of the American holiday of Thanksgiving with his troops, while Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz flew to the Persian Gulf state of Oman.

Aziz is the first Iraqi official to visited a gulf country since the crisis was triggered aug. 2 by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, and it fueled speculation Iraq was seeking Oman's help in resolving the standoff.

Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency said Aziz was to meet with Oman's sultan, Sheikh Qaboos Bin Said, a pro-western leader who played an important role in negotiating the end of the 1980-1988 Gulf War between Iran and Iraq.

The agency said Aziz carried a message from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to to Qaboos, but did not report its contents.

Bush's campaign to win support for the possible use of force against Iraq was expected to be put to the test later Thursday during a meeting with Egyptian leaders, who have balked at the prospect of a U.N. Security Council resolution authorizing military action in the region.

''Egypt is keen to preserve Iraq as a state and a people and to avoid the catastrophes for the region that a destructive war would bring,'' Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel Meguid said in Cairo Wednesday on the eve of Bush's scheduled visit to Egypt.

Meguid said ''Egypt will continue its efforts for a peaceful settlement of the Iraq-Kuwait dispute even if the Security Council issues a resolution approving the use of force against Iraq'' for its invasion of Kuwait.

Meguid's dovish remarks and his referral to Iraq's invasion as a dispute, suggested Bush may be losing the enthusiastic backing on his most prominent Arab ally.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, who has also expressed reluctance to solve the crisis with a military strike, called in Paris for an urgent meeting of the Security Council, warning that the gulf situation has become ''very serious.''

One regional observer said Meguid's remarks indicate Egypt would not allow its 20,000 troops deployed with Operation Desert Shield in Saudi Arabia to take part in a U.S.-led military strike against Iraq.

Last week, Egypt and Syria asked the United States to delay the military option for three months to give Iraqi President Saddam Hussein time to pull out of Kuwait, which his troops invaded Aug. 2.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, a staunch supporter of the U.S.- dominated multinational force confronting Iraq, said in remarks published last week that Egyptian troops would not fight against Iraq, but would be prepared to play a peace-keeping role in Kuwait.

The new developments came as Bush headed from Paris for the Middle East at the end of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe for his first talks with major Arab allies since Iraq invaded Kuwait and to inspect U.S. troops.

He was met by King Fahd at the airport in the Saudi Red Sea port of Jeddah Wednesday evening and spoke later with the exiled emir of Kuwait.

Bush and first lady Barbara Bush were to attend Thanksgiving services Thursday with U.S. and British troops at several locations in the Saudi desert and at sea.

In a surprise move, it was announced Bush would meet with Syrian President Hafez Assad in Geneva Friday on his way back to Washington.

Syria and the United States have had strained relations because Syria is on the U.S. list of countries that support terrorism, but Assad has been a harsh critic of Iraq and has deployed troops to Saudi Arabia to serve alongside American soldiers.

Bush flew to the gulf after appearing to make progress in his diplomatic efforts against Saddam as Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said the time was ripe for the U.N. to take further action to force Iraq out of Kuwait.

''I've said all along we're on the same wavelength with the Soviet Union,'' Bush told reporters in Paris. ''I think we have good synchronization with them and many other nations as we face the problems of the gulf.''

Shevardnadze said: ''I think the time has come for the Security Council to sum up - to take stock of things and to pass a proper judgment on what has been done in respect to implementation of the already passed resolutions. And, if there is a need, then adopt new resolutions with a view toward implementing all the previously passed decisions.''

In a related development, Secretary of State James Baker was to fly to Yemen Thursday in a bid to persuade Yemeni leaders to go along with any U.N. resolutions sanctioning force against Iraq, Arab radio stations said.

Yemen is one of a handful of Arab states supporting Iraq and it is to assume the rotating presidency of the Security Council next month. But the recently unified state said it could be persuaded to vote against Iraq on some issues.

In Paris, French President Francois Mitterrand said France is ''ready to take part in a discussion'' on a U.N. resolution on force against Iraq but cautioned that armed intervention would not ''automatically'' follow.

In Cairo, Mubarak continued extensive consultations with pro-Kuwaiti Arab ministers and other officials before meeting Bush on Friday, Cairo Radio said.

Baghdad Radio reported Wednesday 238 Iranian prisoners of war left Baghdad for Tehran aboard a special Iraqi airliner as part of a wider agreement ending their 1980-88 war. Iran said 5,000 Iraqi POWS have sought political asylum and refuse to return to Iraq.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (NOV. 22) UPI - The Christian hardline Lebanese Forces militia, yielding to government pressure, announced Thursday it will relinquish its strongholds in the capital, paving the way for Lebanese soldiers to establish a militia-free unified Beirut.

''We have completed final touches on the Greater Beirut (security) plan and all obstacles have been removed,'' LF spokesman George Abdel Massih told United Press International.

Abdel Massih expected the militia to withdraw its forces and heavy weapons from the Christian neighborhood of Ashrafiyeh and the seaside LF headquarters in Karantina later Thursday or early Friday.

''The army troops will be deployed either at midnight or early tomorrow but it is up to the government to set the zero hour,'' he said.

But LF sources confirmed that the withdrawal of its forces and the army deployment will start simultaneously at 3 p.m. local time.

The LF decision came after a night-long meeting at the temporary presidential headquarters in the mainly Moslem sector of west Beirut among President Elias Hrawi, army commander Emile Lahoud and a Christian militia delegation.

Official sources said the conferees agreed to a security plan to demilitarize Beirut following negotiations that lasted till dawn.

The sources said the implementation of the accord will start immediately after day-long ''Independence Day'' celebrations and will be completed early Friday.

The nation celebrated Independence Day as the Lebanese army held a military parade in the Syrian-policed west Beirut and warplanes and helicopters repeatedly roared over the city.

Lebanon gained independence from France in 1943 but since then an independent peaceful Christian-Moslem co-existence has remained fragile.

Defense Minister Albert Mansour said the establishment of a unified Beirut will be the government's ''gift for all Lebanese on Independence Day.''

Hrawi's government had set Nov. 19 as a deadline for the withdrawal of all militias and deployment of the Lebanese army to maintain law-and- order in unified Beirut.

But LF cmmander Samir Geagea has linked disbanding of his militia in east Beirut to the presence of pro-Syrian militia groups in the area.

Political sources said Geagea, a Maronite, also demanded that troops from the army's mainly Maronite Fifth brigade be deployed inside Ashrafiyeh.

Lahoud, a strict nationalist, expressed opposition to any army deployment involving sectarian considerations, the sources said.

The estimated 35,000-man Lebanese army was split along sectarian lines as a result of the civil war, but Lahoud has appeared bent on injecting nationalistic spirit among the war-battered regulars.

Moslem militia groups have recently disbanded in mainly Moslem regions of the city in line of the government strategy to restore law and order. But Geagea has refused to relinquish Ashrafiyeh and nearby areas.

Geagea's media organizations highlighted recurring kidnappings of Christian citizens in east Beirut by followers of Syrian-backed Christian militiamen.

Traditional Christian powers, notably Geagea, the Maronite Patriarch Narsrallah Sfair and Phalange leader George Saadeh, have rebuffed the spillover of Syrian-Backed Christian gunmen into east Beirut.

Gunmen of the Syrian Social National Party, the SSNP and Christian militia chief Elie Hobeika established positions in east Beirut after Christian military leader Michel Aoun was toppled Oct. 13.

Hrawi, in a speech on the eve of Independence Day, said, ''Greater Beirut is designed to stop the war. It will be established as long as Lebanese keep faith in this project.

''And no one will be able to obstruct this plan. This is the stage of great achievments.''

BONN, Germany (NOV. 22) UPI - German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said Thursday that Iraq is ''playing with fire'' by holding foreigners and that a swift solution of the hostage question is essential if a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis is to be found.

''We hope that by Christmas - the celebration of peace for all Christians - all foreign hostages will be allowed to leave (Iraq and Kuwait),'' Kohl told the Bundestag, the federal parliament.

The German leader briefed deputies about the three-day summit of the 34-member Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe that ended in Paris Wednesday.

He said the gulf crisis was a major topic during the summit.

''All my discussion partners in the last few days have stressed international solidarity. This convincing position of solidarity includes everyone's wish to seek a peaceful solution. None of us wants war,'' he said.

But he said ''whoever wants a peaceful solution, whoever wants to rule out a military conflict, must know that a solution of the hostage question has highest priority. And the Iraqi leadership must know that by continuing to hold foreigners in Kuwait and Iraq, it is considerably increasing the conflict and is playing with fire.''

Kohl welcomed the announcement that all Germans still held by Iraq will be released in a few days, but stressed that ''our efforts were always aimed at the release of all hostages from all nations.''

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said Tuesday that Germans - about 180 are still held - will be allowed to leave, a gesture he said was intended to demonstrate support for Kohl's repeated calls for a negotiated settlement and against a military solution to the conflict triggered by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Germany has no troops in the gulf, because its constitution does not allow for a military deployment outside the immediate theater of NATO operations.

UMTATA, South Africa (NOV. 22) UPI - Soldiers in the nominally independent South African black homeland of Transkei crushed a pre-dawn coup attempt Thursday in heavy fighting that left the rebel leader and at least 15 others dead, Maj. Gen. Bantu Holomisa said.

The coup leader, Lt. Col. Craig Duli, was killed Thursday afternoon when troops loyal to Holomisa stormed the main government building where the rebels had holed up after failing to take control of the military base outside the capital of Umtata in a battle that began about 3 a.m.

Eleven other rebels and four government troops were killed and an undetermined number of people injured, said Holomisa, who accused Pretoria of complicity in the bid to unseat him.

The building housing the offices of the ruling military council suffered extensive damage when loyal troops opened fire on the 11th floor rebel holdouts.

The 35-year-old Holomisa, a strong supporter of the African National Congress who has ruled the southeast coastal homeland of 4 million Xhosas, said Duli was aided by 25 to 30 troops, apparently based outside Transkei.

Asked by independent Capital Radio if he thought Pretoria was involved in the coup attempt, Holomisa replied, ''There is no doubt about that.''

But South African Foreign Minister R.F. Pik Botha earlier ''categorically'' denied his officials in the Transkei knew of the rebels' plans.

Through much of the morning, Duli holed up in Holomisa's offices on the 11th floor of the government building. As troops loyal to Holomisa carried out mopping up operations, officials tried to persuade Duli to surrender. At 11 a.m., Holomisa gave the order to use force.

After announcing the coup had been crushed, Holomisa appeared calm in the garden of his residence, where he spent most of the day granting telephone interviews, sparring with Pretoria and directing his forces.

DALLAS (NOV. 22) UPI - Animal rights activists saved Fred from the Thanksgiving dinner table.

Fred, a 2-year-old, 40-pound turkey, was rescued from a date with a carving knife after he was found at a Canton, Texas, flea market and sold for $12 to the Fund for the Animals, Inc.

''We can keep all the tradition, fond memories and good taste without eating the birds,'' said Dana Forbes, Texas director for the animal- rights group that this month offered a reprieve for turkeys in a ''Thanksgiving Amnesty'' program.

Forbes said about 21 turkeys were spared statewide through the ''amnesty program.'' The turkeys will be taken to the group's Black Beauty Ranch near Murchison, Texas, where many other abandoned animals live out their lives.

Apparently many Texans are not as sympathetic, however. About 1.2 million turkeys were expected to be eaten in Texas on Thanksgiving, according to Texas A&M University.

(NOV. 22) UPI - British Prime Minister Thatcher announced today she will resign. Thatcher, reeling from a serious blow to her leadership, declared just yesterday that would ''fight to win'' in the toughest, and perhaps last, big battle of her political career.

President Bush arrived in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, this morning to spend what he called a Thanksgiving ''day of peace'' with front-line U-S troops. Bush told cheering Air Force personnel that U-S troops are in the Saudi desert to protect freedom, the future and innocent lives.

The president said the worldwide march for freedom is threatened by what he described as ''a classic bully'' who wants to get- quote- ''a choke hold on the world's economic lifeline.'' But, says Bush, Iraq's Saddam Hussein is ''making the mistake of his life.''

The Washington Post reports today that the Army is considering moves to shore up its deployment of troops in the Middle East. The newspaper says the Army plans to suspend retirements, trim vacations for trainees and halt transfers unrelated to the Persian Gulf crisis.

The Post says senior Defense Department officials have approved, but NOT yet implemented the moves. It says the plan would force tens of thousands of soldiers to remain in uniform despite their desire to return to civilian life.

The stituation is still unclear in the South African black homeland of the Transkei. State-run South African radio reports renegade soldiers mounted an apparent coup attempt yesterday, but the territory's military ruler says the rebellion was crushed.

Children attending an international summit in New York agreed that the threat to global peace is the greatest challenge facing the world. The youthful delegates from 27 countries ranked protecting youngsters from drugs and feeding the hungry as the second greatest challenge.

WARSAW, Poland (NOV. 22) UPI - The Polish media barged into the political campaign Thursday with an explosive attack on darkhorse independent presidential candidate Stanislaw Tyminski, suggesting he dodged military service because of mental disorders and has links to terrorists in Libya.

Tyminski, 42, a holder of Peruvian and Canadian passports, had a 21- point following in the latest government survey of support for Sunday's election, overtaking Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki with 17 points. Solidarity leader Lech Walesa was first with 27.

Both the Mazowiecki and Walesa camps have reacted sharply to the development. During a rally in the southeastern city of Lublin Wednesday, Walesa said he would leave Poland if Tyminski won Sunday's election.

And a high-ranking minister to Mazowiecki resigned to devote full time to the waning days of the campaign.

The independent Warsaw daily Zycie Warszawy, quoting an unspecified ''credible source,'' said Tyminski was exempted from military service in 1960 because he was mentally ill.

''The cause of his inability to serve in the army was psychic disease,'' said Zycie, which supports Mazowiecki.

''Among the symptoms were epilepsy with frequent attacks, intellect and behavior deviations, incorrect psychic personality and reactive psychosis,'' the article said.

''It's nonsense,'' said Elzbieta Bobrowska, a campaign aide to Tyminski. ''It's the trick of biting dog which is helpless.''

She said Tyminski was a 21-year-old student at the time at Warsaw Technical University and thus exempt from the draft.

Tyminski has already said he was allowed to leave Poland 21 years ago without serving in the army.

The independent Gazeta Wyborcza, which also supports Mazowiecki, said ''Tyminski visited one of the world centers of terrorism in Tripoli'' before each of seven previous visits to Poland.

Quoting Interior Ministry sources, Gazeta said his visa was issued by the Polish consulate in Tripoli in every case, and that he gave a false maiden name for his mother on his visa applications.

The Tyminski aide said she had no information on that issue but considered it another campaign attack.

The former communist paper Trybuna, overjoyed with Tyminski's sudden success, said he broke a pre-arranged alignment of forces within Solidarity before the election.

''We are becoming the laughing stock for the world if we panic when Tyminski poses a danger to the two (main) candidates,'' Trybuna said. ''It's good that Tyminski rang a bell. He woke up those who thought they were the wisest and have all power.''

A supplement to Gazeta Wyborcza, Gazeta Stoleczna said negative campaigning by Walesa and Mazowiecki could be blamed for Tyminski's spectacular showing.

It noted Mazowiecki's propaganda depicted Walesa as wielding an axe after he once said he would use an axe if necessary to speed up reforms. Walesa, in turn, has described Mazowiecki as lacking in energy and unable to ''catch a flea.''

''What kind of a choice we have?'' Gazeta Stoleczna quoted one Pole as saying. ''A madman with an axe or an awkward one who is unable to catch a flea?''

Tyminski has skipped ideological issues in the campaign and instead promised quick success for business-minded Poles, who are tired of the deterioration of living standards which have plunged nearly 40 percent in 11 months.

Tyminski describes himself as a self-made millionaire who left Poland penniless and made fortunes in Canada and Peru.

He runs Transduction Ltd., a Toronto computer automation company that makes up to $550,000 annually, and a cable television station in Peru.

(NOV. 22) UPI - British Prime Minister Thatcher is resigning. The 65-year-old Thatcher, the longest serving prime minister this century, told an early morning Cabinet meeting in London that she'll step down as soon as a new leader is selected. Thatcher's announcement comes just days after her former defense minister, Michael Heseltine, dealt a serious blow to her leadership. Heseltine failed to end Thatcher's 15-year-tenure as head of the Conservative Party, but mustered enough votes from conservative members of Parliament to force a second ballot next week. Thatcher had vowed just yesterday to fight to victory.

President Bush today praised American troops in the Persian Gulf, saying they have ''spearheaded what history will judge as one of the most important deployments of military power in the last half century.'' Standing in the desert onThanksgiving Day, Bush told the cheering troops- ''We are here to guarantee that freedom is protected and that Iraq aggression will not be rewarded.''

The hundreds of thousands of service men and women abroad, especially those in Saudi Arabia, will be on the minds and in the prayers of many Americans today as the nation celebrates Thanksgiving. The hostages in the Middle East also are subjects of concern this Thanksgiving. Former hostage Frank Reed is celebrating his first holiday with his family after 44 months in captivity in Lebanon. But Reed says he can't really enjoy his freedom ''unless the rest of the hostages get out.''

In New York, the annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade will have its usual giant balloons in the form of comic characters and something new called falloons- a float and balloon combined. Some two-point-five- Million people are expected to line the parade route and 80-Million will watch on television. And thousands of other Ameicans will celebrate Thanksgiving with traditional turkey dinners, church services, turkey bowls and turkey races.

The military ruler of South Africa's black homeland of the Transkei says he's crushed a coup attempt by rebellious soldiers. Major General Bantu Holomisa, who seized power himself in a coup three years ago, says the mutinous troops have been repulsed and the coup leader- a disgruntled soldier- is trapped in the main government building. Residents of the capital of Umtata reported hearing gunfire, but there's NO word of casualties.

The Justice Department says a lawsuit challenging President Bush's authority to send troops to the Persian Gulf without congressional approval is NOT a matter for courts to decide. The Justice Department filed a brief in federal court in Washington late yesterday disputing a contention by lawyers for an Army National guardsman that the United States is on the verge of war. It said courts should NOT enter into such political debates. Guardsman Michael Ange sued the government, claiming President Bush has committed U-S forces to the Gulf in violation of the 1973 War Powers Act.

(NOV. 22) UPI - British Prime Minister Thatcher, reeling from a serious blow to her leadership, says she'll resign after 11-and-a-half years in power. The lord chancellor, Lord McKie, expressed ''profound sadness'' at Thatcher's announcement. He said she had served Britain well.

But opposition Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock called Thatcher's announcement ''very good news indeed.'' Kinnock had filed a motion of NO confidence in the government, which was scheduled to be debated in Parliament this afternoon. He says he'll pursue the motion.

There was speculation that Tory leaders pressured Thatcher to stand aside for the good of the Conservative Party. Thatcher has alienated many party members with her aggressive opposition to greater European Community integration and a common European currency.

President Bush is spending Thanksgiving with American troops in the Persian Gulf. Standing before troops in the Saudi desert, Bush told U-S forces today that they are there to send a message to what he called ''any would-be Saddam Husseins that the world will NOT tolerate tyrants.''

The president sent a strong message to Saddam, declaring- ''I say today, free the hostages, all the hostages and free them today or you are going to pay the price.'' He called the multi-national force in the Gulf ''one of the most important deployments of military power in the last half century.''

Authorities in Thailand continue the grim task of identifying the bodies of 38 people who died in the crash of a small airliner yesterday about 300 miles south of Bangkok. Police say the Bangkok Airways plane crashed in a rainstorm on a resort island in the Gulf of Thailand.

A leader of the Soviet Union's largest republic is threatening NOT to sign a proposed unity pact with the central governement unless his state is given control over its own natural resources. (NOV. 22) UPI - Worldwide reaction to Margaret Thatcher's resignation reflected admiration for her fierce determination and stunning achievements, tempered by widespread sentiment that it was time for her to go.

In resignation, as at the peak of her powers, the British prime minister left nobody speechless. The ''Iron Lady'' has long been described as stubborn, exasperating and often amusing, but never boring.

''On a personal note, I'll miss her because I value her counsel and the wisdom that comes from her long experience,'' President Bush said in Saudi Arabia while visiting American troops.

''She has been an outstanding prime minister for the United Kingdom and an outstanding friend of the United States,'' said Bush, whose predecessor, Ronald Reagan, was far closer to Thatcher.

Reagan, in a statement from his California home, said, ''Margaret Thatcher is truly a world statesman. Great Britain and indeed all the world should be thankful for the leadership of Margaret Thatcher.

''Margaret Thatcher was a completely reliable ally and was a partner of the greatest personal integrity. I could always count on her wise counsel, her firm support and her loyal friendship,'' Reagan said.

In Moscow, ''We will remember her for her great contribution to good relations between the West and the Soviet Union,'' said Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov.

The Soviets know Thatcher best by her famous remark, when Mikhail Gorbachev was still only a contender for the Soviet leadership, ''I think Mr. Gorbachev is a man we can do business with.''

Thatcher's resignation Thursday followed severe criticism within the Conservative Party over her combative opposition to European Community integration.

''I see an evolution of British policy over European affairs,'' said French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas. ''One can therefore expect a softening of that policy.''

The president of the EC Executive Commission, Jacques Delors, who has clashed repeatedly with Thatcher, expressed his ''greatest esteem'' for her despite their ''disagreements'' over Europe.

Others were not quite so diplomatic.

''I think she has been part of history for some time,'' said Voker Ruehe, secretary-general of German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Conservative Christian Union.

''I think it's the right time for her to step down,'' he said. ''It is the chance for a new beginning and a victory for the Conservative Party, which is very important for stability in Europe.''

The former Italian prime minister, Giovanni Spadolini, said Thatcher compiled an impressive record in her 11 years in office.

''We must render homage to the intrepid character of Mrs. Thatcher, who has shown a lofty quality and a stature that consecrates her in the history of her country,'' he said.

''I believe that every European citizen cannot forget the overall performance of one of the protagonists of the political life of recent years,'' said Spadolini, now the Italian Senate president.

The foreign policy spokesman for Denmark's governing conservatives seemed to sum up the overall reaction.

''Margaret Thatcher is a great and admirable figure in European politics. It is important that Europe has people like her as heads of state,'' the spokesman said. ''But it is natural that the Conservatives in Britain should want a change in leadership now. Everything has its time, and she has apparently had hers.''

(NOV. 22) UPI - British Prime Minister Thatcher is resigning under fire from her own Conservative Party after 11-and-a-half-years in power. Thatcher announced today that she'll step down as soon as a new leader is selected. Thatcher, who was dealt a serious blow to her leadership by party challenger Michael Heseltine, had declared just yesterday- ''I fight on, I fight to win.'' But she waivered when her Cabinet and others pressured her to resign for the good of the party.

British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd and Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major both announced today that they will try to succeed Thatcher as party leader. Both are viewed as a more likely successor than Heseltine, who resigned from the Cabinet in 1986 to protest the government's refusal to intervene and save Britain's only helicopter service.

British opposition Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock hailed the news that Thatcher is quitting, calling it ''very good news indeed.'' Kinnock said Millions of peopel in British have been waiting for such an announcement for a long time. Kinnock has filed a motion of no confidence in the government that was scheduled to be debated in Parliament this afternoon. He says he'll pursue the motion.

Speaking against the backdrop of a military tank, truck and jeep, President Bush told some 15-hundred Marines in the Saudi desert today that U-S forces are there to protect America's future and innocent lives. And that means, the president said, ''standing up to aggression.'' In his third speech of the day, Bush said to loud cheers- ''The occupation of Kuwait will not stand.''

The president concluded his remarks by promising that NO American will be kept in the gulf a single day longer than necessary. But he added- ''we won't pull punches.'' Bush drew more loud cheers when he said U-S forces are- quoting now- ''NOT walking away until our mission is done, until the invader is out of Kuwait and that may well be where you come in.''

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said today that Iraq is ''playing with fire'' by holding foreigners hostage. Kohl told the federal parliament in Bonn that a swift solution of the hostage question is essential if a peaceful solution to the Gulf conflict is to be found. The German leader briefed deputies about the 34-nation European summit in Paris this week. He said the Gulf crisis was one of the major topics during the summit.

In the Philippines, President Corazon Aquino today took steps to defuse labor unrest among workers demanding a wage increase. Aquino vowed to ease the tax load for low income earners and improve their social security benefits in a bid to minimize the impact of the Gulf crisis. But Aquino stood firm on her position that demands for a wage hike should be resolved by regional wage boards composed of government, labor and management representatives.

(NOV. 22) UPI - The longest serving prime minister this century is resigning. British Prime Minister Thatcher says she won't fight a leadership challenge and will resign as soon as a new leader is selected. Thatcher, who had declared yesterday to ''fight to win,'' waivered when her Cabinet and others pressured her to resign for the good of the Conservative Party. She'd come under fire for her aggressive opposition to greater European Community integration.

President Bush had some fighting words today in a morale-boosting Thanksgiving Day speech to American troops in the Saudi desert. Bush said he wants them all back home in the United States, but NOT until Iraqi President Saddam Hussein pulls his forces out of Kuwait. In three separate speeches to troops, Bush said U-S forces are in the region to send a message to- quote- ''any would-be Saddam Husseins that the world will not tolerate tyrants.''

An opposition newspaper in Egypt today criticized President Bush's planned visit to Cairo later today, saying ''Bush is NOT welcome in Egypt.'' Bush is scheduled to arrive in the Egyptian capital after spending part of Thanksgiving with front-line U-S troops. The Al-Shaab newspaper quoted the head of the opposition Labor Party as saying that U-S interests in the Middle East will be threatened if war erupts... or if the United States continues what he called its ''arrogant support'' of Israeli policies.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz flew to the Persian Gulf state of Oman today... becoming the first Iraqi official to visit a gulf country since the crisis erupted over Baghdad's invasion of Kuwait. Aziz's visit fueled speculation Iraq is seeking Oman's help in resolving the standoff. Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency says Aziz is to meet with Oman's sultan, a pro-western leader who played an important role in negotiating the end of the 1980-1988 Gulf War between Iran and Iraq. Aziz reportedly is carrying a message from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

In a related development, Secretary of State Baker flies to Yemen today in a bid to persuade Yemeni leaders to bacl a U-N resolution sanctioning force against Iraq. Yemen is one of a handful of Arab states supporting Iraq... and it is to assume the rotating presidency of the U- N Security Council next month. But the recently unified state says it could be persuaded to vote against Iraq on some issues.

An American computer lecturer faces a possible death sentence under Malaysia's harsh drug laws. 38-year-old Kerry Wiley of Sacremento, California, today denied that he transported marijuana across the Thai- Malaysia border. Wiley was arrested a year ago after customs officers raided his house in a suburb of Kuala Lumpur and found nine-point-four ounces of marijuana in six tin cans.

Some two-and-a-half Million people are gathering in New York City for the annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade. As usual, the parade will feature giant balloons in the form of comic characters. And there'll be something new this year called falloons... a float and balloon combination featuring Paddington Bear and a Victorian locomotive. Elsewhere, Americans nationwide are celebrating Thanksgiving with festivities ranging from parades and church services to turkey bowling and turkey races... and traditional turkey dinners.

CAIRO, Egypt (NOV. 22) UPI - President Bush's talks in Cairo Friday and Saturday with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak are expected to focus on the Persian Gulf crisis but will also include the state of the ailing Egyptian economy and U.S.-Egyptian trade relations.

Bush, the first U.S. leader to visit Egypt in 12 years, was expected to depart Cairo for Geneva Friday and talks with Syrian leader Hafez Assad.

Although Egypt remains a staunch supporter of the U.S.-led multinational force confronting Iraq in the gulf, Bush was expected to seek clarification of Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel Meguid's remarks Thursday that even if the U.N. Security Council endorses military force against Iraq, Egypt would continue to pursue ''peaceful efforts'' to solve the standoff.

Although Mubarak himself in remarks published last week said some 20, 000

Egyptian troops stationed in the gulf would not be used to fight in Iraq, the Egyptian leader remained vague on whether the troops would help allied forces liberate Kuwait if the need arose.

Added to the call by Egypt and Syria last week for a three month moratorium on the use of military force against Iraq, ostensibly to give Iraq time to get out of Kuwait, the position of Cairo and Damascus on the use of force against Iraq remains open.

''The gulf crisis will top the agenda of the Mubarak-Bush talks,'' Meguid told reporters. ''Bush will brief President Mubarak on developments and results of contacts he conducted with world leaders in Paris, as well as the recent tour of the U.S. Secretary of State in the area.''

Meguid also made clear that Egypt opposes a U.S. initiative for a new security system with U.S. participation after Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait.

''Preserving regional security is a necessity, but such a security system must emanate from and within and with the consent of countries in the region and should not be imposed from abroad,'' Meguid said before Bush's arrival.

Since the Camp David accords 12 years ago that culminated in the U.S.-sponsored Egypt-Israel peace treaty of 1979, successive U.S. administrations have provided Cairo with billions of dollars in military and economic aid.

In addition to $2.2 billion in aid last year, the Bush administration said it would also write off more than $7 billion in Egyptian military debts in appreciation of Cairo's stand on the gulf crisis.

The United States has also pledged some $55 million in free emergency food aid for Egyptian refugees returning from Kuwait. But Cairo newspapers said Mubarak was expected to brief Bush on the ailing state of the Egyptian economy, which has been hard hit by the crisis, and the state of U.S.-Egyptian trade.

The newspapers said the talks were expected to cover the deficit in the balance of payments in Egypt and the fuirther opening of the U.S. market to Egyptian exports. Egypt is Washington's largest Mideast trading partner with $2.5 billion in bilateral trade in 1988 but is seeking greater access for manufactured goods.

The gulf crisis has hit Egypt's $2 billion a year tourist trade hard, as well as reducing revenue from Egyptian workers in Iraq and Kuwait. Cairo hopes Bush's visit will focus attention on the need for further aid to Egypt directly or through other allies such as Arab states, Japan, Germany and the European Community, the newspapers said.

The two leaders were also expected to discuss the Arab-Israeli conflict and chances of dialogue between Palestinians not belonging to the Palestine Liberation Organization and Israel.

Egypt played a leading role in trying to promote the dialogue but terrorist acts by radical Palestinian groups, as well as the gulf crisis and Saddam Hussein's adoption of the Palestinian issue as his own, has complicated Egyptian mediation efforts.

LONDON (NOV. 22) UPI - Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, under fire in her own Conservative Party for her aggressive opposition to greater European Community integration, announced her resignation Thursday after 11 1/2 years in power.

Thatcher, wounded by a challenge to her party leadership, said she believed the Conservative Party would best be served by her resignation.

Hours later, she defended her government in the House of Commons against a no-confidence motion brought by the opposition Labor Party with a performance that blended her hard-edged determination and a ready willingness to laugh at her plight.

Thatcher declared that under her leadership Britain ''stands tall in the councils of Europe and of the world,'' gained a sound economy and has ''given power back to the people.''

The longest serving prime minister this century announced the solitary decision she reached at 7:30 a.m. to resign in a statement issued by Downing Street.

''Having consulted with leaders and my colleagues, I have concluded that the unity of the party and the prospect of victory in a general election would be better served if I stepped down to enable Cabinet colleagues to enter the ballot for the leadership,'' said Thatcher.

''I would like to thank all those in the Cabinet and outside who have given me such dedicated support.''

Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd and Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major both announced they will try to succeed her as party leader, joining renegade Conservative Michael Heseltine on the ballot scheduled for next Tuesday.

Heseltine, 57, dealt the blow to Thatcher that will end an era in British politics. He failed to end outright her 15-year tenure as head of the Conservative Party in a party vote Tuesday but mustered enough support to force a second ballot next week that could have swept her from power.

Worldwide reaction reflected admiration for her grit and achievements, tempered by widespread sentiment that it was time to go.

''On a personal note, I'll miss her because I value her counsel and the wisdom that comes from her long experience,'' President Bush said in Saudi Arabia while visiting American troops. ''She has been an outstanding prime minister for the United Kingdom and an outstanding friend of the United States.''

His predecessor, Ronald Reagan, who was far closer to Thatcher, said in a statement issued from his California home, ''Margaret Thatcher is truly a world statesman. On this of all days, Great Britain and indeed all the world should be thankful for the leadership of Margaret Thatcher.''

In Moscow, ''We will remember her for her great contribution to good relations between the West and the Soviet Union,'' said Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov.

Police at the gates of Downing Street made steady trips to the door of No. 10 to deliver bouquets of flowers, while supporters and critics waited outside for a glimpse of the ''Iron Lady.''

Thatcher had declared, ''I fight on, I fight to win'' Wednesday, but wavered when her Cabinet and others pressured her to resign for the good of the party.

Thatcher, 65, told an early morning Cabinet meeting and Queen Elizabeth II at Buckingham Palace she would resign as soon as a new leader is selected.

She reportedly told cabinet members ''it's a funny old world,'' that she had won three general elections, had support from a majority of the country and Conservative MPs but questions were still being raised about her political future.

Thatcher's daughter, Carol, said her mother was betrayed by her party. ''I think it's the most gutless act of treachery after all she's done.''

Britain's first woman prime minister changed the course of British government and rekindled her country's international prestige in her 41- year political career that coined the word ''Thatcherism.''

She led Britain to victory over Argentina in the 1982 Falklands War, fought for the deployment of U.S. missiles in Europe, a move that paved the way for a possible U.S.-Soviet arms reduction agreement.

On the domestic front, Thatcher governments carried out a sweeping denationalization of industry and services, curbed the power of left- wing labor unions and cut back on public spending to tame inflation.

Thatcher's decision left a three-way race that pundits were unwilling to call.

Heseltine is the man the prime minister least wants to succeed her.

The man nicknamed ''Tarzan'' resigned from the Cabinet in 1986 amid a clash between the Cabinet and Thatcher over whether an America or European company should rescue Britain's only helicopter manufacturer. She was accused of leaking a classified letter in the affair. Heseltine quit, protesting she had undermined the Cabinet.

Heseltine, who was planting an oak tree at London Zoo when he heard of Thatcher's resignation, said, ''this brings to an end a quite remarkable premiership. She has made a remarkable contribution to British history and has led this country with great distinction in the 1980s. The resignation now opens the way for an election for leader which will enable others to come forward. I very much welcome that ... and we will then find a way to unite the party and go on to win the next election.

Hurd, 60, and Major, 47, issued a joint statment declaring they were engaged in ''a friendly contest.''

''We have decided to let both our names go forward in friendly contest so that our party colleagues can take the decision and choose which of us is better placed to unite the party.

''We regard this as our overriding priority, to unite the party, so that the Conservative Party can win in the next election and safeguard the remarkable and essential achievements of Margaret Thatcher's government.''

The lord chancellor, Lord McKie, expressed ''profound sadness'' on behalf of the Cabinet at Thatcher's resignation. He said she served the country well.

Neil Kinnock, opposition Labor Party leader, was glad of Thatcher's departure.

''It is very good news indeed. It's news that I have been waiting for and millions of people in Britain have been waiting for for a long time. We should have a general election very soon because apart from my own delight, it is the British people who must decide on the government.''

Thatcher rejected his call for a general election, saying it was no more necessary than when James Callaghan replaced Harold Wilson as prime minister in mid-term in 1976.

The government is required to call a nationwide election by mid-1992. Conservative Party leaders have been concerned that Thatcher's leadership style, perceived by some as abrasive and unyielding, would cost them the general election and pressured her to step down.

Thatcher alienated many party members with her vehement opposition to greater European Community integration and a common European currency.

Thatcher this week faced the only serious challenge to her party leadership since she wrested it from Edward Heath in 1975 when Heseltine made a bid to topple her.

She received 204 votes from Conservative MPs in a first ballot Tuesday, four votes short of the 208, or 65 percent, needed to turn back Heseltine's challenge. Heseltine received 152 votes and 16 members abstained.

The winner would have needed a simple majority of 187 votes in a second ballot and Thatcher's campaign managers feared she would fall short.

With three candidates now in the running, the balloting will continue until someone receives a majority of the votes.

LONDON (NOV. 22) UPI - Britain will send 14,000 additional troops to Saudi Arabia, almost doubling the size of its force already lined up against Iraq, Defense Secretary Tom King said Thursday.

The planned deployment follows repeated demands by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and King that Iraq to leave Kuwait or be expelled by military force.

After a U.S. decision to add 250,000 troops to the gulf, the British move was intended to add credibility to the threat to force Iraqi President Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

''It's to show we mean business,'' a Defense Ministry spokesman said.

The decision to raise the British commitment to more than 30,000 troops was made Thursday morning at the same Cabinet meeting at which Thatcher announced her resignation.

Britain will also send 43 Challenger tanks, bringing its total to 120 tanks.

''It is now over 3 1/2 months since Iraq invaded Kuwait and has continued to defy the United Nations demand to withdraw,'' King told the House of Commons later in the day. Iraq overran Kuwait Aug. 2 in a land- and-oil dispute.

''Sanctions have left Iraq increasingly isolated ... but Saddam Hussein shows no sign yet of complying with the U.N. resolutions and ending his barbaric treatment of the Kuwaiti people and the hostages he has detained illegally.''

''If he's foolish, crazy enough to stay in spite of the very substantial military forces (against him), the conflict will be short, it will be extremely painful for Iraqis, and ... the extra resources give us the best chance of minimizing the causalties on our side,'' King said at a news conference.

King said Britain wishes to resolve the crisis by peaceful means but must make Saddam recognize that there is no alternative to withdrawing.

Deployment of the troops, which will be drawn from Britain's 4th Brigade in Germany, will begin this weekend, the defense spokesman said, and will not be completed until January, which is the earliest an offensive against Iraqi forces by the multinational force was expected by military experts.

Britain is currently spending about $27.3 million per week on the gulf defensive effort. The additional troops are expected to bring that total to $46.8 million.

WIESBADEN, Germany (NOV. 22) UPI - German police confiscated one ton of cocaine, 8.5 tons of marijuana and arrested 22 people in one of the country's largest drug operations to date, a federal police spokesman said Thursday.

The undercover police action dealt a major blow to a western European drug ring, the spokesman said. Police estimated the street value of the cocaine seizure at $294 million.

The spokesman declined to give further details, but added that the arrested drug ring memebers had supplied the western European market with cocaine.

Recent police efforts to stem the flow of cocaine into Germany have been more effective than in the past.

While last year authorities confiscated 1,046 kilos, in 1988 police found only 452 kilos and in 1987 only 296 kilos.

Meanwhile, at an international conference in Frankfurt Thursday, a drug expert predicted that the eastern German city of Leipzig could become one of Europe's largest drug centers.

Werner Schneider, drug commissioner for the city of Frankfurt, said it was common for drug dealers to take advantage of important trade cities.

In former East Germany, Leipzig was the site of an annual trade fair and East Germany's most important commercial center outside of Berlin.

The international conference was attended by police officials, medical professionals and drug counselors from 16 European cities.

The participants met to discuss common strategies to fight Europe's drug traffic.

(NOV. 22) UPI - President Bush and his wife Barbara had Thanksgiving dinner with American troops in Saudi Arabia today. The president drew enthusiastic cheers at one stop on his Saudi visit when he told the troops that- his words now- ''we're NOT walking away until our mission is done, until the invader is out of Kuwait and that may well be where you come in.''

At one of the president's stops today, he stood in line to get a cup of coffee with cream and sugar and 23-year-old Second Lieutenant Emiciades Alcon of Fort Benning, Georgia, told him- quoting now- ''Thank you, sir, for showing up here in the desert and showing your support.'' Bush looked her in the eye and said in a low voice, ''That's what Woody Allen said, 90 percent of life is showing up.''

Mrs. Bush posed with everybody who asked, even coaching them on how and where to stand. She told E-Four Kelly Fischer of El Paso, Texas, to take her glasses off and she put arms around Fischer's waist. Fischer told the first lady that she admired her very much and added- quoting now- ''In fact I wanted to see her more than I wanted to see the president. That's a terrible thing to say.''

British Prime Minister Thatcher resigned today, just one day after she said she would ''fight on'' against a challenge to her Conservative Party leadership by former defense secretary Michael Heseltine. Thatcher informed Queen Elizabeth of her decision, saying she would leave office as soon as a new leader is selected. Heseltine denied Thatcher a first- ballot victory this week in a Conservative Party vote for its top job. Now, Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd and Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major announced their candidacy for the Conservative Party's top job.

The military ruler of the South African black homeland of Transkei says an attempted coup failed this morning, and he accused South Africa of complicity in the attempt. Major General Bantu Holomisa says a disgruntled colonel led the coup attempt and was trapped in a government building after it failed. Unconfirmed reports say five military recruits were killed when the rebels attacked the mail army camp before dawn.

Soviet Embassy officials in Beijing say Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze will meet with Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen tomorrow. The officials say the two will meet in a Chinese border province. There is NO word on the agenda for the talks, but officials say it likely will include discussion of events at the historic European summit in Paris.

IRVING, Texas (NOV. 23) UPI - Over the space of 21 flawless minutes Thursday, the Dallas Cowboys moved up one plateau in the National Football League.

No longer are the Cowboys mired in the NFL's wasteland. They have now reached the middle ground, something they confirmed on a gray Thanksgiving Day with a comeback 27-17 victory over the Washington Redskins.

Dallas dominated down the stretch, coming from 7 points behind midway through the third quarter by scoring on three straight possessions and gaining 205 yards during those three drives.

''The Cowboys are coming on by leaps and bounds,'' said Washington Coach Joe Gibbs. ''Their quarterback is playing great. Their running back is playing great. They are starting to get people in the right place who can help them and they have done a really great job.''

Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman directed the three critical drives and rookie running back Emmitt Smith put the game away with a 48-yard touchdown run with 3:10 remaining. Smith gained 132 yards on 23 carries and Aikman completed 222 yards worth of passes.

''I needed to play hard and well today,'' Aikman said. ''I really needed to do something to prove to my teammates what I could do. We all had a lot to prove and we started on the road to doing that today.

''We wanted to win this game badly. We wanted to play well and prove we are a good team to a lot of people.''

The victory broke a four-year losing streak for the Cowboys on Thanksgiving Day. Dallas' last triumph on the holiday came in 1985 when the Cowboys beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 35-17.

The Cowboys let an early 10-0 lead melt away and the Redskins took a 17-10 advantage midway through the third period.

Dallas then drove to three straight scores - those coming on a 1-yard touchdown run by Smith with 2:27 left in the third quarter that tied the game, a 41-yard field goal by Ken Willis that put the Cowboys in front and Smith's 48-yard scoring run in which he outfaked the much faster Darrell Green to produce the longest touchdown of his rookie year. Smith finished with 130 yards on 23 carries.

The win gave Dallas its first back-to-back triumphs since Jimmy Johnson took over from Tom Landry last year and boosted the Cowboys to 5-7. Washington dropped into third place in the NFC East, a half game behind the Philadelphia Eagles, with a 6-5 record.

Lions 40 Broncos 17

In Detroit, Barry Sanders rushed for 147 yards and two touchdowns as the Lions dominated Denver 40-17. Denver, the defending AFC champion lost for the fourth straight week and are now 3-8. The Lions improved their record to 4-7.

(NOV. 22) UPI - World-wide reaction to the resignation today of British Prime Minister Thatcher reflected admiration for her determination and achievements tempered by a widespread sentiment that it is time for her to go. President Bush said on his Saudi Arabian visit that Thatcher was an ''outstanding'' prime minister whose advice he valued.

Thatcher announced her resignation one day after telling Parliament that she would ''fight on'' after failing to retain her 15-year hold on the leadership post in the Conservative Party. Her resignation ends 11 and one-half years of her rule over England.

The desert-weary American and British troops who listened to President Bush in Saudi Arabia today said they did NOT hear anything new but the Thanksgiving Day visit did boost their morale. Some, however, said they were disappointed that Bush did NOT give Saddam Hussein a deadline to get out of Kuwait and end the long wait in the sands of Saudi Arabia.

Also in the Persian Gulf region, U-S Secretary of State Baker flew to Yemen, one of the few Arab states to support Iraq in the confrontation over Kuwait. And Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz became the first Iraqi official to visit a Persian Gulf state since the invasion of Kuwait on August 2nd.

The new interim president of Liberia is in the capital of Monrovia... in the few square miles of the city controlled by his government. President Amos Sawyer was flown into Monrovia aboard a Nigerian helicopter of a five-nation African peace-keeping force in the capital. Rebel leader Charles Taylor's forces control about 80 percent of the country.

Major General Bantu Holomisa says his troops in the nominally independent South African homeland of Transkei crushed a coup attempt this morning. Holomisa says heavy fighting left the rebel leader and at least 15 others dead.

Armed forces spokesman in El Salvador report that rebel mortar rounds hit two major military bases in the third day of the latest anti- government offensive. They say the new round of rebel attacks have left at least 84 people dead and 155 wounded.

President Bush dinned and turkey and all the trimmings with American troops in Saudi Arabia today, delivering three speeches to U-S and British forces in Operation Desert Shield. Bush told the soldiers that they will remain on duty in the Saudi desert until Iraq pulls out of Kuwait.

Britain announced today that another 14-thousand troops are being dispatched to the Persian Gulf... doubling the English presence in the region.

Secretary of State Baker is in Yemen, apparently to discuss the Gulf crisis with representatives of the nation that is about to take over the chairmanship of the U-N Security Council. The United States is expected to ask the Council soon for a resolution authorizing the use of force against Iraq.

British Prime Minister Thatcher is leaving office. She resigned today, saying she feels the move was the best thing to do to unify her ruling Conservative Party so it can get ready for a victory in the next general election.

World-wide reaction to Thatcher's resignation generally agreed on her stunning achievements and fierce determination, but also with the belief that is time for her to step down.

Officials of the four Smith's Food and Drug company outlets in Tucson, Arizona say about two-thousand customers returned their Thanksgiving turkeys last night and today. The firm said anyone wishing to bring back the birds could get a refund after an anonymous telephone threat that turkeys in the stores had been injected with poison. There was NO evidence that any of the turkeys were contaminated.

President and Mrs. Bush spent their Thansgiving holiday with American troops in Saudi Arabia, where the chief executive told the soldiers that they will remain in the desert until Iraq withdraws from Kuwait.

First lady Barbara Bush had many soldiers straining to see her in khaki slacks a tan T-shirt and a desert camouflage jacket today. Working the troops like a practiced politician, Mrs. Bush posed for photos with soldiers... at one point telling Kelly Fischer of El Paso, Texas, to take off her glasses for their shot.

President Bush delivered three speeches to troops in Operation Desert Shield today, warning them that each passing day brings Iraq closer to having nuclear weapons.

Secretary of State Baker went to Yemen for talks with officials of one of the few Arab states to support Iraq in the confrontation over Kuwait.

British Prime Minister Thatcher announced her resignation today, then launched into a spirited defense of her Conservative government when the opposition Labor Party proposed a NO-confidence vote in Parliament.

(NOV. 22) UPI - President Bush says that on a personal level, he will miss the advice and counsel of British Prime Minister Thatcher, who resigned today, ending 11 and one-half years of service at Number 10 Downing Street.

Thatcher announced her resignation this morning to her Cabinet and Queen Elizabeth, saying she was leaving for the good of the Conservative Party and the nation.

It was turkey and all the trimmings today for American troops in Operation Desert Shield in Saudi Arabia. And for a hand-picked group of soldiers chosen because of their good behavior, it was a holiday dinner with President and Mrs. Bush.

The chief executive made three speeches in Saudi Arabia today, telling troops that they would remain on desert duty until Saddam Hussein ends his occupation of Kuwait.

Bush and his wife flew from Saudi Arabia to Cairo, Egypt, aboard Air Force One. The president has talks scheduled tomorrow and Saturday with Egyptian

The Polish media leaped into the presidential campaign today with an explosive attack on dark-horse candidate Stanislaw Tyminski. The reports suggested that he dodged military service because of mental disorders and has links with terrorists in Libya. An official in the Tyminski campaign called the reports ''nonsense.''

The military went to great pains to prepare Thanksgiving dinners with turkey and all the trimmings today, but Airman Corey Carter of Cleveland, Ohio, pretty much summed things up for all the soldiers. In his words- ''It's NOT like momma used to make.''

NOT everyone is eating turkey with their families this holiday. Hundreds of Americans are trying to make the day a little brighter for the sick, poor and homeless. In Chicago, 85 volunteers served turkey to about one-thousand people at the Salvation Army. In the words of one volunteer- ''I enjoy the thought of being able to give to others that are less fortunate than myself.''

The holiday brought alarm to four stores and their customers in Tucson, Arizona. Smith's Food and Drug Company pulled turkeys from the meat cases at its stores last night after an anonmous telephone call to a television station. The chain also offered refunds or exchanges to customers who'd bought turkeys, prompting two-thousand cutomers to return their gobblers.

SACRAMENTO (NOV. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Bank of America will open its new Promenade branch in the Promenade shopping center at 7467 Rush River Drive at 9 a.m. next Monday, Nov. 26.

The branch will serve the Greenhaven/Pocket residential area and is BofA's second new branch in the greater Sacramento area this year. ''Our new Promenade branch is squarely in the path of residential growth in the Sacramento metropolitan area today, and conveniently offers the full range of banking products and services the Greenhaven/Pocket area needs,'' said Clyde Von Essen, senior vice president and manager of the bank's Sacramento District.

Located at the corner of Windbridge and Rush River Drive, the 4000-square-foot facility features new design concepts that will enhance customer service and make using the branch significantly easier for both consumer and business clients, Von Essen said.

Just inside the main entrance of the branch, a BofA financial services specialist will be stationed at a client assistance desk to provide general information about bank services or to direct clients to the appropriate individual in the branch who can assist them.

In addition, the interior of the branch can be easily adjusted to meet changing consumer needs. The key areas of the branch, including the teller line and the platform area where branch clients conduct business with financial services officers, are modular in structure and can be easily modified and redesigned.

The teller counter is a good example of modular engineering, according to Von Essen. The overall shape of the counter can be changed, or it can be lengthened or shortened, without tearing up floors or walls.

The branch also features the latest in convenience banking services. A VERSATELLER automated teller machine is located outside the branch, and a telephone in the lobby allows customers to speak directly with BofA customer service units.

The new branch's business clients will be served by a special merchant teller area and by an external night depository unit. The general contractor for the branch was PC/M Group of Sacramento. The architect for the interior was Interior Architects of San Francisco, and, for the exterior, Cabak Randall Jasper Griffiths Associates of Menlo Park.

The fist branch Bank of America opened in the greater Sacramento area this year was its new Roseville Main Office at 2221 Douglas Boulevard. That facility, which opened June 25, was designed to serve the rapidly growing commercial and residential area east of Interstate 80 in that community.

SALT LAKE CITY (NOV. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Alta Gold Co. (NASDAQ:ALTA), the Salt Lake City based diversified metals mining company, continued to show steady progress through the nine month period ended Sept. 30.

The company reported revenues increased $5,886,000 over the comparable period a year ago, from $28,676,000 in 1989 to this year's $34,562,000. Revenues for the period included $27,675,000 from sales of precious metals, $6,158,000 from base metals sales, $527,000 from management fees and $202,000 for sales of sodium cyanide from the recently completed Cyanco manufacturing facility in which Alta Gold holds a 33.3 percent interest.

Gold production for the nine months was reported at 64,723 ounces, which reflects the company's percentage share of total production under its joint ventures.

Alta Gold also began producing base metals at full production from its Ward underground mine and Taylor processing mill in April, and through Sept. 30 had produced 9,918,000 pounds of zinc, along with 50,200 ounces of by-product silver, 411,900 pounds of lead and 43,400 pounds of cadmium. From the Cyanco plant, the company's shares of sodium cyanide production was 307,400 pounds.

Difficulties in the start-up of operations during the first quarter, inflationary factors related to such items as the purchase prices of cyanide and diesel fuels and environmental control costs contributed to the average cash production cost for gold operations of $314 per ounce during the nine months, and resulted in a loss from operations of $2,803,000 or 10.8 cents per share, compared to a loss of $1,729,000 or 6.5 cents during the same period a year ago.

However, various cost-cutting measures instituted by the company reduced cash costs to $266 per ounce in the third quarter.

Revenues for the third quarter ended Sept. 30 increased by $2,498,000 over the comparable period of a year ago, from $10,901,000 in 1989 to $13,399,000 this year.

However, for the same reasons experienced during the nine-month period, the company showed a third quarter loss of $369,000 or one cent per share, compared to last year's third quarter loss of $1,266,000, or five cents per share.

For the first quarter, Alta Gold had a per-share loss of six cents, and for the second quarter the company improved to a 3-cent-per-share loss.

Alta Gold also received the results of an updated reserve study for the shallow gold reserves on the Robinson Mine near Ely, Nev. The study shows a reduction in the economic reserves at the mine due to higher operating costs and lower recoveries.

The study showed a total of 410,049 contained ounces in the seven deposits analyzed, a reduction of 103,051 contained ounces from the 1989 study, after giving effect to adjustments in ore inventory and production.

The 1989 study showed 615,000 contained ounces for the same seven deposits. Total production of 102,000 ounces was achieved from these deposits after the 1989 study and prior to the 1990 study.

Ten deposits were not analyzed in the 1990 study primarily due to the economic impact of the lower than anticipated recoveries experienced during 1990.

These deposits represented 286,700 contained ounces in the 1989 study. The company is currently reevaluating the resources and metallurgical characterization of these ten deposits.

The company also recently announced the intention of Magma Copper Co. to purchase jointly with Alta Gold the Robinson Mining District from Kennecott Corp. Such a purchase would make available to Alta Gold and Magma Copper Co. the deeper copper-gold deposits contained on the property.

Preliminary data from an extensive feasibility study indicates a reserve of about 200 million tons of copper-gold ore, from which 2.2 billion pounds of copper and 1.2 million ounces of gold could be produced.

FRANKFURT, West Germany (NOV. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - On Friday the DTB (Deutsche Terminboerse) began trading bund- and dax-futures.

It is the first time financial futures have ever been traded on an exchange in the Federal Republic. The DTB, a fully electronic exchange, had already introduced supraregional options trading on January 26, 1990. In the meantime 65 national and international financial institutions registered in Germany are now linked to the system. According to the DTB Chairman Dr. Rolf-E. Breuer, the introduction of bund- and dax- futures closes a gap in services, making Germany more competitive on the whole as a financial marketplace.

Breuer emphasized that in times of increasing globalisation of the markets financial management in trade and industry has to meet related fluctuations in the interest and stock markets with an active strategy.

With the bund- and dax-futures, these groups now have instruments with which to protect themselves against fluctuations of this kind or to participate in these movements. ''If a financial manager does not weigh the possibilities of employing bund-futures, for example, in his risk management today, then no later than 1993, when the single european market gets underway, he will be up against competitors who have been making active use of these instruments for quite some time,'' Breuer pointed out.

Breuer says that failure to consider these new opportunities can be a considerable disadvantage in a competitive market. DTB's Chief Executive Officer, Dr. Joerg Franke, referred to the existing competitive situation between the London Futures Exchange Liffe and the Frankfurt-based DTB: ''For the first time a derivative product, namely the bund-futures contract, is being traded in one and the same time zone, both on a trading floor and at a fully computerized exchange.''

Franke is certain that the future course of development in the financial markets will also essentially depend on how the DTB - as a fully computerized exchange with integrated clearing - measures up to the Liffe. DTB's managing director, Friedrich W. Wahl, underscored the fact that the DTB has a number of important advantages in its favour - a higher degree of market transparency a wide variety of analysis capabilities and efficient monitoring and supervision of the market.

As Wahl sees it, the EDP Syspi has passed the test: ''The DTB has already shown that the system can handle even high turnovers of more than 54,000 options contracts traded.''

Trading in financial futures at the exchange began according to plan. Pre-trading opened at 7:30 a.m. Trading in the bund futures contract then opened at 8:00 a.m. and in the dax-futures at 10:30 a.m.

By 11:20 a.m. 2,094 contracts had already been traded in the bund- and 508 contracts in the dax-futures.

BALTIMORE (NOV. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Allied Research Corp., (NASDAQ:ARAI) reported sales of $7.1 million for three months ended Sept. 30, compared with sales of $8.1 million for the same period in 1989.

The company reported an after-tax loss of $2.3 million or 56 cents a common share, compared with a loss of $1.6 million or 40 cents a common share for the 1989 period.

Sales for the nine months ended Sept. 30 were $27.9 million, compared with sales of $32.2 million for the same period in 1989. The company lost $4.8 million or $1.20 a common share in the first nine months, compared with a loss of $4.2 million or $1.03 a common share for the same period in 1989.

Reinald W. Carter, president and chief executive officer, said the results were in line with previous company predictions.

Reduced production levels during the quarter resulted in insufficient direct labor costs to offset indirect and fixed costs. In addition, the firm's Belgian unit, Mecar S.A., was closed during the month of July for its annual vacation period.

Current backlog is $71 million, up from $27 million on June 30, with additional orders currently in negotiation.

Carter said operations are expected to turn profitable in 1991 as production work begins on the company's large order backlog. Allied Research Corp. designs, develops and produces high technology products and weapons systems for conventional defense needs.

HANOVER, WEST GERMANY (NOV. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - The following is a statement from Continental AG:

The Executive Board of Continental AG met with the company's Supervisory Board in Hanover on Nov. 21, 1990. The purpose of the meeting was to review and assess Continental's strategic position in the light of the outlook for the tire industry and also the approach made to Continental by Pirelli.

The Supervisory Board fully concurred with the Executive Board's view, reached after a thorough examination of Continental's position, that Continental is well placed to weather the current difficult conditions which tire manufacturers are experiencing and to prosper on its own as an independent company. In this regard, the substantial capital investment program carried out by Continental in the last few years is important as is the strength of Continental's balance sheet.

As to Continental's financial outlook, the Executive Board has already stated in its letter to shareholders of November 19, 1990 that the corporation expects to show a profit for the year to December 31, 1990, whereas some of Continental's major competitors have forecast substantial losses for the same period. The Executive Board also expects that the corporation will continue to show profits in the coming years. The corporation has adequate financial resources for its development plans.

Generally, as far as a combination of the tire activities of Pirelli and Continental is concerned, the view of the Executive Board, which is shared by the Supervisory Board, is that it would certainly involve significant risks in the short and medium term but would possibly bring some advantages in the long term, and that while there would be some synergies they would be substantially lower than Pirelli has claimed. As part of the process of considering whether such a combination could have merit, Continental would have liked to discuss with Pirelli the question of the extent of strategic and synergistic benefits which might flow from a combination because there is a significant difference of view between the parties as to the likely level of such benefits.

Continental, proposes that financial advisors of Continental and Pirelli should meet to discuss the relative value of these businesses drawing on publicly available information. Dr. Dieter von Herz Corporate Public Relations Hanover, Nov. 22, 1990

NEW YORK (NOV. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Vestex Inc. (traded over the counter) announced Friday that on Nov. 21, 1990 it consummated the exchange offer with the shareholders of Nuvision Entertainment Inc. (''Nuvision'') resulting in Nuvision becoming a wholly owned subsidiary of Vestex.

Nuvision was founded earlier this year to develop and market interactive entertainment products and videogame software primarily for use with ''Sega Genesis,'' a new generation 16-bit videogame system from Sega Enterprises Ltd. a Japanese-based manufacturer and world leader in the high technology arcade game business and videogame market.

The unique advantage of 16-bit videogame systems is that they provide highly realistic gameplay with greatly improved graphics, sound and action over the popular 8-bit system now marketed by several companies.

The 16-bit videogame systems are expected to rapidly gain a foothold in the worldwide marketplace. In Japan, they now account for more than 35 percent of new game systems and game software sales.

Nuvision's initial strategy is to create and mass market unique and proprietary games that utilize the strengths of the more powerful ''Sega Genesis System.'' Nuvision is curently developing six videogames for the ''Sega Genesis System.'' Nuvision's first two games, Bimini Run and Beanball Benny are scheduled for introduction in early 1991 and have already generated orders aggregating $1 million from retailers including Toys R Us, KayBee Toys, Babbages and Electronic Boutique. In addition, a Japanese company has expressed an interest in acquiring the distribution rights for Bimini run in Japan.

Recent projections for the U.S. videogame market are estimated to top $4 billion in 1990, up from $3.4 billion in 1989.

Nuvision is also completing the development of baseball and football electronic table top games that are intended to appeal to the ''upscale'' adult game market.

SEOUL (NOV. 23) - South Korea is troubled by a mounting stockpile of surplus rice from a succession of bumper crops, and must now try to get rid of it.

Government warehouses across the country, already bulging with two million metric tons of rice, are now faced with an extra million tons of surplus from this year's harvest, which the government is beginning to buy up.

And this year's harvest was just average, estimated at around 5.56 million tons.

According to the South Korean Agriculture Ministry, the government's stockpile averaged about one to 1.4 million tons per year until 1989, when the figure started to rise.

The government has to spend a whopping 400 billion won (555.5 million dollars) to store the rice in warehouses, in addition to money already spent on subsidizing rice.

South Korea cannot export its rice because the price is three times higher than the international market price due to government subsidies - and Korean rice, more glutinous than Southeast Asian rice, is generally liked only by Koreans and Japanese.

The costly stockpile of the staple began increasing as affluent South Koreans started eating less rice and more meat.

Official statistics showed that an average South Korean consumed 126 kilograms (277 pounds) of rice and 15.7 kilos (35.5 pounds) of meat per year three years ago.

This year, the figures are estimated at 120 kilos (264 pounds) of rice and 20 kilos (44 pounds) of meat.

South Koreans considered it a luxury as recently as the 1960s to have three bowls of white polished rice a day. Many farmers literally starved in the spring before the crop was harvested.

The government has encouraged rice consumption by allowing breweries to make rice wine - strictly banned during past rice-short years - while confectionaries have started making rice cakes and instant rice noodles.

But the plan has failed to make a dent in the rising stockpile.

WELLINGTON (NOV. 23) - Japan Golf Systems on Friday won New Zealand government approval to buy one of the country's top golf courses provided it ensures half the players using it are New Zealanders.

In October, outgoing Labour Party lands minister Peter Tapsell vetoed the company's attempt to buy the 146-hectare (360-acre) golf course at Wairakei, 400 kilometres (250 miles) north of here, from the U.S.-owned South Pacific Hotels Ltd. for an undisclosed price.

New Lands Minister Rob Storey said in a press statement that he had given the company approval under four conditions which, he said, it had agreed to in a contract.

Japan Golf Systems agreed that at least 50 percent of players using the course would be New Zealanders, and that the company would "use its best endeavours" to ensure the course was used for international tournaments.

It also said it would ensure the creation of employment opportunities for the local work force, and that developments costing at least five million New Zealand dollars (three million U.S.) would be undertaken in line with a timetable to be provided by the lands ministry.

"New Zealand will benefit in a number of ways from this sale, including additional tourist revenue, an enhanced perception of New Zealand as a high quality destination for Japanese business tourists, and international television coverage from the improved standard which the new purchaser will provide," Mr. Storey said.

He said the 50 percent kiwi players condition had been included because of fears that the course could be swamped by tourists.

The company would not be strictly bound by the rule, but it had agreed to do the best it could to meet it.

When Mr. Tapsell blocked the sale saying it was not in New Zealand's best interests, Mr. Storey's party accused Labour of discriminating against Japanese ownership.

Wairakei and its associated hotel were, until early this year, part of the government-owned Tourist Hotel Corp. which the government sold off.

OSAKA, Japan (NOV. 23) - The March 1993 target date for inaugurating Kansai International Airport will be delayed to September 1994 because of unexpected subsiding of ground on an artificial island in Osaka Bay, sponsors said Friday.

The postponement was decided at a meeting Monday here attended by the sponsors of the ambitious project - Kansai International Airport Co.(KIAC), the Osaka prefectural government, the Kansai Economic Federation and Osaka Chamberof Commer Industry, they said.

KIAC President Yoshio Takeuchi told Japanese reporters that the opening will be delayed by 18 months because of additional work needed to correct subsiding ground and for adjustments to the air traffic control system.

He also said costs for expanding the airport's passenger terminal from its original size have boosted total cost from 1.067 trillion yen (8.2 billion dollars) to 1.5 trillion yen (11.5 billion dollars).

Engineers involved in the project earlier said the man-made island four kilometers (2.4 miles) of southern Osaka is sinking under its own weight at a rate faster than expected.

The new international airport will be Japan's first 24-hour airport.

Meanwhile, Hiroshima Airport Building Co. said it has selected a Japan-U.S. consortium from among four bidders to design terminal buildings at a new Hiroshima International Airport.

The successul bidder is a joint venture betwen two Japanese firms and Austin Co. of the United States.

Construction work is to start in April 1992, with the new airport scheduled to open in December 1993, it said.

TAIPEI (NOV. 23) - Taiwan Friday scrapped reserve requirements on foreign currency deposits in a bid to keep the local unit down and curb the inflow of speculative money from abroad, central bank officials said.

Central Bank of China officials said the move was aimed at heading off a rise in the local dollar which has firmed on Taiwan's strong export performance and pressure from the United States, one of the island's major trade partners.

Banks were ordered June 23 to hold reserves of 29 percent on demand deposits and of 13 percent on time deposits in foreign currencies to curb a capital outflow, spurred by speculation in the U.S. dollar, the officials said.

Official figures put Taiwan's capital outflow at a record 1.66 billion U.S. dollars in the first eight months of the year, levelling off from July.

The Taiwan dollar averaged 26.5 against the greenback earlier this year, then fell to 27.5 in June. The currency firmed at the end of September to 27.3 to the U.S. dollar and Thursday closed at 27.18.

Washington hinted last week it would like to see the Taiwan dollar rise further to cut a trade surplus with the United States running at 7.8 billion dollars in the first 10 months of this year.

Taiwan had a surplus of 12 billion dollars last year on trade with the United States worth 36 billion dollars.

Reserve requirements are one of tools used by governments to control the money supply.

KAMPALA (NOV. 23) - Uganda has appealed for food aid for 185,000 people facing famine caused by civil war and drought in the north-east of the country.

Third Deputy Prime Minister Abubakar Mayanja urged representatives of relief agencies on Thursday to help get food to the war-ravaged north-eastern districts of Kumi and Soroti.

Kumi District Administrator Mathias Akabwai, who attended the meeting with the relief officials, appealed for nearly 11,000 tons of food over the next six months to feed 135,000 people on the verge of starvation in his district.

Deputy Relief and Rehabilitation Minister Deogratias Rwabita, who is coordinating relief efforts in the north-east, said another 50,000 people faced starvation in Soroti.

Many of the famine victims are people who have spent most of this year in camps set up to accommodate the local population while government troops hunted down rebels of the Ugandan People's Army (UPA), Akabwai said.

The four-year rebellion seems to be on its last legs, as hundreds of UPA fighters have surrendered after the army launched a drive to flush them out. The UPA has been fighting government forces since President Yoweri Museveni seized power in 1986 after a five-year guerrilla war.

To give the army a free hand, many civilians were housed in a dozen temporary camps opened in February. But now they are returning home to find their fields bare, as they were unable to plant crops.

Parts of the area have also been hit by drought, Akabwai said, while many cattle-keepers have lost their livestock to thieves who took advantage of the war to round up cattle and sell them in other parts of the country.

KUALA LUMPUR (NOV. 23) - Bank Negara, Malaysia's central bank, said Friday that it has acquired more than 88 million shares in the newly-listed Syarikat Telekoms Malaysia (Telekoms) from a finance ministry agency.

The central bank said that 88.249 million Telekoms shares issued to Ministry of Finance Inc. were taken up by Bank Negara but did not say how much it paid for the block.

The shares represented 4.5 percent of Telekoms' entire equity of 1.97 billion shares. The company made a public offer of 470.5 million shares priced at five dollars (1.85 U.S. dollars) a piece earlier this month.

The Bank Negara stake is part of 152.1 million shares set aside for approved institutions in compliance with requirements for public share issues.

"They are just parking it with Bank Negara so that the supply of shares will be less and price will go up," an investment analyst said.

Telekoms, the biggest privatised utility company to be listed on the Kuala Lumpur Stock Exchange (KLSE), made its debut at a price of 6.15 dollars (2.28 U.S.). The shares closed at 6.90 dollars (2.55 U.S.) Friday.

The finance ministry has said it intended placing out some shares with foreign investors at a price no lower than the issue price.

Bank Negara has also acquired from the finance ministry significant blocks in Malaysia Airlines and Malaysian International International Shipping Corp, which were privatised in recent years.

HONG KONG (NOV. 23) - Hong Kong is bracing for a lower economic growth and a higher inflation rate in 1990, the government said Friday.

A weak economic showing in the first three quarters of the year coupled with an oil price hike caused by the Gulf crisis has led the government to trim its forecast of gross domestic product (GDP) growth rate for the year to 2.3 percent, from an original three per cent.

The British colony's inflation would in turn rise to 9.7 percent against an earlier estimate of 8.5 percent, the government said in its latest economic report.

The new forecasts came amid a still-tight labour market here, with unemployment running at 1.7 percent of a total workforce of 2.8 million.

Inflation logged an average of 9.4 percent between January and September, with most economists expecting the annual average to run into double-digits.

On the trade front, while the Gulf scenario has brought weaker economic showings in the colony's major markets, the government was hopeful for positive developments elsewhere.

"The re-unification of Germany, the expansion in outward processing trade (to China) and the reflationary measures in China" should benefit Hong Kong's domestic exports to the two countries, the report said.

Hong Kong's export-led economy suffered a trade deficit of 1.6 billion Hong Kong dollars (200 million U.S.) in the first three quarters, with demand for made-in-Hong Kong goods staying sluggish from key buyers, especially the United States.

During the period the value of locally made exports was down 1.4 percent year-on-year to 161.6 billion dollars (20.7 billion U.S.) while reports, mostly goods originated from or re-destined to China, gained 15 percent to 293 billion (37.6 billion U.S.)

Imports meanwhile grew 8.5 percent to nearly 456 billion dollars (58.5 billion U.S.)

DHAKA (NOV. 23) - Political unrest in Bangladesh dampened the Chittagong tea market and despite active foreign interest prices remained low, the BSS news agency reported here Friday.

Only good brokens were in strong demand with several varities selling between 58.50 taka (1.62 dollars) and 59.60 taka (1.66 dollars) per kilogram.

JOHANNESBURG (NOV. 23) - Lebowa platinum mine has dismissed some 1,200 miners after repeated work stoppages, mine owners Johannesburg Consolidated Investments announced here Thursday.

The mine, in the northern self-governing Lebowa homeland, laid off 90 percent of its workforce in May after an illegal strike but reinstated the 1,500 workers later in May after pressure from the National Union of Mineworkers (NUM).

JCI said despite and agreement with NUM that no illegal industrial action will take place, further incidents of stayaways and illegal work stoppages had taken place in October and November.

Nearly a hundred workers were dismissed Tuesday after they walked off work and ultimatums were issued to the remainder of underground workers who had stopped working demanding the reinstatement of the dismissed workers.

On Thursday, they were also dismissed, JCI said.

NUM Press Officer Jerry Majatladi said Thursday the dismissal of the workers was indicative of JCI's "poor attitude towards industrial relations issues".

Mr. Majatladi added that the union was waiting for a response from JCI management on proposals it had made Thursday regarding negotiations for the workers' reinstatement.

SEOUL (NOV. 23) - South Korea will ask a reluctant Japan to establish a joint committee on technology transfer when economic and foreign ministers of the two countries meet here next week, officials said here Friday.

Japanese officials were, however, pessimistic about a breakthrough during the ministerial talks Monday and Tuesday.

A committee to pass high Japanese techonoly to South Korea through joint ventures and research, raised by President Roh Tae-Woo when he visited Tokyo in May, has been a cause of friction between the two neighbors.

An official of South Korea's Economic Planning Board said the two sides had negotiated for the past five months without a solution and that Seoul would use the opportunity of the ministers' meeting to again press Tokyo.

The ministers of foreign affairs, justice, finance, agriculture, trade, transportation and science and technology of the two countries are to meet here for their 15th such conference - which will also be the first in 15 years.

"We'll raise the issue. It's very important to our position as we're very interested in technology transfer, but we don't know how Japan will answer," said the South Korean official.

A Japanese diplomat said he doubted that the two sides could narrow their differences next week, repeating Japan's position that government action was limited because the technologies Seoul sought were in the private sector.

"It will be difficult, frankly speaking. I'm not optimistic," he said.

The South Korean official said Seoul and Tokyo would also discuss "changes in the world economic situation" such as current world trade talks, economic reforms in Eastern Europe and the integration of the European Economic Community.

SEOUL (NOV. 23) - The Soviet Union and South Korea initialled a double taxation avoidance agreement here Friday, allowing each other's firms equal treatment, officials said.

The agreement and five other economic accords will be formally signed when President Roh Tae-Woo visits Moscow next month and meets with his Soviet counterpart Mikhail Gorbachev, they said.

The 28-article agreement was initialed by Soviet Vice Finance Minister Vladimir Rodyushkin and Kim Yong-Jin, director of the Finance Ministry here, they said.

The agreement calls for, among others, the exemption of taxes by the Soviet Union on the earnings of South Korean firms involved in air and shipping services as well as on interest on loans to the Soviet Union.

The five other agreements cover trade, investment guarantees, aviation, fisheries, and science and technology.

Meanwhile, a senior Soviet official said that South Korea would provide the Soviet Union with consumer goods in soft loans.

Vadim Medvedev said at a press conference before his departure for home after an eight-day visit that details for the agreements had already been discussed during his week-long visit here with the Trade and Industry Ministry.

South Korea and the Soviet Union set up ties in September, ending four decades of Cold War freeze.

Manama (NOV. 23) - Bahrain and the United States are planning to set up a joint trade council aimed at encouraging investment on the island, it was reported here Friday.

The Manama-based Gulf News Agency said the Bahraini authorities have agreed to the establishment of a trade council comprising people from the private sector in Bahrain and the United States.

Youssef Ahmed al-Shirawi, the Bahraini Minister of Industry and Development, had proposed the formation of such a council to include members who can invite investors in the field of industry, it said.

The proposed council, to be based in Bahrain, is expected to have a membership of 10 on both sides.

Contacts are already underway to outline the council's by-laws and the Bahraini Ministry of Industry and Development would give it advice and guidance, the agency said.

Meanwhile, the Bahrain Monetary Agency (Bma) had issued a licence recently to the Kuwait Investment Company allowing the company to work in Bahrain

FREETOWN (NOV. 23) - Sierra Leone President Joseph Momoh will leave here Sunday for the Malian capital, Bamako where he will attend a special summit of the 16-nation Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) on Liberia's civil war, diplomatic sources said here Friday.

The summit, which is scheduled to get underway Tuesday, will also be attended by Amos Sawyer, who was inaugurated as Liberia's interim president Thursday in Monrovia, and rebel leader Charles Taylor.

A.K. Turay, minister of state for presidential affairs, said Sierra Leone will attend the summit "with an open mind and the resolve that Charles Taylor must be part of the solution if peace is to be meaningful and effective."

He added that his government would continue to back the role of a West African intervention force, known as ECOMOG, which was sent into Liberia by ECOWAS in August to impose a ceasefire after eight months of bloody civil war.

The force comprises more than 6,000 troops from Nigeria, Ghana, Sierra Leone, Guinea and the Gambia.

WIESBADEN, GERMANY (NOV. 23) - German police have seized nearly ten tons of illegal drugs worth about half-a-billion marks (340 million dollars) on the open market, it was announced here.

The haul was part of an international drive against a Colombian drug cartel, said the president of the Federal Criminal Police Office, Hans-Ludwig Zachert.

His men had seized a ton of cocaine and about 8.5 tons of marijuana, their biggest haul ever.

The international operation had smashed a drug ring of the Colombian ''Kali cartel'', with 15 persons from ten countries being arrested. In addition, 1.2 million marks in cash had been confiscated.

The particlarly high-grade cocaine would have been enough to supply some 20,000 addicts for one year. The 8.5 tons of marijuana was about half the total annual consumption in the Federal Republic.

Last month German police seized about a ton of cocaine worth around 200 million marks, up to then their biggest success against drug trafficking in Germany. Seven suspected members of the Colombian Medellin cartel were arrested.

The latest haul was tracked during 13 months of investigations from Colombia to the port of Bremen, to where it had been brought in containers and then taken to other parts of the country. Several Italians and a Frenchman had been arrested in Duesseldorf.

LONDON (NOV. 23) - The United Nations Security Council is likely to meet next week to debate a resolution permitting the use of military force to counter the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said here Friday.

"Soon, probably next week, the Security Council will consider a draft resolution authorising member states to use force to bring about the reversal of the Iraqi aggression," Mr. Hurd said.

"The Gulf crisis, overshadowing everything else, is moving into its critical phase," stated a prepared transcript of Mr. Hurd's remarks at a news conference.

The U.N. resolution would not necessarily signal the imminent outbreak of war in the Gulf, Mr. Hurd told reporters, adding: "What I hope it will be is the latest of the peaceful pressures on Saddam Hussein to get him to withdraw."

The meeting, which would come after the Soviet Union earlier this week softened its resistance to a U.N. resolution on the use of force, "must be considered a possibility," a foreign office spokesman said.

Mr. Hurd, at a news conference launching his campaign to succeed Margaret Thatcher as British prime minister, said events in the coming weeks would require "cool, authoritative and resolute handling."

In the weeks immediately following the August 2 Iraqi invasion, Mr. Hurd emerged as Britain's main spokesman on the policy aimed at reversing the aggression.

ABIDJAN (NOV. 23) - Faced with its first multiparty legislative elections Sunday, Ivory Coast's ruling Democratic Party (PDCI) hopes to keep a majority in parliament against young opposition leaders hungry for revenge after losing the presidential polls last month.

Although no public opinion polls have been carried out, the ruling party of newly-reelected President Felix Houphouet-Boigny is favored to win the bulk of the 175 seats.

Observers will be closely watching how the opposition fares in Sunday's polls.

Many candidates are hoping to make their official political debut by claiming a seat in parliament, which could change its complexion considerably if many opposition members beat out ruling party hopefuls.

Analysts are also waiting to see how many of the ruling party's "old guard," in office since the West African country won independence from France in 1960, will be replaced by "reformist" candidates seeking political change to preserve the party's domination in the face of the party pluralism.

Sources close to the government say Mr. Houphouet-Boigny, 85, will leave office within a year's time. He was re-elected October 28 for his seventh five-year term, which he has promised will be his "last."

The constitution was amended last month to allow the parliament speaker who is elected Sunday to step in and complete the president's term if he dies, resigns or is unable to fulfil his functions.

The current speaker and heir apparent to Africa's most senior head of state is Henri Konan Bedie, a 56-year-old economist regarded by diplomats as "pro-Western."

Mr. Bedie is running uncontested in his district of Daoukro 242 kilometers (150 miles) north of here after the unexpected withdrawal of Tetchi Kouame of the Ivorian Popular Front (FPI) for unspecified "personal and family reasons."

THE HAGUE (NOV. 23) - Four European nations have abandoned a joint development project for a light attack helicopter, the Dutch secretary of state for defense said Friday.

Berend Jan van Voorst tot Voorst said the Netherlands, Italy, Spain and Britain would not develop the feasibility studies for the helicopter submitted on Dec. 31, 1989.

The light attack helicopter would have competed on military markets with the Franco-German Tigre fighter helicopter which is currently being developed and should be manufactured towards the end of the decade.

Van Voorst said the signature earlier this week of the Conventional Forces in Europe treaty cutting the numbers of conventional weapons meant there was less call for armaments. "The commercial outlets for a helicopter which has not yet been developed are extremely limited," he told the Dutch Chamber of Deputies in a letter.

The Netherlands invested 12.2 million guilders (7.5 million dollars) in the helicopter's feasibility study, he said. The Dutch army does not have specialized fighter helicopters and has postponed a decision to acquire some until a later, unspecified date.

MALE (NOV. 23) - South Asian leaders called here Friday for Iraq's unconditional withdrawal from Kuwait, and appealed for international aid to offset the devastating impact of the Gulf crisis on their economies.

The seven South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation (SAARC) nations also signed an agreement to promote regional cooperation in fighting drug abuse and trafficking, as they concluded a three-day summit in the Maldives capital.

The leaders of Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, the Maldives, Nepal, Pakistan and Sri Lanka called in their closing statement for Iraq to urgently and unconditionally withdraw its troops from Kuwait.

The August 2 invasion, which forced the repatriation of thousands of South Asians employed in Kuwait, has had a devastating effect on the economies of SAARC countries, already among the world's poorest.

The South Asian nations appealed for international assistance to alleviate the double blow of sharply plunging worker remittances and higher oil prices caused by the Gulf crisis.

The convention on cooperation in fighting drug abuse and trafficking was signed earlier Friday by the foreign ministers of the seven states.

Maldives President Maumoon Abdul Gayoom said the convention would be ratified by member countries in time for the next meeting of SAARC Foreign Ministers due in mid-1991.

Under the agreement, member states would improve existing legislation and extend to one another the "widest possible legal assistance" in investigations prosecutions and judicial proceedings connected to drug offences.

The pact also provides for governments to take measures to prevent illicit cultivation of narcotic crops such as poppy, coca and cannabis.

Mr. Gayoom, the current SAARC chairman, and the other leaders pledged to intensify cooperation within the framework of the regional organization.

But delegates said major differences persisted following the summit, mainly over trade.

The smaller member states remain suspicious about India's economically dominant role in the alliance, officials said.

NEW DELHI (NOV. 23) - India and Pakistan have agreed to hold more talks next month in a bid to improve relations that have been severely strained by a secession movement in Indian-held Kashmir, newspapers reported here Friday.

The foreign secretaries of the two countries will meet from December 18 to discuss "confidence-building measures," the dailies quoted Indian Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar as saying in Male late Thursday.

Mr. Shekhar, who went to the Maldives Wednesday to attend a fifth summit of the South Asian Association of Regional Cooperation (SAARC), said he met his Pakistani counterpart Nawaz Sharif, for talks during which they agreed to hold another round of bilateral dialogue.

"My meeting with him (Mr. Sharif) was very cordial, very friendly and I am quite satisfied the way talks were held today (Thursday)," Mr. Shekhar was quoted as saying.

Mr. Shekar, who formed a new government 13 days ago, refused to elaborate on his talks with Mr. Sharif except to say that "Both of us have agreed that we should not have any tension and should take steps to lower tensions in the future."

Mr. Shekhar did not say if the scheduled talks would be held in India or in Pakistan, according to the reports. Indian officials and Pakistani diplomats in New Delhi were not immediately available for comments.

Mr. Sharif met Mr. Shekhar for talks a day before the conclusion of the SAARC summit.

The 63-year-old Indian leader was quoted as saying that he found Mr. Sharif "equally keen on providing momentum to the process of normalisation of relations between the two countries."

JERUSALEM (NOV. 23) - One thousand Ethiopian Jews are expected in Israel by the end of December to join 2,822 others who have arrived this year, the head of the immigration department at the Jewish Agency said Friday.

Uri Gordon said 322 Falashas (Ethiopian Jews) had arrived this month alone, following a decision by the Ethiopian government to lift restrictions on exit permits for its Jewish nationals wishing to emigrate to Israel.

The Jewish Agency is a quasi-governmental organization charged with settling Jewish immigrants in Israel.

In 1984, the Israeli government organized a secret airlift of Falashas, codenamed "Operation Moses" during which 10,000 Ethiopian Jews were taken to refugee camps in Sudan before heading for Israel.

Some 12,500 Ethiopian Jews are currently camped out around the Israeli embassy in Addis Ababa, waiting for their emigration visas to come through.

Israel and Ethiopia renewed their diplomatic ties -- severed in 1973 after the Yom Kippur Arab-Israeli War of that year -- in November 1989.

PARIS (NOV. 23) - Cuban head of state Fidel Castro urged then Soviet leader Nikita Krushchev to carry out a first nuclear strike against the United States during the 1962 Cuba missile crisis, the French newspaper Le Monde reported.

In its issue due for publication Saturday, the paper quoted from an exchange of letters between Krushchev and Castro. It said copies of the letters had been obtained by French author Jean-Edern Hallier.

It quoted from a letter from Castro dated 26 October 1962: ''...the aggression of the imperialists (is becoming) extremely dangerous, and if it extends to such brutal action as an invasion of Cuba, this would be the moment to remove such a danger for ever.''

In his reply of 28 October, Khrushchev warned Castro: ''You understand what that would lead to. It would be no simple strike but the beginning of a thermo-nuclear war. Dear comrade Fidel Castro, I consider your proposal not to be right.''

Le Monde said publication of the letters was ''extremely topical'' in view of the change of balance that had recently taken place between East and West.

They threw light on ''the awkward problem concerning the spread of nuclear weapons beyond the circle of the major powers''.

NAIROBI (NOV. 23) - Tens of thousands of people in Nairobi have been left homeless after city authorities demolished their makeshift shacks in a large-scale slum clearance operation this week.

Many residents of the Kangemi and Kibagare shanty towns a few miles west of the city centre were picking through the debris Friday, trying to salvage their meagre possessions.

An estimated 35,000 people have seen their homes flattened this week, according to local press reports, although there were no exact figures.

Most of the residents of Kibagare, a sprawling shanty town on the outskirts of Nairobi which was demolished Tuesday, have been sleeping on sheets of cardboard or polythene, saying they have nowhere to go.

Barefoot children ran around the vast area where rows of dilapidated wooden huts, roofed with cardboard or at best corrugated iron, had once stood. Some residents said they had lived in the shanty town since 1968.

The muddy ground was littered with broken pieces of wood, jagged scraps of tin plastic sheeting, old paint tins that residents had used to carry water, torn clothes and other debris left in the wake of the bulldozers and demolition teams.

Up to half the Kenyan capital's estimated 1.8 million residents live in shanty towns, jammed in one-room shacks without running water or electricity, according to social workers here.

In recent months the authorities have razed several slum areas and revoked the licenses of shops operating from shacks, sparking anger among residents, though few have dared to speak out openly against the demolitions.

There have been no reports of violence during the demolitions.

In May, however, eight people were killed when Nairobi authorities brutally evicted 2,000 people from the Muoroto slum, according to a prominent Anglican clergyman, Reverend Peter Njenga.

President Daniel arap Moi sacked Agriculture Minister Maina Wanjigi for speaking out against the Muoroto demolition, though the president himself had criticised the security forces' "inhuman approach."

WIESBADEN, GERMANY (NOV. 23) - The flow of manufactured products traded inside Germany is increasing from west to east, with what used to be communist East Germany swamped with western goods, latest statistics show.

Goods worth 2.4 billion marks (1.6 billion dollars) were sent in September from the area formerly known as West Germany to former East Germany and East Berlin, but only 800 million marks-worth (530 million dollars) in the other direction, according to the Federal Statistics Office here Friday.

It said the total flow of goods from west to east had increased 277 percent over September 1989, while the increase from east to west had gone up just 36 percent.

Food and luxury items had seen the biggest increase in west-east flow, going up to 1,524 percent between September 1989 and September 1990 to 651 million marks-worth (430 million dollars). There had been a 246 percent rise in the west-east flow of capital goods to 969 marks-worth (650 million dollars).

COLOMBO (NOV. 23) - Air force helicopters Friday carried out surveillance runs over a northern Sri Lankan district after heavy fighting near an army camp there killed more than 75 people, military officials said.

An official communique here said 75 Tamil guerrillas and four soldiers died in fierce fighting that broke out late Thursday near the Mankulam army camp in Mullaitivu district after rebels tried to storm the garrison.

An army officer said about 200 Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) militants fired mortars, rockets and rocket-propelled grenades into the camp forcing the air force to "hammer them (Tigers) out of sight."

About 100 other Tigers and 30 army soldiers were wounded, an official said, adding that the air force "successfully repulsed the attack."

A LTTE spokesman in London said by telephone he was not aware of an LTTE attack on Mankulam

But he said LTTE fighters had killed about 15 soldiers during a major confrontation Thursday in Kankesanthurai in the northern Jaffna peninsula.

Ten guerrillas including four female cadres, had also died in the fighting, the spokesman added.

BRUSSELS (NOV. 23) - The Belgian arm of a clandestine European network set up during the Cold War to resist a Soviet invasion is to be dismantled, Belgian Prime Minister Wilfried Martens said here Friday.

He said the government would give full cooperation to any parliamentary commissions investigating the network, known as SDRA-8 in Belgium and as Gladio in Italy.

The Belgian government confirmed on November 8 that Belgium not only had its own branch of the European network, which was established in the late 1940's and the 1950's, but also held its current revolving presidency.

Several European countries have already announced the dissolution of their branches of the network, notably France, Luxembourg and Switzerland. On Thursday, the European Parliament demanded the dismantling of all branches.

Mr. Martens said it was too soon to tell if SDRA-8, organised within Belgian military intelligence, had anything to do with terror attacks in the 1980's associated with the Belgian extreme right.

ISLAMABAD (NOV. 23) - At least three people were killed and one seriously wounded Friday in a mujahedeen rocket attack on the Afghan capital Kabul, radio Kabul said.

In a broadcast monitored here, the station said three of the rockets fired from the western side of the capital hit the city's thickly populated residential districts.

The rebel barrage also damaged some property, the radio said without giving details.

The rocketting, after several weeks of lull, followed stepped up guerrilla activity around Kabul last week.

Resistance sources said the latest joint operations by several rebel factions overran about half-a-dozen important security outposts.

The guerrillas entrenched in the western Paghman hills are reportedly planning a comprehensive offensive on Kabul before the Afghan fighting season comes to an end because of bitter winter weather.

BUDAPEST (NOV. 23) - The Hungarian government is to end its monopoly on foreign trade as of January 1, the MTI news agency announced on Friday.

About 12,000 Hungarian companies already have a license allowing them to trade with other countries, against only 360 in 1987.

Imports are also to be liberalized. As of January 1, it will be possible to import about 90 percent of all products without government authorization.

Special approval will still be needed for importing certain foods and pharmaceuticals, telecommunications equipment and some ordinary consumption goods.

Hungarian companies specializing in exports of precious metals, weapons, energy, some farm products and raw materials will still need government approval for such shipments.

JERUSALEM (NOV. 23) - The body of a Palestinian man kidnapped Thursday and beaten to death by masked assailants was found Friday in the occupied West Bank town of Jenin, military sources said.

Police have begun investigating the motives behind the killing of Said Bilawi, 32, a car salesman, the sources said.

Israeli security forces on Wednesday arrested a Palestinian man accused of murdering a 28-year-old Israeli woman who was beheaded and stabbed earlier this month in the Gaza Strip.

Authorities said she was killed while on the way to visit Palestinian friends. They said she was murdered for "personal reasons" but gave no details.

The suspect, Nasser Omar Nenaleh, confessed to the crime. His brother, who apparently supplied the knife used in her stabbing, was also arrested, military sources said.

Jerusalem Police meanwhile authorised Moslems from the occupied territories to attend Friday prayers at the Aqsa and Omar mosques on Haram al-Sharif (Temple Mount) for the first time since October 8.

On that day Israeli security forces shot and killed 18 Palestinians around Temple Mount.

Correspondents said police removed barricades and checkpoints that were placed on roads leading to the city.

Some 8,000 Moslems attended Friday prayers but there were no reports of any incidents, police said.

In another development, police reinforcements were dispatched Friday to Majd el-Shams, a key Druze stronghold in the Israeli-annexed Golan Heights, to prevent an oubreak of violence during burial ceremonies for a Druze man killed Wednesday by Israeli army troops.

Fayez Fahd Mahmoud, 36, was killed when he tried to sneak into Syria.

Israel seized the Golan Heights from Syria in June 1967 and annexed it in 1981.

WARSAW (NOV. 23) - Final opinion polls Friday gave Lech Walesa a clear lead over Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki as campaigning officially ended for Sunday's Polish presidential election.

Walesa had the support of 38 per cent of those polled, Mazowiecki 23 per cent. Should none of the six candidates get an absolute majority, the two best will contest a run-off poll December 9.

Of the other four candidates, Polish-Canadian-Peruvian businessman Stanislav Tyminski got 17 per cent in the opinion poll, while six per cent backed Wlodzimierz Cimoszewiz of the communist party's successor organisation.

Walesa and Mazowiecki, the latter once a Solidarity movement adviser of the former, have gone their separate ways with Walesa pledging sweeping economic and political reform while Mazowiecki favours more moderate change.

Reliable computer predictions of the result are expected by midnight Sunday, with most experts predicting that voting will go into a second-round run-off between Walesa and Mazowiecki.

PARIS (NOV. 23) - French real gross domestic product, excluding the public sector, rose 1.3 percent in the third quarter of the year from the second, following increases of 0.2 percent in the second quarter and 0.8 per cent in the first, the National Statistics and Economic Studies Institute said Friday.

It said that real "acquired growth" for the year, i.e., the increase in GDP excluding the public sector, even if there were no rise in the fourth quarter, now totaled 2.7 percent.

In an economic note issued on November 9, the Institute forecast growth of 2.8 percent for the year.

Output of manufactured goods rose by 1.9 percent in real terms in the third quarter from the second, following a dip of 0.8 percent in the second quarter and a rise of 0.6 percent in the first.

Real household consumption was up by 0.2 percent in the third quarter from the second, against 0.4 percent in the second and 1.4 in the first. The downtrend is due primarily to a decline in the demand for manufactured goods.

Business investment rose by 2.9 percent in the third quarters, after a 0.6 drop in the second and a 3.5 percent rise in the first quarter.

BEIJING (NOV. 23) - China's State Council has appointed new directors for its strategically important Hong Kong, Macau and Taiwan affairs offices, the New China News Agency (NCNA) said Friday.

Lu Ping, the former deputy director of the Hong Kong and Macau Affairs Office, has been appointed director replacing Ji Pengfei, 81, whose resignation from both his post as director of the office and as vice-minister of the State Planning Comission were accepted by the Council, NCNA said.

Observers said Mr. Ji's resignation was probably due to his age. He had headed the Hong Kong and Macau Affairs Office since 1983.

Wang Zhaoguo, the former governor of Fujian province in the southeast, was appointed to head the Taiwan Affairs Office, taking over from Ding Guangen, the agency said, without giving a reason for the dismissal of Mr. Ding, who is also a deputy Politburo member.

He had headed the Taiwan office since August 1988.

The two posts, which carry ministerial rank, are considered strategically important because China wants to speed up the reunification process with Taiwan where the Nationalists formed a government after they fled the mainland following their defeat by the Communists in the civil war in 1949.

The British colony of Hong Kong is due to revert to Chinese sovereignty in 1997, while the Portuguese enclave of Macau will revert two years later.

NCNA also said Li Hou had been relieved as deputy director of the Hong Kong and Macau Affairs Office, but did not elaborate.

BONN (NOV. 23) - German Christian Democrat (Cdu) party secretary-general, Volker Ruehe, called here Friday for clarification of the financial dealings of the former East German Cdu following reports of the disappearance of millions of marks worth of funds.

Former East German state prosecutor, Hans-Juergen Joseph, was quoted Friday as saying that the missing sum could be as high as 156 million marks (105 million dollars).

The East Berlin newspaper Neues Deutschland reported Joseph as saying that on December 7, 1989 he had seen a telex message on the transfer of the money out of the country.

He had removed the document from the East German Cdu headquarters in East Berlin after consulting with the then party chief Lothar de Maiziere and the head of the East German office for national security, Wolfgang Schwanitz.

Joseph told the paper that de Maiziere had asked him to see if the document might be a ''provocation''. He had made a copy of it and handed it to the office of national security. He had no idea what had then happened, Joseph said.

MOSCOW (NOV. 23) - The Soviet parliament adopted a law on Friday entrusting the KGB secret police and the Council of the Federation with supervising the distribution of imported products, particularly food aid.

The Council of the Federation includes leaders of the 15 Soviet republics along with federal representatives.

The Supreme Soviet also asked the Council of Ministers to evaluate the country's food reserves by region before December 1, and set out a distribution plan for these reserves through March 1991.

The legislation stipulates that "the KGB is entrusted with the responsibility of handling the effort against economic sabotage, and in particular of overseeing imported products."

It adds that "distribution of food aid from abroad is placed under the control of the Council of the Federation."

Mr. Gorbachev proposed on Saturday that the Council of the Federation's powers should be increased as part of a projected "reorganization of executive power" due to take effect within two weeks.

BERLIN (NOV. 23) - The resignation of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher should ease the way to European economic and monetary union, the leaders of the EC's liberal parties said here Friday.

The president of Germany's Free Democratic Party (FDP), Otto Lambsdorff, said the centrists now saw hope of rapid progress towards that goal.

He was speaking after a meeting of the Federation of European Democratic and Liberal Parties that called for a strengthening of pan-European policies in foreign affairs and defense.

In a communique, the liberals suggested the European Community (EC) set up a council of ministers with responsibility for defense and foreign affairs, and with the power to deploy a multinational force in close collaboration with NATO.

Eleven EC countries are also members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization although one of them, France, is not in NATO's integrated military command. The twelfth country, Ireland, is an avowed neutral.

The EC will launch an intergovernmental conference in Rome next month to discuss progress to economic and monetary union, and how to strengthen political unity.

The liberals called on the forum to "achieve major steps to transform the Community into a true European union with a federal constitution."

Liberal parties are in the minority in European politics, although in several countries, notably Germany and Denmark, they are swing parties which can influence the formation of a government.

Thatcher put up a long, but ultimately unsuccessful, fight to dissuade Britain's 11 EC partners from taking a quick track towards monetary union and the goal of a single Community currency.

BERLIN (NOV. 23) - The vice president of the Reichsbahn, the former East German railways, was placed in custody for a suspected role in a swindle worth 3.6 million Deutsche marks (2.4 million dollars), the Berlin justice ministry said Friday.

The suspect, aged 56, but not identified by the ministry, is suspected of having taking part in a fraudulent operation to lease railway carriages, the ministry said in a statement.

City Justice Minister Jutta Limbach said the case showed that "the old comrades' network" of former Communist chieftains "is still active and that former East German officials are being shameless in their attempts to build new lives at the public's cost."

She revealed that Berlin investigators are also probing 17 suspected frauds, totalling 310 million marks (211 million dollars), involving the privatisation of former state-owned firms.

The railway scandal comes after the reported loss of hundreds of millions of marks (dollars) in crooked deals after the July 1 monetary union between East and West Germany.

BRUSSELS (NOV. 23) - Germany is to consult its Western European neighbors on Tuesday before giving Poles the right to enter Germany without visas, an informed source told Agence France-Presse here Friday.

He said the issue would be discussed by the Schengen group of Germany, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. They have signed the Schengen Convention, which aims at lowering frontier barriers between signatories.

Earlier this month, while signing a treaty guaranteeing Germany's borders with Poland, German Chancellor Helmut Kohl pledged that before Christmas he would abolish visa requirements for Poles coming to Germany.

But the Schengen signatories, who all belong to the 12-nation European Economic Community (EEC), have agreed to consult each other before taking any decision that would affect the others.

The EEC nations, fearing a massive influx from Poland, have not scrapped visas for Poles as they have all done individually for Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

On Tuesday Italy will join the Schengen Convention. Spain and Portugal are expected to be given observer status. This means that, within the EEC, only Denmark, Greece, Britain and Ireland will remain outside the convention.

SANGATTE, FRANCE (NOV. 23) - French and British tunnel workers at the junction of the cross-Channel tunnel came within a few meters (yards) of one another on Friday and were able to pass cigarettes and money to one another, workers said.

"From now on, we will be able to pass notes, money or cigarettes back and forth," one worker explained, by using a folding meter (yardstick), probably through cracks in the blue chalk which separates them.

People will not be able to pass through the tunnel until December 1, according to TransManche Link, the company directing the project.

The ceremony which had been planned for the junction was to have been attended by French President Francois Mitterrand and former British prime minister Margaret Thatcher, but they will be replaced by their respective ministers of transportation following Mrs. Thatcher's resignation on Thursday.

The enormous tunnelling machines which were used to drill most of the tunnel have been set aside, and the final yards are being pierced with jackhammers and steam shovels.

Britain and France have been connected since October 30 by a five-centimeter (two-inch) tunnel, which was drilled between the soil separating the two sides of the project to enable technicians to verify the alignment of the two tunnels through the use of sonar signals.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (NOV. 23) - Fiji's clothing factories are not sweatshops, Fiji Trade and Commerce Minister Berenado Vunibobo said here Friday.

"I have great difficulty in comprehending the consistent portrayal of garment manufacturers in Fiji as operators of sweatshops," he said in a speech to the New Zealand-Fiji Business Council.

As he spoke, protesters outside the gathering claimed garment workers were being paid 50 Fiji cents (34 cents U.S) an hour.

Mr. Vunibobo said there were a number of Fiji factories at which conditions could be improved.

"But, it is totally misleading to tarnish the image of the garment industry with such an inaccurate and sweeping generalisation."

For unemployed people, there was little choice about accepting wage rates of 60 Fijian cents (36 U.S. cents) to 80 Fijian cents (48 U.S. cents) per hour, "it depends on what an economy can afford," he said.

He said a series of recent strikes by garment workers, if allowed to continue, would ruin the country's credibility as a reliable exporting country.

"One can only conclude the real motive behind these strikes is economic sabotage which its instigators, I suspect, believe could lead to further political uncertainties."

Fiji turned an eight per cent decline in economic growth in 1987 into a 12.5 percent growth rate in 1989, the minister said.

YOKOHAMA, Japan (NOV. 23) - The International Tropical Timber Council (ITTC) ended an eight-day session here Friday with a resolution recommending a cut in logging in Sarawak, Malaysia, officials said.

The resolution failed to set concrete figures for the reduction in tropical forest logging, but said ITTC members agreed to support the Malaysian government in preserving forests in Sarawak.

It stressed the need to promote "sustainable management of tropical forests and sustainable production of and trade in tropical timbers."

"Producer countries with substantial forest resources, to achieve sustainable development, will need to utilize such resources and to convert part of the land for agriculture and other uses," it said.

"If selective harvesting of timber from natural forests is sustained, it will not lead to deforestation or loss of forest cover."

The resolution emphasized the need to "reduce the current rate of harvesting" in Sarawak forests, "upgrade the standards of logging," and to support research in forest management.

Government representatives from the 47 ITTC member countries opened the session in Yokohama, near Tokyo, on November 16 to discuss ways of protecting tropical forests from devastation by commercial logging.

BRUSSELS (NOV. 23) - The United States Friday asked its NATO allies to put their ships and planes at its disposal to carry extra U.S. troops and equipment to the Gulf, NATO sources said.

The urgent request was submitted to the 15 other ambassadors of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Sources said the request concerned merchant ships, probably roll on-roll off, able to transport heavy equipment such as tanks, and civilian aircraft to carry troops.

Sources did not say how many ships and aircraft were requested. The other NATO members did not give an immediate reply to the request but said they would send it to their respective governments for discussion.

GENEVA, (NOV 23) - Negotiators will be working hard over the weekend on a document to be submitted to trade ministers meeting in Brussels December 3-7 to wind up the "Uruguay Round" of multilateral trade talks, but their mood was rather depressed, sources close to the negotiations said Friday evening.

The negotiators' pessimism was caused by the multiplication of unexpected obstacles over the last few weeks in several sectors involved in the four-year talks, aimed at liberalizing world trade.

A Japanese representative who asked to remain unidentified said Friday that "We are not quite satisfied" with the final package, and "We would be enlightened if the package stated more clearly" the alternatives that could be put to the ministers meeting in Brussels.

(At a Thursday meeting of South American countries, Brazil said that countries exporting agricultural products should not take part in the Brussels meeting unless the European Economic Community modified its position on protectionism in farm trade.)

But despite discontent with the status of the negotiations, the Trade Negotiations Committee of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) is expected to approve the document for the ministers formally on Monday afternoon.

However, the various controversies that have emerged mean that many points that were supposed to be covered by the document remain unresolved. In agriculture, for instance, the document contains no agreed text on the anti-dumping code and on investment-connected measures.

On this and other points where no agreement has been reached, the document will contain some comments written by GATT chief Arthur Dunkel, who chairs the Trade Negotiations Committee.

The text will include an annex on merchandise trade, indicating the various offers submitted to date by GATT members with a view to liberalizing such trade.

Another annex will deal with services, in which there are serious obstacles to agreement, and a third with intellectual property rights, a field in which negotiation participants have come closer together.

In a fourth annex, delegates will suggest that the ministers think about GATT's future and about transforming it into a real world trade organization.

BEIJING, Nov 23 (AFP) - Chinese Prime Minister Li Peng welcomed Friday the easing of tension between North and South Korea during a meeting with his North Korean counterpart, Yon Hyon Muk, the New China News Agency (NCNA) said.

"We are delighted to see that recently, the situation in the Korean peninsula has relaxed to some extent," the offical agency quoted Mr. Li as saying.

"China supports all kinds of on-going dialogues between North and South Korea and hopes the talks between the premiers of North and South Korea will continue and achieve results," Mr. Li said.

Mr. Li said China had always supported efforts aimed at the "peaceful reunification" of the two Koreas.

Mr. Yon said North Korea would strive to realise the reunification of the Korean peninsula through "peaceful means" and added that talks between the premiers of North and South Korea, who have already met twice, would continue in December, NCNA said.

The next scheduled meeting between the Korean premiers will take place in Seoul between December 11 and 14. The last two meetings in September and October failed to resolve the long-standing differences between the two countries.

Mr. Yon also said that his country would "work hard to normalize its relations with Japan," NCNA said.

Government representatives from Japan and North Korea met twice in Beijing last month to discuss the establishment of diplomatic ties between Pyongyang and Tokyo.

Japanese diplomatic sources here said the two countries would hold further talks in Beijing in December.

WASHINGTON, (NOV 23) - Secretary of State James Baker will meet Saturday in Los Angeles with his Malaysian counterpart, Abu Hassan Omar, winding up talks with fellow U.N. Security Council members on a possible resolution authorizing use of force against Iraq, officials said Friday.

The State Department said the meeting would be held at Los Angeles International Airport, where Mr. Baker is due to stop off on his way back from Colombia, the department said.

Mr. Baker was due late Friday in Bogota, where he was travelling from Yemen, department spokesman Adam Shub said.

The United States is pushing for the U.N. Security Council to approve, perhaps next week, a resolution authorizing the use of force to drive Iraqi occupation troops out of Kuwait.

Washington holds the rotating presidency of the 15-member council until the end of the month. Yemen, which has expressed opposition to the presence of the U.S.-led force in the Gulf, is to take over the post in December.

In recent days Mr. Baker has conferred with the foreign ministers of most of the council members in an effort to rally support for a use-of-force resolution.

After his trip to Colombia and the meeting with his Malaysian counterpart, Cuba will be the only nation Mr. Baker has not consulted with personally. High-level U.S.-Cuban contacts are banned by the United States.

The envoy said South Korea was urging its businessmen to invest in Paraguay, which was ruled by rightist dictator Alfredo Stroessner until a violent February 1989 coup led by General Rodriguez.

The Roh aide said a feasibility study on South Korean investment in Paraguayan cotton operations was near completion.

BERLIN, (NOV 23) - The West should provide aid to the Soviet Union to help President Mikhail Gorbachev stay in power, German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said Friday.

"Is it reasonable to help Mr. Gorbachev at this time? The answer is very clearly 'yes'," Mr. Kohl said at an electoral rally that drew 4,000 people.

"Let's hope that Mr. Gorbachev succeeds in his reforms for a transition towards the market economy," Mr. Kohl said. "His success will be ours, too."

Aid for Moscow "will cost money, but we also spent a lot during the Cold War, and it is good to now be able to spend for peace," he said.

Mr. Gorbachev, he said, was "the first in his country to understand that over-arming does't help peace."

Germany has recently increased calls for help for the Soviet Union, where widespread food shortages grow as the rigourous Russian winter sets in.

Mr. Kohl was campaigning for the first pan-German legislative elections, due to take place on December 2.

LISBON, (NOV 24) - War-torn Angola is expected to export only 4,500 metric tonnes of coffee this year, and not the 6,000 tonnes predicted by the government, the country's secretary of state for coffee said Friday.

Filomeno Ceita, in a statement carried by the official news agency Angop monitored in Lisbon, said the reduction in volume was mainly due to transport difficulties caused in the northern coffee-growing areas by the continuing civil war.

Mr. Ceita said Angola's once-proud coffee industry was undergoing "the biggest crisis of its existence," and was set to earn a mere 4.5 million dollars this year.

In its heyday in the 1970's, the Angolan coffee industry produced close to 200,000 tonnes a year.

LONDON (NOV. 23) UPI - Capping a bullish week, the London International Stock Exchange held on to early gains to close sharply higher Friday in moderate trading marked by continued expectations of lower interest rates.

Spurred by a late rally, the Financial Times Stock Exchange 100-share index, which was ahead 1.6 points Thursday, closed at 2170.5 points, up 42.6 on the day. For the week, the key index was up by 102.5 points.

Posting a 40.0 point advance Friday, the narrower FTSE 30 index stood at 1712.2 points, 97.4 points higher on the week.

Volume amounted to 478.8 million shares, down from the 498.2 million traded Thursday.

Lower interest rates are expected no matter who wins the three-way vote to take over leadership of the ruling Conservative Party - and, in the process, succeed Margaret Thatcher as Britain's prime minister - next week, dealers said.

This in turn could mean a Christmas season rally in equities, they said.

Dealers said institutional investors anticipated Thatcher's surprise resignation Thursday as leader of the Conservatives would also mean a revival of efforts to move along Britain's integration into European monetary and economic union.

Among widely traded issues, Thorn-EMI rose 23 cents a share 12p to $12.50, an apparent move in sympathy with Japanese conglomerate Matsushita's takeover bid for American entertainment giant MCA.

Lloyd's Bank lost 6 cents to $5.49 in the wake of a profits downgrading.

Shell was up 6 cents to $8.49 on an upbeat long-term trading statement.

Courtaulds, continuing to gain from favorable interim profits reports, was ahead 21 cents to $6.25.

The brewery group Bass advanced 42 cents to $19.63, on firmer trading conditions.

For the week, the market was in a decidedly bullish mood.

On Monday, equities soared - at least part of which reflected amplified rumblings of political turmoil at the highest levels of the Conservative Party. The market's reaction confounded analysts.

The Monday rally also came despite gloomy gross domestic product figures confirming Britain was in the grips of a recession.

Strength in the British pound gave the equity market added momentum Tuesday.

Shares gained across the board Wednesday, with Guinness making waves in announcing an acquisition of Spain's largest brewer, Cruzcampo.

The market paused on its upward path Thursday, as investors pondered the impact of Thatcher's resignation, but still managed to finish slightly higher.

TALLAHASSEE, FL (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Coastal Caribbean Oils & Minerals, Ltd. (BSE: CCO-B, CCO-BN), said it filed a registration statement today with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission in connection with a proposed equity financing.

The financing would involve the sale of units comprised of additional shares of the company's common stock and royalty interests on properties held by its 90 percent owned subsidiary, Coastal Petroleum Company.

The proposed offering would be made exclusively to the company's shareholders by means of a nontransferable subscription privilege, according to a Coastal Caribbean spokesman, who said the timing of the offering, the number of units to be offered, the price per unit, and other terms of the offering have not yet been determined. Those parameters are to be established by the board of directors after consideration of a number of factors, including market conditions and the status of the company's affairs, he said.

The proceeds of the offering would be used principally to fund the legal expenses of Coastal Petroleum Company, which is involved in litigation with the state of Florida over the confiscation of Coastal Petroleum's oil and mineral leases, the spokesman said.

In a related matter, the spokesman further noted that on Nov. 21 the Florida court hearing the lease confiscation case suspended Coastal Petroleum's lease obligations, including rentals of nearly $60,000 per annum, pending the outcome of the lawsuit.

Coastal Caribbean is a Bermuda corporation with approximately 33 million shares of common stock outstanding (100 million are authorized) at this time, held by about 16,500 shareholders of record.

RICHMOND, IN (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - All equipment and real estate formerly belonging to the National Automatic Tool Co. (NATCO), will be sold during a three-day auction, Dec. 5, 6 and 7, at the company's site in Richmond, located 66 miles east of Indianapolis and 50 miles west of Dayton, Ohio.

NATCO manufactured precision machine tools and modern manufacturing systems, and specialized in the production of injection molding machines, multispindle drill presses and radial drills. Creditors forced the company to close earlier this year, and NATCO's last day of operation was Aug. 12, 1990.

The auction will include a 415,000-square-foot industrial building, all manufacturing machinery, and the 144 acres of land where the plant is located. Between 3,000 and 4,000 lots will be sold, and will include metalworking machinery of all types, office furniture and equipment, and vehicles.

The company bought the Richmond property in 1960, and over the years has supplied equipment to manufacturing giants such as John Deere, Chrysler, and Caterpillar Inc. "This auction is an outstanding opportunity for businesses around the country interested in heavy equipment or machine manufacturing," said Dave Curren, NATCO purchasing manager.

While in operation, NATCO's annual revenues exceeded $15 million. The company employed 170 workers.

The auction is being handled by Michael Fox Auctioneers Inc., a national auctioneering firm based in Baltimore. Persons interested in obtaining more details about the NATCO auction may do so by calling 301-653-4000.

LA JOLLA, CA (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Scientists at Cytel Corporation have identified a specific carbohydrate molecule that plays a key role in inflammatory responses, it was reported today in the journal Science. Researchers have isolated a complex carbohydrate structure, or ligand, on the surface of white blood cells, and demonstrated that specific cell adhesion molecules (CAMs) located on the blood vessel wall must recognize this ligand to initiate an inflammatory response. Today's findings should provide valuable therapeutic opportunities to control acute and chronic inflammatory disorders.

In an inflammatory response, the body releases chemical mediators, such as Interleukin-1, at the site of tissue injury which induce endothelial cells lining blood vessels to express specific CAMs. One CAM, known as an Endothelial Leukocyte Adhesion Molecule (ELAM-1), mediates movement of immune cells from the bloodstream to the area of tissue injury through the recognition of a specific ligand located on the surface of white blood cells.

It is the accumulation of white blood cells that leads to inflammation and resulting tissue injury associated with reperfusion injury, inflammatory bowel disease and autoimmune diseases such as rheumatoid arthritis.

"The identification of a carbohydrate ligand for ELAM-1 documents an important example of protein-carbohydrate recognition mediating cell to cell interactions," said James C. Paulson, Ph.D., vice president of glycobiology research at Cytel. "The discovery of this ligand will help us to further understand the complicated series of events that lead to an inflammatory response."

This new evidence on the ligand and its role in inflammation may potentially reveal additional interactions between cell adhesion molecules and other cell types which express the ligand. For example, expression of the ligand has been documented on a variety of lung and colon carcinomas and may provide insight into the role cell adhesion molecules may play in metastatic stages of cancer.

Cytel Corporation, a privately held biopharmaceutical company, was founded in 1987 to design small molecule drugs aimed at suppressing the interactions between immune receptors and their target cells. The company uses proprietary research in the areas of immunology, glycobiology and chemistry to develop immunomodulating therapeutics for autoimmune diseases as well as inflammatory disorders.

Neckowitz's prior experience in the consumer products industry includes 13 years at Spartus Corporation (a large clock and lighting company) in various executive positions including chief operating officer of one of Spartus' divisions. Neckowitz has extensive experience in management, sales, marketing product development and the Far East.

Amancio Suarez, chief executive officer of Cosmo Communications, stated that he was delighted that Andy had agreed to join the company and was confident that Neckowitz would provide the necessary leadership as the company attempts to reverse its trend of losses.

The company also announced the results for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990. Sales for the third quarter decreased by $13,420,000 compared to the corresponding period in 1989. The net loss for the third period increased by $5,463,000 from the comparable period of 1989.

Sales decreased primarily because of an overall weak market and demand for the products of the company as well as the policy of the company to phase-out the sale of various unprofitable product lines in its Electronic Division. The net loss resulted from the lower sales and significant write-offs of inventory and receivables.

The company also announced that it expected a loss for the fourth quarter although not of the same magnitude as the third quarter loss.

HARRISBURG, PA (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - The Department of Environmental Resources (DER) has ordered Concord Resources Group to restore a small wetland on one of two Clarion County sites where Concord has suggested locating a hazardous waste incinerator.

The department also will impose a penalty after evaluating the restoration of the 35-by-200 foot wetland in Mill Creek Township, Deputy Secretary James R. Grace said.

"We want to make it clear that we value all of our wetlands, regardless of size, because they serve a variety of vital environmental functions," Grace said.

Wetlands provide an important habitat for plants and animals, water purification and flood control.

Officials in DER's Bureau of Dams and Waterway Management notified Concord that it had violated the Dam Safety and Encroachments Act of 1978 by digging in the wetland without a permit. Concord excavated, but has since filled in, a 20-by-25 foot hole to collect water on the 515-acre site where it is seeking to locate a hazardous waste incinerator.

The bureau has directed Concord to submit by Dec. 3 its proposal to replant the site and finalize the restoration.

Upon completion, a penalty will be determined based on the seriousness of the violation, how well it was corrected and the violator's cooperation with the department.

"It'll be up to us to negotiate a settlement for the exact amount of the penalty, but we plan a minimum of $1,000," Grace said.

PIRAEUS, GREECE (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Global Ocean Carriers (AMEX: GLO) announced today that revenue for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, was $4.2 million compared to $5.1 million for the same period in 1989. Revenue for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, was $14.9 million compared to $9.3 million for the same period last year. Net income before depreciation but after a dry docking and special surveys provision was $5.4 million compared to $4.3 million in the same period in 1989. Net income after depreciation was $2.4 million or $0.80 per share versus $2.6 million or $0.87 per share for the same period in 1989.

The company owns a fleet of seven vessels. As at Sept. 30, 1990, the company's fleet had an aggregate market value of $41.5 million based on two independent valuations.

During the third quarter of this year, the total off-hire period of the fleet was 50 days, including 36 days for the Global Star upgrading. The maximum possible number of on-hire days was 644.

Over the same period last year, Global paid dividends totaling $1.30 per share.

The dividend will be paid on Dec. 20, 1990, to shareholders of record on Dec. 7, 1990.

SEATTLE (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Seafirst Bank will be the managing underwriter for the King County Library District's upcoming bond issue. The $15 million issue is the third part of $67 million approved by voters in 1988. Seafirst was also the underwriter for the Library's two previous bond issues, which totalled $20 million.

The King County Library District, which plans to offer the bonds Nov. 27, will use the funds to construct and expand new buildings throughout King County, and to purchase new books and materials. A new customer service center will also be built with the proceeds. According to Sheila Simpson of Seafirst Capital Markets, the bond issue will be sold in increments of $5,000 and will earn tax-exempt interest.

"Customers can go to any one of Seafirst's 188 branches statewide to contact a licensed bank investment officer who can sell the bonds," said Simpson. "We want to remind people they don't have to use a brokerage firm to buy bonds."

Seafirst is the largest underwriter of municipal bonds in the state. According to Simpson, the King County Library bond issue is one of the ways the bank supports the community by serving as a partner in local and state obligations.

SALISBURY, MD (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Second National Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ-NMS: SNFS), which in October reported the addition of $25.4 million to general and specific loan loss reserves of which $8.75 million was to be spread over the next 18 months, has determined that the entire $25.4 million will be recorded, in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, in the third quarter.

The decision to record the entire increase in the third quarter, which the company said was reached after consultation with its independent accountants and officials of the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS), will have the effect of increasing the company's loss for the quarter from the previously reported $11.2 million, or $1.57 per share, to $16.9 million or $2.33 per share. This compares to 1989 third quarter earnings of $2.5 million or 34 cents per share. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the company will report a loss of $12.5 million or $1.82 per share, compared with net income of $7.1 million or 97 cents per share reported a year earlier.

The Company meets all current regulatory requirements for tangible, core and risk-based capital. After accounting for the additions to reserves, the book value of Second National's common stock is $4.97 per share.

Henry A. Berliner, Jr., president and chief executive officer, commented: "As we publicly stated over nine months ago, the continuing deterioration of the commercial real estate markets in the mid-Atlantic region is negatively impacting the entire financial services industry. This, coupled with a more stringent regulatory environment, has mandated that we aggressively move to recognize and resolve deficiencies in our portfolio. We believe these additions to our loan loss reserves, combined with certain operational changes we have made, will assist us in restoring Second National's profitability."

Berliner cited the establishment of a commercial loan workout department, the hiring of a key executive with troubled asset experience, and recently affected staffing reductions, salary freezes, and realignments as some of the significant operational changes.

Berliner added that the company is continuing to fund its residential real estate portfolio and projected that such originations in 1991 will approximate the $300 million funded in 1990. "This sector of our business will continue to provide our core operating earnings, and will be a major factor in ensuring the long-term viability of Second National."

Second National has 41 offices in Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia.

DETROIT (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - The Service Employees International Union, Local 79 filed suit today to stop the sale of Outer Drive Hospital and the discharge of more than 150 hospital workers.

Outer Drive Hospital, located in Lincoln Park, Mich., is owned by United Care, Inc., of Wayne, Mich.

United Care plans to discharge more than 150 union-represented employees on Dec. 15, 1990, and to sell the hospital to Vencor, a Kentucky corporation.

The contract between Local 79 United Care requires that as a condition of sale of the hospital, the purchaser must agree to retain the employees and assume the union contract. Local 79's lawsuit contends that the sale is a breach of the contract because Vencor is not required to keep the union-represented employees.

Local 79 asked Federal Judge Gerald Rosen to enjoin the December layoffs and sale until an independent labor arbitrator can determine whether United Care has violated the union contract. Without the injunction, the sale will take place and the hospital workers will lose their jobs.

SEIU Local 79 represents more than 20,000 healthcare and service workers throughout Michigan. Local 79's headquarters are in Detroit.

HOUSTON (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Republic Waste Industries Inc. (NASDAQ: RWIN) confirmed today that, while it continues to work with the Ohio Department of Insurance to secure approval of the company's application to acquire Alliance Holding Co. the financial statements in the company's amended preliminary prospectus filed today include the consolidated balance sheet and operating results of Alliance only on a pro-forma, not historic, basis, in order to facilitate the timely completion of the proposed public offering to which the preliminary prospectus relates.

Republic agreed to acquire Alliance in July 1990, subject to regulatory approval, in a transaction to be accounted for as a pooling of interests and issued the shares into escrow. At that time both the company and Alliance anticipated that regulatory approval could and would be achieved by Oct. 31, 1990. Reflecting that expectation, the financial statements of Alliance were presented on an historic basis as part of the company's financial statements included in its original Oct. 19, 1990 preliminary prospectus, as well as in the company's quarterly reports filed for the periods ended June 30 and Sept. 30, 1990. However, the review and negotiation process with the Ohio Department of Insurance continues. As the company currently is unable to estimate when, whether or subject to what conditions its acquisition of Alliance will receive approval, it has decided that in order to pursue completion of the public offering before receipt of approval it is appropriate to present on a pro-forma rather than historic presentation of the financial condition and operating results of Alliance. If and when the company secures regulatory approval, the company expects to account for the acquisition of Alliance as a "pooling of interests" and therefore to combine its historic financial statments with those of Republic, consistent with the previous presentation.

TEL AVIV, ISRAEL (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Istec-Industries and Technologies Ltd. (NASDAQ: ISTUF, ISTEF, ISTWF) today reported results of operations for the third quarter and first nine months of 1990, ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Total sales for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 reached approximately NIS 3,506,000 ($1,704,000), compared with total sales of approximately NIS 3,140,000 ($1,526,000) for the same period last year. Net loss for the first nine months of 1990 amounted to approximately NIS 2,577,000 ($1,253,000), compared with a net income of approximately NIS 538,000 ($262,000) in the same period last year, which included a one- time income of some NIS 2,524,000 ($1,227,000) from a U.S. share offering of Istec's subsidiary, Healthcare Technologies Ltd.

Total sales for the third quarter of 1990 amounted to approximately NIS 1,230,000 ($598,000), compared with NIS 1,615,000 ($785,000) for the same period last year. Net loss for the third quarter of 1990 reached approximately NIS 1,587,000 ($772,000), compared with a net loss of NIS 66,000 ($32,000) in the corresponding period in 1989.

The net loss for the period caused a significant decrease in shareholders' equity, which amounted to approximately NIS 300,000 ($146,000) at Sept. 30, 1990, compared to NIS 2,878,000 ($1,399,000) at Dec. 31, 1989.

Boaz Paz, president and chief executive officer of Istec, explained that the loss in the third quarter resulted from the following:

-- Operating losses of Scan Group International Ltd. (SGI) which totaled approximately NIS 290,000 ($141,000) in the third quarter of this year and some NIS 446,000 ($217,000) during the first nine months of 1990.

-- In the third quarter, the company's losses included a one-time write-off for good will of approximately NIS 951,000 ($462,000). This write-off reflects SGI's unsuccessful attempts to improve its business. The increase in SGI's accumulated losses, and the need for continuing investments, led to Istec's decision to offer SGI for sale, and for this reason the company took the one-time write-off for good will.

-- In September 1990, the company sold its holdings in Aryt Optronics Industries Ltd., at a profit in dollar terms of about $350,000, although this transaction resulted in a loss of about NIS 330,000 in terms of the Israeli Consumer Price Index.

Israel's deficit in working capital amounted to approximately NIS 2,467,000 ($1,287,000) at Sept. 30, 1990, an improvement of about NIS 7,333,000 ($3,565,000), compared with June 30, 1990, due to the sale of its holdings in Aryt.

As a result of the company's deficit in working capital and significant decrease in shareholders' equity, Istec management decided to sell its holdings in Healthcare Technologies Ltd. (2,250,000 shares) at a price of $1 per share, as previously announced on Nov. 20, 1990. Upon completion of the sale, Istec will realize a profit of about $1.1 million.

Istec and its subsidiaries maintain their accounts and present their financial statements in New Israeli Shekels (NIS) adjusted to reflect changes in the Israeli Consumer Price Index, and all the figures stated herein are adjusted NIS. All dollar figures are convenience translations using the exchange rate as of Sept. 30, 1990 of NIS 2.057 to US$1.00.

BOSTON (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Workingmens Corporation (NASDAQ: WCBK), the parent company of Workingmens Co-operative Bank, today announced results and related financial data for the second quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990.

The corporation reported losses of $1.4 million or $1.16 per share for the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990, as compared to earnings of $2,000 for the same period last year. The loss for the quarter and the six months ended Oct. 31, 1990, is due primarily to an increase in the provision for possible loan losses by the corporation's subsidiary, Workingmens Co-operative Bank, and writedowns and losses on other real estate owned and acquisition, development and construction loans which amounted to $950,000 for the quarter and $8.9 million for the first six months of the fiscal year.

Real estate owned totaled $11.4 million and non-performing loans were $13.8 million at Oct. 31, 1990. The comparative figures at April 30, 1990 were $9.1 million and $12.6 million, respectively.

President and Chief Executive Officer John E. McDonald, stated, "The weakened real estate market and declining economy continue to negatively affect the bank's operations as non-performing assets reduce interest income and the costs associated with managing real estate owned rise. The primary focus of our efforts must continue to be towards the resolution of our non-performing loans and real estate owned."

Consolidated assets of Workingmens Corporation were $240.5 million on Oct. 31, 1990, as compared to $258.0 million on Oct. 31, 1989. The book value per share was $9.91.

Workingmens Corporation is the holding company for Workingmens Co-operative Bank, a Massachusetts-chartered co-operative bank with five offices in Greater Boston. The bank's deposits are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and the Share Insurance Fund (SIF) of the Co-operative Central Bank.

Workingmens Corporation is traded on the NASDAQ system under the symbol WCBK.

HOUSTON, (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - LL&E Royalty Trust (NYSE: LRT) announced today that its monthly distribution to unit holders will be made on Dec. 15, 1990, to unit holders of record on Dec. 5, 1990. This distribution represents amounts payable to the trust with respect to production for the month of September 1990.

The total amount of the December distribution will be $1,642,178, or approximately $.08647 per unit. Due to the nature and timing of other operating and capital projects along with fluctuations in monthly production, as well as the price of crude oil, this distribution is not necessarily indicative of future monthly distributions.

As previously announced, the working interest owner has begun to escrow amounts for the Fort Worth Basin property in connection with the issue of recapture of intangible drilling and development costs under Section 1254 of the Internal Revenue Code. The trust's interest in the amount escrowed from the current month's distribution and the cumulative balance of such are $7,213.36 and $532,111.04 respectively. As stated last month, pending the possible appeal by the IRS of the previously announced favorable ruling rendered by the United States Tax Court on the Section 1254 issue, the working interest owner has made no decision on whether and when these amounts will be released from escrow.

The working interest owner has determined under the terms of the trust documents that it is eligible to escrow funds from all trust properties for the 1254 recapture issue. However, it has advised the trustee that it does not intend to exercise its rights to escrow funds, other than for the Fort Worth Basin, for this issue for the December 1990 distribution. However, the working interest owner intends to continue to monitor its estimates of relevant factors in order to evaluate the necessity of escrowing funds for this issue on an ongoing basis. The working interest owner is under no obligation to give any advance notice to the trustee or the unit holders in the event it determines that funds should be escrowed. If the working interest owner does begin to escrow such funds with respect to the productive properties, other than Fort Worth Basin, the effect on royalties paid to the trust would be significant, and in certain circumstances could eliminate distributions for a period of time.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA, (NOV. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - The Vancouver Stock Exchange today released the decision of a hearing committee appointed to consider allegations that Francoise R. Otto, while employed as a registered representative with Wolverton Securities Ltd., had breached Exchange bylaws and rules.

The allegations followed the showing of a segment of the ABC-TV "PrimeTime Live" program on Oct. 4, 1990.

The hearing committee found that none of the allegations contained in the five counts had been proven.

''In our view it would be dangerous to convict this lady of the serious allegations contained in the Citation without the full tape to study. The words we have pondered over might well have been taken out of context. In any event they fall short of persuading us, on the balance of probabilities, so recently defined by the Court of Appeal, that the charges have been proven.

"The finding of this committee is that the charges in the Citation are not proven.''

Members of the hearing panel were Thomas C. Marshall, chairman; Gerald G. Fabbro, Midland Walwyn Capital Inc.; and George Pruden, Richardson Greenshields of Canada Ltd.

Copies of the decision are available from the Public Affairs department, second floor Vancouver Stock Exchange Tower, 609 Granville St. until 5:30 p.m. today.

LONDON (NOV. 23) UPI - Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, wounded by a challenge to her Conservative Party leadership and losing the support of her Cabinet, said she would step down after 11 1/2 years in power that restored Britain's stature in the world community and brought ''unparalleled prosperity to our citizens.''

Thatcher, who has been under fire because of her aggressive opposition to greater European Community integration, said Thursday that she believed the Conservative Party would best be served by her resignation.

Hours later, she turned a defense of her government in the House of Commons against a no-confidence motion lodged by the opposition Labor Party into a spirited attempt to write her own political epitaph.

With a blend of hard-edged determination and a willingness to laugh at the ''funny old world'' that forced a close to her 41-year political career, Thatcher declared her Tory government ''rescued Britain from the powerless state to which socialism had brought it.''

''Once again, Britain stands tall in the councils of Europe and the world, and our policies have brought unparalleled prosperity to our citizens at home. We have given back control to people over their own lives and their livelihood, over the decisions that matter most to them and their families.''

The longest serving prime minister this century announced the solitary decision she reached at 7:30 a.m. to resign in a statement issued by Downing Street.

''Having consulted widely among colleagues, I have concluded that the unity of the party and the prospects of victory in a general election would be better served if I stood down to enable Cabinet colleagues to enter the ballot for the leadership,'' said Thatcher, 65.

''I should like to thank all those in the Cabinet and outside who have given me such dedicated support.''

Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd and Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major both announced they will try to succeed her as party leader, joining renegade Conservative Michael Heseltine on the ballot scheduled for next Tuesday.

Heseltine, 57, dealt the blow to Thatcher that will end an era in British politics. He failed to end outright her 15-year tenure as head of the Conservative Party in a party vote Tuesday but mustered enough support to force a second ballot next week that could have swept her from power.

Worldwide reaction reflected admiration for Thatcher's grit and achievements, tempered by widespread sentiment that it was time to go.

''On a personal note, I'll miss her because I value her counsel and the wisdom that comes from her long experience,'' President Bush said in Saudi Arabia while visiting American troops. ''She has been an outstanding prime minister for the United Kingdom and an outstanding friend of the United States.''

His predecessor, Ronald Reagan, who was far closer to Thatcher, said in a statement issued from his California home, ''Margaret Thatcher is truly a world statesman. On this of all days, Great Britain and indeed all the world should be thankful for the leadership of Margaret Thatcher.''

In Moscow, ''We will remember her for her great contribution to good relations between the West and the Soviet Union,'' said Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov.

Thatcher had declared, ''I fight on; I fight to win'' Wednesday, but wavered when her Cabinet and others pressured her to resign for the good of the party. At least eight top leaders indicated they would not support her on the second ballot.

Thatcher told an early morning Cabinet meeting and Queen Elizabeth II at Buckingham Palace she would resign as soon as a new leader is selected.

She reportedly told Cabinet members ''it's a funny old world,'' that she had won three general elections, had support from a majority of the country and Conservative MPs but questions were still being raised about her political future.

Thatcher's daughter, Carol, said her mother was betrayed by her party. ''I think it's the most gutless act of treachery after all she's done.''

Britain's first woman prime minister changed the course of British government, rekindled her country's international prestige and gave her name to a free-market political philosophy, ''Thatcherism.''

She led Britain to victory over Argentina in the 1982 Falklands War, fought for the deployment of U.S. missiles in Europe, a move that paved the way for U.S.-Soviet arms reduction agreements, and facilitated an end to the Cold War.

On the domestic front, Thatcher governments carried out a sweeping denationalization of industry and services, curbed the power of left- wing labor unions and cut back on public spending to tame inflation.

Thatcher's decision left a three-way race that pundits were unwilling to call.

Heseltine is the man the prime minister least wants to succeed her.

The man nicknamed ''Tarzan'' resigned from the Cabinet in 1986 amid a clash between the Cabinet and Thatcher over whether an American or European company should rescue Britain's only helicopter manufacturer. She was accused of leaking a classified letter in the affair. Heseltine quit, protesting she had undermined the Cabinet.

Heseltine, who was planting acorns at London Zoo when he heard of Thatcher's resignation, said, ''this brings to an end a quite remarkable premiership. She has made a remarkable contribution to British history and has led this country with great distinction in the 1980s.

''The resignation now opens the way for an election for leader which will enable others to come forward. I very much welcome that ... and we will then find a way to unite the party and go on to win the next election.''

CALGARY, Alberta (NOV. 23) UPI - Calgary Flames goalie Rick Wamsley impressed the NHL's all-time leading scorer Thursday night.

''Rick (Wamsley) played an exceptional game. He is a quality goaltender and showed that tonight,'' said Los Angeles' Wayne Gretzky, after Wamsley made several big saves in the first two periods to help Calgary to a 6-3 victory over the Kings.

''Wamsley made three great saves off Brad Jones, Tony Granato and myself,'' Gretzky said. ''Calgary scored on two great goals in the middle period; Wamsley stoned us on ours.''

Wamsley, who made 29 saves, stopped Jones on a breakaway midway into the second and stopped Granato in the deep slot just over 12 minutes into the period.

Meanwhile, the Flames took a 2-0 lead after two periods on goals by rookie Robert Reichel and Theoren Fleury. Reichel scored another goal in the third.

Reichel gave the Flames a 1-0 lead at 8:11 of the second when he drilled a 25-foot slapshot from inside the faceoff circle over goalie Kelly Hrudey. Fleury increased the Flames' lead to 2-0 at 17:13, tipping Doug Gilmour's pass through Hrudey's legs for his 11th goal of the season.

''We had our chances in the opening two periods and played well, but Wamsley played well for them,'' Kings defenseman Marty McSorley said. The Kings started a five-game, nine-day Eastern road trip.

''This is the best I have felt since I got back,'' said Wamsley, who missed 11 games from October 20 through November 8 because of a hand injury. ''I was able to see the plays tonight and had a good feeling.''

The teams traded power-play goals early in the final period.

Mark Hunter scored for Calgary at 1:33, giving Calgary a 3-0 lead, but Steve Duchesne drilled a 35-foot screened shot past Wamsley at 5:29, cutting the margin to 3-1.

The teams traded goals 21 seconds apart just over seven minutes into the period.

Reichel gave the Flames a 4-1 lead at 7:21, but Tomas Sandstrom brought the Kings to within 4-2 with his 13th goal of the season at 7:42.

Sandstrom scored his second goal of the game at 9:48 of the period, tipping Granato's pass by Wamsley. The power-play goal cut Calgary's lead to 4-3.

''We took some bad penalties and let them back in the game when we had three-goal leads,'' Flames Coach Doug Risebrough said.

Gilmour clinched the game for the Flames with 62 seconds remaining, beating Hrudey along ice for his 4th goal of the season. Sergei Makarov closed out the scoring with an empty net goal at 19:43.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (NOV. 23) UPI - Tons of collapsing rock killed five gold miners, injured five others and left two missing in a shaft more than a mile beneath the earth's surface, authorities said Friday.

A small tremor shook loose several tons of rock Thursday in a shaft 8,200 feet below the surface of the Doornfontein mine, a spokeswoman for mine owner Goldfields of South Africa Ltd. said.

''It's possible the death toll will rise to seven... the two missing men might turn out to be dead but we're continuing the search,'' she said. The injured were in a satisfactory condition.

South Africa's worst mine disaster of the year, in September, killed 19 miners and injured 22 at the Vaal Reefs gold mine southwest of Johannesburg when a gas explosion tore through a shaft.

The black National Union of Mineworkers estimates more than 68,000 miners have died and one million have been disabled in mine accidents since 1900 in South Africa, the world's biggest gold producer.

In 1989, the NUM says, 735 workers died, a total it expects to be eclipsed this year. The union has calculated a miner who works underground for 20 years risks one chance in 30 of being killed and has a 50 percent chance of being disabled.

UMTATA, South Africa (NOV. 23) UPI - Defense forces in the nominally independent black homeland of the Transkei lifted roadblocks and calm returned to the capital Friday, a day after a failed coup attempt left 18 dead and plunged Pretoria's relations with its troublesome offspring to a new low.

Two more Transkei soldiers loyal to homeland ruler Maj. Gen. Bantu Holomisa died overnight, pushing the death toll to six loyalists and 12 rebels, including coup leader Craig Duli, a former lieutenant colonel who launched the coup bid before dawn Thursday.

Soldiers of the Transkei Defense Force patrolled the streets of the dusty capital of Umtata, some 430 miles southeast of Johannesburg, singly and in pairs Friday, but calm appeared to have returned to the city. Roadblocks put up after the Putsch began were lifted.

Duli, formerly Holomisa's second-in-command, and as many as 30 other men, allegedly including about six whites, attacked the main army base on Umtata's outskirts shortly after 3 a.m. Thursday. Failing to gain control, they seized the 11th floor offices of Holomisa's ruling military council in the city center and refused orders to surrender.

In a barrage of automatic weapons fire and rifle grenade blasts, Holomisa's troops stormed the government building to oust Duli and his men to end the 12-hour coup bid.

Some controversy surrounded the circumstances of Duli's death. The South African Broadcasting Corp. reported Duli was ''apparently murdered while being taken to a place of detention'' but Holomisa said early Friday Duli had died of wounds sustained during the day.

South African radio also reported at least five whites had been arrested in connection with the plot. Holomisa refused Friday morning to either confirm or deny the arrests but called a press conference to display the captured weapons of the rebels.

Holomisa, a strong supporter of the African National Congress who seized power in the homeland in a bloodless coup on Dec. 30, 1987, has consistently angered South Africa, in particular Foreign Minister R.F. Pik Botha, and Thursday implied South African backing for the coup.

South Africa denied the allegations.

Holomisa, 35, has been sharply critical of Pretoria's homelands policy in general and accused white businessmen operating in the Transkei of corruption. His support for the ANC also has complicated his relations with the South African government.

The Transkei, consisting of three pieces of territory separated by tracts of South African land, is home to some 4 million Xhosas, 1.5 million of whom live in South Africa proper. Pretoria's homelands policy had been intended to give blacks limited self-rule in their tribal lands while stripping them of South African citizenship but has been widely condemned as one of the nation's most notorious apartheid laws.

As many as 10 million blacks have been denied citizenship by being forcibly regarded as citizens of the homelands whose sovereignty is recognized only by South Africa.

BEIJING (NOV. 23) UPI - The central government has launched a nationwide drive against provincial protectionism, a widespread and growing practice blamed for hindering China's economic development, the official press reported Friday.

The State Council, China's cabinet, issued a decree Nov. 10 taking aim at ''regional market blockades'' that hinder the movement of goods across provincial borders, the state-run China Daily said.

The six-point decree asserts the right of enterprises in any of China's 29 provinces and administrative regions to sell their goods in any other province and also guarantees that manufacturers have access to raw materials from any Chinese region.

It bans unfair local taxation of provincial imports, preferential lending rates that favor local producers and the establishment of border checkpoints, all of which have been used to curtail the free movement of goods from one province to another.

The State Council decree was the first concrete effort to combat the growing practice of local protectionism, which has been widely denounced in the state-run media as a barrier to the orderly and efficient development of national markets in China.

The problem has been fueled by glaring inequities in China's centrally controlled socialist pricing system.

Prices of raw materials in China are kept artificially low through heavy government subsidies, allowing producers of finished goods to reap handsome profits.

Provincial officials have been erecting trade barriers to keep lucrative finished-goods production with local enterprises, even if similar or better goods could be purchased more cheaply elsewhere.

(NOV. 23) UPI - President Bush continues his efforts to enlist stronger support from world leaders against Iraq. The president has arranged meetings today with two more influential Arab leaders- Egypt's Hosni Mubarak and Syria's Hafez Assad.

Bush arrived in Cairo last night from his Thanksgiving Day visit with U-S troops in the Saudi desert. After a formal red-carpet welcoming ceremony today he and Mubarak are to sit down and discuss new ways to cope with Iraqi aggression against Kuwait.

In another development, Secretary of State Baker has struck out in his bid to get Yemen to support military action against Iraq if necessary. Yemen, which takes over the chairmanship of the U-N Security Council next week, says it opposes the presence and possible use of force.

Worldwide reaction to British Prime Minister Thatcher's announcement that she's resigning was admiration for her fierce determination and stunning achievements. But the announcement drew widespread sentiment from some that it was time for her to go.

President Bush said in Saudi Arabia that he'll miss Thatcher's counsel and wisdom. And Israeli leaders regretted Thatcher's resignation. Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir told Army Radio he felt ''heartfelt sorrow.''

The Army confirms that more than 20 tons of ammunition that exploded in the Nevada desert was destined for Operation Desert Shield in the Persian Gulf. The trailer rig carrying the ammunition caught fire and exploded Wednesday night near Tonopah, 170 miles north of Las Vegas. NO one was hurt.

A senior military official in Moscow says the Soviet government doesn't believe food shortages in the Soviet Union are severe enough to release emergency food reserves. The deputy defense minister also rejects widespread charges the army is hoarding the food for itself.

BEIJING (NOV. 23) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and his Chinese counterpart, Qian Qichen, ended an unexpected meeting in western China

Friday with a renewed demand that Iraqi troops withdraw immediately from Kuwait.

China's official Xinhua news agency said the two sides ''found a similarity of views'' on many issues regarding the Gulf crisis but declined to say whether Qian committed China to support of a U.N. Security Council resolution authorizing military force to oust Iraq.

The two envoys met for 90 minutes in Urumqi, the capital of China's remote western Xinjiang region bordering the Soviet republic of Kazakhstan.

China's Foreign Ministry would not elaborate on the discussions, but Xinhua carried a brief dispatch reporting the Sino-Soviet demand for an Iraqi pullout from Kuwait.

''Both sides are firmly opposed to Iraq's invasion and annexation of Kuwait and demand that Iraq withdraw from Kuwait as soon as possible in accordance with the series of U.N. resolutions,'' Xinhua quoted China's foreign minister as saying after the meeting.

Beijing and Moscow have backed U.N. Security Council resolutions calling for Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait and authorizing an international economic embargo of Iraq. China and the Soviet Union hold permanent seats on the five-member council.

Diplomats in Beijing speculated Shevardnadze may have come to China to obtain Qian's assurance that Beijing would not derail U.S. proposals seeking U.N. authority to use force to liberate Kuwait, which Iraq invaded Aug. 2.

Both the Soviet Union and China appear to be backing down from earlier objections to the use of military force.

Shevardnadze said Tuesday, ''the time has come'' for the U.N. Security Council to decide if there is need for a new resolution that presumably would sanction a military strike against the forces of Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

Chinese official statements recently have refrained from mentioning Beijing's initial objections to the multinational troop buildup in Saudi Arabia.

''(China) has never said force could not be used. They've never ruled it out '' a Western analyst said.

China earlier had criticized the U.S.-led international troop deployment in the Gulf by lashing out at ''big power military involvement'' and calling for a peaceful solution among Arab nations.

But more recent statements appeared to acknowledge the possibility of fighting.

''At present the Gulf crisis has reached a tense, unsettled point with the danger of war on the increase,'' Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Li Zhaoxing said Thursday.

''As long as there is still a glimmer of hope for a peaceful solution, a mediation effort should be continued,'' he added.

Diplomats described the fourth Qian-Shevardnadze meeting this year as ''unexpected,'' pointing out that the two foreign ministers met just last month in New York.

(NOV. 23) UPI - A Pacific storm triggered showers over the rain-soaked Washington coast Friday and dense early morning fog settled over parts of the southern Atlantic Coast and the Ohio Valley.

Moist ocean air continued to funnel into Washington, bringing more precipitation to costal areas already soaked by several days of rain. Flood warnings were posted for several western Washington rivers, including the Nooksack, Skagit, Stillaguamish, Skykomish, Snoqualmie, Snohomish and White.

Dense fog shrouded an area from Charleston, S.C., to Jacksonville, Fla., the National Weather service.

Along the Georgia coast, visibility was reduced to near zero in the Savannah area as well on St. Simons Island. Motorists were advised to use caution.

Fog also rolled across Kentucky and Ohio, reducing visibility to near zezo at the Port Columbus International Airport in central Ohio.

Temperatures ranged from the upper 20s in the northern Plains to the upper 60s along the Gulf Coast and in Florida. Readings were in the 30s in northern New England and the upper Ohio Valley; the 40s in the Plains, the Midwest and the Northeast; and the 50s in Southern California, the Northwest, the Middle Atlantic Coast and the South.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (NOV. 23) UPI - Aviation experts began an official investigation Friday into the cause of a plane crash that killed 38 people, most of them foreign tourists.

A special Air Force plane carried the bodies of 36 of the victims to Bangkok for further identification and autopsy.

An airliner operated by Bangkok Airways crashed Wednesday evening into a coconut grove on the resort island of Koh Samui, 300 miles south of Bangkok.

The crash killed all 38 people on board, including nine Thais, five Japanese, two Americans, four Australians, three Italians, five Swedes, five Germans, one Dutchman, and one Fin. The nationalities of three other victims has not been determined.

Officials, including experts from the Aviation Department, began to collect pieces of wreckage for investigation of the cause of the crash. Investigators are expected to look into the weather, the performance of the pilot, the instructions of the ground controllers and the technical equipment at the tiny airport.

Samui district police chief said earlier that it was likely that the pilot lost control of the Dash-8 turboprop plane because of a heavy rainstorm that struck while he was preparing to land.

The airline's captain reportedly did not inform the ground controllers of any technical fault with the plane.

(NOV. 23) UPI - Around the world, around the clock, the latest news from U-P-I...

President Bush is in Cairo- the first U-S president to visit Egypt in 12 years. Egyptian President Mubarak is expected to repeat his call for more time and greater mediation with Iraq in talks today with Bush. About 20-thousand Egyptian troops are among the multi- national force in Saudi Arabia.

Bush traveled to Egypt from Saudi Arabia, where he spent Thanksgiving Day visiting American troops in the desert. Bush will fly to Geneva to huddle with Syria's President Hafez Assad before heading back to Washington this evening. Assad is a passionate foe of Iraq's Saddam Hussein.

In Tokyo today, Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu said he regrets the resignation of British Prime Minister Thatcher. Kaifu describes Thatcher as a ''rare leader of firm convictions.'' Japan's foreign minister also praised Thatcher, calling her ''a politician to whom the people of Japan feel very close.''

U-S 95- the major link between Las Vegas and Reno- was closed for nine hours, with traffic backed up three miles in either direction. PHNOM PENH, CAMBODIA (NOV. 23) UPI - The Phnom Penh government, backed by its major allies Vietnam and the Soviet Union, has ruled out any reduction or disarmament of troops in a U.N. peace settlement, a joint statement said Friday.

The statement came just before the opening in Paris of talks between the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council on their efforts to bring an end to the 12-year Cambodian conflict. The statement said the Khmer Rouge resistance group should not be trusted.

''Therefore, troops should not be disarmed or their numbers reduced,'' the government said in the joint statement with Vietnam, Laos and the Soviet Union.

The statement said officials from the Soviet Union and the three Indochinese countries met in Phnom Penh on Wednesday for consultations ''on the evolution of the process of a political solution to the Cambodian problem.''

Their opposition to any reduction in military force appeared to differ from the peace framework developed by the U.N. Security Council, which called for a ''phased process of arms control and reduction.'' The Soviet Union earlier agreed to that language.

The U.N. plan, which has been accepted by Phnom Penh only as the basis for further discussion, proposed setting up a U.N. Transitional Authority in Cambodia, which would be empowered to locate and confiscate stores of weapons and military supplies all over the country.

The joint statement said the four countries wanted firm limits on the power of the U.N. authority.

''The participants agreed that UNTAC is not empowered to dismantle existing institutions, agencies, or offices in Cambodia,'' it said.

The meeting also agreed to insist that criticism of the human rights violations of the Khmer Rouge be made in future Cambodian agreements.

Demands for such language at the 1989 Paris Conference helped sink efforts to work out an agreement.

The Khmer Rouge, now the most powerful group in the resistance coalition, simply refused to sign anything that criticized their 1975- 1979 rule, which was blamed for the deaths of more than 1 million people.

The latest statement highlighted the toughening of the Phnom Penh government'sstance since September when the four Cambodian parties agreed to set up a joint national council, which is seen as the key to the U.N. plan.

Since then, however, progress has bogged down in disputes over the leadership of the council and fighting has flared again inside the country.

Earlier the government reported heavy shelling and clashes last week in the western provinces of Battambang, Siem Reap and Banteay Meanchey.

A Defense Ministry roundup of clashes said resistance forces fired nearly 700 artillery shells into government outposts near the border with Thailand.

It said the resistance has stepped up efforts to bring weapons and ammunition into the country.

It said government troops killed 74 guerrillas and captured 30 others in a week of clashes.

Vietnam invaded Cambodia in 1978, ousting the China-backed Khmer Rouge government and installing a new pro-Hanoi regime.

The Khmer Rouge has since joined with two smaller, non-communist groups to form the resistance coalition, which has received aid from the United States, Thailand and China to continue the guerrilla war.

CAIRO, EGYPT (NOV. 23) UPI - President Bush and Egyptian leader Hosni Mubarak, saying they are losing their patience with Iraq's Saddam Hussein, Friday announced a ''complete identity of views'' on the gulf crisis, including the option of military force to remove Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

Bush and Mubarak emerged from 2 1/2 hours of talks on the Persian Gulf crisis, talking tough about dealing with Saddam.

Bush said he and Mubarak have not given up on a peaceful solution, but quickly added, "We are getting tired of the status quo and so is the rest of the world."

"We reviewed the situation in the gulf and we agree while a peaceful solution brought about by sanctions is preferred, steps must be taken. There is complete identity of views between us on the need for Saddam to withdraw immediately without conditions. Partial solutions are out of the question,'' Bush said.

Mubarak fully endorsed Bush's proposal that military force be kept as an option against Iraq, but he sidestepped questions on whether Egyptian troops would be sent to fight alongside multinational forces.

''I'm not in a position to tell you the details. But we have our plan coordinated with all the forces there,'' Mubarak said.

Both leaders agreed Bush's scheduled meeting with Syrian President Hafez al Assad later Friday was a positive step toward settling the gulf crisis.

''Mr. Assad is lined up with us on the commitment of force,'' Bush said. ''That doesn't mean we don't have differences with Syria ... but they will be on the front line standing up against this aggression. I will work closely with all those standing up against this aggression.

Bush shrugged off Israel's criticism for his meeting with Assad, a foe of Israel and a supporter of terrorism.

''I'm focusing now on these meetings and Syria is a part of this. This relates to the reversal of aggression, not only in the interest of the United States but to every country in the Middle East and that includes Israel. I want to be sure we are solidly together,'' Bush said.

Mubarak said: ''Syria is considered a key country and we should not neglect her. President Assad is a key leader in this area. He is against the occupation of Kuwait. He has his forces in Saudi Arabia for the purpose of liberating Kuwait and he should not be left out.''

Assad has contributed 7,000 troops to the multinational force in Saudi Arabia. Bush also hoped to explore with Assad Syria's close ties with Iran in a move to enlist stronger support from Tehran against its neighbor and longtime foe.

Bush and Mubarak also agreed steps must be taken to keep Saddam in check after the gulf crisis is settled.

''After liberating Kuwait there should be some kind of measure to keep this area stable and to avoid any more tension and anymore war,'' Mubarak said.

Bush said solution of the crisis could clear the way for other issues to be discussed, including the Palestinian question.

''Once we set back this aggression ... then I think it is clear we will have an opportunity to work more closely together. I would like to see a solution of the West Bank for example. It opens up all kinds of possibilities for a new world order.''

The president and Secretary of State James Baker are in a race against time to try to line up the 15 U.N. Security Council members to support military sanctions against Iraq if necessary.

They appeared to have made progress and possibly a breakthrough with the Soviet Union, but Baker struck out Thursday when Yemen told the United States it opposed the presence and possible use of force in the Persian Gulf region.

Yemen was important since it takes over the chairmanship of the Security Council Nov. 30.

After eight days on the road during his European-Middle East swing, Bush was exhausted and beginning to show the strain.

But he appeared to receive a big lift Thursday from the uniformed men and women he deployed in the gulf region to make a stand against Saddam.

To please the troops, he ate two Thanksgiving dinners on visits to forward bases in Saudi Arabia, one of them nearly 80 miles away from the Kuwaiti border and considered risky.

He also joined the troops in religious services aboard the USS Nassau, a helicopter assault carrier.

LAWTON, OK (NOV. 23) UPI - Rescue teams searched Friday in a southwest Oklahoma lake for a civilian instructor pilot missing in the crash of an Army Reserve helicopter training for possible Middle Eastern deployment.

Five members of a Little Rock, Ark., Army Reserve unit were rescued from Ellsworth Lake after the crash about 10 p.m. Thursday. They were reported in good condition at a Fort Sill hospital Friday, spokeswoman Sheila Samples said.

''There are some divers out this morning and when daybreak comes we will have more out there,'' she said.

The UH-1V Huey helicopter went down in about 15 feet of water in the lake a few miles north of Lawton. It was on night navigation training at the Army post, a major deployment center for operation Desert Shield. The 374th Medical Detachment arrived on Nov. 18 for training and possible deployment to the Middle East, she said.

An investigation will be conducted to determine the cause of the accident, Samples said.

PLYMOUTH, MA (NOV. 23) UPI - Social activist and former comedian Dick Gregory says he and his wife will fast on water and fruit juice until American troops are brought home from the Persian Gulf.

Gregory, 58, embarked on his latest fast Thursday at Plymouth Rock while thousands elsewhere in town were enjoying traditional Thanksgiving Day meals.

''I have started that fast now and it's going to continue until all of the American troops come home from the Persian Gulf,'' said Gregory, a Plymouth resident.

''We the people have power. We just have to find ways to show that power. We that believe in God and believe in prayers should turn to God and those prayers ... We in this country have a lot to be thankful for. We have to get in positions of being uncomfortable,'' he said.

Gregory said he was prepared for a long fast.

''I know this is not going to be over before Christmas,'' he said.

With the chatter of sea gulls and tourists in the background, Gregory lead a small group of some 13 supporters in a prayer vigil at Plymouth Rock.

''What a wonderful day to raise consciousness,'' he said, expressing hope his actions would help bring about an end to the Persian Gulf crisis.

He was accompanied by his wife, Lillian, who has joined him on his fasts.

Gregory is a member of Sane/Freeze: Campaign for Global Security. The group, which has some 150,000 members nationwide, seeks to focus public attention on the dangerous possibility of war in the gulf.

Gregory said President Bush is not giving Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein a way out.

''He keeps pushing and pushing and pushing. He just looks like he's looking for a fight,'' Gregory said. ''There's a possibility Bush can back himself into a war if we just let him.''

Gregory, who also has a diet clinic business, has engaged in a number of fasts over the years, including one that lasted 2 1/2 years starting in 1967 to protest the war in Vietnam. He has also fasted against world and domestic hunger, in support of the Equal Rights Amendment and to protest apartheid in South Africa.

Gregory said he plans to go to other cities to talk about the fast and its aims. Among his plans are a march and rally Dec. 1 in Boston as well as a television commercial with Ron Kovic, the Vietnam veteran and author of ''Born on the Fourth of July.''

GRANVILLE, OH (NOV. 23) UPI - A minister who plans to deliver infant formula to Iraq says he is aware of the risk of violating a U.N. embargo by making the delivery.

But the Rev. George Williamson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, said obeying moral law is more important than abiding by civil law.

Williamson plans to join a 12-member group scheduled to leave New York Sunday with food and medicine for the Iraqis.

''Non-violent action (groups) have always considered there to be a moral law higher than civil law,'' Williamson said. ''Civil disobedience has always been a means of bearing witness to the higher moral law.''

Williamson said the U.N. embargo, which includes food, ''is sort of like cruel and unusual punishment. It affects the poor people. The people who are in power are going to have all the food they want.''

Williamson, president of the Baptist Peace Fellowship of North America, said the mission is sponsored by the Fellowship of Reconciliation of Nyack, N.Y.

The group sponsored a similar mission in October, delivering 1,000 pounds of medicine for children's hospitals in Baghdad. The group also returned with two Americans who had been hostages in Iraq, Williamson said.

AMMAN, JORDAN (NOV. 23) UPI - Jordanians, protesting the visit of President Bush to the Middle East, took to the downtown streets after Muslim noon prayers Friday, waving anti-Bush banners and shouting anti-American slogans.

''No to the Bush visit. Yes to the Arab solution,'' and ''By self reliance, we will push you out, Bush,'' read a couple of banners carried by youth who started their march from a Palestinian refugee camp to a downtown square near the Roman Amphitheater where a small rally took place.

An elderly man with an Arab black and white checkered headdress sat on the shoulders of the younger demonstrators and shouted anti-American slogans as his face glowed and glasses fell off his nose. Demonstrators clapped and repeated slogans after him as he flashed a toothless smile and waved his wooden cane in the air.

The protest drew about 1,500 people. Riot police, military police, undercover intelligence and preventive security filled the streets of Amman, but there were no immediate reports of violence.

The demonstrators had hoped they would attract the Muslim Brotherhood after noon prayers at a mosque downtown. Observers, however, were astonished to find there were a lot less worshipers at a mosque usually filled to the sidewalk with worshipers on Fridays.

The Jordanian Arab Nationalist Democratic Alliance, a coalition that includes leftist and nationalist parties and individuals, announced in a press conference earlier in the week that the demonstration would try to attract as many people as possible to protest Bush's visit to the Middle East. The Alliance also advertised in local newspapers and invited the Muslim Brotherhood to participate in the rally.

A leftist activist said that the Muslim Brotherhood ''had purposely not participated in the march to prove that they were more able to mobilize the masses than the left.''

Leftist parties were banned in Jordan by King Hussein in 1957, but the Muslim Brotherhood movement was permitted to work and mobilize the people during large gatherings at mosques. The Islamic movement was able to win the largest number of votes last year in the first free parliamentary elections in almost 30 years and now enjoys the largest single bloc in parliament.

Bush's visit to the region was strongly criticized by the Jordanian public and political parties, describing it as a ''provocation to pinch the Arab people further to kneeling to their hegemony and imperialism.''

The private sector observed a 15-minute strike Thursday to protest against Bush's visit to the region. Government institutions now close on Thursdays and Fridays after new measures were taken last month to conserve energy.

LONDON (NOV. 23) UPI - Royal Navy rescuers found the wreckage of a trawler on the floor of the Irish Sea Friday after it sank when a nuclear submarine snagged one of its nets, apparently killing all four crewmen, officials said.

The operations of U.S. and British submarine fleets in the Irish Sea should be examined, said John Taylor, a member of Parliament from Northern Ireland's Ulster Unionist Party who also represents local fishermen.

The Antares, a 52-foot deep-water trawler from the Scottish port of Carradale, 500 miles north of London on the mouth of the river Clyde, went down Thursday morning off the nearby island of Arran.

A Royal Navy submarine apparently ran into the fishing gear of the Antares, pulling it beneath the sea, Defense Minister Archie Hamilton testified at a House of Commons inquiry hours after the fishing vessel was discovered.

The four-man crew was believed to be dead.

The HMS Trenchant, a nuclear submarine from the nearby base of Faslane, reported noises off its starboard side and surfaced Thursday at 2:40 a.m.

The crew recovered some cable, then continued the mission, said Hamilton.

After a coast guard investigation found a fishing vessel was missing in the area the navy launched a search-and-rescue operation, Hamilton said.

''I can now report that the Antares was discovered on the seabed in the area where the Trenchant reported the previous night's incident. The search for the crew continues, but sadly it now seems extremely unlikely that they will be found alive,'' Hamilton said. ''I know the House will want to join me in expressing condolences to the families.''

The incident is the latest in mishaps involving Scottish fishing vessels and navy submarines, but Hamilton defended the navy's role.

''The Royal Navy has operated submarines in the Clyde area for over 80 years with an excellent safety record,'' he said.

The Royal Navy and the Transport Department will investigate the incident, Hamilton said.

SEABROOK, NH (NOV. 23) UPI - The Seabrook nuclear power plant was restarted Friday morning following a two-week shutdown to repair a series of technical malfunctions, a plant spokesman said.

Ron Sher, a spokesman for Seabrook operator New Hampshire Yankee, said the $6.6 billion plant was operating at 18 percent of reactor capacity. Sher said the power was gradually being increased and was expected to reach 100 percent by Saturday morning.

Seabrook was initially shut down on Nov. 9 when a leak was detected in an air pressure line. Several days later another problem was discovered with a valve position indicator.

Sher said those problems were corrected but a third malfunction was found Tuesday as the plant was being prepared to be put back in operation.

''Operators determined that a valve in a steam line wasn't working properly,'' Sher said. ''On closer examination, it was determined that a piston in the valve was cracked due to thermal expansion and contraction that occurs during heat-up.''

The affected valve is located in the emergency or auxilliary feedwater system, Sher said. That system would provide water to the steam generator during a plant shutdown.

He said the piston probably cracked at that time, and was not an old defect that was just discovered.

''The heat produced during the process caused expansion of the piston and that's what caused the crack,'' Sher said. ''Every indication is that the heat-up was not as even as procedures require.''

He said start-up procedures were being revised to ensure that a similar problem does not happen. But Sher said the malfunctions that have kept Seabrook idle for two weeks are not unusual.

''Power plants of any type have periods in which repairs or adjustments can lead to shutdowns of days or weeks,'' he said. ''We believe that the recent shutdown and repairs will increase the reliability of the plant in the future.''

Sher said Seabrook had operated continuously at 100 percent power for 66 days prior to this shutdown.

Seabrook received its full-power license in March and was placed in permanent operation in August.

At full capacity, the plant produces 1,150 megawatts of power, enough to supply 1 million homes.

(NOV. 23) UPI - President Bush and Egyptian leader Hosni Mubarak held crucial talks in Cairo today on the Persian Gulf crisis. Mubarak, who has shied away from endorsing the use of force to oust Iraq from Kuwait, said today that Kuwait should be liberated ''by all means,'' including military action.

Britain plans to nearly double the size of its force in the Persian Gulf. Defense Secretary Tom King says the government will send 14- thousand more troops to Saudi Arabia. The moves follows repeated demands by King and Prime Minister Thatcher that Iraq to leave Kuwait or be expelled by military force.

But Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov said today he and the entire Council of Ministers will resign if the plan is approved. The blueprint gives Gorbachev expanded powers and practically eliminates the need for a prime minister.

BELGRADE (NOV. 23) UPI - Serbia's main opposition groups decided Friday to boycott the republic's first multi-party elections since 1945 because of the ruling communists' refusal to allow them to help count the ballots.

The 12 parties urged Serbia's 6.4 million voters not to take part in the Dec. 9 polls for the 250-seat assembly and presidency of Yugoslavia's largest republic, effectively denying legitimacy to the contests.

''With the current situation, Serbia, along with (neighboring) Albania, is the only communist ghetto in Europe,'' said a joint statement issued by the parties at a news conference.

There was no immediately comment from the communist regime of Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic.

The boycott was announced a day after the communist-controlled Serbian Assembly overwhelmingly rejected proposed election law amendments that would have given opposition parties seats on the local and republic panels that will administer the polls and count the ballots.

The opposition had demanded inclusion on the communist-dominated commissions because of fears that the Milosevic regime, which has suffered a substantial loss of popularity in recent months, will rig the results to retain power.

In their statement, the opposition parties said that they have withdrawn all their candidates and announced they will hold a protest rally in central Belgrade on Dec. 3 to call for the resignation of the government.

''We call on all citizens not to go to the polls ... as long as conditions for democratic and free elections are not secure,'' the statement said. ''By rejecting the amendments the possibility for democratic elections has disappeared.''

The polls ''will be the biggest electoral theft since 1945, and we shall not give legitimacy to another communist theft,'' declared Vuk Draskovic, the head of the nationalist Serbian Renewal Movement, who was widely regarded as Milosevic's main rival.

''On Thursday, the Serbian Assembly rejected amendments that would have allowed the opposition to supervise the elections,'' Draskovic said. ''Therefore the major opposition parties have taken an irrevocable decision to boycott elections.''

Democratic Party President Dragoljub Micunovic accused the Serbian regime of having a ''fatal love for power, which is very dangerous.''

The opposition parties included the Alliance of Reformist Forces, the coalition formed by federal Prime Minister Ante Markovic to promote his program for Western-style political and economic reforms.

Vojin Dimitrijevic, the head of the alliance's Serbian chapter, said the organization joined the boycott because ''the Serbian Assembly failed to grant even a symbolic concession and because all the major opposition parties are refusing to take part in the polls.''

On Thursday, five minor opposition groups and the main ethnic Albanian party in the province of Kosovo announced they were boycotting the elections, the first multi-party polls set for the republic since the communist takeover of Yugoslavia at the end of World War II in 1945.

Serbia and neighboring Marxist-ruled Montenegro are the last of Yugoslavia's six republics to schedule multi-party elections since the collapse in January of the national communist organization. Montenegro also holds assembly and presidential elections on Dec. 9.

The Serbian polls were regarded as the most important of all of the republic elections because of the impact they would have on Yugoslavia's political future.

Milosevic, seeking to consolidate his power, has been fanning Serbian nationalist passions for the past three years, reigniting fears of Serbian domination of the federation that were held in check by strong central communist rule.

As a result, voters in the two other major republics, Croatia and Slovenia, in April elected nationalist governments, which are now advocating secession from Yugoslavia unless the federation is converted into a confederation of independent states.

Milosevic refused to negotiate with Slovenia and Croatia and said he would not accept confederation unless Serbia was given Serbian-inhabited enclaves in other parts of the country.

(NOV. 23) UPI - Share prices eased slightly Friday on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange in slow trading that concentrated on blue chip stocks. The Tokyo Stock Exchange was closed for a national holiday in Japan.

In Hong Kong, the benchmark Hang Seng Index dropped 7.02 points to end the day at 3016.06. The loss followed a gain of 9.42 points Thursday.

''There wasn't much action out there today,'' said Herman Lam of Asia Equity. ''The market was lifted by late buying of Hong Kong Bank, but the volume was extremely low.''

Utilities were up 0.83, Financials gained 8.89, Industrials fell 14.69 and Properties sank 25.57

Prices edged higher in light trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange as investors awaited Wall Street's reaction to the resignation of Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

Trading was quiet with most institutions staying on the sidelines with holidays in the United States and in Tokyo.

The Straits Times Industrial Index rose 1.23 to 1128.80. The All Singapore Index rose 0.54 to 313.90. Volume was 21.19 million shares.

In Bangkok, prices slipped in thin trading for the fourth consecutive day Friday, with the Securities Exchange of Thailand index dropping 3.33 points to close at 638.95. Volume was described as extremely light.

''The cabinet reshuffle did not make the market any better because it was seen as only a temporary way of solving the problem,'' said Pichai Ponghairoj, first senior vice president from Phatra Thanakit Co.

Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan reshuffled his cabinet Thursday, but the changes were more limited than expected and did not remove ministers who have had conflicts with the military.

''Investors are still uncertain of the government's stability and this decreases their interest in stocks,'' Pichai said.

Elsewhere around the region, in Manila, stocks closed lower on the Manila Stock Exchange for the third straight session. The Manila Composite Stock Index of 25 selected issues shed 10 points to 643.75.

In Taipei, stocks closed higher on the Taiwan Stock Exchange. The Taiwan Weighted Index jumped 312.32 points to 4,926.39.

Meanwhile in Wellington, stock prices closed higher in light trading on the New Zealand Stock Exchange.

The Barclays Share-Price Index gained 5.99 points to 1,306.37.

In Sydney, prices closed slightly lower on the Sydney Stock Exchange. The All Ordinaries Index fell 1.9 points to 1366.6. Holidays in Tokyo and New York kept investors on the sidelines, observers said.

The All Industrials Index fell 0.5 point to 2067.7 and the All Resources Index lost 2.1 points to 824.7.

Volume was a light 58 million shares.

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (NOV. 23) UPI - Masked gunmen Friday opened fire with automatic weapons on a police patrol car on a rural road in Yugoslavia's western republic of Croatia, killing one officer and wounding a second, officials said.

Officials in the Croatian capital of Zagreb, 240 miles west of Belgrade, said the motive was under investigation and no arrests had been made in the pre-dawn attack against the officers, who were said to have been Serbs.

Croatian Interior Minister Josip Boljkovac, however, implied that authorities believed the three gunmen were extremists of the republic's Serbian minority, who in August declared autonomy for Croatia's Serbian enclaves.

The attack occurred at about 2 a.m. outside the Serbian-dominated town of Benkovac, 150 miles south of Zagreb, when three masked gunmen ambushed a police car on routine patrol, raking it with automatic weapons fire, officials said.

Two officers sustained serious wounds, one of whom later died in a hospital, officials said. They said a third officer in the car was unhurt.

The gunmen dragged the officers out of the vehicle, stole their weapons and drove away in the car, officials said. The vehicle was later found abandoned.

Speaking to the Croatian Assembly in Zagreb, Boljkovac said the dead officer was ''the first victim of the highwaymen to die while performing his duty.''

Boljkovac's use of ''highwaymen'' appeared to refer to armed Serbian extremists who have been manning road barricades around Benkovac and several nearby Serbian-dominated towns since Serbs voted in August to authorize their leaders to declare autonomy for Croatia's 600,000 Serbs.

The Serbian National Council, headquartered in the town of Knin, issued the declaration after three days of clashes erupted between Serbs and Croatian police in October, charging that Serbs were being persecuted by the republic's government.

The Croatian administration, formed in May by Croatian nationalists after multi-party elections, alleged the council's action was part of a plot instigated by the communist government of the rival Serbian republic.

The two republics are home to Yugoslavia's two main ethnic groups, which have long harbored hatred for each other. Tensions between the 8.5 million Serbs and 4.6 million Croatians have been rekindled by politicians seeking to exploit a power vacuum left by the demise of strong central communist rule in January.

HUDSON, Ohio (NOV. 23) UPI - As America heads into the holiday shopping period, the big question is what item to buy.

Americans will spend some $12.75 billion on toys this year. But after purchasing a toy, there often is the question of whether it was the right item.

Pat Belby, manager of research and child development for The Little Tikes Co., a Hudson-based manufacturer of plastic toys, offers tips on choosing the right toy. Her years as director of the company's on-site child care center, has given her several ideas on how to shop for the toys.

-Shop Early. Begin your toy search as early as possible while the shelves are still well stocked. When the stores are less crowded, you'll have more time to evaluate and compare.

-Ask Around. It's helpful to talk to other parents and find out what toys their children enjoy most.

-Read. Purchase consumer reports and write the Federal Consumer Products Safety Commission for a free brochure on toy safety.

-Safety First. Your first priority is safety. Stay away from toys with sharp edges, protrusions and pinch points. Look for well made toys.

-Comparison Shop. Compare all similar products to determine the best quality product and compare points of difference between them. Try to buy toys that will last over time.

-Stimulation. Select toys that stimulate your child's mind and body. Look for variety in shapes, activities and color. Toys with multi- purposes - toys that allow for more than one activity are best.

-The Right Fit. Judge whether the toy is the right scale for your child. Use the age recommendations on the packaging as practical guidelines.

-Just Like Mom. Toys based on familiar objects are always popular - children love to copy what grown-ups are doing, especially if the equipment they use is a small version of the real thing.

-Who's Boss. A child tends to enjoy a toy more if he or she is in the driver's seat and can make decisions while playing.

-Proper Supervision. Parents need to properly introduce their child to new toys. This provides the perfect opportunity to set guidelines and parameters for play.

-Masterful Play. Toys should bring some level of success when first tried. If a child does not have skills or dexterity to make a toy work the first time, he or she may become frustrated and abandon all efforts.

-Add On. Toys that complement existing ones will extend play opportunities - a new accessory will add another dimension to the doll house.

-Maintenance. Check your child's toys regularly to make sure everything is in perfect order. Broken equipment must be repaired immediately or removed.

-Call Direct. If you have any questions about a toy, or where to buy it, call the manufacturer direct. Many toy companies have 800 numbers.

OTTAWA (NOV. 23) UPI - Canada's Finance Department and central bank already are gearing up for Quebec's possible secession, including monetary union between English and French-speaking Canada, a leading Quebec economist said Friday.

Pierre Fortin, economics professor at the University of Quebec in Montreal, said in a telephone interview the Finance Department was calculating Quebec's share of the national debt, estimated to be $400 billion, while the Bank of Canada was considering a future monetary union.

''They are doing their homework. Competent managers should be prepared to face the worst scenario,'' Fortin said.

Fortin estimated Quebec would be responsible for 23 percent or 24 percent of the national debt, but would get credit for its share of about $120 billion worth of federal buildings and other assets scattered across the country.

''There is a stunning ignorance outside Quebec of what is happening,'' Fortin said, adding that nearly 65 percent of Quebecers now favor sovereignty. ''There's a big train coming and the momentum of that train is very strong,'' he said.

A spokesman for the Department of Finance in Ottawa said he was unaware of any special project concerning Quebec's possible autonomy but did not rule out the possibility the government was working on it.

A spokesperson for the Bank of Canada said: ''The only thing I can tell you is the bank keeps up on different points of view.''

A commission sponsored by the Quebec government, which is to report next spring on the province's political and constitutional future, is expected to call for sweeping changes in Quebec's relationship with Canada.

Fortin said the commission, which is conducting public hearings throughout the province, is hearing mainly from those who want the province to separate or believe it should be far more automonous.

He said the commission probably would urge Quebec to negotiate autonomy over the environment, justice, communications, education, health and culture.

''These are very profound changes,'' he said.

Quebec, which rejected separation in a historic 1981 referendum, has been reconsidering the question since the defeat in June of the so- called Meech Lake accord, a proposed constitutional amendment that would have given the province broad powers to promote and protect its French language and culture.

The amendment required the consent of all ten provinces, but two refused to endorse it. Quebec took the defeat as a rejection of French- speaking Canadians.

CHICAGO (NOV. 23) UPI - Retailers looking to cut their theft losses would do well to leave the customers alone and keep a wary eye on their own employees, according to a new survey.

Employee theft accounts for seven times more revenue loss for retailers than shoplifting, said the annual loss-prevention survey by Ernst & Young, released Friday.

The survey, ''An Ounce of Prevention,'' showed retailers reported $2.2 billion in 1989 theft losses, an average of $21 million for the 160 companies responding and an increase of 10 percent compared to 1988.

''The average recovery per employee apprehended was $1,350, compared to an average of just $196 recovered from each customer taken into custody, even though 93 percent of those apprehended were customers,'' said Gerald Smith, who heads the firm's retail group in Chicago.

Smith said it's not just a ''front door-back door'' problem as employees learn how to manipulate the sales system to steal both money and merchandise.

The survey said 45 percent of thefts were detected at the point-of- sale, the cash register.

Common methods of employee theft included ringing up a sale and then voiding it, doing a phony return and undercharging friends for merchandise. About 10 percent of the thefts were reported in the stock area.

''At a time like this with retail sales slowing down, it's more important than ever for retailers to find ways to save money,'' Smith said. ''By reducing losses caused by thefts, retailers can help offset sluggish sales to some degree.

Drug abuse contributed to employee theft, with more than 50 percent reporting evidence of drug use by those apprehended. Those retailers estimated 30 percent of customer apprehensions and 25 percent of employee arrests were drug-related.

In 1989 retailers spent $2.5 million, on average, to combat shrinkage, or loss by theft, 20 percent more than in 1988.

The survey was co-sponsored by the International Mass Retail Association.

PROVIDENCE, RI (NOV. 23) UPI - Student outcry over sexual assaults on women and anonymously posted lists of alleged male rapists on bathroom walls has prompted Brown University to require special orientation seminars starting next fall for freshmen, an official said Friday.

The Ivy League university will also see to it that every student who comes forward with an assault or harassment complaint is provided with a trained advocate who will follow their case through, said Robert Reichley, executive vice president.

''The fact of the matter is there have been many mechanisms by which woman who have suffered any kind of assault or harassment could bring their case forward '' Reichley said.

''What we are trying to do most is make sure that henceforth ... we are going to, in addition, provide an advocate. That person will be there to provide help and counseling to whoever wishes to pursue a case, '' he said.

The steps are being taken in the wake of a stormy forum on campus last week in which members of the audience - most of them women - criticized university officials for being insensitive and indifferent to the issues of sexual assault and harassment.

Much of the controversy that led to the forum came from an anonymously authored ''rape list'' that has appeared repeatedly on the walls of bathrooms on campus.

The list has contained as many as 30 names of male students who women allege raped them. In turn, men who have been named have complained to the university though administration officials say there is little they can do because the charges against them have been made anonymously.

Reichley said the university sympathizes with the anger that women on campus feel, but he said the school in no way condones the list. Janitors have been scrubbing the list away when they find it and will continue to do so, he said.

''It is no more fair and just for women to write on a wall accusing men of a serious crime, and to do so anonymously, than it is for men to write the names of women on restroom walls and suggest they are available,'' Reichley said.

Reichley said the university will issue a lengthier announcement Monday on steps it plans to take regarding sexual assault and harassment on campus.

WARSAW, POLAND (NOV. 23) UPI - Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki said Friday that Poland is unable to service its foreign debt and called on the West, including the United States, to help the government's bold reforms with extra aid for the next two years.

Opening a one-day conference of the Group of 24, the world's most developed countries, Mazowiecki said Poland made substantial progress last year but needs more help to turn its communist economic system into a capitalist one.

He said inflation dropped from 80 percent in January to 4 percent in November and the country has a surplus $3.5 billion in its foreign trade budget.

''We are closer to a market economy,'' he said.

But he said Poles paid a high price for the progress: industrial production dropped 23 percent, real wages 33 percent and unemployment topped 1 million.

Mazowiecki said a primary concern is his government's inability to service its $42 billion foreign debt.

Poland was granted a moratorium on interest payments until March 1 and the debt is expected to rise to $46 billion by Dec. 31.

''We are unable to pay $4 billion as the debt service, which makes 40 percent of Poland's export income,'' the premier said.

He made no concrete proposal but stressed, ''It is a necessity to lessen the duty dealing with the debt servicing.''

In his address to Parliament Thursday, Mazowiecki said President Bush sent him a letter in which he promised to cancel part of Poland's debt to the United States.

Witold Trzeciakowski, minister in charge of economic affairs, said Poland's needs are high because practically all branches of the economy have to be restructured.

''The Group of 24 will shape Poland's future,'' Trzeciakowski said, noting that Poland is a laboratory for the rest of Eastern Europe.

Trzeciakowski said Poland is planning to speed up privatization of state-owned plants and joked that even British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who resigned Thursday, did it too slowly in her country.

''If we followed that pace, we would privatize our plants in the next 446 years,'' he said.

Brussels was the site for previous meetings of G-24, which agreed last year to provide economic aid to the emerging democracies in Eastern Europe. This meeting was held in Warsaw to allow the ambassadors of the 24 countries to listen to Polish needs.

Representatives of the World Bank, International Monetary Fund and the new European Bank for Reconstruction and Development also took part in the conference.

The conference was not expected to take definitive decisions but only to hear of Poland's priorities for the next two years.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (NOV. 23) UPI - The Christian hardline Lebanese Forces militia Friday gathered its forces and weapons as a prelude to leaving east Beirut as Lebanese Army troops were poised to take over the last militia stronghold in the city, security sources said.

More than 800 LF militiamen in military fatigues and carrying machine guns assembled at the militia headquarters in the seaside area of Karantina, witnesses said.

Security sources said 200 military vehicles will be withdrawn to the Christian heartland of Kesrouwan in northern Beirut during the night.

''We have evacuated some positions and we will complete assembling our forces within the coming 48 hours,'' said an LF source.

The source said the evacuation will go simultaneously with the deployment of Army units in the neighborhoods of Ashrafiyeh and Karantina.

The militia agreed Thursday to relinquish its east Beirut strongholds after intensive negotiations with the government of Syrian-backed President Elias Hrawi.

Under their agreement, offices of the LF and Phalange Party that have been occupied in the Metn area by pro-Syrian Christian militiamen since the Oct. 13 ouster of Gen. Michel Aoun were handed over early Friday.

The LF was the military wing of the Phalange Party that was founded by Pierre Gemayel in 1936.

The move met some conditions by the militia commander, Samir Geagea, to facilitate a government plan to demilitarize and unify the war-torn capital.

Hrawi's government had set Nov. 19 as a deadline for the withdrawal of all militias and deployment of the Lebanese Army to maintain law-and- order in unified capital.

But Geagea has linked disbanding of his militia in east Beirut to the presence of rival militiamen from the breakaway Lebanese Forces militia of Elie Hobeika and the Syrian Social National Party.

Geagea, a Maronite, also demanded that troops from the army's mainly Maronite Fifth Brigade be deployed inside Ashrafiyeh.

The army commander, Gen. Emile Lahoud, expressed opposition to any army deployment involving sectarian considerations.

The estimated 35,000-man Lebanese army was split along sectarian lines as a result of the 15-year civil war, but Lahoud has appeared bent on injecting nationalistic spirit among the war-battered regulars.

Security sources said law and security in the Christian areas will be entrusted to the mainly Shiite Sixth Brigade, the largely Sunni Second Brigade and the Maronite Fifth Bridage.

The sources said a joint team of Lebanese and Syrian officers crossed to Ashrafiyeh to inspect positions which would be manned by the Lebanese soldiers after the takeover.

NEW YORK (NOV. 23) UPI - Ivana Trump has temporarily blocked husband Donald's chances of selling or borrowing against the three homes they shared in happier days, it was learned Friday.

Manhattan Supreme Court Judge Phyllis Gangel-Jacob issued a temporary restraining order against the financially embattled real estate tycoon earlier this week in answer to a petition by his estranged wife, according to court records.

Ivana, who filed for divorce earlier this month, requested the order to prevent her husband from selling their Trump Tower apartment in New York, their country mansion in Greenwich, Conn., and their Palm Beach, Fla., resort home or borrowing against them to obtain needed funds.

Trump must appear in Supreme Court Dec. 4 to present arguments as to why control of the three properties should not be taken from him.

Ivana's attorney has said she wants half Trump's assets as a divorce settlement instead of the $25 million provided by a pre-marital agreement, which may now be moot. Trump, once believed to be worth $1.7 billion, now is debt due to business reverses.

Trump's attorney, Stanley Lotwin, denied that Trump planned to sell any of the couple's homes despite reports that at least one of them, the $12 million Mar-A-Lago estate in Palm Beach, has been shown to potential buyers. The 8-acre waterfront estate was built by cereal heiress Marjorie Post in the 1920s.

Also named in Gangel-Jacob's order is a Trump Tower triplex apartment valued at $5 million and probably worth more, and a $7 million Greenwich, Conn., mansion used by the Trumps for weekends. Ivana has been living in the triplex and visiting the Greenwich property regularly with her three children since she separated from her husband in January amid reports of his relationship with aspiring actress Marla Maples.

Trump negotiated a deal last week with bondholders to save his Taj Mahal gambling facility in Atlantic City, N.J., from bankruptcy by letting the bond holders in on control of the casino-hotel, which must take in $1 million a week to break even and has been grossing much less.

His remaining assets include two other Atlantic City casinos, New York's Hotel Plaza, the Trump Princess yacht, and a condo complex that has failed to sell out in Palm Beach. He also owns the largest privately held plot of undeveloped land in Manhattan, a West Side property where he once planned to build a towering ''television city.''

(NOV. 23) UPI - President Bush and Egypt's President Hosni Mubarak held two hours of crucial talks today in Cairo on the Persian Gulf crisis. Afterwards, Mubarak told reporters he supported the military option against Iraq. But Mubarak, who last week said Egyptian troops would NOT be used in any attack against Iraq, failed to say whether his own forces would help U-S-led troops oust Iraq from Kuwait.

Bush and Secretary of State Baker are in a race against time to try to line up the 15 U-N Security Council members to support military sanctions against Iraq if necessary. After his meeting with Mubarak, Bush flies to Geneva, Switzerland, this morning to huddle with Syria's President Hafez Assad before heading back to Washington. Assad, a passionate foe of Iraq's Saddam Hussein, has contributed seven-thousand troops to the multinational force in Saudi Arabia.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and his Chinese counterpart ended an unexpected meeting in western China today with a renewed call for Iraq to withdraw immediately from Kuwait. Both the Soviet Union and China appear to be backing down from earlier objections to the use of military force. But after today's 90-minute talks between the Soviet and Chinese foreign ministers, China's official news agency declined to say whether Qian Qichen committed China to support of a U-N resolution authorizing military force against Iraq.

British Prime Minister Thatcher's resignation is drawing worldwide reactions of both admiration and relief. Leaders from the United States to the Soviet Union to Japan and Israel expressed regret that Thatcher is stepping down. But others were not quite so diplomatic. The secretary-general of Germany's Conservative Christian Union said the the time is right for her to step down. And in Argentina, which lost a war to Britain in the 1980's, President Carlos Menem warned Argentines not to ''delude themselves'' into thinking Britain will be more flexible now that Thatcher is leaving office.

Japan's new emperor today completed his ascension to the throne in a shrouded pre-dawn religious ceremony in Tokyo. The six-hour ritual began last night and was capped by Akihito's offering newly harvested rice to a mythical sun goddess in a ceremony witnessed by only two court maids assisting him. Earlier this month, the 56-year-old emperor proclaimed to the world his ascension to Japan's Chrysanthemum Throne in an elaborate public ceremony witnessed by representatives of 158 nations and Millions of Japanese watching on live television.

An American computer lecturer who could face execution under Malaysia's harsh drug laws testified at his drug trial today in Kuala Lumpur that he used marijuana as a pain reliever for injuries he had suffered as a youth. 38-year-old Kerry Wiley told the court he had read and kept data on the medicinal value of marijuana. The California man was arrested a year ago after customs officers raided his house in a suburb of Kuala Lumpur and found nine-point-four ounces of marijuana in six tin cans.

LAKE CITY, PA (NOV. 23) UPI - The mother of a serviceman stationed in Saudi Arabia says her son was taken to task for taking his guitar when he reported for active duty. But a soldier can spend only so much time filling sandbags and building bunkers, and music is much in demand.

Army Cpl. Norman Dale Ritchey directs howitzer fire for the 18th Corps of the Army's 82nd Airborne Division. A budding musician, he decided on impulse to take his acoustic guitar with him when he was sent to the Middle East as part of Operation Desert Shield 2 1/2 months ago.

''I've been playing the heck out of my guitar,'' Ritchey wrote to his family on Oct. 15. ''From the sounds of things, I must have the only guitar within 1,500 miles of here.''

Ritchey, who celebrated his 25th birthday Monday, was sent to Saudi Arabia ahead of most of his unit. He saw an opportunity to pack his instrument when he was helping to load a truck.

But Ritchey paid a price for doing so. Louise Ritchey said her son's punishment included having to shave his head and do 14 extra days of duty. He also had to play for chaplain services one Sunday - a lighter side of his punishment.

The guitar has become a fixture of tent life for soldiers who have a few free hours during evenings.

''... Me and a few other guys sit around, sing songs and make up songs about our commander,'' Ritchey wrote. ''Sounds corny but it's either that or 500 rummy and cards get real boring after six or seven hundred hands.''

Mrs. Ritchey said her son operates a computer, directing soldiers who fire howitzers. During the days, his unit has been filling sandbags, building bunkers and practicing artillery fire.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 23) UPI - As many Americans take pause this time of year to give thanks for what they have, New York vagrants are asking the nation's highest court to grant them one special wish: the right to beg in the city's subway system.

A group of the city's poorest residents, in a class-action suit, claim 1989 regulations prohibiting panhandling but allowing other forms of charitable solicitation in the massive subway system violates their First Amendment right to free speech and their 14th Amendment guarantee to equal protection.

The Supreme Court could announce as early as Monday whether it will review the case or let the ban on begging stand.

Twenty-five states have statutes restricting begging. Homeless rights advocates contend the subway case is another government effort to deny a growing national problem.

The New York City Transit Authority says the ban was implemented to improve safety for the 3.5 million people who pay to use the 468-station subway system daily, noting that its own study showed most riders had been intimidated into giving money to beggars.

Others claim if similar sorts of speech are permitted in the subway system, begging cannot be indiscriminately banned.

The transit agency, backed by the state of New York, ''singled out begging for disfavored treatment because of their conviction that a stranger's request for money for herself is inherently threatening and intimidating, while a stranger's request for money for someone else is not,'' wrote the Legal Action Center for the Homeless, counsel for the panhandlers.

''In (the transit agency's) view the words 'give to me' are alarming but the words 'give to my charity' are innocuous,'' the group wrote in its appeal to the high court. ''It is difficult to imagine a clearer example of a regulation that accords 'preferential treatment' to the expression of views on one particular subject.''

The National Coalition for the Homeless, which says that in New York alone more than 250,000 adults suffer from chronic hunger, claims if the regulations are allowed to stand, it would open the way for states and locales to ban begging in a wider range of circumstances.

''The First Amendment does not permit the governmental suppression of unwelcome news or repugnant ideas,'' the group told the high court. ''The same First Amendment that protects the right of one to burn our national flag and wear obscene expressions, despite the effect on others, must surely protect the disabled person who rattles a coin in a cup, and does no more than speak to passersby. The government simply has no business choosing which speech it shall allow, based solely on how uncomfortable the message makes the listener.''

The transit agency says allowing peaceful solicitation for charities, which does not interfer with a passenger's ''safety or comfort,'' should not in turn require it to support begging that it has found to be ''inherently intimidating to subway users.''

That view was upheld by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The class-action suit was appealed to the high court, which has the option of accepting the case and deciding it on its merits, or rejecting it out of hand, which would let the begging prohibition stand.

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (NOV. 23) UPI - The ruling communists and the alliance of federal Prime Minister Ante Markovic suffered severe defeats in the first round of polls for a new government and assembly in Yugoslavia's Bosnia-Herzegovina republic, official results showed Friday.

The results of polling Nov. 18 said parties representing the republic's three major ethnic groups won posts on the seven-man collective presidency and the largest shares of seats in the bicameral legislature.

About 75 percent of 3 million eligible voters cast ballots in the opening round of the republic's first multi-party elections since the communist takeover of Yugoslavia at the end of World War II in 1945.

Under the republic's election rules, the 130-member Chamber of Citizens was chosen in its entirety in the first round, with no party receiving a majority.

Officials in the capital of Sarajevo said the Party of Democratic Action, which represents the republic's Moslems, won 42 seats, followed by the Serbian Democratic Party with 36 seats and the Croatian Democratic Union with 20 seats.

The ruling communists secured only 12 seats, while the Alliance of Democratic Forces, formed by Markovic to promote his Western-style economic and political reforms, had 11 seats. Independents won nine seats.

In the contests for the state presidency, the Moslem, Serbian and Croatian parties won two seats each and the seventh went to a candidate claiming Yugoslav nationality.

Second-round voting will be held Dec. 2 in 55 races for the 110-seat Chamber of Municipalities, where no party won more than 50 percent of the first-round votes.

Officials said that in the first round, the Serbian Democratic Party won 25 seats, the Party of Democratic Action took 17 seats and the Croatian Democratic Union secured 13 seats.

NEW YORK (NOV. 23) UPI - Broadway star Lee Roy Reams is bringing a special brand of showmanship to cabaret with a musical biography that takes him from Covington, Ky., to the top of the entertainment world.

Currently appearing at the Rainbow and Stars, the 65th floor Rockefeller Center aerie, Reams conveys all the vitality and personal charm in his nightly concert that he demonstrated for seven years in ''42nd Street'' in the lead role of Billy Lawlor.

One of his opening songs, ''Song and Dance Man,'' written for him by Cheryl Hardwick, reminds us that he is one of the great song and dance men of this generation, even though dance is not a part of his cabaret program.

However, his movements in the tiny space allotted performers at Rainbow and Stars are so choreographed that we get the effect of dancing.

Reams starts with his star-struck boyhood in Kentucky, living just across the river from culturally rich Cincinnati, and takes us on a tour of a career that included a stint as ''Little Lee Roy'' at Grand Ole Opry (recalled by a song titled ''Y'All Come'') and appearances in ''Sweet Charity'' and ''Applause'' on Broadway before ''42nd Street'' made him a star.

''Top of the world, Ma!'' he exclaims, motioning to the panoramic skyline beyond the windows of Rainbow and Stars, which is often literally in the clouds. He then launches into ''The Rose,'' a song dedicated to his ''mama.''

''No matter where I'm performing, I still think of myself as a child in Covington,'' he says with no trace of embarrassment.

He is a child who grew up handsome in a 1920s vaudeville headliner way, always ready with a naughty wink. He has a penchant for imitating such oft-imitated showbiz ladies as Marlene Dietrich, Tallulah Bankhead, Mae West, and Carol Channing, with whom he toured in ''Dolly.'' He even sits on the piano for a rendition of ''I Only Have Eyes for You.''

Reams ends his show with the title song of ''La Cage aux Folles,'' a show in which he has played the Albin-Zaza role. Although he flaunts a red ostrich feather boa and assumes a suggestive air, he is never campy, a tribute to the innate good taste that instructs his entire performance.

He sings 20-odd songs, accompanied by Keith Thompson on the piano, Michael Berkovitz on drums and Jared Egin on bass, looking very much the boulevardier in dinner jacket and red pocket handkerchief. His patter is witty and intimate and he is at his best in Stephen Sondheim's insinuating, romantic ballad, ''Pretty Women,'' from ''Sweeney Todd.''

Other highlights are an Irving Berlin medley ending with ''Always,'' which Reams notes was written for the composer's wife, Ellin Mackay Berlin, and such Broadway paeans as Harry Warren's ''Lullaby of Broadway'' and Arthur Freed's ''Broadway Rhythm.''

He gets the most out of two beautiful songs about friendship, ''Dear Friend,'' by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick and ''My Old Friend'' by Gretchen Cryer and Nancy Ford. His most heartfelt moments comes in the latter with the words, ''We wonder why we do it and the pain of getting through it...''

This is Reams's first New York night club appearance in seven years and should not be missed by anyone interested in exceptional cabaret entertainment.

(NOV. 23) UPI - Saying they are losing their patience with Iraq's Saddam Hussein , President Bush and Egyptian leader Hosni Mubarak today announced they're in ''complete'' agreement on the Persian Gulf crisis. The two leaders emerged from two- and-a-half hours of talks in Cairo talking tough about dealing with Saddam. Bush said they've NOT given up on a peaceful solution, but he said ''steps must be taken'' to remove Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

Mubarak fully endorsed Bush's proposal to keep military force as an option against Iraq. But the Egyptian leader sidestepped questions on whether Egyptian troops would be sent to fight alongside the multi- national forces. Said Mubarak- ''I'm NOT in a position to tell you the details. But we have our plan coordinated with all the forces there.''

The Cambodian government says it has ruled out any reduction or disarmament of troops in a U-N peace settlement because the Khmer Rouge resistance group shouldn't be trusted. The government, backed by its major allies Vietnam and the Soviet Union, issued a joint statement today just before the opening of talks in Paris between the five permanent members of the U-N Security Council on their efforts to end Cambodia's 12-year conflict.

In Yugoslavia, major opposition groups in the republic of Serbia say they'll boycott the state's first multi-party elections since 1945. The reason, they say, is because of the ruling communists' refusal to allow them to participate in the vote-counting process. Representatives of at least seven major opposition groups announced their decision to withdraw from the December 9th contests at a news conference today.

LONDON (NOV. 23) UPI - Normally staid and unruffled British commuters talked about it on the London Underground. Office workers partied and book- makers reported a booming trade in bets on Margaret Thatcher's successor as prime minister.

London was in the midst of an air of disbelief and celebration Friday, a resignation hangover.

Thatcher, the long-lived Iron Lady of British politics, was effectively history, and whether or not they agreed with her policies, people felt a gap in their lives - the loss of a favorite hate figure or a cherished leader.

Hundreds of bouquets were laid at the gates of Westminster during her farewell speech in the British Parliament. Fans spoke movingly of her importance as a role model, even though her political ideologies may have never made a dent in their lives.

Bookstores reported a booming trade in instant Thatcher memorabilia.

''The telephone has not stopped. It's remarkable. They want Thatcher mugs, T-shirts, postcards, anything they can get their hands on,'' said Keith Read, manager of a bookstore near Westminster.

Office workers in the city's financial district reported a festive atmosphere after Thatcher's resignation.

''We've had two days of partying in the office. A lot of it is 'ding- dong the witch is dead' sort of stuff,'' said Julia Meehan, an analyst with a consultant firm.

Many said that Thatcher's surprise resignation Thursday morning, after announcing she would continue to fight for her Conservative Party's leadershp position the night before, would rank as one of the most memorable public moments of their lives, comparing it to the assasination of John F. Kennedy that fell by coincidence on the same date, Nov. 22.

''My first thought was, 'Gosh,''' said a 24 year-old office worker, recounting the moment when she saw the news splashed on the headlines of the mid-morning tabloids.

''I just never thought she'd go,'' she said.

Thatcher, prime minister for 11 1/2 years, and Tory party leader for 15 years, had been at the helm of British politics for as long as she could remember, she said.

The young woman felt no personal allegiance to Thatcher's brand of economic reform, but said she was sad to see her go.

''It's going to go downhill. People don't know how to run the country anymore '' she said.

In fact, the question of succession to the prime minister's position was a favorite subject, especially at the city's bookmakers, or turf accountants, in polite terminology.

The three-way contest between Conservative renegade Michael Heseltine, Chancellor John Major and Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd means booming business and the chance of a killing for bettors.

''It's always been a race where you could get a decent price for your fancy,'' said Graham Sharpe, a turf accountant at William Hill Bookmakers.

Sharpe said the odds were 3-to-1 that the race would go to the third ballot next week, and Major, the previous underdog, moved into the pole position Friday at even odds for his victory.

''There's been enormous five, ten, 50 and 100 pound interest. It goes across all areas. Everybody has an opinion,'' he said.

GENEVA (NOV. 23) UPI - President Bush arrived Friday for an emergency meeting with Syrian leader Hafez al-Assad, a longtime adversary and suspected backer of terrorism, about their united stand against Saddam Hussein.

The hastily called talks on neutral Swiss turf cap an eight-day European and Middle East tour by Bush, seeking global support for possible military force to free Kuwait of Saddam's Iraqi troops.

Syria, a hard-line Arab state accused by the State Department of sponsoring terrorism, has pledged to send 15,000 troops to the U.S.-led multinational force arrayed against Iraq.

Bush, who met earlier Monday in Cairo with Eygptian President Hosni Mubarak, brushed off criticism from Israel for his decision to become the first U.S. president to meet with a Syrian leader since Jimmy Carter did in 1977.

''I have no problem sitting down with him,'' said Bush. ''This relates to the reversal of aggression, not only in the interest of the United States but to every country in the Middle East and that includes Israel.''

''Mr. Assad is lined up with us on the commitment of force,'' Bush said. ''That doesn't mean we don't have differences with Syria ... but they will be on the front line.''

The meeting was arranged this week at the urging of Arab leaders.

Although relations between the United States and Syria remain strained, they have thawed noticeably since Assad committed troops to protect Saudi Arabia from a possible attack by Iraq.

The Syrian government has joined other Arab nations in condemning Iraq, but has distanced itself from suggestions that military action may have to be taken to end Iraq's nearly 4-month-old occupation of Kuwait.

Bush was expected to ask Assad how Syria would react in case of a war between U.S.-led forces and Iraq. He was also likely to seek help in obtaining the release of six American hostages thought to be held in Beirut.

The president and Mubarak, following their 2 1/2-hour talk, both expressed support for possible military force against Iraq.

Bush said he and Mubarak have not given up on a peaceful solution, but added, ''We are getting tired of the status quo and so is the rest of the world.''

Mubarak sidestepped questions on whether Egyptian troops would be sent to fight alongside multinational forces. ''I'm not in a position to tell you the details,'' he told reporters.

During the past week, Bush has found mixed support for military force.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl told him that a greater emphasis should be placed on trying to find a negotiated settlement. Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev advocated patience.

They both said that U.N.-mandated sanctions should be given more time to pressure Saddam to peacefully withdraw from Kuwait, although they said that force should not be ruled out.

Bush has called for a U.N. hearing next week on the treatment of the Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, apparently in an effort to build support for a U.N. resolution that would authorize a military strike.

The United States holds the chairmanship of the 15-member U.N. Security Council until the end of November. The post rotates on a monthly basis and Yemen is next in line.

Yemen leaders, in a setback to the U.S. position, told Secretary of State James Baker on Thursday that they oppose the presence and possible use of force in the Persian Gulf.

During the past week, Bush made stops in Czechoslovakia, Germany, Paris, Saudi Arabia and Egypt. He also gave a Thanksgiving Day pep talk to U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

Senate leader Robert Dole of Kansas and House Speaker Thomas Foley of Washington, who joined Bush on his tour of U.S. troops Thursday, said Bush's trip should not be viewed as a drive toward war.

Appearing on the CBS ''This Morning'' program Friday, the two said the trek was used to fortify the United States' position and to keep options open.

Dole said Bush ''may have helped his cause'' in lining up support.

''I think it means we're prepared, we're going to be more prepared and the president's keeping his options open, as is Congress, I might add,'' Dole said.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (NOV. 23) UPI - President Corazon Aquino rejected Friday a Kuwaiti request for military aid because she needs the troops to maintain order at home, but did agree to provide humanitarian aid, a senior aide said.

Aquino's position was conveyed to Yahya Fahad Al-Sumait, a special envoy of the exiled Kuwait government who called at the presidential palace, Finance Secretary Jesus Estanislao said.

''He asked if we could see our way through providing military personnel and the statement of the president is that we're busy here with our own, thanks, while we have an excess of doctors and nurses,'' Estanislao said.

''So we're providing them humanitarian aid but we cannot provide them military aid,'' said Estanislao.

Aquino, whose government is battling rebel soldiers and communist insurgents, has announced the Philippines will send a medical team to Saudi Arabia.

Al-Sumait, who was guest at a luncheon at the palace, said he was satisfied with his meeting with Aquino but refused to publicly discuss the request for troops.

He said he delivered the message of the Kuwaiti emir to Aquino and expressed ''profound appreciation and thanks'' for the support of the Philippine government.

On Thursday, Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus told Al-Sumait the Philippines will support a U.N. resolution authorizing the use of force against Iraq if a peaceful solution to the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait becomes impossible.

NEW YORK (NOV. 23) UPI - The Cuban economy is so disabled that Castro's government is selling off millions of dollars worth of national art treasures to raise needed funds, it was reported Friday.

The Journal of Art, a leading art monthly, said the exportation of artworks and antiques from Cuba to Europe, strictly prohibited by Cuban law, has become a commonplace occurrence through the aegis of Cubalse, a state-run agency.

Two important works from the National Museum of Fine Arts in Havana recently were sold at Sotheby's in London for a total of $4.5 million, the magazine said. They were identified as Antonio Sorolla's ''Bulls Embarking on a Boat'' and ''Beach in Valencia,'' considered masterpieces of Spanish Impressionism.

''Ostensibly, Cubalse's primary function is enforcing the legal prohibition of art commerce with foreign nations,'' the publication said. ''However, the organization secretly deals precisely with the international dealing of artworks for profit.''

The Journal of Art said it had confirmed the existence of Cubalse and its split role through individuals associated with the Cuban embassy in Madrid, although they vehemently denied that works are dispersed by the agency for financial gain.

''Another major Cuban holding to pass through London for sale was the ''

which Christie's sold in 1988,'' the magazine reported.

''Although Cuba certainly cannot be accused of flooding the market with its cultural treasures, the frequency with which Cuban works are appearing in the international arena suggests a marked shift in the government's method of coping with its disabled economy.''

OTTAWA (NOV. 23) UPI - The Canadian government confirmed Friday the annual deficit for the current year will be at least $1.2 billion higher than estimated in the last annual budget, mainly because of higher interest charges on its debt.

In addition, the government was short $4 billion on its spending estimates in the February budget covering the current fiscal year.

Most of the shortfall will be absorbed by various departments, among them environment, agriculture, and employment and immigration and increased tax revenues from corporations and individuals. The rest, about $1.5 billion, must be raised through additional borrowing, including new governent bond issues.

''We have decided to tighten the belt once more,'' Treasury Board Minister Gilles Loiselle told Parliament. Loiselle, who oversees departmental spending, said most of the program cuts would involve travel expenses, attending conferences and other discretionary spending.

Loiselle attributed $2.1 billion of the shortfall to increased interest charges on the country's huge national debt - the total of all previous deficits - estimated to be $315 billion. The government had forecast in its last budget that interest rates would be about 11.1 percent.

But the Bank of Canada, in its attempt to fight inflation, kept rates above 13 percent for most of the year and has only recently allowed them to fall below that level. On Thursday, the Bank of Canada set its rate at 12.25 percent.

The deficit figures give the government little room to maneuver amid the current economic recession that has hit most of Canada in the last couple of months. Specifically, there is no money for job creation programs that would help alleviate growing unemployment or the need for job retraining.

Meanwhile Friday, the government announced it was spending nearly $290 million to fund its military contribution to the Persian Gulf crisis. Canada sent a supply ship and two destroyers to the Gulf in September, along with 1800 troops.

The government also announced plans to spend $94.6 million to assist farmers hit hard to lower commodity prices and a similar amount for the country's contribution to the U.S. space station.

(NOV. 23) UPI - President Bush has left Cairo, heading for Geneva, Switzerland, where he's to meet with Syrian President Hafez Assad later today on settling the Persian Gulf crisis. Bush told reporters after a 19-hour visit to Egypt that Assad is- quote- ''lined up with us on the commitment of force'' to oust Iraq from Kuwait. But says Bush- ''That doesn't mean we don't have differences with Syria.''

Earlier, Bush met with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak for more than two hours after spending Thanksgiving with U-S troops in the Saudi desert. The two leaders told reporters afterward that they're losing their patience with Iraq's Saddam Hussein. They also agreed that ''steps must be taken'' to keep Saddam in check after the gulf crisis is settled.

Social activist Dick Gregory says he and his wife will fast on water and fruit juice until American troops are brought home from the Persian Gulf. The 58-year-old former comedian embarked on his latest fast yesterday at Plymouth Rock, Massachussetts... while Millions of other Americans were enjoying traditional Thanksgiving Day meals. Gregory says he's prepared for a long fast.

Divers are searching a southwest Oklahoma lake this morning for a civilian instructor missing in last night's crash of an Army Reserve helicopter. An Army spokesman says the Huey helicopter crashed in Ellsworth Lake north of Lawton during night navigation training for possible deployment to the Middle East. Five members of an Arkansas Army Reserve unit were rescued from the lake after the crash and are reported in good condition at Fort Sill hospital.

In Michigan, government investigators today are trying to determine what caused a small plane to crash near Gaylord, killing four members of a Dexter family and injuring two other people. The single-engine Piper crashed in a wooded area in Elmira Township, west of Gaylord, Thanksgiving Eve. Authorities say the plane hit a number of trees and broke into several pieces.

Dean Bosler says many customers are waiting until after December 3rd to buy furniture because a New Mexico climatologist has predicted a major earthquake around that date in the New Madrid fault zone that includes much of Indiana. But Bosler is telling customers if they buy now and a quake hits between December 1st and December 6th, they don't have to pay.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 23) UPI - President Bush's warning that an Iraqi nuclear weapon may be only months away is not supported by recent assessments from experts inside and outside of the U.S. government.

Although he said no one can know when Iraq will become a nuclear power, Bush told a military audience in Saudi Arabia on Thanksgiving Day that those who estimate the time needed in terms of years ''may be seriously underestimating the reality of that situation.''

Bush thus made clear this week what he had warned about two weeks ago when he talked of ''incalculable consequences'' if Saddam Hussein were not stopped.

Leonard Spector of the Carnegie Endowment for Peace, in his recent book ''Nuclear Ambitions,'' says, ''Iraq has begun a program to build a uranium enrichment plant and to acquire components for nuclear arms, steps which could permit it to manufacture nuclear weapons within the next five to 10 years.''

A government expert, speaking on the basis of no further identification, takes a more pessimistic view. ''Whether it is one or two or five years off, Iraq is on the course for producing nuclear weapons.''

Recent evidence has come to light that Iraq this year tried, and failed, to get the kind of electronic switches and capacitors required for the precise timing for a Uranium bomb.

But a more primitive weapon, a plutonium bomb similar to the U.S. weapon dropped on Hiroshima in 1945, does not require the same kind of precise timing mechanisms and could be put together relatively quickly. But experts say it would be chancy and maybe even suicidal for Iraq to set off such a weapon without testing it first.

Once a test was detected by the United States and other nuclear powers, including Israel, they could launch a quick attack on Iraq's nuclear installations. Saddam, however, has moved some of those facilities into air raid-proof underground bunkers.

Iraq has slightly more than 25 pounds of enriched uranium fuel, enough to make one small bomb. But the Iraqi government, which has signed the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, has recently given permission for international inspection of its nuclear facilities, including the site where the uranium fuel is stored.

That is seen as a sign that Iraq is not using that French-supplied enriched fuel for a weapon, at least not yet.

More alarming to U.S. experts was an Iraqi attempt to buy sophisticated high-temperature furnaces, known as Induction Skull Melting method devices. After an export license had been granted, the U.S. Customs Service seized the equipment in May just before it was to be sent to Iraq. The export license was later revoked.

The furnaces would be used to melt special kinds of steel that is useful in making high-speed centrifuges required for refining uranium into weapons grade fuel.

One senior administration official said that ''we are not aware of any new intelligence'' that would back up Bush's dramatic warning that Iraq may be moving faster than expected toward a nuclear weapon.

But the official said there had been an accelerated Iraqi drive to procure ''the accessories'' needed for a nuclear weapon in mid-1989. Those accessories included the furances and the electronic switches.

One worrisome element in the assessments is that scientists from another country - perhaps Pakistan or China - may have een slipping the Iraqis the necessary technology, with or without the approval of their own governments.

China is already a nuclear power and Pakistan is thought to be on the threshhold of putting together a small nuclear arsenal.

U.S. intelligence reports say that Iraq has moved most of its nuclear facilities into underground shelters, in order to prevent another air- strike such as the 1981 Israeli raid that destroyed the nuclear reactor at Osirak.

Saddam Hussein's threat in April ''to burn half of Israel'' with poison gas in case of an attack is now seen by U.S. intelligence as a warning that any pre-emptive strike on his nuclear facilities would lead to an all-out Middle East war, involving Israel.

The Bush statement Thursday is seen by U.S. experts as meaning the administration is now convinced that a simple withdrawal by Iraq from Kuwait will no longer be sufficient to fulfill U.S. objectives. Those objectives, according to officials who have followed the policy-making, now include toppling Saddam Hussein before he becomes a nuclear power.

MOSCOW (NOV. 23) UPI - Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov said Friday he and the entire Council of Ministers will resign if the Soviet parliament approves President Mikhail Gorbachev's plan to reorganize the government.

But parliament voted to give Gorbachev two weeks to present full details of his reorganization plan to the legislators.

In the heated session Friday, the parliament also passed a state of the union resolution defining the situation as worsening, and giving Gorbachev two weeks to prepare urgent measures to improve a food supply situation.

''The situation in the country is deteriorating and is near critical, '' the state of the union resolution said, according to the official Tass news agency. ''Ethnic tensions are dangerously high and all government structures are crumbling.''

In addition, a draft of a new ''union treaty,'' which will outline the new relations between the 15 republics of the Soviet Union and the central government, was circulated among parliament deputies Friday but it was unclear when it would be ready for signing. Under the draft each republic is declared a ''sovereign state exercising full-fledged state power on its territory'' while giving the central government full powers over such things as national defense and the currency.

In an intense debate on the reorganization plan, Gorbachev said the changes in government structure were necessary to bring the central government out of its ''paralysis'' and find a way to solve the crisis facing the country.

''During this stage of decisive changes in the country, executive power at all levels, above all in the center, cannot remain paralyzed,'' Gorbachev said in response to criticism he was trying to grab excessive power. ''You need extreme measures to overcome an extreme crisis.''

The reorganization plan, given preliminary approval six days ago and subject of a lengthy debate on second reading Friday, hands Gorbachev direct control over government ministries and practically eliminates the need for a prime minister, although it does not specifically abolish the office.

''If the suggestions of the president are approved, the Council of Ministers and I, as its head, will automatically resign,'' Ryzhkov told the independent Soviet news agency Interfax Friday.

Ryzhkov's resignation has been demanded by the powerful Russian republic leader Boris Yeltsin and others who blame him for slowing economic reforms and allowing the Soviet Union to slip into crisis after crisis, but Gorbachev had previously rejected the demands and stood behind Ryzhkov.

The prime minister said he was surprised by the proposal at a parliament session last Saturday to significantly consolidate Gorbachev's power by placing government ministries directly under the president's control.

''The question of reorganization of the system of governing and the resignation of the government was discussed before, but we thought it would happen only after the new union treaty was completed, that is when the ideas of the republics were defined precisely,'' Ryzhkov said. ''The suggestions of the president last Saturday were quite unexpected for me.''

WASHINGTON (NOV. 23) UPI - The United States posted a budget deficit of $31.46 billion in October in the opening month of fiscal 1991, the Treasury Department reported Friday.

The shortfall follows a surplus of $20.84 billion in September and a deficit of $26.08 billion in October 1989, according to the department's regular budget statement.

Last month's outlays totaled $110.17 billion, while receipts totaled $78.71 billion, the government said.

The United States is expected to run a budget deficit of at least $176.33 billion during the fiscal year 1991, according to Bush administration estimates, and a shortfall of $133.88 billion in fiscal 1992.

Many economists, however, expect even higher annual deficits.

Under the category ''contribution to the defense cooperation account, '' the government received $1.62 billion in October, mainly for the ''Operation Desert Shield'' buildup in the Persian Gulf.

Overall defense spending totaled $24.09 billion for the month.

The United States also paid $18.08 billion in October on interest on the public debt, which includes bills, notes and bonds issued by the Treasury Department, the government said.

Spending on the Resolution Trust Corp., the agency that liquidates the assets of failed savings and loans, totaled $5.68 billion in the first month of the new fiscal year.

Social Security spending amounted to $19.45 billion.

The United States also took in $40.69 billion in income taxes in October, $1.61 billion in corporate income taxes, $3.01 billion in excise taxes and $1.53 billion in customs duties, the government said.

GENEVA (NOV. 23) UPI - President Bush held an emergency meeting Friday with Syrian President Hafez al Assad, who has opposed Bush's call for a possible military strike against Saddam Hussein.

''We have divergent points of view on some issues,'' Assad told reporters before the start of their scheduled two-hour talk. ''We will discuss a number of problems.''

Assad has said Syria wants Iraqi forces out of Kuwait but opposes use of force. He maintains that Syrian troops were sent to Saudi Arabia only to help U.S.-led multinational forces defend that country.

The hastily called meeting between the two leaders capped an eight- day European and Middle East tour by Bush, seeking global support for possible military force to free Kuwait of Iraqi troops.

Syria, a longtime adversary of the United States, is a hard-line Arab state accused by the State Department of sponsoring terrorism. It has pledged to send 15,000 troops to the multinational force, however.

Bush, who met earlier Monday in Cairo with Eygptian President Hosni Mubarak, brushed off criticism from Israel for his decision to become the first U.S. president to meet with a Syrian leader since Jimmy Carter did so in 1977.

''I have no problem sitting down with him,'' said Bush. ''This relates to the reversal of aggression, not only in the interest of the United States but to every country in the Middle East and that includes Israel.''

''Mr. Assad is lined up with us on the commitment of force,'' Bush said. ''That doesn't mean we don't have differences with Syria ... but they will be on the front line.''

The meeting was arranged this week at the urging of Arab leaders.

Edward Djerejian, U.S. ambassador to Damascus, who traveled with Bush to Geneva from Cairo, was asked by reporters if the United States is making Assad look like an ally in instituting the unusual face-to-face talks with him.

Djerejian replied, ''Where there are mutual interests, we work together.'' He cited the Persian Gulf and Lebanon where Syria has had troops since 1975.

Although relations between the United States and Syria remain strained, they have thawed noticeably since Assad committed troops to protect Saudi Arabia from a possible attack by Iraq.

The Syrian government has joined other Arab nations in condemning Iraq, but has distanced itself from suggestions that military action may have to be taken to end Iraq's nearly 4-month-old occupation of Kuwait.

Bush was expected to ask Assad how Syria would react in case of a war between U.S.-led forces and Iraq. He was also likely to seek help in obtaining the release of six American hostages thought to be held in Beirut.

The president and Mubarak, following their 2 1/2-hour talk, both expressed support for possible military force against Iraq.

Bush said he and Mubarak have not given up on a peaceful solution, but added, ''We are getting tired of the status quo and so is the rest of the world.''

Mubarak sidestepped questions on whether Egyptian troops would be sent to fight alongside multinational forces. ''I'm not in a position to tell you the details,'' he told reporters.

During the past week, Bush has found mixed support for military force.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl told him that a greater emphasis should be placed on trying to find a negotiated settlement. Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev advocated patience.

They both said that U.N.-mandated sanctions should be given more time to pressure Saddam to peacefully withdraw from Kuwait, although they said that force should not be ruled out.

Bush has called for a U.N. hearing next week on the treatment of the Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, apparently in an effort to build support for a U.N. resolution that would authorize a military strike.

The United States holds the chairmanship of the 15-member U.N. Security Council until the end of November. The post rotates on a monthly basis and Yemen is next in line.

Yemen leaders, in a setback to the U.S. position, told Secretary of State James Baker on Thursday that they oppose the presence and possible use of force in the Persian Gulf.

During the past week, Bush made stops in Czechoslovakia, Germany, Paris, Saudi Arabia and Egypt. He also gave a Thanksgiving Day pep talk to U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

Senate leader Robert Dole of Kansas and House Speaker Thomas Foley of Washington, who joined Bush on his tour of U.S. troops Thursday, said Bush's trip should not be viewed as a drive toward war.

Appearing on the CBS ''This Morning'' program Friday, the two said the trek was used to fortify the United States' position and to keep options open.

Dole said Bush ''may have helped his cause'' in lining up support.

''I think it means we're prepared, we're going to be more prepared and the president's keeping his options open, as is Congress, I might add,'' Dole said.

PRAGUE, CZECHOSLOVAKIA (NOV. 23) UPI - Local elections opened Friday in Czechoslovakia as voters in the country's eastern republic of Slovakia voted for representatives to town and county councils.

The elections, the first free vote for local officials since the Communist putsch of 1948, continue Saturday in Slovakia and will be held only on Saturday in the Czech lands of Bohemia and Moravia.

Candidates from 42 parties participated in the elections. The Communist Party, which took 13 percent of the vote nationwide in June's parliamentary elections was expected to improve its performance.

The parliamentary elections were the country's first free ballot since 1946.

Civic Forum, the opposition group that led the overthrow of Communist rule last November and took a majority in the June elections in the Czech lands, is expected to fare worse on this round.

A senior Civic Forum official who requested anonymity said the Forum would consider a 40 percent vote as a victory.

A poll by the Institute for Public Opinion Research showed 51 percent of voters said they would take part in the elections and another 28 percent said they probably would. That compares with a turnout of 96 percent for the June elections.

President Vaclav Havel and the Forum have encouraged its local affiliates to form ad hoc alliances, and to urge voters to elect people they know rather than vote along party lines.

Civic Forum, for example, has formed alliances with the Communists in some 50 election districts.

''The most important thing is that the people elect the candidates they know and trust,'' Havel said in an interview in the Prague daily Zemedelske Noviny.

''I think that may be easier in the countryside than in big cities.''

The 42 independent political parties and movements in the elections have formed 834 coalitions and put up 146,730 candidates for 67,010 mandates.

Another 11,892 independent candidates are running, and 21,686 candidates are running from parties that are not on the ballot as parties.

Voters will elect Citizens Councils to replace the appointed ''National Committees'' left over from Communist rule. The elections are an effort to create local government responsible to the local community.

Under Communist rule, local national committees were run by general incompetent party hacks, and the administrators of the town or regional state-owned enterprises actually managed local affairs.

But since most local government finances will come from the national governments in Prague and Bratislava, prefects appointed from those capitals will govern most local spending and development.

The government survey showed only two-thirds of voters said they were familiar with the voting procedure. Only half of the voters said they considered the local elections democratic, while 18 percent thought they were not democratic.

First returns are expected Sunday night, but because of the complicated and extensive list of coalitions, the precise impact of the elecitons will not be known until Wednesday or Thursday.

BONN, GERMANY (NOV. 23) UPI - Britain's Queen Elizabeth II visited the Royal Air Force base at Laarbruch near the Dutch border Friday before having tea with German President Richard von Weizsaecker during her first visit to unified Germany.

More than 600 children waved little Union Jacks and cheered as the queen entered the Laarbruch base for her first inspection of a RAF base in Germany. She visited British army bases in 1977, 1980 and 1985.

Before the queen arrived Friday morning for her one-day visit, three Tornado jet-fighters took off for the Persian Gulf and another three are to follow Saturday.

The queen, who was on a private visit and not accompanied by her husband, inspected the 2,500 troops stationed at Laarbruch, the second largest RAF base in Germany, before a short visist with von Weizsaecker in Bonn.

Weizsaecker welcomed the queen at his Bonn residence, the Villa Hammerschmidt, in late afternoon. They had tea and a 45-minute private chat without interpreters present.

Besides numerous visits to British troops, the queen had come to West Germany twice for state visits in 1965 and 1978.

WEST SENECA, NY (NOV. 23) UPI - Two people in Santa Claus suits picketed a suburban Buffalo shopping mall Friday, angered by mall management claims that one of Santa's elves made a suggestive comment to an employee.

The two carried signs which read, ''Work Wanted! Elves Out of Work,'' to protest being fired because which an elf allegedly said he would like to ''molest'' a female employee at Seneca Mall.

Because of the allegation, the mall plans to break its contract with Old Style Music Co. to provide Santa, Mrs. Claus, Frosty the Snowman, Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer and elves for the holiday shopping rush.

Kevin Hejmanowski, vice president of Old Style Music, said the trouble began Nov. 17 - the first day Santa and his colorful entourage arrived at the mall - when mall officials said one of the elves harassed the employee.

According to Bernard Zolnowski, one of the picketing Santas, ''The mall manager, Larry Rose, came up to myself and Santa and said that one of our elves had made a suggestive comment to a store employee. And the comment was ... 'I want to molest your body.'''

James Lagona, an attorney representing Old Style Music, said he plans to file a suit against the mall in state Supreme Court.

''It's difficult to break that contract on mere allegations,'' he said.

Hejmanowski maintains there was no wrongdoing by his employee.

''We don't go and recruit bums off the street,'' he said. ''We have a good reputation to uphold.''

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO (NOV. 23) UPI - Soybeans, corn and oats made gains to close out the week at the Chicago Board of Trade. But wheat ended the day mixed.

In light trading, commission house sell-stops helped put the skid on bean gains. Beans closed higher but off the day's highs on positive sentiment about a visit to Washington next week by the head of the Soviet grain agency, again stirring hope of a U.S. export credits.

The slide that took wheat lower and allowed only small gains for corn also weighed on bean prices.

Commercial and professional selling took wheat lower as did word that the French are planning to sell 600,000 tons of wheat to the USSR. A late round of professional buying turned wheat prices mixed.

Slack followthrough demand stalled corn gains, as did news that South Korea overnight had bought 100,000 tons of corn from China and 100,000 tons of feed wheat from Canada. Late commercial demand for March aided prices.

At the close, corn was up 1 to 2 3/4, wheat was off 1/4 to up 1, beans were up 3 to 4 3/4 and oats were unchanged to up 1 1/4.

BONN, GERMANY (NOV. 23) UPI - Former East German Communists reportedly gave state security agents orders to go underground to run companies previously owned by the state, a report by a German economics institute said Friday.

The report said that when the Berlin Wall fell Nov. 9, 1989, officials of the East German Communist Party and the state security appartus, known as Stasi, designated a core group of agents to infiltrate the state-owned companies in preparation of the party's return to power after unification.

From November 1989 to January, the initial phase of the plan known as ''Operation Shredder,'' agents destroyed incriminating documents linking the secret team to either the party or the Stasi, the report by the Cologne-based German Economic Institute said.

To carry out the destruction of files, the secret Stasi team infiltrated citzens' groups and the East German parliamentary committee charged with disbanding the Stasi, the report said.

The secret team was ordered to secure former Communist holdings in Germany and abroad to create ''a new empire, initially based on economic power,'' the report said.

Once the industrial economic empire was in place, it was supposed to back the political rise of the Party for Democratic Socialism, the renamed Communist Party, the report said.

The PDS, which has 24 members in the all-German Parliament since unification Oct. 3, sharply denounced allegations that it was part of the ploy.

''I think this is outrageous,'' PDS spokesman Hanno Harnisch told United Press International.

''The German Economic Institute is a serious institue, but this report is not serious,'' Harnisch said, calling the report ''a superficial lie.''

The report claims that PDS reformer and former East German Prime Minister Hans Modrow knew of the secret team and assisted in infiltrating the parliamentary commission whose task had been to crush the Stasi.

Modrow is running for the German Parliament as a PDS candidate in Dec. 2 national elections.

In the second phase of the operation from January to March 1990, the former Stasi was to be transformed from a ''mechanism for vulgar repression to a qualified economic and administrative organization,'' the report said.

In a third phase from April to September 1990, underground agents worked their way into leading positions at a number of the 8,000 formerly state-owned eastern German companies, the report said.

In its conclusion, the report said it is unlikely that the members of the secret team will ever be discovered, because the only document, a 6, 000-name file called ''Operation Business Trip,'' was destroyed during the Modrow administration after the breach of the Berlin Wall.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 23) UPI - In the wake of large anti-U.S. and pro-Iraqi demonstrations in Sudan, the State Department Friday authorized embassy dependents to leave the country and warned American private citizens to leave.

The revolutionary military government of Gen. Umar al-Bashir has sided with Iraq in the gulf crisis. Well-managed organized demonstrations have been reported in Khartoum and other cities.

In addition, the State Department said that there is reason to believe that there is a high potential for anti-American terrorist attacks in Khartoum.

Government sources said this week there is evidence that Iraqi-backed terrorist groups have been casing American installations in Khartoum in preparation for a possible wave of terrorist actions against U.S. diplomats and citizens if hostilities should break out in the gulf crisis.

Elsewhere in the country, a continuing drought and famine, compounded by a continuing civil war, has made the western and southern Sudan unsafe for travel.

The State Department's travel advisory said, ''The safety of Americans residing in or attempting to travel to these areas cannot be assured.''

The advisory said that the street demonstrations were orderly and kept under control by government security forces but, it said, ''The situation could change quickly.''

As a result of the danger, including the threat of terrorism, the department authorized the voluntary departure of dependents of U.S. government personnnel in Khartoum.

The United States is a principal supplier of food aid to Sudan, despite the difficulty of delivering the supplies to refugee centers, where an estimated 3 million to 4 million people are at risk of starvation.

In the current year, the United States has delivered $46 million in food supplies, but a development aid program for Sudan was suspended because of strains in relations between the two countries.

NEW YORK (NOV. 23) UPI - Scheduled talks between the striking Newspaper Guild and Daily News management failed to materialize Friday when negotiators were unable to get a federal mediator to join them.

''No firm date has been set for resumption of talks,'' Alan Mirabella, a union spokesman, said. ''We'll try again next week.''

The 30th day of the strike by the Guild and eight other unions representing 2,500 News employes was marked by an educational march by strikers in the Bronx, urging the public not to buy or subscribe to the News.

They were joined by black and Hispanic strike supporters who carried placards accusing the News of ''race baiting'' with the newspaper's charges that the craft unions are ''lily white;'' in fact, the demonstrators said, they have a diverse ethnic and racial membership.

The strike began Oct. 25 after 10 months of fruitless negotiations, but talks have continued between management and individual unions on a sporadic basis. The paper has continued to publish with ''replacment'' personnel taking the jobs of the strikers.

The News has virtually disappeared from the city's newsstands and the paper is being sold on street corners by hawkers recruited from the city's homeless community. The tabloid even has been given away free in some busy locations.

Daily News Vice President John Sloan and Newspaper Guild Chairman Pete McLaughlin agreed Wednesday during a radio interview program to resume contract talks and their host, Brian Lehrer, pinned them down to Friday as a specific date. Federal mediators, however, were taking a holiday weekend, the Guild spokesman said.

As of Thanksgiving, the Police Department had received 196 reports of strike-related violence and had made 89 arrests in connection with incidents such as attacks on Daily News delivery trucks, vandalism and fire bombings of vendors selling the Daily News and altercations between News security guards and strikers.

Macy's, the News' biggest advertiser at $6 million a year, pulled out of the newspaper Wednesday, the day before the Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade, which might have attracted striker picketing. The unions claim more than 200 of the tabloids' 260 regular advertisers have dropped out of the paper.

(NOV. 23) UPI - A security set-up known as ''Plan F'' was implemented in Geneva, Switzerland, today for the hastily arranged meeting between Presiden Bush and Syria's leader. About 200 U-S Secret Service agents were in charge of arranging security that Geneva airport officials say called for four Galaxy military transport planes carrying armor-plated limousines and helicopters.

Earlier, Bush and Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak met in Cairo to discuss the Middle East crisis. the Egyptian leader came out of the talks saying he support the military option against Iraq, but he refused to say whether his own troops will help any U-S-led troops oust Iraq from Kuwait.

First lady Barbara Bush told a group of five-year-old children in a Cairo, Egypt, library that she will ask Santa Claus for peace in the Middle East. Mrs. Bush visited the children's library with Egypt's first lady... while President Bush and Egyptian leader Hosni Mubarak held a two-hour meeting.

About 15-hundred Jordanians took to the streets of downtown Amman after Muslim noon prayers today to protest the visit of President Bush to the Mideast. They carried anti-Bush banners and chanted anti-American slogans, but NO violence was reported.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen renewed the demand that Iraq withdraw from Kuwait. The official Chinese report on the unexpected meeting in western China did NOT say whether they agreed on the use of force to drive Iraq out of its neighbor.

BUDAPEST, HUNGARY (NOV. 23) UPI - NATO Secretary General Manfred Woerner, in Budapest for an official visit, predicted Friday the Western military alliance will be a fixture in Europe for years to come although its role may become increasingly political.

''NATO will be as necessary as it was in the past, and it will exist as long as it's needed,'' Woerner told a news conference in Budapest on the second day of his visit, the first to Hungary by a NATO secretary general.

Woerner said the conflicts in the Persian Gulf and the Balkans are examples of the types of crises that will continue to make the alliance necessary long after the Cold War is only a memory.

''We want to insure ourselves against those risks,'' he said.

Woerner said the issue of NATO membership for Hungary was not discussed during his meetings with Prime Minister Jozsef Antall.

He stressed, however, that NATO is committed to using its political influence to reshape East-West relations, and that it is of ''historic importance to extend a hand of friendship to Hungary, now that the time of confrontation is over.''

Antall's government has declared its intention to withdraw from the Warsaw Pact, and some officials have suggested Hungary should consider applying for membership in NATO.

NEW CANAAN, CT (NOV. 23) UPI - AmeriCares will airlift more than 340,000 pounds of food and medicines to the Soviet Union to ease shortages in orphanages and hospitals during the Christmas holiday, the private relief group said Friday.

The first two flights will leave Connecticut for Moscow on Dec. 23 and Dec. 26 with a third planned for late January to aid children, the ill and the elderly during the harsh Russian winter.

''This is designed to help those less able to help themselves in the Soviet Union - children, orphanages, hospitals and older people,'' said Steve Johnson president of AmeriCares. ''They certainly would get the short straw if everybody is scrambling for these short supplies.''

The Soviet government has said it had no plans to release emergency food reserves because it does not believe shortages are severe enough.

The government also denied widespread public charges that the army is hoarding the food for itself.

The Soviet parliament described the situation in the country Friday as ''deteriorating and near critical,'' however, and gave President Mikhail Gorbachev two weeks to prepare urgent measures to increase the food supply.

AmeriCares, which has delivered more than $365 million worth of emergency relief aid around the world since 1982, said its airlifts to the Soviet Union would deliver ''life-saving supplies.''

''As food rationing intensifies in the Soviet Union, so too do AmeriCares' efforts to stave off impending starvation in Soviet towns and cities,'' the group said in a report.

Requests have been coming in from the Soviet Union and AmeriCare workers were headed for that country to assess the situation and make sure supplies were delivered to those most in need, Johnson said.

The shipments will include over-the-counter pain relievers, cold medications and other medicines including antibiotics that were donated by U.S. pharmaceutical companies, he said.

''You can't find an aspirin in the Soviet Union today, let alone anything else sold over the counter,'' Johnson said.

Foods will include canned tuna, meats, fruits and cheese; pasta and other packaged goods; and nutritional supplements that can be distributed, or used in hospitals.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 23) UPI - World trade talks stand only a slim chance of success, Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter said Friday in his darkest assessment yet, but Germany may provide the last-minute key to freer trade.

Yeutter, who has strongly criticized European intransigence on agricultural reform, indicated the United States was willing to be ''somewhat accommodating'' in its goals. However, he said the European Community must be more forthcoming.

Disagreement over agricultural subsidies and trade barriers is threatening to derail the four-year round of trade negotiations. The final week of discussions is scheduled to begin Dec. 3.

''We're negotiators, of course, and we obviously are prepared to negotiate, which means that we would likely settle for something less than what we now have on the negotiating table,'' Yeutter said during taping of the public affairs program ''American Interests.''

''But not a whole lot less ... because this is important for us in terms of developing a major growth industry in agriculture. ... We'd rather walk away from the table than take what we believe to be a bad deal.''

The normally optimistic Yeutter said odds for an agreement ''are well below 50-50. ... I'd say maybe 25-75, only about a 25 percent probability.''

In its final position paper, the United States proposed a 90 percent cut in export subsidies and a 75 percent cut in trade-distorting agricultural subsidies and trade barriers over the next 10 years. The European Community proposed a 30 percent cut in domestic subsidies and trade barriers, based on 1986 expenditures.

France and Germany have been the most adament of EC members in opposing cuts in farm supports. Yeutter said he believes Germany is more amenable than France and thus might rescue the talks.

''This gets very complicated ... but the fact is, the Germans are prepared to do more reforming in agriculture in a whole variety of ways which the French are not,'' Yeutter said, although German Chancellor Helmut Kohl might not want to go as far as the United States.

Yeutter said it would be impractical to consider an extension of the trade talks because it might imperil congressional approval of any agreement that is reached.

Rules now call for ''fast track'' review of a trade treaty, meaning Congress must vote within 90 days on the treaty and without making any alterations to it. Three dozen senators have given their support to legislation to drop the fast track rules, a step that Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, has said would effectively kill a treaty.

NEW YORK (NOV. 23) UPI - Stocks closed lower Friday, a post-Thanksgiving session marked by a long trading halt in the morning due to technical problems and by the lightest volume in almost four years.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 9.16 Wednesday, lost 12.13 to close at 2527.23. The market was closed Thursday for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index eased 0.34 to 172.39 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 0.93 to 315.10. The price of an average share fell 6 cents.

Declines led advances 681-647 among the 1,880 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Big Board volume totaled 63,350,000 shares, compared with 140,660,000 traded Wednesday.

Trading was halted was almost all of Friday morning by electrical problems at the NYSE. Turnover was the lightest since Dec. 26, 1986, when just 48,864,585 shares traded on the day after Christmas.

The technical problems accentuated what had been expected to be a very quiet day, with many players away for a long Thanksgiving weekend.

The NYSE said an electrical power problem halted activity at 9:41 a.m. EST, just 11 minutes into the session. After a delay of more than an hour and a half, trading resumed at 11:15 a.m. EST. Trading was originally set to resume at 10:45 a.m. EST, but the starting time was pushed back twice.

Richard Torrenzano, NYSE senior vice president for communications, said that the power-related problems were ''identified and corrected'' but that the Big Board would not have the full story of what happened until a complete analysis is done, which he said should be sometime next week.

After trading resumed, prices rose. Newton Zinder, analyst at Lehman Bros., said he could cite no reason for the gains other than that the day after Thanksgiving is traditionally an ''up'' day in the market.

But tradition did not mean much to the market, as Friday's gains were lost to soaring oil prices, even though trading in that market was said to be almost nil. January crude oil futures closed up $2.27 to $31.90 a barrel.

''Basically, though, it was comatose,'' said Ron Doran, director of institutional trading at C.L. King & Associates in Albany, N.Y. ''It was just a very, very, very quiet day. I think most players are home eating leftovers and watching football.''

Doran said he thought the power-related delays sent some players who may have been debating the wisdom of coming in to work Friday home early.

''I found several people who I had orders in with said, 'The heck with this,' and went home after the delays,'' said Doran. ''They knew liquidity was going to be thin anyway and after a few delays they threw in the towel. Only the diehards were still around and I think they think they made a mistake.''

On the trading floor, MCA was the most active issue, plunging 3 1/8 to 65 3/8 amid concerns about how much a takeover deal being negotiated with Japanese suitor Matsushita might bring on a per-share basis.

Texas Utilities followed, down 1 1/8 to 36 3/4. The staff of the Texas Public Utility Commission reportedly recommended the company refund about $593 million to customers for gas costs the commission deemed imprudent. Dominion Resources was third, unchanged at 47 1/8.

Among the other blue chips, McDonald's rose 3/8 to 28 5/8, AT&T lost 5/8 to 32 1/8, IBM eased 1 1/4 to 112 3/4 and Philip Morris lost 1/2 to 48 1/8.

Elsewhere, Caterpillar plunged 3 to 39 3/8 in active trading. Goldman Sachs was said to cut earnings estimates for the company late Wednesday, citing concerns that demand for its products may be waning.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 80,031,460 shares, compared with 172,420,120 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices closed higher in light trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex Market Value index rose 0.32 to 295.90. Advances led declines 235-215 among the 692 issues traded. The price of an average share added 1 cent. Composite volume totaled 7,186,920 shares vs. 14, 052,400 traded Wednesday.

B.A.T Industries led the Amex issues, up 7/16 to 11 1/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 0.27 to 349.04.

CARACAS, VENEZUELA (NOV. 23) UPI - Bo Diaz, a veteran catcher who spent 13 years in the major leagues, was electrocuted Friday while installing a satellite television dish on the roof of his home, fire department officials said. He was 37.

It was not immediately clear whether Diaz toched a power line from the house or was killed by an electrical discharge from the dish.

Diaz was immediately taken from his home in an affluent Caracas suburb to a hospital, but was pronounced dead on arrival.

Baudilio Jose Diaz was born in Cua, Venezuela, in 1953 and was one of the most beloved baseball players in the country. He joined the majors in 1977 with Boston and went on to play with Cleveland and Philadelphia before spending five seasons with the Cincinnati Reds.

His best year came in 1982 with the Phillies when he batted .288 and hit 18 home runs and drove in 85 runs. In 1983, he was the regular catcher on the Phillies team that advanced to the World Series but lost to Baltimore in five games.

Diaz retired after the 1989 season. This past year, Diaz was the starting catcher for the Leones del Caracas team in Venezuela. He quit one week ago reportedly because of differences with management.

UNITED NATIONS (NOV. 23) UPI - Foreign ministers of some of the U.N. Security Council's 15 members will meet next week for a special debate on the Persian Gulf crisis, expected to focus on a U.N. resolution for a military strike against Iraq, diplomats said Friday.

Yuliy Vorontsov, the Soviet U.N. ambassador, said Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze will be in New York next week to attend the session.

''He's coming,'' Vorontsov told reporters as he headed for private consultations with other council members on U.N. activities.

Zaire's U.N. ambassador, Bagbeni Adeito Nzengeya, also said his foreign minister will attend the meeting, to be held probably Thursday.

But Vorontsov, despite denying that the five permament members of the Security Council are split on the resolution on use of force against Iraq, proposed instead that the council issue a ''strong and serious warning'' for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to pull his troops out of Kuwait.

''It should be warning because we have been waiting for too long already,'' Vorontsov said.

Asked whether the council should convene again to authorize the use of force after issuing the warning, Vorontsov said, ''Not necessarily.''

Vorontsov did not specify the nature of the warning and whether it should be accompanied by military action. He said it is needed to send a strong signal to Saddam that the council is not ''joking.''

The United States has been campaigning for the U.N. resolution on force while other countries, particularly non-aligned members in the council, preferred diplomatic pressure to resolve the crisis triggered Aug. 2 by Iraq's invasion and annexation of Kuwait.

France supported the resolution but said implementation should not be automatic.

Moscow and Beijing have withheld their support, but Beijing particularly has spoken strongly against the military option and called for more diplomatic efforts to oust the Iraqis. Shevardnadze was to fly to Beijing Friday to meet with his counterpart, Qian Qichen, to discuss the next U.N. move against Iraq.

The U.N. diplomats said next week's Security Council meeting would determine how and when the military option would be carried out or whether diplomacy should be given a last chance.

The resolution authorizing use of military action against Iraq has been intensely debated for weeks among the five permanent members - the United States, the Soviet Union, France, Britain and China.

The issue was discussed by President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev on Sunday in Paris when they attended the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

Secretary of State James Baker held talks with Yemen's President Ali Abdullah Saleh in Sana Thursday, but his efforts to gain Saleh's support on the resolution were rebuffed. Baker also met with officials from Zaire and Malaysia to win their support.

The Security Council's 10 non-permanent members are Colombia, Canada, Finland, Malaysia, Ethiopia, Cote d'Ivoire, Cuba, Yemen, Zaire and Romania.

The body's presidency rotates monthly. It is currently occupied by the United States, to be followed by Yemen in December.

ST. PAUL, MN (NOV. 23) UPI - Officials of the nation's two largest fur farm organizations claimed Friday that animal rights activists lost ground this year in garnering public support of their cause.

Harold DeHart of the Fur Farm Animal Welfare Coalition and Skip Lea of the National Board of Fur Farm Organizations said public and legislative support for animal rights groups is beginning to erode as their objectives become more widely known. Fur industry leaders say the animal rights activists do not just want to stop the use of fur for clothing but also to eliminate the use of animals for food, medical research and other purposes.

DeHart quoted Ingrid Newkirk of People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals as saying ''there is no rational basis for saying that a human being has special rights. A rat is a pig is a dog is a boy.''

''A year ago at this time, most people laughed at the idea that activists were attacking fur as the first step in a long-term campaign to eliminate all animal use,'' DeHart said. ''Now, after a year of protests against everything from medical research to the consumption of hamburger, they're realizing what this movement is really about. It's really about a value system which recognizes no distinction between human beings and mice or rats.''

Animal rights groups have stepped up their activities in Minnesota recently as winter approaches and more people are likely to buy fur coats. They have held protests outside the fur industry organizations' offices and have taken out billboards across the state urging people not to buy furs.

DeHart and Lea said there have been a string of defeats for the animal rights activists this year, including the lop-sided defeat of a proposal to ban the sale of fur in Aspen, Colo., in February, the defeat of an animal rights initiative in Telluride, Colo., in November and U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan's characterization of animal rights activists as ''terrorists'' in June. They also cited congressional opposition to animal rights that resulted in the formation of the bi-partisan Animal Welfare Caucus headed by Rep. Vin Weber, R- Minn., widespread congressional support for a House bill making it a federal offensive to break into fur farms or laboratories for the purpose of seizing animals or other records, and the fact that a June 10 animal rights rally in Washington, D.C., drew 24,000 people, or fewer than predicted.

In addition, they said radio stations in at least six states launched boycotts against country singer k.d. lang, who attacked meat consumption in a PETA commercial called ''Meat Stinks.''

''We've come a long way during the last year,'' Lea said. ''People are finally beginning to realize what's really at stake.''

(NOV. 24) UPI - With only six weekends to go in the regular season, 22 of the NFL's 28 teams still have a shot at a playoff berth, though chances are remote at best for some of them.

Among the longest of long shots are the two Thanksgiving Day winners - Detroit and Dallas.

The Lions, 4-7 after Thursday's 40-27 victory over Denver, have five games left and in the unlikely event they won the rest would finish 9-7, good enough for a postseason berth. Dallas is 5-7 after its 27-17 upset of Washingon and has four games and a bye remaining.

The Cowboys could also finish 9-7 and draw a wild-card berth if a four-game sweep happened.

The only teams given no chance for the playoffs so far are the 1-9 New England Patriots, 2-8 Cleveland Browns, 3-8 Denver Broncos, 2-8 Phoenix Cardinals, 3-7 Atlanta Falcons and 3-7 Los Angeles Rams.

With all the possibilities remaining, the only game Sunday without playoff ramifications is New England at Phoenix, two teams whose fans at this point are more concerned about who gets the No. 1 draft choice next spring with the worst record in the NFL.

If the magic record for the last wild-card berth drops to 8-8, teams with only three losses - the Broncos, Falcons and Rams - would be in the chase mathematically, but only mathematically.

The Cowboys could get to 8-8 by winning three out of four.

''I told this team after we got beat by the Jets (Nov. 4), that if they kept working, if they believed in what we were doing, good things would happen,'' Cowboys Coach Jimmy Johnson said.

This year there will be three wild-card teams in each conference and a total of four games during the first weekend of the playoffs Jan. 5-6. The division champion with the worst record in each conference will join the three wild-card teams in the first round.

In the past, there were only two wild card teams in each conference. While all three division winners took the week off, the wild cards would play for the opportunity to meet the division winner with the best record.

The addition of a wild card in each conference has created a myriad of possibilities. Late-season games which once would have had no meaning now become important. It also creates healthy crowds where once there would be anemic attendance.

On the other hand, critics say teams at the .500 level or only one game above it at 9-7 have no business being rewarded by being allowed to take part in postseason play.

If the season were to end now, the NFC division winners would be San Francisco the New York Giants and the Chicago Bears. The three wild cards would be 6-4 Philadelphia, 6-5 Washington, and 5-5 Green Bay.

In the AFC, division winners would be Buffalo, Cincinnati and the Los Angeles Raiders. Wild cards would be 8-2 Miami, 6-4 Kansas City and 5-5 Pittsburgh. The Oilers also have posted a 5-5 record but lost to Pittsburgh early in the season and therefore would lose the first tiebreaker. The two teams play again in their final regular-season game.

The top game of the weekend has the unbeaten New York Giants at the Philadelphia Eagles, who at 6-4 could be scrambling for playoff position if they lose. Other games have Kansas City at the Raiders, the Rams at San Francisco, Atlanta at New Orleans, Chicago at Minnesota, Indianapolis at Cincinnati, Tampa Bay against Green Bay at Milwaukee, Pittsburgh at the Jets and Seattle at San Diego.

The Bills can have a lot to say about Houston's chances for either an AFC Central title or a wild-card berth in its game Monday night against the Oilers at the Astrodome.

(NOV. 23) UPI - President Bush is in Geneva, Switzerland, for talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad, a long-time foe who relations with Washington have thawed because of the Persian Gulf crisis. Syria has committed troops to the multi-national force in Operation Desert Shield to protect Saudi Arabia.

The Persian Gulf is expected to dominate the Bush-Assad meeting today, but U-S Ambassador to Syria Edward Djerejian told reporters that a wide range of subjects will be covered. Bush is expected to ask Assad how he would react in the event of war between U- S-led forces and Iraq.

Thus far, syria has opposed the use of force. It says it sent troops to Saudi Arabia merely to help protect that nation from Iraqi troops in adjoining Kuwait. Assad told reporters before the talks began that- quoting now- ''We have divergent points of view on some issues. We will discuss a number of problems.''

Earlier, Bush met with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, and the two leaders expressed support for military action to drive Iraq out of Kuwait. Bush told reporters that neither the United States nor Egypt has given up on a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis but that the world is ''getting tired'' of the status quo.

A senior aide says President Corazon Aquino today rejected a Kuwaiti request for military aid in the Persian Gulf crisis because the Philippine army has its hands full at home. But the aide says Aquino did agree to provide humanitarian aide- a medical team- to the region.

Bulgarian Prime Minister Andrei Loukanov today survived a NO-confidence vote in his Parliament and vowed to retain control of the government in the face of a nation-wide strike called for next week. Opposition parties walked out of Parliament when the vote was announced.

GENEVA (NOV. 23) UPI - President Bush ended a grueling week of diplomacy on the Persian Gulf crisis with key European and Middle East leaders with a hastily arranged meeting on Friday with Syrian President Hafez al Assad.

Both leaders agreed during almost three hours of ''full and frank'' discussions ''that Kuwait's territory and legitimate government must be restored fully,'' according to a statement released by the White House.

Although the two leaders are split over a military option to drive Iraq's Saddam Hussein from the tiny, oil-rich emirate he invaded and annexed in August, the statement said both agreed that the occupation is ''unacceptable'' as are partial solutions.

''We have divergent points of view on some issues,'' Assad told reporters before the meeting, which according to the White House statement, also included talks on western hostages in Lebanon and international terrorism.

Assad has said Syria wants Iraqi forces out of Kuwait but opposes use of force. He maintains that Syrian troops were sent to Saudi Arabia only to help U.S.-led multinational forces defend that country.

But Bush, who left for Washington after the meeting, says that ''Mr. Assad is lined up with us on the commitment of force'' ''That doesn't mean we don't have differences with Syria ... but they will be on the front line.''

The meeting capped an eight-day European and Middle East tour by Bush, seeking support for possible military force to liberate Kuwait.

Syria, a longtime adversary of the United States, is a hard-line Arab state accused by the State Department of sponsoring terrorism. It has pledged to send 15,000 troops to the multinational force, however.

Bush, who earlier Friday met in Cairo with Eygptian President Hosni Mubarak, brushed off criticism from Israel for his decision to become the first U.S. president to meet with a Syrian leader since Jimmy Carter did so in 1977.

''I have no problem sitting down with him,'' said Bush. ''This relates to the reversal of aggression, not only in the interest of the United States but to every country in the Middle East and that includes Israel.''

The meeting was arranged this week at the urging of Arab leaders.

Edward Djerejian, U.S. ambassador to Damascus, who traveled with Bush to Geneva from Cairo, was asked by reporters if the United States is making Assad look like an ally in instituting the unusual face-to-face talks with him.

Djerejian replied, ''Where there are mutual interests, we work together.'' He cited the Persian Gulf and Lebanon where Syria has had troops since 1975.

Although relations between the United States and Syria remain strained, they have thawed noticeably since Assad committed troops to protect Saudi Arabia from a possible attack by Iraq.

The Syrian government has joined other Arab nations in condemning Iraq, but has distanced itself from suggestions that military action may have to be taken to end Iraq's occupation.

Bush was expected to ask Assad how Syria would react if war erupted between U.S.-led forces and Iraq. He was also likely to seek help in obtaining the release of six American hostages thought to be held in Beirut.

The president and Mubarak both expressed support for possible military force.

Bush said he and Mubarak have not given up on a peaceful solution, but added, ''We are getting tired of the status quo and so is the rest of the world.''

Mubarak dodged questions on whether Egyptian troops would be sent to fight alongside multinational forces. ''I'm not in a position to tell you the details,'' he told reporters.

During the past week, Bush has found mixed support for military force.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl told him that a greater emphasis should be placed on trying to find a negotiated settlement. Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev advocated patience.

They both said that U.N.-mandated sanctions should be given more time to pressure Saddam to peacefully withdraw from Kuwait, although they said that force should not be ruled out.

Bush has called for a U.N. hearing next week on the treatment of the Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, apparently in an effort to build support for a U.N. resolution that would authorize military action.

The United States holds the chairmanship of the 15-member U.N. Security Council until the end of November. The post rotates on a monthly basis and Yemen is next in line.

Yemen leaders, in a setback to the U.S. position, told Secretary of State James Baker on Thursday that they oppose the presence and possible use of force in the Persian Gulf.

During the past week, Bush made stops in Czechoslovakia, Germany, Paris, Saudi Arabia and Egypt. He also gave a Thanksgiving Day pep talk to U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

LONDON (NOV. 23) UPI - Author Roald Dahl, who delighted youngsters with whimsical yarns such as ''Charlie and the Chocolate Factory'' and ''James and the Giant Peach,'' died Friday of an infection, hospital officials said. He was 74.

Dahl, who was admitted to John Radcliffe Hospital in Oxford earlier this month for treatment of an unspecified ailment, died at the hospital from a massive infection, doctors and hospital officials said.

The British author penned a long string of children's books, including ''James and the Giant Peach'' in 1962, and several short story collections.

But he was best remembered for his classic 1964 book ''Charlie and the Chocolate Factory'' and its 1972 sequel, ''Charlie and the Great Glass Elevator,'' in which a poor youngster meets and eventually becomes heir to mysterious candy king Willy Wonka.

Dahl also wrote screenplays for the 1967 James Bond film ''You Only Live Twice '' the 1968 fantasy ''Chitty Chitty Bang Bang'' and the 1971 screen adaptation of his book first Charlie book, ''Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory.''

Dahl once said he was able to write his bizarre tales by adopting the mindset of a child. ''Children are basically crueler than adults. They don't squirm when they step on a slug,'' he said.

The writer was born Llandaff Dahl on Sept. 13, 1916, in South Wales, the son of Harold and Sofie Dahl. He served as a wing commander for the Royal Air Force in World War II and published his first book, ''The Gremlins,'' in 1943.

Dahl married Oscar-winning actress Patricia Neal in 1953 and had five children in a 30-year marriage filled with love but marred by tragedy.

Their eldest child, Olivia, died of measles complications in 1962 when they were unable to obtain vaccine, and their son Theo was severely injured in 1961 when his baby carriage was struck by a taxi cab in New York.

Dahl helped nurse Neal back to health after she suffered three strokes in 1965 that left her in a wheelchair. Her astonishing recovery aroused so much interest that she later made lecture tours across the United States with the message - written for her by Dahl - that life was worth fighting for.

Their stormy marriage, once described as one of the greatest modern love stories, ended in 1983 when Neal filed for divorce because of Dahl's longstanding love affair with her secretary.

SAN SALVADOR, EL SALVADOR (NOV. 23) UPI - Rebels shot down an A-37 Salvadoran air force plane Friday during fighting with the army in the eastern province of Usultan, witnesses and military sources said.

''We saw the plane being shot down by rebels with Sam 7 ground-to-air missles '' said a witness who asked to be identified only as a local resident.

The witness said the plane was bombarding rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, who since Wednesday had been attacking an army post near Santa Elena, Usultan, 57 miles east of the capital.

A spokesman for army operations in Usultan said the plane was forced down at 1:50 p.m. Friday.

''I don't know the details of the incident or whether it was shot down with ground-to-air missiles,'' he said.

The armed forces said an A-37 air force plane ''had an accident'' in Usultan, leaving one of the pilots dead. They said the other pilot managed to eject from the cockpit.

''A commission is investigating the incident to determine the real causes of the accident,'' a military spokesman said.

Another army official confirmed heavy combat in Usulatan Friday.

The U.S. Embassy said the rebel offensive that began Tuesday has left 179 people dead, including civilians, rebels and soldiers, and 359 wounded.

EAST WENATCHEE, WA (NOV. 23) UPI - A group of 11 central Washington apple growers will file a lawsuit next Wednesday claiming heavy losses in sales following the ''Alar scare'' that shook the apple industry in 1989.

Defendants in the suit involving the texture and color-enhancing chemical include CBS' ''60 Minutes,'' the Natural Resources Defense Council (NDRC) and the public relations firm Fenton Communications, a spokesman for the lawsuit said Friday.

Burt Chestnut of East Wenatchee, in the heart of Washington's $700 million-a-year apple industry, said the class-action suit will be filed in state court in Yakima, Wash., on Wednesday morning.

Chestnut said the plaintiffs will seek at least $250 million in damages for Washington apple growers whose sales were hurt by reports initiated by the NRDC and Fenton Communications and broadcast by CBS.

But he said that's not the main reason for the suit.

''The money is not the concern we have,'' he said. ''The concern is that we get back to reality and basics and let people know that our food is safe and these people (those publicizing dangers posed by chemicals) have got to start being responsible.''

Even before the 1989 news about Alar, many Washington growers had already stopped using it - a fact they contend was lost in the fear about an NRDC study on Alar-produced tumors in laboratory mice that suggested apples posed a cancer risk for school-aged children.

A February 1989 ''60 Minutes'' report publicized the study, touching off a national scare. A handful of school districts from California to the East Coast temporarily halted purchases of apples and sales dropped off drastically in March.

Apple industry experts responded that to reach the same level of exposure as the laboratory animals, a human would need to consume some 28,000 pounds of apples daily for 70 years.

Industry leaders invited actress Meryl Streep, a national speaker for the anti-Alar campaign, to come to Washington and see how low Alar use was.

In August 1989, the federal government awarded $9.5 million to growers to compensate them for giving away 57.5 million pounds of apples as a way of reducing a glut of unwanted apples on the market.

By January 1990, the Washington Apple Commission estimated the scare had cost Washington growers in excess of $100 million. It launched a $3 million national campaign to encourage ''healthy choices'' - including eating apples.

Apple prices were depressed further this year by a bumper crop that made it difficult to move fruit that had been piling up in warehouses.

All along, growers contended that use of Alar was already down before the scare of 1989.

In July 1986, Safeway, the nation's largest supermarket chain, agreed in response to a campaign mounted by Ralph Nader in conjunction with the independent Consumers Union, which publishes Consumer Reports, not to sell any apples treated with Alar. In January 1987, A&P, Farmer Jack's, Giant, Grand Union and Kroser's followed suit.

Although the Washington Apple Commission stated at that time that Alar use in the state was as low as 5 percent of all growers, a new Consumer Union study in New York in March 1989 found Alar residue in 44 different brand-name apple juices and 55 percent of apples tested - though at levels well below government standards.

Government and food industry officials already critical of the claims by NRDC claimed the Consumers Union report confirmed Alar does not pose a significant public health risk. The EPA, the Food and Drug Administration and Agriculture Department noted the low residue levels - the highest reading in apple juice was 1.8 parts per million - compared to the 20 part-per-million standard.

Alar production was voluntarily discontinued by its maker, Uniroyal, in June 1989. In March 1990, the EPA lowered the permissible level of Alar to 5 parts per million in apples and also lowered the allowable levels for the chemical in cherries, grapes, nectarines, peaches, peanuts and pears.

Chestnut said growers now want to clear their product's name and make sure the general news media is responsible about reporting similar stories in the future.

He said the lawsuit's plaintiffs lobbied for financial supporters among apple growers and non-apple growers, both in Washington and nationally. Chestnut said the war chest grew to over $300,000 in the first two weeks.

''We came out with a letter to the growers stating that we'd like to have some money and that if we didn't file by the first of December they'd get their money back,'' he said.

''We wanted to test the water to see if there's anybody behind us. And, Holy mackerel! We couldn't believe it. There's a lot of people behind us.''

NEW YORK (NOV. 23) UPI - More than 1,200 animal rights activists gathered at Manhattan's Columbus Circle Friday for a brief, peaceful demonstration against the sale of fur, police said.

The more than 1,200 protesters, organized by the group Animal Rights Movement, began arriving at the edge of Central Park at 3:15 p.m. and had dispersed by 2:45 p.m., said officer Kim Royster, a police spokeswoman.

''The group apparently was there to make it known that it opposes the sale and wearing of fur,'' Royster said. ''The protest was peaceful and there were no arrests.''

An Animal Rights Movement spokeswoman said some of the protesters later marched to Times Square.

''We're trying to educate the people in a broad sense about what happens to animals who are killed for their fur,'' she said.

Carol Wynne, director of the Fur Information Council of America in New York, responded in a separate interview, ''We believe the demonstrators have a right to protest. But consumers have a right to wear fur, too.''

Wynne said her organization's statistics indicate that anti-fur demonstrations do not discourage consumers from buying fur coats.

She said fur coat sales rose from slightly under $1 billion in 1980 to $1.9 billion in 1989, despite numerous anti-fur protests in the middle and late 1980s.

CHICAGO (NOV. 23) UPI - Several gay couples who tried to obtain marriage licenses Friday were turned away because of a state law that prohibits the legal unions of same-sex partners.

Two gay activist groups - Queer Nation and Citizens for Gay Action - decried the rejections as discrimination and vowed to fight to have the law changed.

''It's being denied to us to be part of a family,'' said Steve Kleinedler, 24. He said although he was nervous about taking a public stand, it must be done to help change the public's perception of gays.

Without legal marriages, gays and lesbians are deprived of such rights as hospital visitation, inclusion on insurance, immigration status and parenting, the activists said.

''There are privileges given to married couples that are not given to everybody,'' said Kleinedler's partner, Charles Ward, 28.

State law says ''a marriage between a man and a woman licensed, solemnized and registered as provided in this act is valid in this state.''

''Obviously, when they wrote (the law), they didn't think gays and lesbians would want to get married,'' said Jeff King, 23, of Chicago.

King and his partner were among several couples who tried to apply for marriage licenses Friday at the Cook County Marriage License Department.

James Romberg, deputy director of vital services, said Friday's applications were being handled on a case-by-case basis, but he added, ''We're bound to follow the law.''

(NOV. 23) UPI - President Bush wrapped up his eight-day European and Mideast tour today in one-on-one talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad. The two met with top aides for two and one-half hours before going into a one-on-one session with just a translator. Bush was expected to ask Assad what his reaction would be if U-S-led forces launched a military strike against Iraqi forces occupying Kuwait. Assad has opposed the use of the military option in the Persian Gulf crisis, though he also opposes the Iraqi invasion of its neighbor.

Bush got unqualified support for the military option today from Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak. The two met for more than two hours in Cairo, then told reporters that they shared a desire for a peaceful solution to the crisis but would launch a military operation, if necessary.

The State Department today authorized U-S Embassy dependents to leave Sudan and warned American private citizens to leave the country, where large anti-American and pro-Iraqi demonstrations have been staged. A German economics institute says former East German Communist leaders gave state security agents orders to go underground to run companies previously owned by the state. (NOV. 24) UPI - Anti-fur activists marched through the streets of several major cities Friday, heckling consumers in upscale shopping districts from New York to Beverly Hills in an effort to discourage holiday shoppers from buying fur.

The fifth annual Fur-Free Friday was marked with demonstrations in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle. There were no immediate reports of arrests, officials said.

Scattered demonstrations - timed to coincide with the traditional beginning of the Christmas shopping season - were also held in suburban shopping malls nd small town commercial districts around the country.

Animal rights activists said the protests were aimed not only at discouraging consumers from buying fur, but also at preventing purchasers from buying other animal products, such as leather.

In Chicago, more than 200 protesters gathered in front of a fur store and the Water Tower Place mall, chanting ''Fur is murder. Fur is dead. Don't wear furs.''

The demonstrators also passed out anti-fur literature to people entering a fur salon and dogged fur-wearing shoppers on upscale Michigan Avenue. People wearing fur coats were greeted with chants of ''Shame them.''

The targets of the hecklers often seemed unfazed. One woman dressed in fur said, ''Look at all the leather shoes and the leather purses. How many of them do you think ate Thanksgiving turkey? This is foolish.''

New York police said more than 1,200 animal rights activists jammed Manhattan's Columbus Circle for a brief, peaceful afternoon demonstration organized by the group Animal Rights Movement. Some protesters later marched to Times Square.

''We believe the demonstrators have a right to protest. But consumers have a right to wear fur, too,'' said Carol Wynne, director of the Fur Information Council of America in New York, an industry group.

Wynne said the numerous anti-fur demonstrations organized during holiday seasons since the mid-1980s have not hurt fur sales, noting that the fur industry had record sales during the winter of 1989.

In Beverly Hills, police estimated that more than 200 placard- carrying protesters marched though the streets of one of the nation's most expensive shopping districts.

Bill Dyer, a staff member of Animal Voice Magazine, said the 2 1/2-hour post-Thanksgiving march in Beverly Hills was the biggest in the five years he has participated.

Another protest was staged at the Harris Co. department store in the San Bernardino Central City Mall.

In San Francisco, an estimated 300 protesters, including rock star Grace Slick fanned out among stores in the swanky Union Square shopping area to demand that leather and fur products be taken off the racks.

''By the time we're through you won't find anything like that on the shelves '' said protester Doll Stanley.

Police and store managers said there was no disruption of shopping and no arrests.

A similar protest in San Diego's Fashion Valley shopping mall brought out more than a dozen demonstrators who carried signs depicting trapped animals and slogans such as ''fur is murder.'' The primary targets were Neimann-Marcus and Furs by Graf.

About 300 animal-rights activists and their supporters staged a ''March Against Fur'' rally in Seattle. Mitchell Fox, spokesman for the Progressive Animal Welfare Society, or PAWS, said the group wanted to ''make Seattle the most liveable city for fur-bearing animals.''

Protests also were held in at least five Pennsylvania cities: Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Erie and Wilkes-Barre.

Sylvie Pomicter, president of Central Pennsylvanians for Animal Rights, said ''A lot of stores are discontinuing furs. I see a day coming when there won't be any furs at all.''

Pomicter said the group provided a trash can at a Harrisburg, Pa., protest to allow people with furs to dispose of them.

Anticipating the protests, the fur industry took out full-page advertisements in newspapers throughout the country to contest charges that animals are treated inhumanely for their fur.

AMMAN, (NOV 24) - Canadian External Affairs Minister Joe Clark said here Saturday that Western hostages held in Iraq should not be turned into a bargaining chip.

"Iraq should not be keeping those people captive under any circumstances and they certainly should not be using these individuals as bargaining chips," he told reporters on his arrival for talks with King Hussein on the Gulf crisis.

Iraq is detaining some 3,000 Westerners and Japanese since it invaded Kuwait on August 2.

Mr. Clark said he would seek the views of Jordanian officials "on how we might bring a peaceful end to the crisis and how we must persuade (Iraqi President)

Saddam Hussein to move peacefully out of Kuwait."

The Canadian minister said he was not carrying any specific messages to officials here.

"I naturally will convey to his majesty and the Jordanian government my sense of some views of the coalition of countries (that) have troops or a presence in the Gulf and also some developments in the (United Nations) Security Council," he said.

He was referring to the multinational troop buildup, including Canadian forces massed against Iraq in the Gulf region and Saudi Arabia and to U.S. efforts to muster support for the use of force to push Iraq out of Kuwait.

Mr. Clark, who arrived from Ankara, will continue his regional tour with visits to Egypt and Israel, Canadian diplomats said.

AMMAN, (NOV 24) - Yemeni Foreign Minister Abdel Karim al-Iryani on Saturday ruled out Yemen's voting for a U.N. Security Council resolution endorsing use of force against Iraq in the current Gulf crisis.

Mr. Iryani, in a statement broadcast on Jordanian radio, said his country "insists on a peaceful Arab solution to the Gulf crisis and categorically refuses the use of force to settle this conflict."

Yemen, the only Arab member of the Security Council, will take over the rotating presidency of the 15-member body -- currently held by the United States -- next month.

Sanaa has maintained close ties with Iraq during the almost four-month-old crisis.

Washington has been spearheading efforts for a U.N. vote to use force against Iraq to end its occupation of Kuwait, which began August 2.

U.S. President George Bush has canvassed support for the vote during a tour this week of Europe and the Middle East, including talks with Saudi Arabia's King Fahd, exiled Kuwaiti ruler Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and Syrian leader Hafez al-Assad.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker travelled to Yemen on a similar mission on Thursday, but was told by President Ali Abdallah Saleh that Sanaa wished to see a peaceful end to the Gulf crisis.

Mr. Baker on Saturday was to meet in Bogota with his Colombian counterpart and have talks in Los Angeles with the Malaysian foreign minister, since both their countries are members of the U.N. Security Council.

On Friday, British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said the Security Council would be meeting soon to examine a draft resolution sanctioning use of force against Iraq.

A U.N. diplomatic source said later that a meeting of the council's foreign ministers could take place next Thursday.

MUSCAT, (NOV 24) - Oman's State Minister for Foreign Affairs, Youssef bin Alawi Abdullah, left Muscat Saturday for Teheran on a two-day official visit to Iran.

In a statement to the Omani News Agency, he described his visit to Iran as a ''routine'' one.

He stressed the need for holding consultations with all states in the Gulf, particularly Iran, at this stage through which the region was passing following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

Abdullah expressed hope that his visit would help reach a united stance between Oman and Iran aimed at safeguarding the interests of the region's states and people.

Muscat has maintained good relations with Teheran, even during the eight-year war between Iran and Iraq that ended in August 1988.

Although Iran has condemned the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and demanded an Iraqi troop withdrawal from the emirate, it has also opposed the deployment of the U.S.-led 300,000-strong multinational force in the Gulf.

Oman is a member of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council (Gcc), which has backed the presence of foreign troops in Saudi Arabia and other Gulf states to deter a new Iraqi attack.

BOGOTA, (NOV 24) - U.S. Secretary of State James Baker was meeting here here Saturday with President Cesar Gaviria and other top Colombian officials in a bid to convince them to support a U.N. Security Council resolution authorizing the use of force in the Gulf crisis.

Colombia, currently on the Security Council, has joined efforts by other non-aligned members to avoid such a resolution in favor of further calls for a peaceful resolution of the crisis sparked when Iraq invaded Kuwait August 2.

Mr. Baker arrived here early Saturday after a tour of Europe and the Middle East during which he met with the foreign ministers from most of the other 14 members on the Security Council to gauge support for a U.N. resolution on the use of force.

A Security Council meeting at the ministerial level to debate such a resolution is expected to be held next week, as Washington is anxious to debate the issue before November 30, when its month-long presidency of the council passes to Yemen.

Any council resolution must receive at least nine votes in favor, with the five permanent members -- Britain, China, France, the Soviet Union and the United States -- having veto power.

But the council's 10 previous resolutions against Iraq's invasion of Kuwait have received at least 13 positive votes and a substantially reduced majority for a vote on the use of force to resolve the crisis could be viewed as a setback for the anti-Iraq effort.

Mr. Baker stopped briefly in Yemen Thursday, but at the end of the visit he and the Yemeni head of state, General Ali Abdallah Saleh, remained far apart on the question of using the military against Iraq, with the Yemeni leader insisting on "the necessity to not turn to the use of force."

Colombia has being working with Yemen and Romania to have the Security Council simply adopt another resolution stressing the need for an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait but urging continuation of the U.N.-mandated economic blockade of Baghdad to achieve it.

During a brief visit here Friday, Romanian Prime Minister Petre said he was pessimistic about the possibility of a peaceful solution to the crisis but remained convinced that "we are still in the phase of trying all the solutions and pressures which could lead to a peaceful resolution."

Mr. Baker was due to spend barely an hour in the Colombian capital before heading on to Panama and then the United States.

GENEVA, (NOV 24) - Confrontations between Swiss security forces and senior U.S. officials here Friday which led to White House allegations of brutality were the fault of U.S. journalists who did not respect security measures, a Geneva police spokesman said Saturday.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said earlier that the U.S. planned to file a protest in Switzerland and to call in the Swiss ambassador in Washington over the "brutal and vicious treatment," which occurred during U.S. President George Bush's visit for talks with Syrian President Hafez al-Assad.

Mr. Fitzwater said that Swiss security officers at the Geneva airport rammed a machine gun in the stomach of U.S. Ambassador and chief of protocol John Reed and punched a photographer, and that a senior security official verbally abused White House Chief of Staff John Sununu when he attempted to intervene later on at the hotel where the talks took place.

The Geneva police spokesman said that "the presidential entourage did not want to conform with the security measures put in place in agreement with the U.S. mission in Geneva," and that security officers were therefore obliged to "take a harder approach with certain journalists and" White House personnel.

He said that the police had opened an internal investigation into the incidents to try to determine what had happened, but that no disciplinary measures were being considered.

An official of the Geneva airport's foreign relations service asserted that U.S. reporters at the airport had not wanted to stay within the area which had been prepared for them and had come into contact with a police cordon while attempting to approach the presidential airplane.

The Geneva police spokesman said that if a machine gun had been pointed at Mr. Reed's stomach, as claimed by the White House, it was because he was next to the journalists who were not obeying security measures.

He asserted that the Syrians, in contrast with the Americans, had "perfectly obeyed the security measures."

The spokesman said that he did not which official had verbally abused Mr. Sununu.

PRAGUE, (NOV 24) - Czechoslovakia held Saturday its first free local elections since 1936, with returning officers describing participation as ''relatively brisk'' and the proceedings as calm.

In Slovakia, one of the two republics making up this formerly communist country, polling booths closed by early afternoon.

In the Czech republic where the election laws differ, the booths were to remain open until 10 p.m. local time. First computer projections of the results were not expected until Sunday evening.

An international observers' commission monitored the polls at the invitation of the Czechoslovak government.

In the capital, Prague, participation had reached 45 per cent by midday, the country's news agency, Ctk, reported. Overall participation was expected to fall short of the 97-per-cent level reached in parliamentary elections in June this year.

A total of 226,831 candidates are running for 104,621 posts on local councils.

Communists were forced out of local office in the two months after Czechoslovakia's velvet revolution in November a year ago and the positions refilled without elections but with popular backing.

Those interim replacements were members of Citizens' Forum, its Slovakian sister organisation Public against Violence Vpn, and the Christian Democrats, or, in some cases, reform-minded communists.

MOSCOW, (NOV 24) - President Mikhail Gorbachev, much criticized at home for his forays abroad, plans to cash in on his popularity in the West by calling on his rich friends to help the Soviet Union through a difficult winter.

The dislocation of the economy has led to widespread shortages and even Leningrad, the country's second largest city, is to introduce food rationing as of next week. Meanwhile, problems with transport and storage have meant that much of this year's good harvest has gone to waste.

Mr. Gorbachev told a press conference here late Friday that talks held this week in Paris on the sidelines of the CSCE summit had notably focussed on how the West could aid the Soviet Union.

The president went on to praise Western leaders for their sense of "solidarity", saying agreements for shipping emergency supplies to the Soviet Union might be finalized within the next "two to three weeks".

"We look forward to assistance in moving towards a market economy. We look forward to financial aid and food supplies on attractive terms," Mr. Gorbachev said, adding that aid might also take the form of lower interest rates and more beneficial terms in credit arrangements and trade deals.

"I sensed a feeling of solidarity, something we lacked in the past when we saw each other in the sights of the gun," Mr. Gorbachev also said, speaking of his talks in Paris.

Speaking Friday at an electoral rally in Germany, Chancellor Helmut Kohl said the West should provide aid to the Soviet Union to help Mr. Gorbachev stay in power.

Aid for Moscow "will cost money, but we also spent a lot during the Cold War, and it is good to now be able to spend for peace," Mr. Kohl added.

German authorities are currently considering sending Moscow part of West Berlin's strategic stockpiles, built up in the wake of the 1948 Soviet blockade of that city. On Tuesday, a group of German experts will fly to Moscow to discuss ways of providing concrete aid and coordinate the vast charity effort now under way in Germany.

TOKYO, (NOV 24) - Japanese and Soviet citizens pin different hopes on an unprecedented visit to Japan by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in April, according to an opinion poll published by Japan's Kyodo news agency Saturday.

They differed widely when asked to specify two outcomes they expect from the visit, the first by a top Soviet leader since World War II, which will return a long series of trips to Moscow by Japanese prime ministers.

Of the Japanese, 64.4 per cent cited a settlement of a territorial dispute that has prevented the two countries from signing a postwar peace treaty and hampered active economic exchanges, Kyodo said.

On the other hand, 47.0 per cent of the Soviet citizens hoped for expanded economic cooperation and 34.8 per cent expected increased trade, Kyodo said.

The poll was jointly conducted with the Soviet news agency Tass. It covered 3,000 eligible voters each in Japan and the Soviet Union. Of the total, 1,945 Japanese and 2,625 Soviet citizens replied.

Kyodo said 75.9 per cent of the Japanese and 59.2 per cent of the Soviet citizens nonetheless replied in the affirmative when asked if the visit would provide an opportunity to open a new era in Japan-Soviet relations.

TEHERAN, (NOV 24) - Iranian authorities have hanged 23 people convicted on drug trafficking charges in the southeastern town of Zabol, Teheran Radio reported Saturday.

The radio did not specify when the hangings occurred, but said the "armed drug traffickers brought in drugs to the country and held up travellers on the roads of Sistan-Balouchistan," the province where they were executed, along the border with Pakistan and Afghanistan.

The latest hangings bring to 1,298 the number of people executed in Iran since the introduction of a strict anti-drug law in January 1989.

Elsewhere, the revolutionary committees, or Islamic militias, arrested 880 drug traffickers country-wide last month and placed 2,825 addicts in labor camps for detoxication programs, the radio said.

According to last year's law, "all persons found in the possession of more than 30 grams (0.066 pounds) of heroin or more than five kilograms (11 pounds) of opium are subject to capital punishment."

The body of Moayed Arab Nuri, a counsellor on the Iraqi Embassy staff here for five years, was discovered near Mehdia-Plage north of the capital. Moroccan police said they were investigating the cause of death.

The diplomat was married, with three children.

VATICAN CITY, (NOV 24) - Pope John Paul II, meeting with 20 Vietnamese bishops here Saturday, called on the southeast Asian country's episcopal conference to enter a "constructive dialogue with the officials".

It was the first time that Vietnamese authorities had granted exit visas to as many Roman Catholic bishops for visits to the Vatican.

Saying that the budding relationship with Hanoi bode well for the future, the pope still saw "a long road with many difficulties ahead. But it looks like we are on the right road".

Vatican officials, headed by French Cardinal Roger Etchegaray, met for talks with Vietnamese leaders in Hanoi November 7-13, the first to be held since North Vietnamese troops overran U.S.-backed South Vietnam in 1975.

The Vietnamese government earlier hailed the visit as "an important step to improving relations between the Holy See and Vietnam", which has six million Catholics.

"The Church does not ask for privileges but wants to be granted freedom to serve the country as well as it can", the pope said.

Eleven bishops had died in Vietnam since 1987 without being replaced, and five dioceses were still vacant, according to Cardinal Paul Marie Nguyen Minh Nhat, chairman of the Vietnamese bishops' conference.

He said there were hardly any priests in the north, while their number was constantly decreasing in the south.

The soldiers, from a transport unit, were thrown from the back of their truck in the collision, which occurred in Saudi Arabia's Eastern Province.

It was the 48th U.S. fatality since the American military buildup here began in response to Kuwait's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

ROME, Nov 24 (AFP) - The Ansaldo group was awarded a 300-million-dollar contract to build the second tranche of the Assiout thermal plant in Egypt, IRI said in a communique Saturday.

IRI is a public holding company which controls the Ansaldo group.

The contract was signed in Cairo by Said Aissa, chairman of the Egyptian electricity company, and by officials of the two Ansaldo subsidiaries that will carry out the work, Ansaldo GIE and SAE Sadelmi.

Ansaldo won the contract in the face of stiff competition from Mitsubishi, the Japanese group which supplied the first tranche of the electricity plant. Giussepe Arcelli of Ansaldo GIE said his group's success was "due to competitive prices for similar technology."

Ansaldo is currently working on a 330-megawatt thermal plant in Damanohour and a 90-megawatt plant in New Esna.

Mr. Arcelli told reporters the contract was the first signed by Ansaldo since the beginning of the Gulf crisis. "We have 870 million dollars worth of orders in Iraq and 522 million dollars worth of suspended credits which cannot be unblocked until the end of the conflict," he said.

MEXICO CITY (NOV 23) - Mexican President Carlos Salinas and U.S. President George Bush will meet Tuesday in northern Monterrey to discuss a free trade agreement which could lead to a North American free trade zone extending to Canada.

While Mr. Bush is optimistic the U.S. Congress would approve a free trade agreement with Mexico when it reconvenes next year, it was not clear efforts to weave Canada into the accord would come to fuition.

The United States and Canada signed a free trade agreeemnt in 1988.

This sixth meeting between Mr. Salinas and Mr. Bush since they both took office nearly two years ago -- the most frequent top-level contact between the two countries in history-- comes at a time of exceptionally good U.S.-Mexican relations.

Mr. Salinas recently said a free trade agreement between Canada, the United States and Mexico would create "the world's biggest market," ahead of the the European Economic Community (EEC) and Japan and its Asian trading partners.

With wage levels nine times lower than those in the United States, Mexico could also serve as a platform for increased exports to its two northern neighbors, Mr. Salinas added.

The three countries have a combined consumer market of 362 million people and last year traded goods worth 225 billion dollars.

The U.S. Congress is expected to start debating a free trade agreement with Mexico in the first half of 1991. Mr. Bush expects it will be approved despite opposition from small businesses and unions, which fear the accord would lead to higher unemployment as firms would be enticed by Mexico's lower wages.

Mexican Foreign Minister Fernando Solana Friday said conditions for Canada's inclusion in the free trade agreement would also be discussed in Monterrey, although he cautioned that anything which might "halt, delay or complicate" bilateral negotiations between Mexico and the United States would be unacceptable.

He said it was possible a "mechanism" could be found to have Ottawa participate in the talks.

Other issues on the agenda during Mr. Bush's 28-hour stay in Monterrey will be the Gulf crisis; world trade negotiations within the framework of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade; ongoing efforts to curb drug trafficking and illegal immigration accross the Rio Grande.

Two illegal immigrants from Mexico have been killed and a third has been wounded by U.S. border patrols since September.

Some political analysts here have pointed out that the two-year honeymoon between Mexico and the United States is being threatened by recent charges of electoral fraud against the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party in local polls held earlier this month in the state of Mexico.

El Financiero, a leading financial daily, said Friday that by not responding to calls for more political openness at home, Mr. Salinas was tarnishing his own image and that of Mexico in the United States.

BEIJING, (NOV 24) - Spanish Foreign Minister Francisco Fernandez Ordonez said here Saturday it was "likely" that the United Nations would adopt a new resolution on the Gulf crisis.

"Before coming to Beijing, I thought it was likely a new resolution would be adopted before the end of the month. Following discussions I have had here, my position has not changed," Mr. Ordonez told a press conference at the end of his three-day visit to China.

Mr. Ordonez gave no details as to the precise nature of any future resolution, or whether it would authorise the use of force against Iraqi troops who invaded Kuwait on August 2.

Mr. Ordonez met briefly Saturday with his Chinese counterpart Qian Qichen, who had held talks on the Gulf crisis the previous day with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze in the northwestern Chinese city of Urumqi.

A Chinese Foreign Ministry communique published Friday said Moscow and Beijing would continue discussions if the U.N. Security Council adopted "supplementary measures" on the Gulf crisis.

Mr. Ordonez told reporters he was not authorised to speak for Beijing and was therefore unable to speculate on China's position if a vote were called on adopting a resolution sanctioning military intervention in the Gulf.

While Moscow has not ruled out the possibility of armed intervention, Beijing has been more cautious, insisting on exploring every avenue while there remains a "glimmer of hope" of a peaceful solution.

(Diplomatic sources in New York said Friday that preperations were under way for a ministerial-level meeting of the U.N. Security Council next week to discuss the possible use of force in the Gulf.)

BAGHDAD, (NOV 24) - President Saddam Hussein decided Saturday to allow a "large number" of detained Italians and 10 Britons to leave the country, the official Iraqi News Agency (INA) reported.

The decision to free the Italians was in response to a request to President Hussein from the Melchite archbishop of Jerusalem, Hilarion Capucci, INA said. It did not specify the exact number of Italians to be released.

More than 280 Italians are being held by Iraq to deter an attack by the U.S.-led multinational forces in the Gulf.

The Greek Catholic archbishop, who resides in Rome, arrived in the Iraqi capital Monday at the head of a delegation of Italian pacifists on a private mission to secure the release of all the hostages.

President Hussein also decided to allow 10 British hostages to leave Iraq with their wives who are visiting Iraq, INA said.

The Iraqi authorities had invited wives to visit the foreigners detained by Iraq over the coming Christmas holidays.

An estimated 1,400 Britons are detained in Iraq and Kuwait, including around 360 held at strategic installations as "human shields" to avert an attack by the multinational forces deployed in the Gulf.

INA confirmed meanwhile that an Airbus carrying 25 tons of foodstuffs and medicine sent by the Italian government had arrived in Baghdad on Saturday.

Italian television said earlier that the government had decided to send the shipment, destined for Iraqi children, in response to appeals from the World Health Organization.

Baghdad is holding around 3,000 Western and Japanese nationals, but President Hussein decided last Sunday to free the foreigners in stages by March 25 unless Iraq was attacked.

DAMASCUS, Nov 24 (AFP) - Syrian army chief General Hekmat Shehabi bitterly criticised Iraq Saturday for invading Kuwait, saying it had played into Israel's hands and damaged Arab unity.

In a speech to air force officers, Gen. Shehabi said the August 2 invasion performed "a free service to Israel and imperialism" and struck at "Arab unity and solidarity" by causing the deployment of foreign forces in the Gulf and "the strengthening of our enemy Israel's arsenal".

However Syria was trying to end the crisis "in an Arab framework" and to "cut short any internationalisation" of the conflict, he said.

"We send our soldiers to Arabia and the Emirates to prevent an extension of the crisis and we are ready to defend any Arab country that is attacked", he added.

Syrian President Hafez Assad and U.S. President George Bush held talks on the Gulf crisis in Geneva Friday.

NEW YORK (NOV. 24) UPI - The Arkansas Razorbacks had it all figured out for the first 27 minutes. What happened over the final 13 was another story.

Second-ranked Arizona, buoyed by an amazing 42-11 run in the second half spearheaded by its NBA-like frontline of Sean Rooks, Chris Mills and Brian Williams, overwhelmed No. 3 Arkansas Friday night 89-77 to capture the championship of the preseason NIT.

The Wildcats, trailing 45-37 entering the second half and 55-46 with 13 minutes left, dismantled the Razorbacks over the final 12:40 to turn this early season matchup of two the country's top teams into a rout reminiscent of Nevada-Las Vegas' 103-73 demolition of Duke in last season's NCAA title game.

''I have to give Arkansas a lot of credit,'' said Arizona Coach Lute Olson, ''but down the stretch our work on the boards did them in.''

The Wildcats outrebounded the Razorbacks 54-32 for the game, 31-14 in the second half, in limiting Arkansas to one field goal attempt per trip up court.

Sean Rooks scored a career-high 31 points, including 9 straight during Arizona's decisive second-half run and tournament MVP Chris Mills added 29 points for the Wildcats, whose frontline of Mills, Rooks and Williams dominated the undersized Razorbacks inside in the second half with second- and third-shot opportunities.

''I must say that out physical strength in the end was the difference,'' Olsonsaid. ''When Arkansas had to bang against our 240- pound guys, it took its toll on them.''

In the consolation game, Bill McCaffrey scored 21 points to lead No. 6 Duke to an 85-77 victory over Notre Dame.

The Wildcats, 3-0, trailed by eight points at halftime and by nine with 12 minutes remaining before exploding for 40 points over the final 12:40 to turn the game into a rout.

Todd Day led Arkansas, 3-1, with 19 points, but only one in the second half. Roosevelt Wallace added 11 points, all in the first half, and Oliver Miller had 10. The Razorbacks confused the Wildcats early in the second half with a full-court prees and led 55-46 with 12:35 to play when Mills buried a three-pointer and the Wildcats took off.

After an Arkansas basket, Mills, who made 6 of 7 shots in the second half, tipped in a miss to make the score 57-51 before Rooks went to work.

He was fouled by Miller with 11:40 to go and Miller's protest led to atechnical foul. Rooks made 2 of 4 free throws and, after the Wildcats were awarded the ball, hit a leaner in the lane and drew a foul for a three-point play to bring Arizona within 57-56.

On their next possession, Rooks took an alley-oop pass from Matt Othick and his dunk gave the Wildcats their first lead since a 35-34 advantage.

Another inside basket by Rooks and a backdoor slam by Mills after Day was nailed with a technical for cursing made it 62-57 with 8:05 to play.

''The two technical fouls hurt us,'' said Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson, ''and being that intensity is the name of our game, we lost it all when we got the techs. I can accept the fact that we got beaten on the boards, but I can't tolerate our players losing their cool.''

During the Wildcats outburst, the Razorbacks couldn't do anything right. Worse yet, when they missed Arizona controlled the rebound.

It got even uglier for Arkansas at the end, as the Wildcats ran their lead to 88-66 in the final minutes before the Razorbacks got some late field goals.

Mills, who scored 25 points in the Wildcats semifinal victory over Notre Dame, was equally proud of his play in the defensive end.

''I felt I played some tight defense and showed a lot of intensity in trying to stop Todd Day,'' said Mills, a Kentucky transfer who left the school after he was named in a cash-payment scandal. ''I just try and go out and play hard, and play tough defense. And when I play tough defense, I know my offense will come.''

Mills buried a pair of three-pointers as Arizona raced to a 29-21 lead with 7:10 to play in the first half.

But the Razorbacks, behind the shooting of Day and strong inside play from Isaiah Morris and Wallace, closed the half with a devastating 24-8 run to take a 45-37 lead at intermission.

Day drilled two three-pointers during the run, dunked following a wild scramble and blew past two defenders for basket off the baseline as the Razorbacks closed the half by outscoring Arizona 11-2 over the final 2:48.

''This was a great win for us,'' Olson said. ''I do believe this team is for real, but we still have to stay focused.''

In the first game, McCaffrey hit 10 of 16 field-goal attempts in helping Duke improve to 3-1. Christian Laettner added 16 points and 13 rebounds and freshman Grant Hill finished with 14.

''It's part of my job to hit the open shots if they're there,'' said McCaffrey. LaPhonso Ellis led No. 25 Notre Dame, 2-2, with 19 points. Sweet added 18, including 16 in the second half, Kevin Ellery had 18 and Elmer Bennett chipped in 17.

The Washington Capitals used their checking line to ignite a record- setting scoring spree Friday night.

Steve Leach scored goals 10 seconds apart as part of a three-goal outburst in a 21-second span, leading the Capitals to a 7-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Leach was joined by linemate Mike Ridley, who collected a Washington season-high four points as the checking line notched three goals.

''We do have our role - our line has to be responsible defensively,'' Ridley said. ''But there's no reason why we can't when we get the chance, to take advantage of it.''

Washington's outburst was the quickest three goals in team history, beating the franchise record of 39 seconds set Feb. 5, 1984. Leach's two goals were the fastest ever by a Capital, topping Dennis Maruk's 11- second record set Dec. 16, 1982.

Michal Pivonka ignited the splurge with a power-play goal at 16:18. Leach's two goals came at 16:29 and 16:39, running Washington's lead to 5-1 before the first intermission.

Washington's Kelly Miller scored the game's first goal at 1:57, firing a wrist shot past goaltender Frank Pietrangelo.

The Capitals, who entered the game as the NHL's best at penalty- killing, notched a short-handed goal at 8:53 to grab a 2-0 lead. Kevin Hatcher beat Pietrangelo, giving him both of Washington's short-handed goals this season.

Confusion on the Capitals' bench and in front of their net led to Pittsburgh's first goal.

Capitals Alan May and Nick Kypreos and Pittsburgh's Jay Caufield were whistled for roughing, giving Pittsburgh a one-man advantage. However, Washington added a fifth attacker after play resumed and were penalized 29 seconds later for the infraction.

The Capitals contended the overhead scoreboard failed to show the penalties that led to them having too many men on the ice. But the dispute faded moments later when the Capitals' offense unloaded.

Washington goaltender Jim Hrivnak stopped 39 of 42 shots and was spectacular in the first period. Even so, Hrivnak may be returned to the minors in favor of veteran Don Beaupre, who is recovering from a groin injury.

''Well, I played the last two starts and won them both,'' said Hrivnak, who is 4-1 when starting.

In other NHL games Friday night, Philadelphia outlasted Toronto 4-1, Hartford edged Boston 4-3, Buffalo nipped Edmonton 3-2 in overtime, Detroit beat St. Louis 5-3 and Minnesota topped Vancouver 6-4.

Flyers 4, Maple Leafs 1

At Philadelphia, Scott Mellanby and Derrick Smith scored early in the third period to lift the Flyers. Philadelphia goaltender Pete Peeters stopped 22 shots, dropping Toronto to 0-10-0 on the road this season. The Maple Leafs have lost nine of 11 games.

Whalers 4, Bruins 3

At Boston, Pat Verbeek and Ron Francis each scored a pair of power- play goals while Hartford held a two-man advantage for three minutes to lead the Whalers. The game was marred by a fight between the benches late in the second period and by the ejection of Boston's Cam Neely for a five-minute match penalty.

Sabres 3, Oilers 2

At Buffalo, N.Y., Benoit Hogue scored just 34 seconds into overtime to lift the Sabres. Hogue grabbed the puck during a flurry of passes in the Oilers' zone and fired in front, sending the puck jumping off an Edmonton stick and past goaltender Bill Ranford.

Red Wings 5, Blues 3

At Detroit, rookie Johan Garpenlov scored four goals to power Detroit over St. Louis. Garpenlov, who played last season in the Swedish Hockey League, became the 16th Red Wing to score four goals in a game and the first to accomplish the feat since Steve Yzerman did so last Jan. 31.

North Stars 6, Canucks 4

At Bloomington, Minn., Brian Bellows scored his fifth career hat trick to lead the North Stars. The victory was Minnesota's first in its last eight games, during which the North Stars have gone 1-5-2. The six- goal outburst equaled Minnesota's season high.

(NOV. 24) UPI - President Bush plans to have a quiet weekend at Camp David after his eight days overseas, visiting seven nations. Bush received a mixed response to his request for other nations to endorse possible military reaction against Iraq. The president's last meeting was with his Syrian counterpart, who agreed that Iraqi troops should leave Kuwait, but did NOT agree to the use of force.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says a disturbance between news photographers and security officials when President Bush arrived in Geneva caused abuse of two presidential aides. Fitzwater says Swiss security officials verbally abused chief of staff John Sununu and ''shoved a machine gun'' into the stomach of chief of protocol Joseph Reed.

U-S experts question President Bush's warning that an Iraqi nuclear weapon may be only months away. Leonard Spector of the Carnegie Endowment for Peace says Iraq could have a bomb in the next five to 10 years. One senior administration official says he's NOT aware of any new intelligence that would back up Bush's warning that Iraq may be moving faster than expected toward a nuclear weapon.

Analysts say the world's oil prices were buoyed Friday by ongoing jitters over the potential for war in the Persian Gulf. Oil prices rose in trading that was extremely light on the day after the Thanksgiving day holiday. Price increases ranged from two dollars and 20 cents for the key OPEC crude, to two dollars and 62 cents for Britain's North Sea Brent, the world's most widely traded crude.

Stocks on Wall Street slipped a little during a post-Thanksgiving session marked by a long trading halt in the morning, due to technical problems and by the lightest volume in almost four years. The Dow Jones industrial average lost 12-pointpoint-23. Trading was halted almost all of Friday morning by electrical problems at the New York Stock Exchange.

Drug arrests have cramped the style of Menudo, and also the make-up of the popular singing group from Puerto Rico. Two members were ousted from the five-member band Friday... just hours after their arrests at the Miami airport. They are accused of possessing small amounts of marijuana. Menudo has been active in anti-drug campaigns. A spokesman for the group says he hopes fans will see the firings of the two band members in a positive light.

CAMP DAVID, MD (NOV. 24) UPI - President Bush returned home Saturday from an eight-day European and Middle East diplomatic mission having secured more support for military action if needed to oust Iraqi troops fom Kuwait.

Most of the leaders Bush conferred with at the Paris summit and in Saudi Arabia and Egypt appeared to be backing stronger action and showing less patience with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Bush's pessimism that Saddam would voluntarily withdraw his forces from Kuwait was shared by many of the leaders with whom he met. At the same time Bush's rhetoric became more bellicose and his warnings more stern.

The president's last stop before flying back to Washington early Saturday was with Syrian President Hafez el Assad, who also agreed with Bush that ''Iraq's occupation of Kuwait is unacceptable.''

''They expressed their preference for a peaceful solution of the crisis in conformity with the Arab League and U.N. resolutions,'' White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said in a written statement. ''They also agreed that Iraq should recieve no reward for its aggression and that Kuwait's territory and legitimate government must be restored fully.''

Assad has said Syria wants Iraqi forces out of Kuwait, which they invaded Aug. 2, but opposes use of force. He maintains that Syrian troops were sent to Saudi Arabia only to help U.S.-led multinational forces defend that country.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak expressed support for such military force as an option, but dodged questions about whether his country would fight Iraq as part of a 500,000, U.S.-led multinational force now assembled in the region.

Bush said he and Mubarak had not given up on a peaceful solution, but added, ''We are getting tired of the status quo and so is the rest of the world.''

Bush, who is spending the weekend at the Camp David presidential retreat before departing on a trade mission to Mexico next week, has called for a U.N. hearing on allegations that Iraqi troops have brutalized Kuwait during its four-month occupation. The hearing is seen as a move to generate support for a resolution authorizing military force.

Bush's decision to meet with Assad, who is on the State Department's terrorist list, came as a surprise, He defended the meeting, saying Syria is a member of the coalition that has contributed troops to the multinational force in the gulf.

Their discussions covered a wide range of issues related to the Middle East, including the need for stability in Lebanon; the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza; and Syria's influence in helping bring about the release of the six remaining American hostages in Lebanon, Fitzwater said.

The two presiedents also had an extended conversation on the subject of terrrorism and agreed to continue their dialogue on the subject, Fitzwater said.

Both Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and German Chancellor Helmut Kohl advocated patience and more time for U.N. authorized economic sanctions against Iraq. Kohl argued for greater emphasis for a negotiated settlement.

In Yemen, the small Arab nation that will assume the presidency of the 15-nation U.N. Security Council in December, leaders rebuffed Secretary of State James Baker's efforts to persuade the government to support possible military action. The security council will vote on any resolution regarding a military option.

Bush received a lift on Thursday when he visited front-line U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf region.

To please the troops, he ate two Thanksgiving dinners on visits to forward bases in Saudi Arabia, one of them nearly 80 miles away from the Kuwaiti border and considered risky.

While on the road, Bush tried to maintain support at home, inviting House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine, Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas and House GOP leader Robert Michel of Illinois to tour the front with him.

(NOV. 24) UPI - Mark Aguirre did the scoring, while defensive specialist Dennis Rodman limited the league's top scorer.

Aguirre came off the bench to score a game-high 20 points, and Rodman held Washington's Bernard King to 11 points Friday night, carrying Detroit to a 97-88 victory over the Bullets.

King, the NBA's leading scorer with a 31.9 average entering the contest, made only 5-of-16 shots. Rodman said he was prepared for King.

''I go home the night before and I just think all day about guys like that,'' said Rodman, who finished with a game-high 15 rebounds. ''I just say to myself 'I've got to come to play tonight.'''

''He had a tough night,'' Aguirre said of King. ''You're going to have nights like that. They didn't drop for him.''

Aguirre collected 14 points in the first half as the Pistons cruised to leads as large as 13 points. Detroit led by as many as 17 points in the third quarter, but the Pistons' lead dwindled to 91-81 with 4:35 to play.

Aguirre then sank a jumper, Byron Irvin made a rebound basket and Joe Dumars hit a 19-footer to seal the victory.

Dumars scored 19 points and Isiah Thomas added 18 points for Detroit.

Without much production from King, the Bullets relied upon their bench. Tom Hammonds led Washington with 18 points, while Pervis Ellison totaled 11.

''We picked up the slack a little tonight,'' Washington Coach Wes Unseld said. ''A couple of guys really came through. With seven guys with less than two years of experience, every night is going to be a struggle.

''Most expansion teams have more experience than us.''

In other games, Boston topped Sacramento 115-105, Philadelphia defeated Cleveland 111-105, Miami clipped Charlotte 116-100, Indiana edged Houston 112-111, Chicago defeated the Los Angeles Clippers 105-97, San Antonio outlasted Dallas 107-104, Utah slipped by Seattle 97-96, New Jersey nipped Phoenix 116-114, and Portland pounded Golden State 143- 119.

Celtics 115, Kings 105

At Boston, Kevin McHale scored 21 points to lead six Boston players in double figures, leading Boston to its fifth straight victory.

76ers 111, Cavaliers 105

At Philadelphia, Charles Barkley scored 36 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lift Philadelphia to its sixth victory in seven games.

Heat 116, Hornets 100

At Charlotte, N.C., Kevin Edwards tied a career-high with 34 points to lead Miami.

Indiana 112, Houston 111

At Indianapolis, Reggie Miller scored 35 points, including two free throws with 3.9 seconds remaining, and Vern Fleming tied a team record with 18 assists.

Bulls 105, Clippers 97

At Los Angeles, John Paxson hit 12 of 16 shots to score a season-high 26 points, helping Chicago snap a two-game losing streak.

Spurs 107, Mavericks 104

At Dallas, a technical foul called against Dallas center James Donaldson turned the game around with 40 seconds left and Paul Pressey put San Antonio in front with 11 seconds remaining to bring the Spurs their fourth straight victory.

Jazz 97, SuperSonics 96

At Salt Lake City, Karl Malone scored 30 points to help Utah Coach Jerry Sloan to his 100th career victory. Xavier McDaniel led Seattle with 33 points.

Nets 116, Suns 114

At Phoenix, Mookie Blaylock hit a jump shot with 0.3 seconds remaining to help New Jersey end the longest road losing streak in NBA history at 34, dating back to December 1989.

Trail Blazers 143, Warriors 119

At Portland, Ore., Terry Porter scored 22 points and handed out 12 assists to help Portland start the season with a 10-0 mark, a franchise record. The Trail Blazers also won their club record 14th straight game, dating back to last season.

RANGOON, BURMA (NOV. 24) UPI - The Burmese military government, in a fiery show of its anti-narcotics policy, burned stocks of illegal drugs with an estimated street value of $500 million, the state-run newspaper reported Saturday.

The bonfire of heroin, opium, and opium deriatives was set ablaze Thursday in Kokaung State, located in the ''Golden Triangle'' opium- producing area of northeast Burma, according to reports in the government-owned Working People's Daily. The blaze was witnessed by four U.N. and U.S. narcotics agents, the newspaper said.

Maj. Gen. Khin Nyunt, the chief of military intelligence and powerful secretary of the ruling junta, oversaw the destruction of the narcotics, the report said.

The report said the foreign narcotics officials inspected the packets of drugs which were piled high on a bamboo platform before putting the packets to the torch.

It said the drugs had an estimated U.S. street value of more than $500 million. Their wholesale value in Burma would be less than $5 million.

It was the third time that the Burmese government has publicly destroyed narcotics to emphasize it has not slackened its efforts to suppress opium production in Burma.

Anti-narcotics officials in the United States and Thailand have expressed doubts about the government's sincerity in fighting narcotics because of reports that the Burmese military has worked out deals with certain opium warlords to enlist their support against ethnic rebels.

Foreign officials also witnessed the first and second narcotics bonfires which took place in Rangoon on Feb. 13 and April 30, destroying 1,012 pounds of heroin with a total U.S. street value of more than $900 million.

The U.S. State Department has estimated that Burma is the largest producer of illicit opium in the world, growing some 2,000 tons per year.

BEIJING (NOV. 24) UPI - The first senior Western government minister to visit China officially since the 1989 Beijing crackdown said Saturday his talks with Chinese leaders left him confident that Beijing would not block a proposed U.N. resolution authorizing military force against Iraq.

Spanish Foreign Minister Francisco Fernandez Ordonez declined to give details of his discussions with Premier Li Peng, President Yang Shangkun and Foreign Minister Qian Qichen, saying the talks were confidential.

But Ordonez took special pains during a news conference closing his three-day trip to praise China's support for the proposed Western-led effort to force Iraqi troops out of Kuwait.

He said nothing he had learned had led him to lose his conviction that a U.N. resolution authorizing the use of multinational military force to evict Iraqi troops from Kuwait could be passed before December.

''I believed before I came here that a resolution on the use of force is possible before the end of the month,'' Ordonez said. ''I say that it is still possible.''

Ordonez would not say whether China had given him assurances it would support a use-of-force resolution.

China, one of five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council, consistently has backed non-military resolutions seeking to force Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to retreat from Kuwait.

Ordonez said he had been briefed about the Chinese foreign minister's meeting Friday with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, which dwelled at length on the Persian Gulf crisis.

He said nothing from the Qian-Shevardnadze talks had changed his belief that a use-of-force resolution was possible this month.

Ordonez said it was in part because of China's pro-Western position on Iraq's Aug. 2 conquest of Kuwait that the European Community had lifted most sanctions against Beijing.

Ordonez clearly linked China's anti-Iraq stance in the United Nations to the European Community's Oct. 22 lifting of most of the political sanctions imposed against China last year. The sanctions aimed to protest the communist government's brutal suppression of peaceful pro- democracy demonstrations.

''I think the responsible attitude of the Chinese government in the Security Council deserved some answer on the part of the international community,'' Ordonez told reporters.

''This was one of the most important reasons for the lifting of the embargo by the European Community,'' he said.

Ordonez was the first senior Western official to visit China officially since the EC lifted its sanctions banning high-level official contacts, government lending and cultural and academic exchanges.

Curbs on military cooperation and arms sales remain in place.

Most of the sanctions imposed by the United States and Japan remain in place, although China's relations with both countries have been improving steadily in recent months.

Ordonez stopped short of saying China's relations with Spain and the European Community had returned to normal, saying the bloodshed in Beijing last year had been relegated to history and could not be forgotten, but stressed that contacts must move forward.

''(Relations) are starting to be normal,'' he said.

BEIJING (NOV. 24) UPI - A long-jailed editor branded by the government as ''chief criminal instigator'' of last year's crushed democracy movement was charged Saturday with two of China's most serious crimes: sedition and spreading counterrevolutionary propaganda.

Word of the formal arrest and indictment of Wang Juntao, 32, was contained in a one-page notice sent to his wife by the Beijing Public Security Bureau, his wife told United Press International.

The notice, dated Nov. 24, said Wang would be brought to trial on charges of intent to overthrow the communist government and dissemination of counterrevolutionary propaganda.

Under China's socialist legal system, the filing of formal charges generally is tantamount to conviction and defendants are expected to earn leniency by confessing their errors.

The severity of the charges against Wang suggests the hard-line government continues to regard Wang as one of a core of behind-the- scenes agitators who directed last year's protests, since other activists who played more public roles have been freed.

Although Wang was seldom seen in Tiananmen Square during the massive 1989 protests, he has been vilified by the government as a ''black hand'' and ''chief criminal instigator'' of the democracy movement.

Execution and lengthy prison terms are among the sentences that have been meted to Chinese convicted of counterrevolution or insurrection, which are considered extremely serious crimes because they challenge the communist government's legitimacy.

Wang's wife, Hou Xiaotian, 27, has campaigned tirelessly on her husband's behalf, preparing collections of his writings that she believes demonstrate his patriotism and commitment to change under socialism.

Wang, until last spring the editor of the path-breaking magazine Economics Weekly and one of its most prolific intellectual contributors, was arrested in October 1989 in south China, having been betrayed by a colleague.

He has been held without charge for 13 months at the Qincheng political prison outside Beijing, even though Chinese law limits such detentions to just a few days.

Although hundreds of Tiananmen Spring activists have been freed in recent months, Chinese sources have said the government was was readying formal charges against targeted dissidents including Wang, his colleague Chen Ziming and human rights activist Ren Wanding.

Derided now as a ''counterrevolutionary rebellion,'' the 1989 protests were crushed on June 3-4 when Chinese troops were ordered to open fire on the peaceful demonstrators.

Wang is a veteran of several democracy campaigns in China. He was arrested during the anti-government Tiananmen Incident of 1976 and was a founder of the unofficial newspaper Beijing Spring during the ill-fated Democracy Wall movement of 1978-79.

(NOV. 24) UPI - President Bush is back home after ending his week-long European and Middle Eastern trip with a meeting in Geneva with Syria's president on the Persian Gulf crisis. President and Mrs. Bush plan to spend a restful weekend at Camp David.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says Swiss security officials on duty for President Bush's visit Friday were less than hospitable. He says the guards verbally abused White House chief of staff John Sununu and ''shoved a machine gun'' into the stomach of a U-S diplomat.

There's a crisis within a crisis in the Soviet Union. Mikhail Gorbachev told the Parliament that he needs broad executive powers to guide the Soviet Union out of its economic crisis. However, Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov vowed to quit if Gorbachev is given the powers.

Local elections opened in Czechoslovakia Friday and continue Saturday, as voters in the country's eastern republic of Slovakia select representatives to town and county councils. It's the first free vote for local officials since 1948.

The State Department has authorized embassy dependents in Sudan to leave the country and warned American private citizens to leave because of large anti-U-S and pro-Iraqi demonstrations.

The Treasury Department says the United States posted a budget deficit of 31-point-46 BILLION dollars in October in the opening month of fiscal 1991. The total 1991 deficit is expected to be at least 176- point-33 BILLION dollars.

SEOUL (NOV. 24) UPI - Sot Chitalada of Thailand defended his World Boxing Council flyweight title Saturday with a 12-round majority decision over former light flyweight champion Chang Chung-ku of South Korea.

There were no knockdowns in the free-swinging bout as both fighters frequently missed wild shots.

Judge Dave Moretti of the United States scored the fight 114-113 and Miguel Donate of Puerto Rico had it 115-114 for the champion. Rudy Jordan of the United States scored it 114-114.

Chitalada, 28, made the fifth successful title defense of the crown he won in June 1989 from Kim Yong-kang of South Korea. Chitalada improved to 23-2-1.

Chang, 27, defended his WBC light flyweight crown 15 times before retiring in June, 1988. He came back to the ring in August, 1989. Chang dropped to 38-3.

Both fighters weighed 112.

CAIRO, EGYPT (NOV. 24) UPI - A senior Omani minister left Muscat Saturday for Tehran for talks with senior Iranian leaders expected to focus on developments of the Persian Gulf crisis, the Omani news agency reported.

During his two-day visit, the Omani minister of state for foreign affairs, Youssef Bin Alwai, will meet Iranian president Ali Akber Hashimi Rafsanjani and hold talks with his Iranian counterpart, Ali Akbar Velayati on the crisis triggered by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Alawi's visit to Tehran comes two days after Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz visited the Omani capital, where he delivered a message from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to Sultan Qaboos bin Said of Oman dealing with the latest developments in the gulf crisis.

Oman, a member of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council, had played a leading role in ending the 1980-88 Iran-Iraq war by maintaining good relations with both Baghdad and Tehran.

Aziz's visit to Muscat, the first by an Iraqi official since the occupation of Kuwait, prompted some diplomats to speculate the Iraqi president might be seeking a mediation role by Oman in ending the crisis.

In a related development, a meeting by the foreign ministers of the GCC scheduled for Saturday was postponed to give the ministers a chance to attend a meeting of the U.N. Security Council, where they will discuss a possible resolution sanctioning the use of force against Iraq.

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN (NOV. 24) UPI - Pakistan has recalled four of its envoys from the Persian Gulf region for urgent consultations amid fear of impending war, Foreign Office sources said Saturday.

One of the sources confirmed the Pakistani ambassadors to Saudi Arabia, Iran, Iraq and Kuwait had been recalled because ''Pakistan takes President Bush's plan to take'' U.N. action against Iraq by Nov. 30 ''very seriously.''

Bush and Secretary of State James Baker have been working against a Nov. 30 deadline to achieve U.N. Security Council consensus on a resolution authorizing the use of force to oust Iraq from Kuwait if a U.N. embargo of Iraq fails to dislodge President Saddam Hussein's troops.

After Nov. 30, the United States surrenders the rotating presidency of the Security Council to Yemen, a gulf state which so far has opposed such a resolution - despite a recent trip to Yemen by Baker seeking such support.

After a meeting with Foreign Minister Yaqub Khan, the returning Pakistani ambassadors will meet with new Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif on Sunday.

Pakistan is a Moslem country and an ally of Saudi Arabia, where U.S.- led international forces deployed after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Hundreds of thousands of Pakistanis also work in the gulf region, sending home much-needed funds. The Iraqi invasion of Kuwait has already reduced Pakistan's foreign exchange earnings.

Islamabad has committed 5,000 troops for ''the defense of the holy lands,'' but only 2,000 of them have been sent.

The foreign office sources refused to confirm Pakistani news reports that Islamabad has offered to send an armored brigade to Saudi Arabia.

Ijlal Haider Zaidi, Sharif's adviser on defense, will soon be leaving for Saudi Arabia for further discussions, one news report said Friday.

(NOV. 24) UPI - Around the world... Around the clock... U-P-I has the latest news.

President Bush is back home after meeting in Geneva with Syrian President Hafez Assad yesterday. The stop in Geneva was the last on the president's hectic eight-day journey, during which he discussed the Persian Gulf crisis with key European and Middle East leaders.

Bush and his wife plan to spend the weekend at Camp David, before returning to the White House.

The main topic of conversation in London yesterday was who will be the next prime minister. Office workers partied and bookmakers reported a booming trade in bets on Margaret Thatcher's successor. Bookstores reported sales of instant Thatcher memorabilia. Thatcher resigned Thursday when her support dwindled in Parliament. An election to fill her post will be held Tuesday.

Scheduled talks between the striking Newspaper Guild and the New York Daily News management failed to materialize yesterday when negotiators were unable to get a federal mediator to join them. The 30th day of the strike by the Guild and eight other unions was marked by an educational march by strikers in the Bronx, urging the public not to buy or subscribe to the News.

The private relief group AmeriCares says it will airlift more than 340-thousand pounds of food and medicines to the Soviet Union during the Christmas holiday to ease shortages in orphanages and hospitals. The group says the first two flights will leave Connecticut for Moscow on December 23rd and 26th, with a third planned for late January to aid children, the ill and the elderly.

Anti-fur activists marched through the streets of several major cities yesterday, heckling consumers in upscale shopping districts from New York to Beverly Hills. The fifth annual Fur-Free Friday was marked with demonstrations in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle. There were no immediate reports of arrests.

Britain's Queen Elizabeth yesterday made her first visit to unified Germany. During her one-day trip, the queen visited the Royal Air Force base near the Dutch border and had tea with German President Richard von Weizsaecker. Sources in El Salvador say rebels shot down an A-37 Salvadoran air force plane yesterday during fighting with the army in an eastern province. The U-S Embassy said the rebel offensive that began Tuesday has left 179 people dead, including civilians, rebels and soldiers. 359 have been wounded.

(NOV. 24) UPI - Iraqi authorities have admitted several teenage students were arrested in Baghdad for causing ''a state of panic'' in schools in one of the most serious outbreaks of unrest in Iraq since the Persian Gulf crisis began, Arab news media reported Saturday.

The admission followed unconfirmed reports by travelers from Bagdhad to other Arab countries that eight teenage girls had been killed in schoolyard clashes between authorities and dissenting teenagers.

Iraqi newspapers said an unspecified number of Iraqi teenagers had been arrested in Baghdad after they distributed leaflets and wrote slogans on school walls, creating what the papers said was ''a state of panic.''

The newspapers gave no details of the contents of the leaflets or the nature of the slogans. It said the students also made ''provocative'' phone calls, but did not say to whom.

Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency said Iraqi authorities blamed the disturbances on the Kuwaiti resistance, which surfaced after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. The Iraqi newspapers said the Interior Ministry had asked authorities to prevent further incidents.

Observers say economic sanctions imposed against Iraq for the invasion have caused serious hardships to the Iraqi people, while having little effect on President Saddam Hussein.

Meanwhile, the foreign ministers of member states of the U.N. Security Council prepared for a meeting next week to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis and a possible resolution authorizing the use of force to oust Iraqi troops from occupied Kuwait.

The meeting comes after a Middle East and European tour by President Bush to solidify the alliance against Iraq, which won him a firm pledge of support from Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, but Syria's Hafez Assad said he could not back an option to use military force in the crisis.

Bush has indicated he wants a U.N. resolution authorizing force in the gulf in order to send a clear message to Saddam and to pave the way for a possible military strike.

The United States has deployed more than 230,000 troops to the gulf, the forefront of a multi-national force assembled in response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. Washington has indicated it will send 200,000 more troops after the first of the year.

The Soviet ambassador to the United Nations said he expected the Security Council to send another stern warning to Iraq, but would not say if the Soviet Union would approve military action, Cairo radio reported Saturday.

In Beijing, Spanish Foreign Minister Francisco Fernandez Ordonez spoke with Chinese leaders and said the talks left him confident Beijing would not block a proposed U.N. resolution authorizing force.

''I believed before I came here that a resolution on the use of force is possible before the end of the month,'' Ordonez said after discussions with Prime Minister Li Peng. ''I say that is still possible.''

In London Saturday, a foreign ministry spokesman reported five British nationals had been arrested by Iraqi troops in Kuwait and moved to Baghdad. The five had been in hiding since Iraq invaded the emirate and began holding Westerners hostage at key military and economic sites as shields against attack.

In Baghdad, the official Iraqi news agency INA denied reports in the Western media that Secretary of State James Baker had refused to meet with an Iraqi official in Yemen earlier in the week.

Baker had gone to Sanaa in an apparently unsuccessful effort to convince the leaders of Yemen, the only Arab nation in the U.N. Security Council, to toughen their soft-line stand against Iraq.

In another high level meeting, Oman's foreign minister flew Saturday to meet with Iranian officials in Tehran, furthering speculation that Iraq had asked Oman to play a more important role in the crisis.

Oman played a key role in the mediation that ended the 1980-1988 Iran-Iraq war and Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz went to Oman earlier this week to give Sultan Qaboos bin Said a personal message from Saddam.

In another development Saturday, Jordan's lower house of Parliament condemned the U.S.-led force in the gulf, its first official position since convening last week. It said the Western troops were deployed in the oil-rich region ''to achieve their greed in their hegemony over our wealth resources.''

King Hussein had criticized Western intervention in the gulf during a speech last week, saying it prevented Arabs from finding their own solution to the dispute.

Swiss authorities meanwhile said they would allow an Iraqi jetliner to load $800,000 worth of medicine from Switzerland next week, one of several shipments the country has facilitated in recent weeks. The U.N.- imposed trade and oil embargo against Iraq allows shipments of medicine for humanitarian reasons.

And Pakistani officials in Islamabad said Pakistan has recalled four of its envoys from the Persian Gulf region for urgent consultations amid fear of impending war.

BOGOTA, COLOMBIA (NOV. 24) UPI - Secretary of State James Baker, in Colombia on his continuing quest for support of a U.N. resolution authorizing use of force against Iraq, called Saturday for direct Israeli-Arab peace talks but would not link the issue to the gulf crisis.

Baker also said the use of arms ''may be the only thing'' Iraqi President Saddam Hussein ''understands.''

The secretary of state met for an hour and 15 minutes with Colombian President Cesar Gaviria, mostly discussing the U.S. diplomatic offensive to promote U.N. authorization of force to dislodge Iraq from Kuwait if a U.N.-imposed economic embargo does not work. Colombia is a member of the 15-member U.N. Security Council.

After the meeting, Baker said the Bush administration also wants implementation of the U.N. resolutions calling for direct Israeli-Arab talks on the question of Palestinians living in Israeli-occupied territories.

''When I say it is important to the United Nations that its resolutions be implemented, I do not make a distinction between resolutions having to with the situation regarding Iraq and Kuwait or any other resolutions, resolutions having to do with the Arab-Israeli dispute,'' he said.

But he again refused, as some countries have suggested, to link such the Palestinian issue to a resolution of the crisis triggered by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

''All of the countries, almost all of the countries with whom I have had consultations agree that the situation of Iraq's aggression against Kuwait and the situation of the Arab-Israeli peace process are two different situations that should not be linked,'' he said.

Baker left Colombia immediately after the talks for a nearly seven- hour flight to Los Angeles, where he was to meet with the foreign minister of Malaysia, also a member of the Security Council.

He also said talks would be held with Cuba on the U.S. proposal. Cuba has been among the few states voting ''no'' on U.N. resolutions against Iraq. Baker also said he was not prepared to say how a Security Council vote would go over a use-of-force resolution.

Foreign Minister Luis Fernando Jaramillo said Colombia would consider any such proposal. But a senior official, who asked not to be identified, said the government did not believe all diplomatic channels had been exhausted and would not authorize using force when a peaceful settlement seemed possible.

While saying the United States ''strongly preferred'' a diplomatic settlement to the crisis, Baker said U.N. approval of military action would bring pressure on Hussein to withdraw from Kuwait.

''It may be the only thing he understands,'' Baker said. ''If so, that would be regrettable.''

WASHINGTON (NOV. 24) UPI - President Bush, whose patience has apparently been pushed to the limit, was prepared to throw in all his chips this week to seek a United Nations go-ahead to take military action against Iraq if necessary.

The president and Secretary of State James Baker were in a race with time to win a new, tougher resolution before the United States has to turn over the chairmanship of the U.N. Security Council on Friday.

Baker will gather with the foreign ministers of the Security Council on Thursday to try to hammer out the 11th and toughest resolution against Iraq since it annexed Kuwait Aug. 2.

Bush lobbied for U.N. votes authorizing the use of force against Iraq in talks with leaders who attended the 34-nation Paris summit and with Arab chieftains during his eight-day European-Middle Eastern journey.

The travel-weary president arrived home Saturday morning after a huddle with Syrian President Hafez Assad in Geneva, Switzerland, and then flew to Camp David to rest this weekend before departing for a two- day visit with Mexican leaders in Monterrey, Mexico.

Baker, who has toured the globe for two weeks to drum up support among Security Council nations to increase pressure against Iraq, played his cards close to the chest. Neither he nor Bush would say at several press conferences whether they had the U.N. votes to back up sanctions against Iraq with force.

There appeared to be a general pessimism, even among the leaders who were not ready to sign on the dotted line on the use of force, that Iraq's Saddam Hussein will not budge despite worldwide condemnation of his aggression in the Persian Gulf.

The Soviet Union and China, both permanent members of the Security Council, supported the U.N. resolutions against Iraq so far, but have not tipped their hand on a military solution.

In order for a new resolution to be approved, nine of the 15 council members must be in favor of it and none of the five permanent members may veto it.

As a result of his travels, Bush appeared to be sounding the drums of war even louder than before he left Washington. His rhetoric throughout the journey became more bellicose and he escalated his warnings that Saddam, a name he hissed when he mentioned the Iraqi leader, might soon have nuclear weapons of mass destruction.

His seven-hour odyssey to celebrate Thanksgiving Day with the American troops dug into the sands of Saudi Arabia seemed to have bolstered his sense of urgency over mission.

He told the troops, whose morale he found high, that they would never ''walk away'' from the job they had come to do, and furthermore, Saddam had never failed to use any weapon in his arsenal.

At a joint news conference in Cairo Friday with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, Bush insisted he had no time frame or battle plan for the gulf, that he was not being driven by a weather deadline or the Moslem religious month of fasting, called Ramadan.

But both he and Mubarak reflected a new impatience against the standoff in the gulf. ''We're getting tired of the status quo, and so is the rest of the world '' Bush said. He predicted a successful outcome of the U.S. quest for more action in the United Nations.

Meanwhile, at home, the four top Democratic and Republican leaders who accompanied Bush to Saudi Arabia and also found a high morale among the troops insisted that even if the United States gets a green light from the United Nations, the president must seek authorization from Congress to go to war.

LAGRANGE, IN (NOV. 24) UPI - An Amish man is scheduled to appear in court this week on charges he abducted his estranged wife and daughter to deprogram them and force their return to his faith, authorities said Saturday.

Authorities from LaGrange County in northern Indiana were bringing Ezra Miller 36, back to the state from Mount Vernon, Ill., where he was put in jail last week in the case involving the conservative religious sect.

The man was arrested on charges of burglary and criminal confinement after his wife and daughter escaped 20 days of captivity.

LaGrange County Prosecutor Sue Glick said Miller is scheduled to appear in circuit court Monday for a hearing to set bond and arrange for counsel.

Three other people have been arrested in the case, and their bonds were set at $1 million apiece. A California deprogrammer was being sought by police, authorities said.

The Amish make up a Christian sect that favors plain dress and living, chiefly in agrarian society. The simple, conservative people have little reliance on modern conveniences.

Miller is accused of taking estranged wife Elma, 32, and their daughter Annie, 9, from the home of Elma's relatives on Halloween.

He allegedly tried to have his wife deprogrammed and returned to his Old Order Amish beliefs after she and her relatives began following doctrines different from those of his congregation, authorities said.

Miller and some ''English'' (non-Amish) friends allegedly abducted Elma and Annie forcibly from the home where they were staying. Glick said Elma's change in religious beliefs apparently led to the marital split. She had joined her parents, Ervin and Annie Yoder, and about six other Amish families in following Bible teachings of Wilbur Eash, who preached a doctrine different from that of the Amish in the area.

''The rights of Elma Miller were more or less trampled on,'' Glick said.

The Amish do not believe in divorce. ''When you choose a mate, you choose for life'' among the Old Order Amish, Glick said.

''Obviously, to us the view of the victim is paramount,'' Glick said. ''At this time, she wants action taken against the people who removed her from her home and separated her and her daughter over a 20-day period and held her against her will.''

The deprogrammer is a California man who reputedly charged $10,000 for such work, authorities said. He is still being sought.

Elma fled from the farm home of her husband's parents near Mount Vernon last Monday, and authorities were soon able to find Ezra Miller.

LaGrange County sheriff's Sgt. Jo Ann Waldron brought Elma and Annie back Tuesday - a seven-hour journey by car.

She described them as ''physically great, mentally tired.''

Waldron said Elma Miller escaped when left momentarily alone by her husband and the deprogrammer. She reached a nearby ''English'' farm that had a telephone. Old Order Amish don't have phones.

The sergeant said Elma's other children, a girl and boy, are believed to be in Illinois. They were in the father's custody before the abduction.

Also arrested in the case were Alvin Yoder, 34, a brother of Elma Miller; Robert Miller, 47, and Sue Miller, 44, who are unrelated to the other Millers and who are not Amish. They were charged with conspiracies to commit burglary and criminal confinement. They posted bonds of $1 million each with certified checks.

Ezra needed non-Amish people to drive the car he and others allegedly used in the abduction, authorities said. Old Order Amish don't drive automobiles.

Glick said complaints against Old Order Amish are few, usually involving young people raised in the Amish faith who have not gone into the church.

TAMPA, FL (NOV. 24) UPI - The man who gained notoriety for raping a California teenager and hacking off her arms has been charged with stealing a $4 hat from a Florida store, his second arrest this year for petty theft.

Lawrence Singleton, 63, has been living in the Tampa area with his sister since 1988, following his controversial release from a California prison where he was serving a 14-year sentence for the 1978 rape and mutilation of a 15-year-old girl.

Singleton identified himself as Bill Johnson to Hillsborough County sheriff's deputies called to the scene Friday after employees at a Wal- Mart Store in the town of Seffner detained Singleton for allegedly smuggling a hat out of the store.

It was Singleton's second arrest in eight months on petty theft charges.

On Friday, a store security guard told deputies he saw Singleton pick up a white hat in the men's department and head for the cash register with his shopping cart.

Singleton paid for some diapers, but had allegedly rolled up the hat and stuffed it between his purchase and the shopping cart handle. He allegedly left the store without paying for the hat and was stopped, The Tampa Tribune reported Saturday.

Singleton insisted to deputies that his name was really Johnson. He also gave them the name and telephone number for a woman whom he insisted would verify his identity.

Investigators said the woman turned out to be his sister and she identified him as Singleton. He was subsequently cited for petty theft and resisting arrest without violence for giving a false name.

Deputies did not take Singleton to jail and released him at the scene after he signed a misdemeanor citation and agreed to appear in court in Plant City on Jan. 2.

In September, the Tampa native was released from the Hillsborough County Jail after serving two months of a six-month sentence for trying to shoplift a $10 disposable camera from a Brandon drug store in April.

Singleton - who served eight years of his 14-year sentence for raping the hitchhiker, chopping off her arms and leaving her for dead in a ditch - was paroled from prison in San Quentin, Calif., in 1987.

His release sparked a storm of protest in that state when authorities tried to find a town where he could serve his one-year parole.

The former merchant seaman and two-time divorcee decided to return to Florida. When he registered as a Florida citizen, he told authorities he was fully disabled and living on Social Security.

Shortly after his arrival in Tampa, someone tossed a homemade bomb on the front lawn of Singleton's brother's house, where he was staying. No one was hurt in the incident, and there were no arrests.

(NOV. 24) UPI - President Bush is back home after having secured more international support for military action if needed to oust Iraqi troops from Kuwait. Bush conferred with world leaders at the Paris summit and in Saudi Arabia and Egypt... and most appear to be backing stronger action against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. But on his last stop in Geneva, Bush met with Syrian President Hafez Assad, who said he opposes the use of force. But Assad agreed that Iraq's invasion of Kuwait is ''unacceptable.''

Washington apple growers say they'll sue the perpetrators of last year's ''Alar scare.'' A group of 11 growers plan to file a class-action lawsuit next Wednesday seeking 250-Million dollars in damages. The group claims growers suffered heavy losses in sales after reports suggested that alar, used to treat apples, posed a cancer risk for school-age children. The reports touched off a national scare that caused apple sales to drop drastically, even though many growers had already stopped using the chemical.

New York vagrants are asking the nation's highest court to grant them the right to beg in the city's subway system. In a class-action suit, a group of the city's poorest residents claim that 1989 regulations prohibiting panhandling but allowing other forms of charitable solicitation in the massive subway system violates their constitutional rights. The Supreme Court could announce as early as Monday whether it will review the case or let the ban on begging stand.

BONN, GERMANY (NOV. 24) UPI - Thousands of anti-war demonstrators wearing gas masks and waving banners protested in Bonn Saturday against Germany's Persian Gulf policy, including 40 former hostages vowing to sue the government for allegedly failing to help them.

Demonstrators estimated to number about 6,500 gathered in front of the city hall near Bonn's marketplace to criticize what many called the aggressive pro-war policies of the United States and Germany.

Horst-Eberhard Richter, a well-known German psychoanalyst, sharply attacked Chancellor Helmut Kohl for planning to change the German constitution to allow Germany to send troops to the gulf.

''For the very reason that our government cannot send soldiers to the gulf and therefore not add to the military escalation, we expect that it takes decisive steps toward a political solution to the crisis,'' he said.

Germany's constitution does not allow the government to send troops outside the immediate theater of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

But Kohl has said he would push for changing the constitution to allow German troops to participate in U.S.-led multinational force deployed after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Richter called on Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait and release all foreigners held hostage, but also urged politicians to refrain from the ''military attack option against Iraq and wait for economic sanctions to take effect.''

Demonstrators carrying banners and wearing gas masks formed a ''human chain'' in front of Kohl's office before marching more than a mile to downtown Bonn to listen to speakers.

''I think this is the only possibilty we have to stop the preparations for war in the gulf,'' said Kaethe Hoffmann, 42, a physician from Weinheim in southern Germany.

Speaking for the group of former hostages and their families, Patrizia Hundsdorf, the wife of a former hostage, said the government failed to assist the hostages.

''Matters of state are more important than human life,'' she said. ''That is my bitter conclusion.''

She said the government was wrong when it claimed Iraqi President Saddam Hussein alone was to blame for the taking of hostages, because Western arms producers contributed to the arms build-up in Iraq.

''Without the granting of export licences for weapons (for Iraq) by the international community, there never would have been any hostages,'' she said, adding, ''Only the hostages themselves are innocent.''

After the demonstration, Hundsdorf and more than 40 former hostages met in a nearby restaurant and decided to lodge a civil suit against the German government for allegedly neglecting to assist the hostages.

Juergen Blum, held hostage in Iraq until his release in September for humanitarian reasons, was equally critical of the government but distanced himself from the pacifist stand of the demonstrators.

''Hussein must be gotten rid of or else Iraq will die,'' he said. ''The question is how ... Even Iraqi soldiers think he has gone too far.''

Many of the estimated 6,500 demonstrators were members of the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, one of the organizers of the demonstration and recipient of the 1985 Nobel Peace Prize.

PHILADELPHIA (NOV. 24) UPI - Fred Shero, who coached the Philadelphia Flyers to back-to-back Stanley Cup championships in the 1970s, died Saturday after a long bout with cancer. He was 65.

Shero died about 5:30 a.m. EST at the Cooper Hospital University Medical Center in Camden, N.J. A team spokesman said Shero had been battling cancer for some years, and had been hospitalized for the last several weeks.

Shero coached in the New York Rangers minor league organization for 12 years before becoming the Flyers' head coach for the 1971-72 season. He coached the brawling Flyers for Flyers for seven years, leading the expansion club to Stanley Cup championships in 1974 and 1975 and four first-place finishes. The Flyers were the first NHL expansion team to win the championship.

Shero's Flyer squads included Bobby Clarke, a three-time Hart Trophy winner as the league's Most Valuable Player, and goaltender Bernie Parent, who won the Conn Smythe Trophy as the playoffs' most valuable player in the two Stanley Cup seasons.

Clarke is now general manager of the Minnesota North Stars.

Shero left the Flyers with one year left on his contract to become coach and general manager of the Rangers in 1978, and took the New York to the Stanley Cup finals in 1979 only to lose to Montreal.

Shero was fired by the Rangers during the 1980-81 season amid rumors of a drinking problem. His record with Flyers was 308-151-95 and with Rangers was 82-74-24.

Shero played in the NHL for the Rangers as a defenseman in 1947-48 and 1949-50 scoring 6 goals with 14 assists in 145 games.

(NOV. 24) UPI - Iraqi authorities have admitted several teenage students were arrested in Baghdad for causing ''a state of panic'' in schools in one of the most serious outbreaks of unrest in Iraq since the Persian Gulf crisis began, Arab news media reported Saturday.

The admission followed unconfirmed reports by travelers from Baghdad to other Arab countries that eight teenage girls had been killed in schoolyard clashes between authorities and dissenting teenagers.

In other developments:

-Anti-war demonstrators marched in Germany and Britain to protest U.S. and Western policy in the Persian Gulf in the wake of Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

-Iraq promised to release some British and Italian hostages, while British officials said five more British citizens had been arrested in Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

-Jordanian members of parliament condemned U.S.-led military intervention in the gulf.

Iraqi newspapers said an unspecified number of Iraqi teenagers had been arrested in Baghdad after they distributed leaflets and wrote slogans on school walls, creating what the papers said was ''a state of panic.''

The newspapers gave no details of the contents of the leaflets or the nature of the slogans. It said the students also made ''provocative'' phone calls, but did not say to whom.

Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency said Iraqi authorities blamed the disturbances on the Kuwaiti resistance, which surfaced after Iraq's invasion. The Iraqi newspapers said the Interior Ministry had asked authorities to prevent further incidents.

Observers say economic sanctions imposed against Iraq for the invasion have caused serious hardships to the Iraqi people, while having little effect on President Saddam Hussein.

Iraqi television showed two teenaged boys and two girls, saying they had had admitted to writing pro-Kuwaiti slogans on school walls with the blood of a bird.

In Bonn, Germany, an estimated 6,500 demonstrators wearing gas masks and waving banners gathered to protest what many called the aggressive, pro-war policies of Germany and the United States. The protesters included 40 former hostages vowing to sue the government for allegedly failing to help them.

And in London, several thousand people marched and held a rally in Hyde Park against British and U.S. military involvement in the gulf. No arrests or disturbances were reported at the rally, sponsored by a group called The Committee Against War in the Gulf.

Tony Benn, a left-wing Labor member of Parliament, spoke at the rally and said the U.S. and Britain were ''too agressive'' in their efforts to reach a solution. Benn flies Sunday to Iraq, where he hopes to negotiate with Saddam.

Iraq also said Saturday it would allow 10 British hostages to leave with wives who were visiting Baghdad, and that it would free a ''substantial'' number of Italians held as part of the human shield against Western attack, radio reports and officials said.

Saddam promised to release all of the estimated 3,000 foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait beginning at Christmas, but has been letting batches of hostages go free in recent weeks. Earlier this week Baghdad said the remaining 150 Germans left in Iraq would be allowed to leave for home immediately.

Meanwhile, the foreign ministers of member states of the U.N. Security Council prepared for a meeting next week to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis and a possible resolution authorizing the use of force to oust Iraqi troops from occupied Kuwait.

The meeting comes after a Middle East and European tour by President Bush to solidify the alliance against Iraq, which won him a firm pledge of support from Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, but Syria's Hafez Assad said he could not back an option to use military force in the crisis.

Bush has indicated he wants a U.N. resolution authorizing force in the gulf in order to send a clear message to Saddam and to pave the way for a possible military strike.

The United States has deployed more than 230,000 troops to the gulf, the forefront of a multi-national force assembled in response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. Washington has indicated it will send 200,000 more troops after the first of the year.

The Soviet ambassador to the United Nations said he expected the Security Council to send another stern warning to Iraq, but would not say if the Soviet Union would approve military action, Cairo radio reported Saturday.

In Beijing, Spanish Foreign Minister Francisco Fernandez Ordonez spoke with Chinese leaders including Prime Minister Li Peng. Ordonez said the talks left him confident Beijing would not block a proposed U.N. resolution authorizing force - a move he said might be in effect ''before the end of the month.''

In London Saturday, a foreign ministry spokesman reported five British nationals had been arrested by Iraqi troops in Kuwait and moved to Baghdad. The five had been in hiding since Iraq invaded and began holding Westerners hostage at key military and economic sites as shields against attack.

In Baghdad, the official Iraqi news agency INA denied reports in the Western media that Secretary of State James Baker had refused to meet with an Iraqi official in Yemen earlier in the week. Baker went to Sanaa in an apparently unsuccessful effort to convince the leaders of Yemen, the only Arab nation in the U.N. Security Council, to toughen their soft-line stand against Iraq.

Oman's foreign minister meanwhile flew Saturday to meet with Iranian officials in Tehran, furthering speculation Iraq had asked Oman to play a more important role in the crisis. Oman helped mediate the end of the 1980-1988 Iran-Iraq war and Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz went to Oman earlier this week to give Sultan Qaboos bin Said a personal message from Saddam.

In another development Saturday, Jordan's lower house of Parliament condemned the U.S.-led force in the gulf, its first official position since convening last week. It said the Western troops were deployed in the oil-rich region ''to achieve their greed in their hegemony over our wealth resources.''

King Hussein had criticized Western intervention in the gulf during a speech last week, saying it prevented Arabs from finding their own solution to the dispute.

Canada's Secretary for External Affairs Joe Clark met with King Hussein Saturday and afterward said the king had ''an important role to play'' in mediations on the crisis. Clark also said Canada did not rule out ''the necessity of using force against Iraq.''

Swiss authorities meanwhile said they would allow an Iraqi jetliner to load $800,000 worth of medicine from Switzerland next week, one of several shipments the country has facilitated in recent weeks. The U.N.- imposed trade and oil embargo against Iraq allows shipments of medicine for humanitarian reasons.

And Pakistani officials in Islamabad said Pakistan has recalled four of its envoys from the Persian Gulf region for urgent consultations amid fear of impending war.

(NOV. 24) UPI - The Spanish foreign minister says his talks with Chinese leaders leave him confident that they will NOT block a U-N Security Council resolution authorizing the use of force to get Iraq out of Kuwait. President Bush wrapped up his eight-day European and Mideast tour in an emergency meeting with Syrian President Hafez Assad. The Syrian leader said afterward that he could NOT support the use of force against Iraq.

In Beijing, the Spanish foreign minister held a news conference after his talks with Chinese officials. He is the first senior Western government official to visit China officially since the 1989 crackdown on the pro-democracy movement. He declined to discuss details of his talks but said he remains certain that it is possible that a U-N Security Council resolution authorizing force in the Persian Gulf will be approved this month.

Candidates from 42 parties are standing for the first multi-party local elections in Czechoslovakia since the Communist take-over in 1948. The voting in Slovakia began yesterday and continues today, when the balloting opened in the Czech lands of Bohemia and Moravia. WARSAW, POLAND (NOV. 24) UPI - Poles choose their first freely elected president in decades Sunday, 18 months after the downfall of the Moscow-installed communist regime.

Although surveys show Solidarity union leader Lech Walesa favored by the voters, he is not expected to win the 50 percent he needs to avoid a second round Dec. 9.

A total of 22,241 polling offices will be open from 6 a.m. until 8 p.m. and there are 27,546,993 eligible voters, the government said.

Polish President Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski was elected in November 1989 by the National Assembly to a 6-year term, but under pressure he agreed to step down early. Jaruzelski is a former communist who introduced martial law in Poland in 1981 to quash Solidarity.

The Soviet Red Army installed a communist regime in Poland in 1944 during World War II. It fell June 4, 1989 when, in free parliamentary elections, solidarity members were chosen deputies and senators. Those elections were the result of a roundtable agreement between the communists authorities and the opposition.

Sunday's presidential election is the first free such vote for a Polish president since the 1920s.

Until last week, surveys showed Walesa and Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki would be the chief rivals. But unexpectedly, independent candidate Stanislaw Tyminski moved ahead of the premier, according to the state-run public polling office CBOS.

Walesa, who conducted a typical American-style campaign, won approval by 27 percent of 1,000 people surveyed last week. Tyminski, a holder of Canadian and Peruvian passports who returned to Poland after 21 years abroad, got 21 percent - four points ahead of Mazowiecki.

Walesa drove 8,250 miles, visited 21 towns and met some 200,000 people during his campaign rallies.

Mazowiecki did not appear in public often, instead campaigning mostly from his office. His meeting with German Chancellor Helmut Kohl to sign a border treaty between the two countries, as well as his participation in last week's Paris conference of 34 nations, received much attention from the government media.

Mazowiecki and Walesa have offered similar programs.

But the premier's message was one of hard times ahead for the country, which already has more than 1 million unemployed, and emphasized the need to modernize all branches of the economy with Western aid.

Walesa, however, promised to lessen unemployment and blamed Mazowiecki for failing to speed up economic reforms through elimination of former communists from managerial jobs.

Walesa and Mazowiecki are seen linked to their roles with the union Solidarity only disagreeing over the pace of reforms.

Tyminski, described by Poles as a ''parachutist,'' has offered simple solutions to people hit by a nearly 40-percent drop in the standard of living.

Himself a wealthy businessman, Tyminski has promised quick financial rewards for Poles who work hard and promised to stage competitions to choose suitable Cabinet ministers.

According to a survey released Saturday by the private polling firm Demoskop, 32.6 percent of people said they would vote for Walesa, 20.2 percent expressed support for Mazowiecki while 19.3 percent backed Tyminsky.

The survey said 25.5 percent of those asked preferred Tyminski's television campaign programs, while 21.7 percent liked Walesa's programs and 14.7 liked Mazowiecki's television campaign.

(NOV. 24) UPI - The Spanish foreign minister says he believes China will NOT stand in the way of a U-N Security Council resolution authorizing the use of force to drive Iraq out of Kuwait. He is the first senior Western official to visit Beijing since the pro-democracy crackdown in China in 1989. The Spanish official told a news conference that he would NOT discuss details of his talks in the Chinese capital. But he added that he still believes a resolution on using military force in the Persian Gulf can be passed this month.

The lower house of the first freely elected parliament in Jordan in 30 years ripped the U-S-led intervention in Saudi Arabia, criticizing the action as motivated by ''greed'' and intended to divert attention from Palestine. Polish citizens lined up at three polling places in Chicago to cast their ballots for the first popularly elected president of Poland. The balloting in Poland itself will start tomorrow morning, but about 50- thousand Poles who reside in Chicago are eligible to cast absentee ballots. The city has the largest Polish population outside of Warsaw. At least 20-thousand are expected to vote.

The first ballot cast in Chicago was by 43-year-old Grazyna Kahl, who kept a vigil outside the Polish consulate from last night until the polling place opened this morning. She said she voted for Solidarity union founder Lech Walesa, who also is favored in the Poland vote tomorrow.

Authorities in Colorado arrested 62-year-old Arno Stein in connection with a wind-whipped fire that raced out of control across more than two- thousand acres northwest of Boulder. BEIRUT, Lebanon (NOV. 25) UPI - The Christian Lebanese Forces militia abandoned its strongholds in east Beirut Saturday, ending an era of militia rule and making possible a unified and demilitarized capital for the first time since civil war began in 1975, security sources said.

The LF pullout was the last step in a process to facilitate the deployment of Lebanese troops in the Beirut area after all other militias, including the pro-Syrian Amal movement, the Druze Progressive Socialist Party and the Iranian-backed Hezbollah evacuated the city earlier.

''The evacuation of heavy- and medium-range weapons as well as militiamen from Beirut is serious and complete,'' an LF source said.

A convoy of 30 military vehicles including 16 trucks loaded with ammunition, rockets, 155mm shells and explosives, left the militia headquarters, better known as the ''War Council,'' in the seaside area of Karantina in Christian east Beirut.

The retreating convoy was the first row of 360 armored vehicles and trucks to be withdrawn to the Christian heartland in Kesrouwan and Jbeil districts, north of the capital, within a maximum of 48 hours.

Lebanese soldiers closed the coastal highway linking Beirut to the north to ensure a safe withdrawal of the LF forces.

The pullout from the neighborhoods of Ashrafiyeh, Karantina and Dora coincided with the arrival of army troops from the Christian Maronite 5th Brigade, who will later take over militia positions.

More soldiers from the Sunni Moslem-dominated 2nd Brigade and the mainly-Shiite Moslem 6th Brigade were to join their fellow regulars in maintaining law and order in these areas.

The moves could result in the unification of Beirut, long divided between the Christian east and Moslem west sectors, and torn by civil war between rival militias.

Lebanese Forces militia chief Samir Geagea had defied a deadline set by the pro-Syrian government of President Elias Hrawi to evacuate Beirut by midnight

Nov. 19, demanding the deployment of ''friendly'' troops.

Geagea feared a spillover of pro-Syrian gunmen in areas he evacuated, as in the Metn region following the ouster of rebel Christian Gen. Michel Aoun Oct. 13. But Geagea then yielded to government pressures following intensive contacts with different parties including Syria, the main power-broker in Lebanon.

''The Karantina War Council will be transformed into a political headquarters '' said a militia source who requested anonymity.

The source said all gunmen of the estimated 10,000 Lebanese Forces militia will quit east Beirut with the exception of 300 members who will stay behind to run the Karantina headquarters.

''The operation of the remaining members will be restricted to political action,'' he said. ''All of them will be unarmed civilians.''

The source said the Lebanese Army will provide protection to its left-behind members.

The Lebanese Forces War Council became infamous during the 15-year- old civil war for reported execution, liquidation and detention of Christian and Moslem rivals as well as Palestinians and Syrians.

Military sources said once the pullout was completed, obstacles would be removed from all roads and passageways that still divide Beirut.

CAIRO, Egypt (NOV. 25) UPI - A high-ranking Argentinian official said Saturday his country had halted its military cooperation with Iraq and called for a peacful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis.

''Argentina had stopped its military cooperation with Iraq including the abolishment of a project to develop the Candoz missile,'' the speaker of Argentina's senate, Eduard Menem, told a press conference in Cairo.

Menem, brother of Argentinian President Carlos Menem, met earlier in the day with Egypt's Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel Maguid and Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Butros Ghali on developments in the crisis touched off by the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Menem did not say when his country had halted its military cooperation with Baghdad or the reason, but it has been reported in the past that Argentina was among several countries involved in developing missiles projects in Iraq.

The Argentine official called for a peaceful solution to the crisis, but said ''any solution should based on the international resolutions'' which call for the complete Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and the restoration of its legitimate government.

Argentina is among more than two dozen countries to send troops to the Persian Gulf region to serve with the Western-led multinational force deployed in the region to counter any further Iraqi aggression.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (NOV. 25) UPI - Rebels have stepped up attacks against the country's U.S.-supplied air force, using sophisticated ground-to-air missiles in their latest offensive, the army said Saturday.

''During the last 72 hours, rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front have launched about 12 Sam 7 and Sam 14 ground-to-air missiles, but because of the skill of our pilots, only one hit its target,'' the armed forces said in a statement.

On Friday, one pilot was killed and a second managed to eject before a missile hit their A-37 air force jet near Santa Elena, 59 miles east of San Salvador, in the province of Usulutan, the military said.

It was the first time the armed forces acknowledged one of their planes had been shot down by a missile, although rebels have been known to possess the sophisticated anti-aircraft weapons for more than a year.

The jets, helicopters and airplanes supplied to the Salvadoran government by the United States as part of some $1 billion in military aid over the past decade are considered the government's biggest tactical advantage over the rebels.

Military strategists have speculated that rebel use of missiles could upset the tactical balance of El Salvador's civil war in which more than 72,000 people have died.

Usulutan saw heavy fighting this week during a limited offensive in which rebels attacked military installations and small towns in 10 of El Salvador's 14 provinces.

A U.S. pilot was slightly wounded Tuesday in the same zone when a helicopter belonging to a U.S. military adviser group was hit by gunfire, an embassy spokesman said.

The U.S. Embassy and the Salvadoran military said 179 people have been killed and 359 wounded in the offensive. The military said 10 of the dead and 75 of the wounded are civilians.

LAWTON, OK (NOV. 25) UPI - Rescue teams Saturday recovered the body of a civilian instructor pilot killed when an Army Reserve helicopter crashed into a lake while training for possible Middle East deployment, officials said.

Phillip Walker of Sheridan, Ark., was found in Lake Ellsworth about 3 p.m., after the helicopter was lifted out, officials said.

A Comanche County sheriff's deputy said it appeared that Walker, a civilian who was flying with a group of Arkansas Reservists, was pinned beneath the fuselage of the UH-1V Huey air ambulance when it crashed on Thanksgiving.

Five other members of the 374th Air Ambulance Company out of Little Rock, Ark. were rescued from 50-degree water after the helicopter crashed in about 15 feet of water about 9:30 p.m. Thursday.

The crew, training for possible deployment in support of Operation Desert Shield in the Persian Gulf, was using the night vision equipment at the time of the accident, said Fort Sill public affairs officer Maj. Charles Pope.

''Any time you fly low, there are risks. Any time you fly at night there are risks,'' Pope said. ''But technology has given us the capability to be out at night. They were using the most modern night vision equipment available. It's what is being used in the Persian Gulf.

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (NOV. 25) UPI - Opposition attempts to break a 30-year hold on power by President Houphouet-Boigny and install political pluralism in the Ivory Coast will be put to the test Sunday in the country's first multiparty legislative elections.

A month ago, President Houphouet-Boigny clung on to power in the West African nation's first multiparty presidential contest. Houphouet- Boigny, who has ruled the Ivory Coast since independence from France in 1960, was reelected with more than 80 percent of the vote amid accusations of ballot-rigging.

The elections Sunday will be open to all 20 opposition parties, though most are too small to field more than a few candidates in the country's 154 electoral districts.

The opposition Ivorian Popular Front, which admits it lost the presidential election, has at least 40 seats guaranteed in the new assembly because there are no other candidates in those districts.

Ivorian Popular Front leader Laurent Gbagbo said Friday that the ''presidential election provided irrefutable proof that the forces of progress and change have become uncontainable in our country.''

Opposition parties are encouraging voters to cast ballots for each other because of the lack of opposition candidates in all districts. The Ivorian Popular Front will field 113 candidates, the largest number among the opposition parties, followed by 34 candidates for the Workers' Party .

But the opposition is relying on voters in the native villages of their leaders to cast ballots on the basis of traditional affiliations and alliances that have more to do with real power than party manifestos.

AMMAN, Jordan (NOV. 25) UPI - Canada's foreign affairs secretary said Saturday that Jordan's King Hussein has an important mediation role to play in bringing the Persian Gulf crisis toward a peaceful settlement.

Joe Clark, the Canadian secretary for external affairs, told reporters at a news conference that his discussions with King Hussein earlier in the day gave him more insight into the gulf crisis, which started on Aug. 2 with Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

''King Hussein has been effective in mediation for peace in the past and I believe he has an important role to play in mediations in the gulf crisis,'' said Clark, who arrived Friday in Amman.

He said the king told him Iraqi President Saddam Hussein did not want war. ''And I told King Hussein that there are many other Western countries that do not want war,'' Clark said.

Clark declined to elaborate on his talks with the king, but he said the king made suggestions that could be pursued.

King Hussein has been advocating a peaceful settlement to the gulf crisis based on an agreement by Arab nations, and he has said Western intervention would only complicate the situation.

The Jordanian public also is sympathetic to Iraq in its position against the U.S.-led military intervention in the region.

Clark said his country, which is a member of the U.N. Security Council, preferred a peaceful solution for the crisis and insisted that U.N. resolutions against Iraq must be given a chance to work.

He did not rule out ''the necessity of using force against Iraq to withdraw'' from Kuwait, but described as ''dangerous'' a draft Security Council resolution that would grant the U.S.-led forces freedom to move against Iraq.

Clark also said Canada would give Jordan one third of its allocated budget to the countries hit most by the U.N.-imposed embargo on Iraq.

Jordan, which is hard hit by complying with the sanctions on Iraq, once its main trading partner, would receive $26.5 million Canadian out of the allocated $75 million Canadian, he said.

Details of the payment will be discussed with Jordanian officials in coming days, he said.

Clark declined to link a solution of the gulf crisis to a solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict, but he said Canada was anxious to see U.N. resolutions on the Palestine question be addressed.

He said the United Nations has been most effective and united on resolutions on the gulf crisis and said that made him ''optimistic that other resolutions would also be implemented in the same manner.''

At the end of the news conference, a man shouted at Clark, accusing him of being ''more Zionist and Israeli than the Zionists.''

Nabil Fawzi, a Canadian of Egyptian origin, shouted with a trembling voice that the Canadian government was ''Anglo-Saxon racist, anti-Arab and anti-minorities,'' and he said he was persecuted by the government.

Fawzi, who said he was an engineer who twice ran for mayor of Ottowa, accused Clark of advocating Jerusalem as the capital of Israel.

''I defy you and your prime minister for persecuting the minorities in Canada '' said Fawzi, who later told reporters he came to Jordan specifically to speak to Clark. ''On behalf of all Arab-Canadians, I want to tell you that we all support Iraq and the rights of the Palestinian people.''

NEWBURY, MA (NOV. 24) UPI - Fire swept through a horse farm early Saturday, destroying two barns and killing nearly 60 race and show horses that were trapped in their stalls, officials said.

The blaze broke out just before 4 a.m. at the Sabbath Day Farm on Orchard Street in the Byfield section of Newbury, said fire Lt. Michael Bulgaris.

An alarm system notified the fire department but by the time firefighters arrived, both barns at the complex were engulfed in flames, Bulgaris said.

''Both barns were attached to the arena, with a courtyard in the middle, so you had a 'U' affect. Both barns were destroyed,'' Bulgaris said.

He said the flames started in one barn and, fueled by the flammable material stored inside, quickly jumped to the second.

''The barn is fairly open. There was hay, shavings and grain - every one of them flammable,'' he said.

Firefighters managed to rescue just three horses. About 58 horses perished in the blaze, most of them succumbing to smoke inhalation, Bulgaris said.

A caretaker lived in a home about 300 feet from the barns. That house was untouched by the flames and no humans were injured in the fire, Bulgaris said.

(NOV. 25) UPI - The Cotton Drought has ended in Austin.

The fifth-ranked Texas Longhorns, once an annual participant in the Cotton Bowl, clinched their first trip to Dallas in seven years Saturday with a 23-13 victory over No. 25 Baylor.

''Early in the season, I didn't expect us to go this far,'' said Texas quarterback Peter Gardere, who passed for 127 yards and a touchdown in leading the Longhorns to their first Southwest Conference title since 1983. ''I'm glad to be here, though - it's a lot of fun.''

Butch Hadnot also ran 19 yards for a touchdown and Pollak kicked three field goals for Texas, 9-1 overall and 6-0 in the SWC with one regular-season game remaining next week against Texas A&M.

The Longhorns trailed 10-0 after the first quarter before using a 17- point third period to win at Baylor for the first time since 1982.

''We showed we can come back after being down 10-0,'' Texas Coach David McWilliams said. ''The defense had played well, and I think we got some momentum when Michael Pollak kicked that 56-yard field goal at the close of the first half. That gave us a real boost.''

McWilliams agreed to a five-year contract extension after the game. His job was believed to be in jeopardy before the season after the Longhorns suffered consecutive losing seasons for the first time in more than 50 years.

The Longhorns were held to minus-6 yards rushing in the first half but recovered in the third quarter. Chris Samuels ran 28 yards to the Baylor 32, and three plays later Gardere found Keith Cash behind a fallen Charles Bell for a 31-yard touchdown pass.

''We changed some pass protection blocking schemes at the half and they worked real well in the third quarter,'' Gardere said.

The Bears grabbed a 10-0 first quarter lead on a 15-yard run by Robert Strait and a 19-yard field goal by Jeff Ireland.

''We do this every week (fall behind),'' Cash said. ''We knew we'd get in there eventually.''

After the game, Baylor Coach Grant Teaff promoted the Longhorns for the national championship.

''I've voted for them No. 1 two times and I did that with honest feelings,'' Teaff said. ''I take my vote very seriously. I'll do it again this week. I want them to win the national championship.''

Baylor finished its season 6-4-1 and will stay home for the holidays, after Teaff turned down an ultimatum from the Independence bowl earlier in the week.

BOULDER, CO (NOV. 25) UPI - A resident dragging a burning mattress from his rural home Saturday ignited a wind-whipped fire that raced across 6,500 acres, destroyed 15 structures and forced the evacuation of more than 100 residents.

The fast-moving fire continued to burn out of control late Saturday despite firefighters' efforts to snuff it with backfires and fire lines.

By 7 p.m., 6,500 acres were consumed and the northbound flames were headed towards a subdivision known as Crestview Estates. About 100 residents were evacuated.

Sheriff's Capt. Chuck Pringle said gusting winds were responsible for the fire's increasing unpredictability. Pringle said the fire was jumping fire lines and, in some cases, the flames were burning in both northerly and southerly directions.

''When you get gusty winds (combined with) canyons, ravines and culverts, basically all kinds of topography, that impacts fire behavior,'' he said.

Arno Stein, 62, who has a lengthy crime history, was arrested for starting the fire. Stein told investigators the mattress was burning when he arrived home shortly after 2 a.m.

''He said he dragged the mattress out of the house to save it from burning,''

Pringle said. ''But the house burned down and the fire spread.''

Investigators speculated that candles Stein was burning ignited the mattress at his home in a rural subdivision, about 2 miles northwest of Boulder.

Stein was booked at the Boulder County Jail on suspicion of firing woods and prairie, fourth-degree arson and reckless endangerment.

Pringle said Stein's arrest record includes theft, third-degree assault, harassment, resisting arrest, alcohol violations and damaging property. He previously was held for psychiatric observation.

The flames, fanned by Chinook winds blowing from the west at up to 60 mph, destroyed 10 homes and five outhouses in the first four hours. Another home was damaged.

The winds diminished to 25 to 35 mph during the early afternoon, but picked up to 60 mph later in the day.

Firefighters could not estimate when the fire would be controlled, but Pringle said they were preparing to battle the fire at least through the weekend.

More than 300 firefighters from 30 fire departments, aided by aerial tankers dropping fire-retardant chemicals, fought the blaze, which was fueled by pine trees, shrubs and prairie grass, Pringle said.

Residents of housing subdivisions in a 2-square-mile area were evacuated, starting about 4 a.m. A shelter was set up at Burbank Junior High School, where Red Cross spokeswoman Julie Phillips said at least 50 residents would be processed and lodging found for them in area hotels.

''Those are the people we know have been displaced, but a lot of other people are staying with family and friends,'' Phillips said.

Gov. Roy Romer toured the fire area to offer state support for the disaster effort, Pringle said.

Authorities Saturday had not established a damage figure.

BONN (NOV. 25) - A chartered jumbo jet with 105 homeward-bound German hostages aboard took off Sunday for Frankfurt from Baghdad international airport, the German Foreign Office said here.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, who earlier this week said all German hostages could go free, ordered Saturday the release of ''a large number'' of Italian hostages and also cleared a departure for the husbands of 10 British women who came to Baghdad to see him.

The Bonn spokesman said about 15 German businesspeople insisted on staying behind in Baghdad. Their business was not disclosed.

Seven Germans who had been held hostage in Kuwait and had set out for Baghdad by road missed Sunday's flight on an Iraqi Airways Boeing 747. The Bonn spokesman said it was presumed they would be allowed to leave on some other rescue flight.

Arrangements had been made for every German who wanted to leave Iraq to get out, said the spokesman, Hanns Schumacher.

The German magazine Der Spiegel claimed Saturday that some non-hostage Germans were still helping the Iraqi armaments and nerve-gas industry and were flying freely in and out of Baghdad.

In Rome it remained unclear Sunday how many Italians would be let go or when. '' The only sure thing is, it won't be all of them,'' said a member of an Italian delegation to Baghdad led by Catholic Archbishop Hilario Capucci. The Palestinian clergyman met Saddam.

A release might come in two or three days. About 250 Italians are being held by the Iraqis. An Italian plane chartered by the Rome government flew to Iraq Saturday with 25 tons of medicine and flew back empty.

Jeddah, Nov 25 dpa - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze is expected to visit the Middle East soon to prepare for a trip to the region by President Mikhail Gorbachev in December, it was reported here Sunday.

The Saudi newspaper Asharq al-Awsat, quoting informed sources in Egypt, said Shevardnadze would visit a number of Arab states to discuss developments in the Gulf region following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

The aim of the tour was to prepare for Gorbachev's tour in sometime next month it said. United States President George Bush visited Saudi Arabia and Egypt last Wednesday and Thursday.

The paper said Iraq would not be included in Shevardnadze's tour after differences had emerged between Moscow and Baghdad over the fate of Soviet experts in Iraq.

Another cause of friction had been Gorbachev's statement, after meeting with Bush in Paris earlier in the week, that the Soviet Union would not veto a United Nations' resolution sanctioning the use of force against Iraq.

In Abu Dhabi, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander Belongov said Sunday Moscow did not rule out the possibility of a military option if all efforts to resolve the Gulf crisis peacefully failed.

In a statement at the end of a two-day visit to the United Arab Emirates (Uae) Gorbachev's special envoy said the U.N. Security Council would meet in the coming week to discuss the crisis. He expected it to issue a strong warning to Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait within a period to be agreed by the council members.

His remarks were carried by the Qatar News Agency. The Soviet envoy had had talks with Uae president Sheikh Zayed bin Sultan al-Nahyan on bilateral relations and the Gulf crisis.

Belongov also visited Yemen, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Qatar and Bahrain.

DUBAI (NOV. 25) - Pakistani Prime Minister Mohammed Nawaz Sharif was quoted as saying Sunday that his country has decided to send additional troops to the Gulf as soon as possible to confront the crisis brought on by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

He pointed out that Pakistan had already sent a 5,000-man ground contingent to Saudi Arabia to join the U.S.-led 300,000-strong multinational force deployed in the Gulf.

Sharif, who also visited Saudi Arabia last week, said the developments in the Gulf had dominated his talks with Saudi and Uae leaders. He added that he also discussed economic and industrial cooperation between Pakistan and each of Saudi Arabia and the Uae.

EILAT, Israel (NOV. 25) - A gunman in Egyptian uniform killed four Israelis and wounded 25 others, six seriously, early Sunday when he opened fire on four military vehicles and a civilian bus, Israeli military sources said.

The man attacked the vehicles on a road along the border in the Negev desert some 20 kilometres (13 miles)) north of this southern Israeli town.

The assailant had crossed the border and managed to flee with help from an accomplice waiting for him in a vehicle on the Egyptian side, the military sources said.

An eyewitness to the attack told Agence France-Presse that the gunman was wounded.

In earlier reports from Cairo, diplomats said the gunman with a semi-automatic rifle had fired on a tourist bus. Egypt's MENA news agency said the attacker, a frontier policeman, had been arrested.

It was the second such attack in a year. On February 4, masked gunmen intercepted a bus carrying Israeli tourists 60 kilometers (37 miles) north of Cairo on the desert road linking the Egyptian capital and the city of Ismailia on the Suez Canal.

They killed 11 and left 19 wounded.

BEIJING (NOV. 25) - China, which so far has opposed a military solution to the Gulf crisis, is now ready to discuss a United Nations ultimatum calling on Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, sources here said Sunday.

Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen has said he was prepared to leave for New York in the next few days to help draft such an ultimatum, a diplomat here said.

Mr. Qian had met with his Soviet counterpart Eduard Shevardnadze in Urumqi on Friday and discussed the possibility of addressing "a final warning" to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein calling on him to get out of Kuwait.

The third Sino-Soviet consultation on the Gulf crisis in less than three months resulted in an especially convoluted communique.

It said, "The two foreign ministers agreed that the two sides will continue to hold consultations with each other when the United Nations Security Council adopt additional measures, so as to ensure that the relevant resolutions adopted previously by the Security Council will be implemented in real earnest."

Analysts said the statement could be interpreted to mean that Beijing was not ruling out the eventual use of force but did not want to give Washington a blank check to initiate military action.

In another indication the military taboo has been lifted, the People's Daily, the Communist Party newspaper, said Sunday, "In case of a Security Council resolution authorizing the recourse to force, (U.S.) President George Bush should still get the green light from Congress."

Mr. Qian had mentioned Saturday to his Spanish counterpart, Francisco Fernandez Ordonez, the possibility of a compromise resolution that would amount to a "deferred declaration of war," in the phrase of one Western diplomat.

Mr. Frenandez Ordonez told reporters he was sure Beijing would not use its veto power, which it shares with the other permanent members of the Security Council -- the Soviet Union, the United States, France and Britain -- to block a resolution.

Up to now, Beijing has been the least supportive of a military response to Iraq's aggression.

China would not support Security Council 665, which calls on call on Iraq to leave Kuwait and imposes sanctions against Baghdad, until a clause was included stipulating "minimum use of force."

Before casting its next ballot, Beijing can again be expected to warn against "military adventurism," diplomats here say.

In the last few weeks, Beijing has made numerous calls for restraint, even sending Mr. Qian to meet with Mr. Hussein, the only foreign minister of a permanent Security Council member country to do so.

Since then, China has had a freer hand.

"We have spent a maximum of effort to promote peaceful mediation," a Chinese leader said late last week, as if seeking to absolve Beijing from moral responsibility in case a military conflict does erupt.

The Gulf crisis has helped bring China out of the international reprobation that has dogged it since its violent crushing of the democracy movement in June 1989.

HARARE (NOV. 25) - Zimbabwe is in the midst of a severe famine, despite holding a major stockpile of maize and being one of the few black African nations to export grain.

Newspapers reported that three people have died of starvation while waiting for government aid. The Department of Social Welfare estimates that 1.8 million people are hungry.

Acting Minister of Labour and Social Welfare Eddison Zvobgo said on Thursday that the government was releasing funds to pay for the movement of nearly 20,000 tonnes of maize to drought-stricken areas.

But aid agencies say the measures are too late and that the blame lies with the government's incompetence and insensitivity.

''It's too little, too late,'' said Wilfred Tichangwa, national executive officer for Christian Care, an organisation specialising in food assistance all over Southern Africa.

''At independence (in 1980), the authorities were keen to prove things would be better than they were under the former white rhodesian government. But that seems to have been a vote-catching exercise,'' Tichangwa said.

''The drought has been very serious,'' said Joseph Sande, administrator for the Catholic Development Commission, which is feeding nearly 25,000 people. ''We've had some very bad years since independence, but this is probably the worst.''

The current rainy season has started late after an unusually hot, dry and long winter that was preceded by widespread crop failure in peasant farming areas.

KHARTOUM (NOV. 25) - Rebels of the Patriotic Salvation Front led by former Chadian army commander-in-chief Idriss Deby said Sunday they had killed 870 Chadian troops the day before.

During the fighting, said to have taken place near Mounou, northeast of Fada, about 500 government troops defected, the rebels claimed.

The clashes, which broke out two weeks ago, had been confined to the border towns of Tina and Adre.

Radio France-Inter reported that Chadian President Hissene Habre went to the front himself to direct an offensive. Government troops apparently intend to cut off a rebel retreat into the Sudanese province of Darfur, where they have bases.

A french television reporter said that hospitals in the Chadian capital Ndjamena were filling up with the wounded.

Meanwhile, Sudan's military ruler Gen. Omar Beshir said Sunday that his country had expelled Chadian dissidents who had launched raids into Chad from Sudanese territory.

Beshir said that no Chadian would be allowed to enter the country armed, and that those seeking refuge in Sudan would be disarmed and settled far away from the border.

Chad had recently accused Sudan and Libya of aiding the rebels. Deby fled with his supporters to Sudan after a failed coup attempt in April 1989.

KATHMANDU (NOV. 25) - Defenders of Nepal's fledgling multi-party system disrupted rallies addressed by the country's ousted prime minister in two towns southeast of the capital on Sunday, drawing criticism from their leaders a political source said.

Lokendra Bahadur Chand, prime minister under the defunct single-party Panchyat system, flew to Janakpur, 250 kilometers (155 miles) from Kathmandu, where he was greeted by 10,000 supporters of his National Democratic Party (NDP).

In a row over slogans, his supporters were attacked by activists from the United Left Front and the Nepali Congress which led the campaign that brought down the single-party system in April.

The multi-party advocates set fire to the local NDP office as well as the car of former minister H.B. Malla, who had organised the airport reception for Mr. Chand.

Some police as well as an unspecified number of activists from both sides were injured, a Home Ministry source said.

Mr. Chand and other NDP leaders later tried to hold a public meeting in nearby Jaleswore but were chased away by the multi-party activists, who burned several tractors and a rickshaw, the political source said.

Nepali Congress general secretary Girija Prasasd Koirala appealed to the activists to tolerate criticism, stressing that in a democracy all had a right to express their views.

In a statement, Mr. Koirala said he regretted the activists had disrupted the Jaleswore meeting and another political rally Saturday in Kathmandu.

CAIRO (NOV. 25) - Canadian Foreign Minister Joe Clark said Sunday that Canada would allocate 30 million dollars in assistance to countries adversely affected by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Clark, who was speaking after meeting Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel-Meguid, said Canada had decided to postpone Egypt's repayment of its 13-million dollar debt.

Egyptian radio said Clark described his talks with Meguid as useful. He expressed Canada's appreciation of the role being played by President Hosny Mubarak in working out a solution for the Gulf crisis.

Clark, who arrived in Cairo earlier Sunday, said Canada would resume efforts to find a solution to the Gulf problem, the radio said.

Meguid said Canada had ''a significant role to play in finding a peaceful solution to the Gulf problem and avoiding a military confrontation''.

NAIROBI (NOV. 25) - More than 150 rebels have been killed in recent fighting with Rwandan government forces in the commune of Kivuye in the north of the country, Rwandan Radio reported Sunday.

The broadcast, monitord in Kenya, said that fighting in the region, which began with a rebel attack at the beginning of the week, had just ended with a victory by government forces.

In the Kivuye sector of the commune, 47 rebels were killed during the night of November 20, and in the Bungwe and Bushenya sectors over 15 rebels had been killed, the broadcast said.

''Yesterday was a tragic day for the assailants, as they lost 60 combatants at the Buhiga shopping centre, which had been in the hands of the bandits since the beginning of the week,'' the radio said.

Several thousand Tutsi refugees invaded northeastern Rwanda from neighbouring Uganda on September 30, sparking a civil war. Many Tutsis fled Rwanda 30 years ago following massacres by the majority Hutus.

DOHA (NOV. 25) - Kuwaiti resistance fighters have killed the man Iraqi President Saddam Hussein appointed governor of Kuwait following Iraq's invasion on August 2, it was reported here Sunday.

The Qatari daily Al Sharq said three Kuwaitis gunned down Ali Hassan Majid as he was leaving his house in Kuwait.

Majid died on his way to hospital and his body was flown to Baghdad, the paper said, quoting Kuwaiti refugees who fled their Iraqi-annexed country recently.

The report said Majid had supervised massacres of Kurdish rebels in northern Iraq and had threatened to crush Kuwaiti resistance to the Iraqi occupation of the emirate.

Saddam appointed Aziz Saleh al-Neman, a key member of the ruling Baath Party, to replace Majid as governor of the ''province of Kuwait,'' on November 14.

BAGHDAD (NOV. 25) - Baghdad on Sunday threatened to lodge official complaints against the United States, Britain, Turkey and Egypt should an Iraqi child or adult die because of lack of food or medicine.

Trade Minister Mohammad Mehdi Saleh said "complaints will be lodged against these countries because of their responsibility in preventing the arrival of food and medicine in Iraq."

He namely accused the United States of major responsibility for championing a United Nations trade embargo that was slapped against Iraq on August 6, four days after Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait.

Mr. Saleh did not say if the embargo had claimed any lives in Iraq nor did he specify where the complaints would be lodged.

Food cannot be sent to Iraq under the terms of the embargo while medicine is exempt.

Italian Radio-television (RAI) on Saturday reported the arrival in Baghdad of an Airbus carrying 25 tonnes of foodstuffs and medicine sent by the Italian government to Iraq.

The report, accompanied by a film showing the plane landing in Baghdad, said the shipment was destined for Iraqi children and had been sent in response to appeals from the World Health Organisation (WHO).

NEW DELHI (NOV. 25) - India's new government has initiated moves to settle a temple-mosque dispute which has caused widespread rioting between Hindus and Moslems, a ruling party official said Sunday.

Satya Prakash Malviya of the Janata Dal-S (People's Party-Socialist) told reporters here that Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar had begun talking with "some political parties" to end the dispute.

Mr. Shekhar, who took office on November 10, would talk to other political parties and religious leaders as well, Mr. Malviya said, without giving further details.

Hindu militants are seeking to build a temple at the site of a dilapidated 16th-century mosque in the northern town of Ayodhya, said to be the birthplace of the Hindu Lord Rama.

The dispute has left hundreds dead across the country since 1986. At least 24 people died in police gunfire when hundreds of Hindus sought to take control of the mosque on October 30 and again on November 2.

"We want the temple to be constructed without disturbing the mosque," Mr. Malviya said.

The dispute caused the collapse of Prime Minister Vishwanath Pratap Singh's 11-month-old government on November 7.

SOFIA (NOV. 25) - An attempt by the opposition trade union Podkrepa to mount a general strike Monday will be a test of its political strength in post-Stalinist Bulgaria, three days after the socialist government survived a no-confidence vote, analysts said Sunday.

Prime Minister Andrei Lukanov advised the press Saturday not to report the strike call, but the television said Podkrepa had called a rally here for Monday.

Both the government, formed of former communists, and the public prosecutor's office warned political strikes were illegal under Bulgarian law.

Meanwhile public transport workers in the capital threatened a walkout Monday that would paralyse traffic in this city of one million.

The Union of Democratic Forces (UDF), Bulgaria's main opposition alliance, has said it would support the strike, but not all of its 16 constituent parties agree. Several opposition leaders have voiced fears that the current tension could lead to chaos, or even civil war.

On Saturday about 30,000 people demonstrated here in a show of support for the socialist government, but police intervened when scuffles broke out after some 2,000 UDF backers mounted a counter-demonstration, calling for a general strike and chanting "Resign!", "We are hungry".

Mr. Lukanov's formerly communist Socialist Party survived a parliamentary vote of no-confidence, mounted by the opposition Friday, by 201 votes to 159, with six abstentions, but UDF head Petar Beron then led a walkout to consider his party's "new position".

RIO DE JANEIRO (NOV. 25) - Brazilians voted Sunday in a second round of gubernatorial elections in 15 states, including economic powerhouse Sao Paolo.

Paolo Maluf, a former military-era governor backed by President Fernando Collor de Mello, was in a close race in Sao Paolo against centrist Antonio Fleury of the Brazilian Democratic Movement Party.

Polls showed both Mr. Maluf and Mr. Fluery, a former public security secretary in a dead heat as they entered Sunday's round of voting and observers said the outcome would be a test of the weight of Mr. Collor's endorsement.

In national parliamentary elections October 3 for all lower house and one third of senate seats, Mr. Collor's ruling National Renovation Party (PRN) emerged short of a majority with 237 deputies, versus 249 opposition members.

With the legislature is prone to stalemate, the governors have emerged as important arbiters of power because of their influence over their state's representatives in the Congress.

As voting is mandatory in Brazil, crowds gathered at polling stations early to cast their ballots, particularly in densely populated and wealthy Sao Paolo state. Polls were opened from 1100 GMT through 2000 GMT.

In the Amazonian state of Rondonia, voters in remote villages accessible only by boat voted at floating polling stations provided by the federal election commission.

In Minas Gerais state, which alongside Sao Paolo dominates the political scene with the largest legislative representation, Helio Costa of the PRN was tied in the pre-election polls with Helio Garcia, a center-right presidential hopeful.

Leftist-populist Leonel Brizola of the Democratic Workers Party (PDT) was elected in October's first round in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil's second most important state.

In October's first round of gubernatorial elections ruling PRN candidates won in seven states including Bahia, Pernambuco and Santa Catarina, while the opposition picked up Goias and Amazonas states.

While Mr. Collor urged citizens Wednesday to vote for governors supportive of his administration, PRN candidates were distancing themselves from Mr. Collor and his mixed record.

Inflation in Brazil continues to rise -- about 17 per cent in the last four months -- the Collor administration has been plagued by scandals, discord and resignations.

In recent weeks, the minister of justice, the leader of the ruling party's bench in Congress, and the president of the state-run oil company Petrobras all have resigned.

BAGHDAD (NOV. 25) - Iraqi Christians and a Japanese national who recently converted to Islam will organise peace rallies in Baghdad next month, officials said here Sunday.

The first one will be held December 3-5 and will be organised by representatives of Iraqi Christian churches in a show of support for the Iraqi people, and to denounce an international trade embargo against the country, the official Ath-Thawra newspaper said.

The promoters will also be issuing a call for a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis that was triggered by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

The second peace rally will take place December 2-3. It will be organised by Antonio Inoki, a Japanese legal writer, who recently converted to Islam and took the name Mohammad Hussein Inoki.

Mr. Inoki, officials here said, expects 240 show business stars, sports figures and journalists from several countries to attend the rally, with many coming from Japan for the occasion.

PARIS (NOV. 25) - The permanent members of the United Nations Security Council and Indonesia agreed here Sunday evening on the final version of a draft treaty to be submitted to the Cambodian factions and then to the Paris Conference on Cambodia, a reliable source said here.

The draft treaty consists of a 12-page agreement, five annexes, two documents on international guarantees, and a declaration concerning reconstruction, a Western diplomatic source said.

The meeting, which began Friday afternoon, was nearing its end Sunday evening, and participants were working on the final communique, which will include an appeal to the Cambodian parties, the source said.

Earlier in the day, former Cambodian ruler Prince Norodom Sihanouk urged the four rival Cambodian factions to take part in a "fraternal meeting" in Paris, a reliable source said.

He said it should take place "as soon as possible" to settle differences among the four factions, which relate primarily to naming a president of the Supreme National Council.

The four factions are the Phnom Penh regime, the Sihanouk camp, Khmers Rouges and the nationalistic right, and they have been unable to agree on terms for appointing the prince to head the Council, which was set up in Jakarta in September and is supposed to represent Cambodian sovereignty before general elections.

TEHERAN (NOV. 25) - Irish Foreign Minister Gerry Collins concluded a three-day visit to Iran on Sunday during which he had talks with senior officials and signed a protocol agreement to set up a joint committee.

Mr. Collins, the first European foreign minister to visit Iran this year, was seen off by Iranian counterpart Ali Akbar Velayati, the official IRNA news agency reported.

Both men signed a protocol agreement here to set up a joint Iranian-Irish committee to develop economic, cultural and scientific affairs, IRNA said.

Before leaving, Mr. Collins said he hoped the committee would play an effective role in developing ties between the two countries.

Mr. Velayati told reporters that the Irish-Iranian talks covered current international affairs, notably the Gulf crisis triggered by Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

"Iran has a key role in defusing the crisis and can have a capital role in maintaining stability in the region," Mr. Velayati said. He did not elaborate.

Mr. Collins also met during his stay here with President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani and with other senior officials.

PRAGUE (NOV. 25) - The Civil Forum party which brought President Vaclav Havel to power last year led local elections in Czechoslovakia's Czech republic, scoring 35.4 per cent of the votes, while Christian Democrats came in first in the Slovak regions, according to official surveys outside polling stations.

The Christian Democrats rose from 12 per cent of the votes in general elections in June to 27.4 per cent in Czechoslovakia's first free local elections since 1938.

The Slovak Public Against Violence party, which backs Mr. Havel, gained 20.4 per cent, while nationalists scored 3.2 per cent, according to the survey.

Independent candidates were most successful in the Czech Bohemian and Moravian region, with 26.6 per cent. Communists and the Christian Democratic People's Party scored 15.8 per cent of the votes respectively in these two regions.

Czechs and Slovaks went to the polls on Friday and Saturday to elect new municipal representatives in close to 9,000 localities.

The vote, which represented the final stage in transfer of power from the former communist regime, will bring democratically elected leaders to towns and villages which have bee run by appointed communist officials since the late 1940's.

Final results will be announced Wednesday.

WASHINGTON (NOV. 25) - National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft said Sunday the United States would press for the approval this week of a U.N. Security Council resolution implicitly providing for the use of force against Iraq.

Interviewed on ABC television, Mr. Scowcroft said he could not give the exact wording of such a draft resolution because it was still the subject of negotiation.

But, he said, "it will be something like taking the necessary means to enforce the 10 U.N. resolutions which, so far, Saddam Hussein has ignored."

"And it will be understood that if you say 'the necessary means,' that means military force if necessary?" Mr. Scowcroft was asked. "That's correct," the national security adviser replied.

"It is my judgement that the best chance to avoid war is to confront Saddam Hussein with the prospects of war," Mr. Scowcroft said.

U.S. diplomatic sources said the security council would be meeting Thursday at the foreign-minister level -- the second such meeting since Iraq's invasion of Kuwait August 2.

"We will have a debate in the United Nations this week. I wouldn't be at all surprised but what it addresses that very subject of an additional resolution, and I wouldn't want to predict the outcome," said Defense Secretary Dick Cheney in an interview on CBS television.

The Washington Post reported that the United States had already circulated a draft resolution among the four other permanent members of the Security Council -- the Soviet Union, China, France and Britain -- that stopped short of employing the word "force."

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker has returned from ten days of meetings with all of the Security Council members except Cuba. One of the main objectives of his intensive lobbying trip was to convince council colleagues to adopt by the end of November a resolution authorizing the use of force.

Canada, Colombia, Cuba, Ivory Coast, Ethiopia, Finland, Malaysia, Romania, Yemen and Zaire currently sit on the council together with the council's five permanent members.

U.S. officials are worried that such a resolution could be delayed or undone after Yemen assumes the council's rotating presidency next month, taking over from the United States.

Since August 2, five of the 10 resolutions adopted by the council have been unanimous. Three have passed with two abstentions, those of Yemen and Cuba, and two have passed with opposing votes, once on Yemen's part, and both times on Cuba's part.

In the interview with ABC television, Mr. Scowcroft warned that there were "many indications" that Mr. Hussein was preparing terrorist attacks, but he offered no specifics.

On the question of how soon Iraq might have nuclear weapons, Mr. Scowcroft said "the estimates range from months to as much as 10 years."

Also asked about the nuclear issue, Mr. Cheney told CBS television it was "not clear" how effective the embargo had been in curbing Iraq's nuclear program "because he's (Mr. Hussein) been working the problem for some time."

"I think he's closer today that he was a few months ago in the sense that he's making steady progress working this problem," Mr. Cheney said, adding that "we know from intelligence sources that he's working this problem very hard."

Even if Mr. Hussein withdrew from Kuwait, he said, his acquisition of sophisticated weapons would require "a far more aggressive set of sanctions than anything we've seen up till now.

"That means the sanctions wouldn't go totally away. You're going to try to deny him any further access to the kind of technology he would need to develop this capability," Mr. Cheney said.

NEW YORK (NOV. 25) - President George Bush made a "serious mistake" by meeting with Syrian President Hafez el-Assad in Geneva last week, U.S. Senate Democratic Leader George Mitchell charged Sunday.

Mr. Bush "dignified" a man who, according to the Bush administration itself, has a "terrible human rights record" and "a long record of complicity in terrorism," Mr. Mitchell told CBS television.

"It was unnecessary," Mr. Mitchell said of the meeting. "The president hasn't met personally with the leaders of every nation that has contributed to send forces" to the Gulf.

Mr. Bush met with Mr. Assad Friday to seek support for a United Nations resolution authorizing the use of force to drive Iraq out of Kuwait.

Also Sunday, National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft told ABC television the meeting was important in light of Syria's participation among Arab nations in the international force amassed against Iraq.

Mr. Scowcroft said Mr. Bush had discussed with Mr. Assad the possibility of implicating a Damascus-based terrorist group in the December 1988 bombing of a Pan Am airliner over Lockerbie, Scotland, which killed 270 people. He said Mr. Assad requested proof of the group's alleged culpability.

LISBON (NOV. 26) - Portugal on Sunday adopted a tough anti-inflationary budget, marking a turn towards austerity after several years of strong growth.

The government said that inflation remained "worrying" after five years of sustained real growth at an average rate of 4.3 percent a year, against an average of around three percent a year for other members of the European Economic Community (EEC).

As the year draws to a close, Portugal finds itself in a much less favorable economic situation from the international viewpoint than in the last few years, in the light of the Gulf crisis and higher and unstable oil prices, analysts said.

The country has no oil of its own.

Earlier this week Economics Minister Miguel Beleza told parliament that the budget was "not ideal, but it is the best one possible."

The 1991 budget calls for expenditures of 3.91 trillion escudos (about 30 billion dollars), with a planned deficit of 613 billion escudos (4.7 billion dollars), the latter being 6.3 percent of gross domestic product (GDP).

Expenditures are up by 450 billion escudos by comparison with 1990.

Social security, health and housing together account for 35.2 percent of all budgetary spending, while education gets 15.2 percent.

Receipts will come primarily from indirect taxes, which will bring the government 1.35 trillion escudos (10.4 billion dollars), up 15 percent from 1990.

The weight of direct taxation will also rise considerably however, up 35 per cent from 1990. Individual income taxes and corporation tax should bring in 831 billion escudos (6.4 billion dollars).

LONDON (NOV. 26) - Britain's economy will not start growing until the second half of next year, not enough to prevent a one-percent drop in output for 1991 Britain's largest employers association said Monday.

The assessment by the Confederation of British Industries contradicted the government's latest estimate of 0.5-percent growth of the gross National Product for next year.

The group said the GNP would grow in 1992 by 2.6 percent.

The confederation said inflation was likely to fall from its current rate of 10.9 percent to 5.1 percent at the end of next year, and then to 4.5 percent at the end of 1992.

The current-account balance of payments deficit would fall sharply, to 9.8 billion pounds (19 billion dollars), a CBI report said.

Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major said earlier this month that the deficit would hit 20 billion pounds (38 billion dollars) this year.

The CBI said its projections were based on the hypothesis that Britain's interest rates would fall by a percentage point before the end of the year.

But the body also warned that its predictions were more tentative than usual, due to the Gulf crisis.

Freetown, Sierra Leone (NOV. 25) EFE - A peace-keeping force from five West African states was reported in heavy fighting Sunday with a rebel group round the area of Kakata, 18 km north of the Liberian capital of Monrovia, a spokesman for the force said.

Sunday marked the third day of the latest fighting between rival groups struggling for control of the country since Amos Sawyer was installed Thursday as president of the provisional government.

Sawyer's selection by Liberian exiles is being challenged by rebel leader Charles Taylor who heads the National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL).

A spokesman for the Ecomonic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), which sponsored Sawyer's selection and the peace-keeping force said Sunday that Kakata could be in control of the peace-keeping forces within 24 hours.

Meanwhile, one death and 15 injuries were reported Saturday in the village of Bo located about 240 km south of Freetown when jets of the Nigerian Air Force flew low over the village. Villagers panicked believing they were being attacked by the NPFL, a spokesman for ECOWAS said.

Taylor has threatened to bombard villages in Sierra Leone in reprisal for the alleged use of Freetown airport as a base for Nigerian fighter-bombers to attack rebel positions in Liberia.

The Liberian civil war will be the focus of a ECOWAS summit next week in Mali. The 11-month-old war has killed more than 10,000 people and has forced a half million into exile.

The war began last Christmas when Taylor invaded Liberia from the Ivory Coast and ousted the government of Samuel Doe who was killed by a splinter group of the NPFL.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (NOV. 25) UPI - A guerrilla carrying a bag of explosives blew herself up as an Israeli patrol passed by in southern Lebanon Sunday, seriously injuring two Israeli soldiers, security sources said.

The Syrian Social Nationalist Party said in a statement that Fadwa Hasan Ghanem, a member of the Lebanese National Resistance Front, carried out a suicide attack against an Israeli patrol in the Israeli self-declared ''security zone'' to mark the 52nd anniversary of the party.

Ghanem was immediately killed when she blew up a bag full of explosives as an Israeli patrol passed in the area of Arnoun, 35 miles south of Beirut, on the edge of the zone.

The SSNP said all members of the patrol were killed. But security sources said two Israeli soldiers were critically injured.

JERUSALEM (NOV. 25) UPI - An Israeli navy patrol intercepted a boat off the Lebanese coast and killed five guerrillas attempting to infiltrate Israel by sea, the army spokesman said Sunday.

The Ahmed Jibril's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine- General Command claimed responsibility for Saturday's attempted infiltration. A PFLP-GC spokesman in Lebanon said four guerrillas were killed and one managed to swim to the Lebanese shore.

The pro-Syrian Palestinian group said the attempted infiltration was carried out to mark the Nov. 25, 1987, attack by a Palestinian guerrilla who flew across Israel's northern border on a hang glider and attacked a military outpost. Six Israeli soldiers were killed during the attack.

No Israeli casualties were reported in Saturday's clash at sea, which occurred while the Israeli Dabur patrol vessel was on ''routine duty'' off the Lebanese coast in the area of Sidon, the army spokesman said.

The last attempted infiltration of Israel by sea occurred Sept. 1. During 1990 more than 15 infiltration attempts from Lebanon by sea and air have been thwarted by Israeli forces.

''A battle ensued in which the terrorist boat was destroyed and the five terrorists on board were killed,'' the spokesman said in a statement.

''(The) encounter is another of the repeated attempts by the terrorists to unsuccessfully infiltrate Israel's territorial waters,'' the spokesman said. ''Over the course of the past year, a number of infiltration attempts at sea have been frustrated without casualties to our forces.''

SEOUL, South Korea (NOV. 25) UPI - Thousands of dissident students, workers and farmers battled riot police in Seoul and other large cities Sunday in violent demonstrations against President Roh Tae-woo's government.

The clashes erupted following rallies in major cities sponsored by the hard-line National Alliance for Democratic Movements to protest alleged government suppression of popular movements for democracy and to oppose the Uruguay Round of international trade negotiations.

In Seoul, about 5,000 people tried to hold their rally at 11 a.m. at Konkook University in an eastern sector of the city. Riot squads moved in, firing volleys of tear-gas bombs to thwart the gathering.

The dissidents countered with Molotov cocktails and rocks and forced the police units out of the school premises and staged the rally.

The participants adopted a ''national declaration of the democracy'' and said Roh's government was trying to ''stabilize a fascist system and prolong its rule by relying on monopoly capitalists.''

They vowed to struggle to give birth to a ''government of democratic people.''

Following the rally the protesters tried to march off the campus. Blocked by police at the gate of the school, they staged a two-hour battle, trading firebombs and rocks with tear-gas grenades.

Witnesses said more than 10 protesters and policemen were injured in the clash. There was no immediate report of arrests.

There were similar rallies and demonstrations in at least three other major cities during the day, the domestic Yonhap News Agency said. Most of the demonstrations ended in clashes with police, it said.

In Kwangju, 170 miles south of Seoul, about 1,500 dissidents marched off campus following a rally at Chonnam University shouting slogans demanding Roh's resignation and opposing the Uruguay Round negotiations, Yonhap said.

Firebombs and rocks were thrown, and tear gas was fired, Yonhap said.

In Taegu, 150 miles southeast of Seoul, about 1,000 dissidents staged a series of sporadic street protests following a rally on a campus, Yonhap said.

In Pusan, 205 miles southeast of Seoul, about 1,500 people held a similar rally but there was no violent action, Yonhap said.

Dissident circles have been denouncing the government for allegedly giving in to U.S. pressure at the Uruguay Round negotiations and agreeing to open the domestic agricultural market to foreign products.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (NOV. 25) UPI - Election officials Sunday reported moderate to high voter turnout in local elections considered crucial to Czechoslovakia's continuing transition to multi-party democracy.

Some 75 percent of eligible voters turned out for elections to local office in the Czech republic regions of Moravia and Bohemia Saturday, officials said. Initial reports indicated a 39 percent turnout in the eastern republic of Slovakia in balloting Friday and Saturday.

The Communist Party and Civic Forum, the pro-democracy umbrella group that led last year's ''Velvet Revolution'' to overthrow four decades of communist rule, were expected to do well.

The elections represented the first free vote for town and county officialssince 1938 and were considered a key step in Czechoslovakia's shift to multi-party democracy.

Voters voted for candidates to Citizens Councils to replace the appointed ''National Committees'' left over from communist rule. The elections are an effort to create local government responsible to the local community.

First returns are expected Sunday night, but because of the complicated and extensive list of coalitions, the precise impact of the elections will not be known until Wednesday or Thursday.

In the local elections in Slovakia, voters chose local and district councils as well as mayors. In the Czech Lands, voters chose only the councils, which will themselves elect mayors.

In the Czech lands, 59 towns did not have enough candidates to hold council elections. In Slovakia, 21 towns had no council elections and 51 towns had no mayoral elections.

Preliminary indications showed only 39 percent of registered voters casting ballots in Slovakia, but further results were expected later Sunday.

In the Czech lands, election officials estimated a 75 percent turnout.

The turnout in the local elections appeared lower than during last June's parliamentary elections, when nearly 97 percent of registered voters turned out to participate in the nation's first free vote since 1946.
